BILL

to supplement, and in certain matters to supersede, the Royal Charter of Incorporation and the Statutes and Regulations of the Serampore College.

Preamble.

WHEREAS, on the 23rd day of February, 1827, the institution established in Serampore, Bengal, and known as the Serampore College, was incorporated by Royal Charter granted by his late Danish Majesty, King Frederick the Sixth, with the powers and privileges in the said Royal Charter set forth, including the power of conferring upon the students of the said College degrees of rank and honour according to their proficiency in science;

And whereas by Article VI of the Treaty of Purchase, dated the 22nd February, 1845, transferring Serampore to the British Government, it was provided that the rights and immunities granted to the Serampore College by the said Royal Charter, as translated and contained in Schedule I to this Act, should not be interfered with, but should continue in force in the same manner as if they had been obtained by a Charter from the British Government, subject to the general law of British India;

And whereas Statutes and Regulations for the better government of the said College and management of its concerns, as contained in Schedule II to this Act, were, on the 12th day of June, 1833, made and established under the powers conferred by Article 4 of the said Royal Charter;

And whereas, under the provisions of the said Royal Charter, the Council of the College consists of a Master or President and two or four members elected as provided in the said Statutes and Regulations, and the management of the College and its general order and government is vested in the Master and Council, and the said power of conferring degrees of rank and honour is vested in the first Council and their successors for ever;

And whereas it is considered that in order to give effect, under the conditions now existing, to the intentions of his late Danish Majesty and of the founders of the said College, that is to say, to promote piety and learning, particularly among the native Christian population of India, the amendment of the constitution of the College, by the enlargement of the Council on an interdenominational basis, with power to delegate some of its functions, in manner hereinafter appearing, is required;

And whereas the present Council of the said College consists of the Reverend George Pearce Gould, M.A., D.D., Master and President, George Barclay Leechman, Esq., Sir George Watson Macalpine, LL.D., the Reverend Robert Forman Horton, M.A., D.D., and the Reverend George Howells, M.A., PH. D., Principal of the College;

And whereas it is deemed expedient by the Governor in Council, with the consent of the said

The Serampore College Bill, 1918.(Clauses 1—6.)

Council of the Serampore College, that a Faculty and Senate be constituted for the said College in manner hereinafter appearing and that suitable standards be imposed in regard to any secular degrees that may hereafter be conferred by the said Council under the terms of the said Royal Charter;

And whereas it is necessary to make provision for the above purposes by subjecting the said Royal Charter, Statutes and Regulations to an Act of the legislature under the general law of British India in accordance with the terms of the aforesaid Treaty;

And whereas the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council has been obtained to the passing of this Act;

It is hereby enacted as follows:—

Short title.

1. This Act may be called the Serampore College Act, 1918.

Constitution of the Council.

2. (1) The Council of the Serampore College as constituted by the Royal Charter of the 23rd day of February, 1827, shall be enlarged so as to consist of not less than five nor more than sixteen ordinary members, including the Master, as the Council may from time to time determine. The first Council constituted under this section shall include the present Master and President and the other present members.

(2) At least one-third of the members of the Council shall be members of the Baptist denomination.

(3) The Master shall be the President of the Council.

(4) The Principal of the College, if not an ordinary member, shall be an additional member of the Council ex officio during his term of office as Principal of the College.

(5) Until otherwise determined by by-law made under section 14, three members of the Council shall form a quorum.

Resignation Members.

3. Any member of the Council may at any time resign his office by notice in writing to the Master, provided that no such resignation shall be deemed to take effect so long as the total number of members of the Council shall by reason thereof be less than five.

Election of Master.

4. On any vacancy occurring in the office of Master the remaining members of the Council shall elect another person, whether one of their number or not, to fill his place.

The College Faculty.

5. The Council shall, within one year from the date of the commencement of this Act, constitute and appoint in the manner prescribed in section 6 a body to be known as the College Faculty.

Constitution of the College Faculty.

6. (1) The Faculty shall consist of the Principal (who shall be its President) and such of the professors and other officials and functionaries of the College as may be appointed by the Council in accordance with by-laws made under section 14.

The Serampore College Bill, 1918.

(Clauses 7—12.)

(2) The Council shall from time to time prescribe and declare by order in writing the powers and duties of the Faculty, and may remove any member thereof.

Delegation of Council's powers and duties.

7. The Council may delegate to the Faculty, all or any of the powers and duties of the Council and Master, which concern only the internal management of the College and its general order and good government.

The Senate of the College.

8. The Council shall, within one year from the date of the commencement of this Act, constitute and appoint in the manner prescribed in section 9 a body to be known as the Senate of the College.

Constitution of the Senate.

9. The Senate shall consist of the Principal (who shall be convener) and not less than twelve nor more than eighteen persons as the Council may from time to time determine, to be appointed by the Council:

Provided that—

- (a) at least one and not more than three representatives of each of the following Christian denominations, viz., Anglican, Baptist, Congregational, Lutheran, Methodist, Presbyterian and Syrian, shall, as far as practicable, be members of the Senate;
- (b) at least two-thirds of the members shall be persons other than professors, officials or functionaries of the College;
- (c) not less than one-sixth of the members shall be members of the College Faculty.

Term of office of members of the Senate.

10. (1) Subject to the provisions of clause 11 of the Statutes and Regulations of the College, which shall be deemed to apply to members of the Senate, each member of the Senate shall hold office for a period of five years, at the expiration of which period he shall retire, but he shall be eligible for re-appointment:

Provided that the Principal shall not, during the term of his office as Principal, be subject to retirement, unless he becomes disqualified under the provisions of clause 11 of the Statutes and Regulations.

(2) Any member of the Senate may, by notice in writing to the Master, resign his membership at any time.

Duties of the Senate

11. The Senate shall frame courses of study and make rules for the conduct of examinations, and shall, subject to the control of the Council, determine the qualifications for degrees and diplomas, and do and perform all other matters and things necessary or proper for or relating to the determination of the eligibility of candidates for degrees, diplomas and certificates to be conferred by the Council.

Power of the Senate to make rules and regulations.

12. Subject to the provisions of this Act, the Senate shall make rules and regulations for the convening of its meetings and for the proper conduct of its business.

The Serampore College Bill, 1918.

Granting of degrees.

13. If, at any time, the Council shall intend to grant degrees in any branch or branches of knowledge and science other than theology, such degrees shall be confined to students who shall have received regular instruction at the Serampore College; and before the Council proceeds to grant such degrees, it shall satisfy the Government as defined in section 2 (b) of the Indian Universities Act, 1904, in relation to the University of Calcutta as to the adequacy—

VIII of 1904.

- (1) of the establishment and equipment of the College;
- (2) of the academic standard to be maintained; and
- (3) of the financial provision made therefor:

Provided that the said Government, on ceasing to be so satisfied, may withdraw their approval of the granting of such degrees.

Power of the Council to make by-laws.

14. Subject to the provisions of this Act and of the said Royal Charter, Statutes and Regulations, so far as they are not inconsistent therewith, the Council shall make by-laws providing for and regulating the following matters, namely:—

- (a) the convening of meetings of the Council;
- (b) the quorum to be required at meetings of the Council and the conduct of business at such meetings;
- (c) the appointment of members of the Council, Faculty and Senate;
- (d) the duties to be performed by the Faculty under the direction and control of the Council;
- (e) the conferring of degrees, diplomas and certificates on the recommendation of the Senate;
- (f) the terms and tenure of appointments, duties, emoluments, allowances and superannuation allowances of the Principal, Professors, Fellows, Tutors and other officers of the College and of its servants;
- (g) the finances and accounts of the College and the investment of its funds;
- (h) the person or persons by whom, and the manner and form in which, contracts by or on behalf of the College may be entered into, varied or discharged, and deeds, agreements, contracts, cheques, and other negotiable instruments and documents may be signed or executed on behalf of the College, and minutes and proceedings of meetings of the Council, Faculty or Senate may be authenticated or evidenced so as to bind the College and be receivable in evidence in accordance with the provisions of the Indian Evidence Act, 1872;

I of 1872.

The Serampore College Bill, 1918.(Clause 15.)

- (i) the custody and use of the common seal;
and
- (j) generally all such other matters as may be required or authorized under this Act and the said Royal Charter, Statutes and Regulations, so far as they are not inconsistent with this Act.

Effect of Act.

15. The provisions of the said Royal Charter and of the Statutes and Regulations made thereunder, so far as they are contrary to or inconsistent with any of the terms of this Act, shall be deemed to be superseded from the date of the commencement of this Act :

Provided that nothing in this Act shall render invalid any acts performed, duties imposed or liabilities incurred prior to the date on which this Act comes into force in accordance with the terms of the said Royal Charter, and of the Statutes and Regulations made thereunder.

SCHEDULE I. 6

[See Preamble and sections 2 (1), 14 and 15.]

Charter of Incorporation of the Serampore College.

WE Frederick the Sixth, by the Grace of God King of Denmark, the Venders and Gothers, Duke of Slesvig Holsten, Stormarn, Ditmarsken, Limesborg and Oldenborg, by these writings make known and publicly declare, that whereas William Carey and Joshua Marshman, Doctors of Divinity, and John Clark Marshman, Esq., inhabitants of our town of Fredericksnagore (or Serampore) in Bengal, being desirous of founding a College to promote piety and learning particularly among the native Christian population of India, have to secure this object erected suitable buildings and purchased and collected suitable books, maps, etc., and have humbly besought us to grant unto them and such persons as shall be elected by them and their successors to form the Council of the College in the manner to be hereafter named, our Royal Charter of Incorporation that they may the more effectually carry into execution the purposes above-mentioned:—We being desirous to encourage so laudable an undertaking, have of our special grace and free motion ordained, constituted, granted and declared, and by these presents We do for ourselves, our heirs and successors ordain, constitute, grant and declare:

1. That the said William Carey, Joshua Marshman and John Clark Marshman, and such other person or persons as shall successively be elected and appointed the Council of the said College, in the manner hereafter mentioned, shall by virtue of these presents be for ever hereafter one body politic and incorporate by the name of the Serampore College for the purposes aforesaid to have perpetual succession and to have a common seal, and by the said name to sue and to be sued, to implead and be impleaded, and to answer and be answered unto in every court and place belonging to us, our heirs and successors.

2. And We do hereby ordain, constitute and declare that the persons hereby incorporated and their successors shall for ever be competent in law to purchase, hold and enjoy for them and their successors any goods and chattels whatsoever and to receive, purchase, hold and enjoy, they and their successors, any lands, tenements or hereditaments whatever and that they shall have full power and authority to sell, exchange or otherwise dispose of any real or personal property to be by them acquired as aforesaid, unless the sale or alienation of such property be specially prohibited by the donor or donors thereof, and to do all things relating to the said College or Corporation in as ample a manner or form as any of our liege subjects, or any other body politic or corporate in our said kingdom or its dependencies may or can do.

3. And We do hereby ordain, grant and declare that the number of Professors Fellows or Student Tutors and Students shall be indefinite and that the said William Carey, Joshua Marshman and John Clark

The Serampore College Bill, 1918.(Schedule I.—Charter of Incorporation of the Serampore College.)

Marshman shall be the first Council of the said College, and that in the event of its appearing to them necessary during their lifetime, or in the case of the death of any one of the three members of the said first Council, the survivors or survivor shall and may under their respective hands and seals appoint such other person or persons to be members of the Council of the College, and to succeed each other so as to become members of the said Council in the order in which they shall be appointed, to the intent that the Council of the said College shall for ever consist of at least three persons.

4. And We do hereby further ordain, grant and declare, that for the better government of the said College and the better management of its concerns, the said William Carey, Joshua Marshman and John Clark Marshman, the members of the first Council, shall have full power and authority for the space of ten years from the date of these presents, to make and establish such Statutes as shall appear to them useful and necessary for the government of the said College, in which Statutes they shall define the powers to be entrusted to their successors, to the Professors, the Fellows or Student Tutors and the other officers thereof, and the duties to be performed by these respectively for the management of the estates, lands, revenues and goods—and of the business of the said College, and the manner of proposing, electing, admitting and removing all and every one of the Council, the Professors, the Fellows or Tutors, the officers, the students and the servants thereof, and shall make and establish generally all such other Statutes as may appear to them necessary for the future good government and prosperity of the said College, provided that these Statutes be not contrary to the laws and Statutes of our realm.

5. And We do hereby further ordain, grant and declare that the Statutes thus made and established by the said three members of the first Council and given or left in writing under their respective hands, shall be valid and in full force at the expiration of ten years from the date of these presents, so that no future Council of the College shall have power to alter, change or vary them in any manner whatever, and that the Statutes shall for ever be considered the constitution of the said College. And We do hereby appoint and declare that these Statutes shall be made and established by the said William Carey, Joshua Marshman and John Clark Marshman alone, so that in case either of them should die before the expiration of ten years, the power of completing or perfecting these Statutes shall devolve wholly on the survivors or survivor; and that in case all three of them should die before the expiration of ten years, the Statutes which they have left in writing under their hands, or under the hand of the last survivor among them, shall be considered "The Fundamental Statutes and Constitution of Serampore College", incapable of receiving either addition or alteration, and shall and may be registered in our Royal Court of Chancery as "The Statutes and Constitution of Serampore College".

The Serampore College Bill, 1918.(Schedule I.—Charter of Incorporation of the Serampore College.)

6. And We do hereby further appoint, grant and declare that from and after the completion of the Statutes of the said College in the above said time of ten years, the said Council of the College shall be deemed to consist of a Master or President and two or four members who may be Professors or otherwise as the Statutes may direct so that the said Council shall not contain less than three, nor more than five persons, as shall be defined in the Statutes. The Council shall ever be elected as the Statutes of the College may direct, yet the said Master or President shall always previously have been a member of the College; and upon the decease of the said Master or President, the Council of the said College shall be unable to do any act or deed until the appointment of a new Master or President, save and except the appointment of such a Master.

7. And We further appoint, grant and declare that the said William Carey, Joshua Marshman and John Clark Marshman, the members of the first Council, and their successors for ever, shall have the power of conferring upon the students of the said College, native Christians as well as others, degrees of rank and honour according to their proficiency in as ample a manner as any other such College, yet the said Serampore College shall only have the power of conferring such degrees on the students that testify their proficiency in Science, and no rank or other special right shall be connected therewith in our dominions. And We do hereby further appoint, grant, and declare, that after the expiration of the said ten years, the said Council of the College and their successors for ever shall have power to make and establish such orders and bye-laws as shall appear to them useful and necessary for the government of the said College, and to alter, suspend or repeal those already made, and from time to time make such new ones in their room as shall appear to them most proper and expedient provided the same be not repugnant to the Statutes of the College or the laws of our realm, and that after the expiration of these ten years any member of the Council shall have power to move the enactment of any new bye-law, or the alteration, suspension or repeal of any existing one provided notice of such motion shall have been delivered in writing to the Master and read from the Chair at one previous meeting of the Council of the said College, but that no such motion shall be deemed to have passed in the affirmative, until the same shall have been discussed and decided by ballot at another meeting summoned especially for that purpose, a majority of the members then present having voted in the affirmative; and in this as in all other cases, if the votes be equal, the Master or President shall have the casting vote.

Given at our Royal Palace in Copenhagen on the twenty-third day of February in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and twenty-seven, in the nineteenth year of our reign.

Under our Royal Hand and Seal.

FREDERICK R.

The Serampore College Bill, 1918.(Schedule II.—Statutes and Regulations of the Serampore College.)

SCHEDULE II.

[See Preamble and sections 10 (1), 14 and 15.]Statutes and Regulations of the Serampore College.June 12th, 1833.

1. Article the Third of the Charter granted by His Danish Majesty, having authorized the first Council of Serampore College in their life-time to nominate under their hand and seal such other person or persons for colleagues or successors as may to them appear most proper so that the Council shall always consist of at least three persons, their successors in the Council shall be competent in like manner to nominate in their life-time under their separate hand and seal such person or persons as they may deem most proper to fill vacancies then existing or which may occur on their demise; members thus nominated and chosen shall succeed to the Council in order of their nomination.

2. It being fixed in the Charter that the Council must consist of the Master or President and at least two, but not more than four members, and that on the demise of the Master no act shall be done until another be elected, the Master and Council for the time being shall appoint the next Master under their separate hand and seal. If on the demise of a Master no one be found thus appointed under the hand and seal of a majority of the Council, the senior member of the Council shall succeed as Master.

3. The Charter having given the casting vote to the Master, in all cases when the votes are equal the casting vote shall lie with the Master, and if there be no Master, it shall lie with the Senior Member of the Council.

4. Learning and piety being peculiar to no denomination of Christians, one member of the Council may at all times be of any other denomination besides the Baptist to preserve the original design of the Institution. However if on the election of a Master a number of the Council be equally divided, that part which is entirely of the Baptist denomination shall have the casting vote, whether it includes the Master or not.

5. The management of the College, including its revenues and property, the choice of the Professor and Tutors, the admission of students, the appointment of all functionaries and servants and the general order and government of the College, shall ever be vested in the Master and the Council. The Master shall see that the Statutes and Regulations of the Council be duly carried into effect, and take order for the good government of the College in all things. His signature is necessary to the validity of all deeds, instruments, documents and proceedings.

6. "The first Council and their successors for ever" being authorized by the Charter "to confer such degrees of rank and honour as shall encourage learning"

The Serampore College Bill, 1918.(Schedule II.—Statutes and Regulations of the • Serampore College.)

in the same manner as other Colleges and Universities, they shall from time to time confer degrees in such branches of Knowledge and Science as may be studied there, in the same manner as the Universities in Denmark, Germany and Great Britain. In doing this the Master and Council shall ad libitum call in the aid of any or all the Professors of Serampore College. All such degrees shall be perfectly free of expense to the person on whom they may be conferred, whether he be in India, Europe or America.

7. No oaths shall be administered in Serampore College either to the Members of the Council, the Professors and Tutors, or the students. In all cases a solemn promise, duly recorded and signed by the party, shall be accepted instead of an oath.

8. Marriage shall be no bar to any office or situation in Serampore College, from that of the Master to that of the lowest student.

9. The salaries of the Professors and Tutors in Serampore College shall be appointed and the means of support for all functionaries, students and servants be regulated by the Council in such manner as shall best promote the objects of the Institution.

10. It is intended that neither the Master nor any Member of the Council in general shall receive any salary. But any Master who may not previously reside in the College shall have a residence there free of rent for himself and his family. And if the Council shall elect any one in Europe or in America, whom they deem eminent for learning and piety, a member of the Council, with a view to choosing him Master should they on trial deem him worthy, the Council shall be competent to appoint him such salary as they may deem necessary, not exceeding, however, the highest given to a Professor.

11. As the founders of the College deem the belief of Christ's Divinity and Atonement essential to vital Christianity, the promotion of which is the grand object of this Institution, no one shall be eligible to the College Council or to any Professorship who is known to oppose these doctrines, and should any one of the Professors or any member of the Council unhappily change his views after his election as to oppose these fundamental doctrines of Christianity, on this being clearly and decidedly proved from his teaching or his writings, he shall vacate the office he previously held. But every proceeding of this nature on the part of the College Council shall be published to the Christian world, with the proofs on which it may rest, as an Appendix to the succeeding Report.

12. Members of the Council are eligible from among the Professors of the College, or from among any in India, Europe, or America, whom the College Council may deem suitable in point of learning, piety, and talent.

The Serampore College Bill, 1918.(Schedule II.—Statutes and Regulations of the Serampore College.)

13. Students are admissible at the discretion of the Council from any body of Christians, whether Protestant, Roman Catholic, the Greek, or the Armenian Church; and for the purpose of study, from the Musalman and Hindu youth, whose habits forbid their living in the College. No caste, colour, or country shall bar any man from admission into Serampore College.

14. Expulsion shall be awarded in cases of open immorality, incorrigible idleness, neglect of the College Statutes and Regulations, or repeated disobedience to the officers of the College. •

15. Any person in India, Europe or America shall be at liberty to found any Professorship, or to attach to Serampore College any annual exhibition or prize for the encouragement of learning in the same manner as in Universities of Great Britain, regulating such endowment according to their own will; and it shall be the duty of the College Council to carry such benefactions into effect in strict consonance with the will of the donors as far as shall be consistent with the Statutes of the College.

16. It shall be lawful for the first Council of the College or their successors to make and rescind any bye-laws whatever, provided they be not contrary to these Statutes.

17. The Charter having declared that the number of the Professors and Students in Serampore College remains unlimited, they shall be left thus unlimited, the number to be regulated only by the gracious providence of God and the generosity of the public in India, Europe and America.

A BILL

to extend Village Self-Government in Bengal.

WHEREAS it is expedient to extend the system of Village Self-Government in Bengal;

And whereas the sanction of the Governor General has been obtained under section 79, sub-section (2) and sub-section (3), of the Government of India Act, 1915, ^{5 & 6 Geo V, c. 61}

It is hereby enacted as follows:—

PART I.CHAPTER I.*PRELIMINARY.

Short title, local extent and commencement.

1. (1) This Act may be called the Bengal Village Self-Government Act, 1918.

(2) It extends to the whole of Bengal, except the town of Calcutta and any area which has been or may hereafter be constituted a Municipality under the provisions of the Bengal Municipal Act, 1884.

[Cf. Act
s. 1 (3).]

Ben. Act III
of 1884.

Explanation.—The words “the town of Calcutta” mean, subject to the exclusion or inclusion of any local area by notification under section 637 of the Calcutta Municipal Act, 1899, and subject to the provisions of section 147 of the Calcutta Improvement Act, 1911, the area described in Schedule 1 to the Calcutta Municipal Act, 1899.

Ben. Act III
of 1899.
Ben. Act V
of 1911.

(3) It shall come into force in such districts or parts thereof and on such dates as the Local Government may, by notification, direct, and the Local Government may, by notification, withdraw this Act from any district or part thereof:

[Cf. Ben.
Act V of 1914,
s. 1 (2).]

Provided that this Act shall not come into force in any cantonment without the sanction of the Governor General in Council previously obtained.

[Cf. Ben.
Act III of
1885, s. 4.]

Definitions.

2. In this Act, unless there is anything repugnant in the subject or context,—

(1) “building” includes a hut and shed;

(2) “Circle Officer” means any person who may be appointed by the Local Government to exercise the powers and perform the duties of a Circle Officer under this Act;

[Cf. Act VI
(9).]

(3) “Dafadar” means a head Chaukidar;

(4) “District Board” means a District Board established under the Bengal Local Self-Government Act of 1885;

Ben. Act III

(5) “local authority” means any District Board or Local Board, Joint Committee, Union Committee or Joint Union Committee constituted under the Bengal Local Self-Government Act of 1885 and any Village Committee or Circle Board constituted under this Act;

(Part I.—Chapter II.—Village Committees and Circle Boards.—Clauses 3-5.)

- (6) "notification" means a notification published in the Calcutta Gazette; [Cf. Ben. Act III of 1885, s. 5.]
- (7) "Subdivisional Magistrate" means any Magistrate in charge of a subdivision of a district; and
- (8) "year" means a year beginning on the first day of April, or on such other date as may hereafter be fixed for any Village Committee or Circle Board by the Local Government by notification. [Cf. Ben. Act III of 1884, s. 6 (19).]

CHAPTER II.

VILLAGE COMMITTEES AND CIRCLE BOARDS.

Power of Local Government to declare local areas to be villages.

3. When this Act has come into force in any district, or part thereof, the Local Government shall, by notification, divide that district or part into as many local areas as may to them seem expedient, and shall, by notification, declare every such local area to be a village for the purposes of this Act.

Establishment and constitution of Village Committee.

4. (1) The Local Government shall, by notification, establish a Village Committee for every village constituted under section 3, and shall fix the number of members of each Village Committee: [Cf. Ben. Act III of 1884, ss. 38, 39, 40 and 41.]

Provided that the number of members of a Village Committee shall not be less than six or more than nine.

(2) The members shall be elected from among the residents of the village by persons qualified to vote under section 5, and within such time and in accordance with such rules as may be prescribed in this behalf under section 111.

(3) Notwithstanding anything contained in sub-section (2), the Local Government may direct, by an order in writing, for reasons to be stated in such order, that any Village Committee shall consist of members partly elected in the manner referred to in sub-section (2) and partly appointed by the District Magistrate:

Provided that the number of members to be so elected shall not be less than two-thirds of the total number of members of the Village Committee.

(4) If within the period fixed in this behalf, the electors of any Village Committee fail to elect the full number of members prescribed for the Committee, the District Magistrate shall appoint the remainder; and any person so appointed shall be deemed to be a duly elected member.

(5) The members appointed by the District Magistrate shall be deemed to have been appointed on the date on which the election under this section takes place.

Qualifications of voters and members of Village Committee.

5. (1) Every male person of the full age of twenty-one years and resident within the village,—

(i) who, during the year immediately preceding the election, has paid a sum of not less than one rupee as cess in respect of lands situated wholly or in part in such village, or

(ii) who, during the year immediately preceding such election, has been assessed at and paid a sum of not less than one rupee for the purposes of the village rate payable under this Act, or in the case of a first election under this Act, as chaukidari-tax, or

(iii) who is a member of a joint undivided family, which, during the year immediately preceding the election, has paid a sum of not less than one rupee as such cess, rate or tax, shall be entitled to vote at an election of members of the Village Committee.

(2) Every male person of the full age of twenty-one years and resident within the village shall be entitled to be a member of the Village Committee if duly elected thereto.

President of Village Committee

6. (1) Every Village Committee shall be presided over by a President, who shall be elected by the members of the Village Committee from among their own number.

(2) If any Village Committee fails to elect a President within the period prescribed in this behalf by rules made under section 111, the District Magistrate shall appoint a member of the Committee to be the President.

Establishment of Circle Board.

7. Whenever Village Committees have been established in any district or part thereof under section 4, sub-section (1), the Local Government shall, by notification, declare such of the villages in that district or part as may to them seem expedient to form a Circle, and shall establish a Circle Board for every such Circle.

Constitution of Circle Board

8. (1) A Circle Board shall consist of fifteen members, namely:—

(a) five members to be appointed by the Commissioner;

(b) ten members to be elected within such time and in accordance with such rules as may be prescribed in this behalf under section 111.

[Cf. Ben. Act III of 1886, ss. 9, 10 and 11.]

(2) The District Magistrate shall, from time to time, for the purposes of election under clause (b) of sub-section (1), by order in this behalf, divide a Circle into two or more groups of villages and allot the number of members to be elected by each group.

(3) The members of the Village Committees in every such group shall elect the number of members of the Circle Board allotted to that group from among their own number or from among the persons who are qualified to vote at an election of members of any of the Village Committees within the group.

(4) If the ten members of the Circle Board to be elected under clause (b) of sub-section (1) are not all duly elected under sub-section (3) within the prescribed period, the Commissioner shall appoint a member or members to make up the required number; and any person so appointed shall be deemed to be a duly elected member.

(5) Members appointed by the Commissioner under this section shall be deemed to have been appointed on the date on which the election under clause (b) of sub-section (1) takes place.

Chairman of Circle Board.

9. (1) Every Circle Board shall be presided over by a Chairman, who shall be elected, either by name or by virtue of office, by the members from among their own number, or the Circle Board may, at a meeting attended by not less than two-thirds of its members, request the District Magistrate to appoint a Chairman.

[Cf. Ben. Act III of 1885, s. 25.]

(2) If any Circle Board fails to elect a Chairman within the period prescribed in this behalf by rules made under section 111, the Commissioner shall appoint a Chairman.

Vice-Chairman of Circle Board.

10. (1) Every Circle Board shall, within such period as may be prescribed in this behalf by rules made under section 111, elect one of its members to be the Vice-Chairman of the Circle Board.

[Cf. Ben. Act III of 1885, s. 26.]

(2) If any Circle Board fails to elect a Vice-Chairman within such period, the Commissioner may appoint a Vice-Chairman.

Disqualification of certain persons from voting at election of, or being members of, Village Committees or Circle Boards.

11. Notwithstanding anything contained in this Act, no person who is not a British subject or a subject of any State in India shall be qualified to vote at an election of, or to be a candidate for election as a member of, a Village Committee or Circle Board, nor shall such person be nominated to be a member of such Committee or Board or to hold the office of Chairman of any such Board:

Provided that the Local Government may, with the approval of the Governor General in Council, by notification, exempt from the provisions of this section any person or class of persons who are not British subjects or subjects of any State in India.

Power to remove members.

12. The District Magistrate may remove any member of a Village Committee and the Commissioner may remove any member of a Circle Board—

(1) who is convicted of any such offence or is subjected by a Criminal Court to any such order, as, in the opinion of the District Magistrate or the Commissioner, as the case may be, formed after such inquiry as the District Magistrate or Commissioner may consider to be necessary, unfits such person to be a member; or

[Cf. Ben. Act III of 1885, ss. 18 and 18A.]

(2) who refuses to act, or becomes incapable of acting, or is declared to be insolvent; or

(3) who has been declared by notification to be disqualified for employment in the public service; or

(4) who, without an excuse sufficient in the opinion of the District Magistrate or the Commissioner, as the case may be, absents himself from six consecutive meetings of the Committee or Board; or

(Part I.—Chapter II.—Village Committees and Circle Boards.—Clauses 13-16.)

(5) on the recommendation of the Village Committee or Circle Board at a meeting, if the member has been guilty of misconduct in the discharge of his duties, or of any disgraceful conduct.

Term of office of members.

13. (1) The term of office of a member of a Village Committee or Circle Board shall be three years from the date of his election or appointment, but shall include any period which may elapse between the expiration of the said three years and the date of the next subsequent election or appointment, not being an election or appointment made under section 14.

[Cf. Ben. Act III of 1885, s. 42.]

(2) Any member shall, if not disqualified for any of the reasons mentioned in clause (1) or clause (3) of section 12, be eligible for re-election or re-appointment at the end of his term of office.

Filling of casual vacancies.

14. When the place of an elected or appointed member of a Village Committee or Circle Board becomes vacant by his removal, resignation or death, a new member shall be elected or appointed in the manner provided in section 4, or section 8, as the case may be, and shall hold office so long as the member whose place he fills would have been entitled to hold office if such vacancy had not occurred :

[Cf. Ben. Act III of 1885, s. 43.]

Provided that no act of the Village Committee or Circle Board, or of their officers, shall be deemed to be invalid by reason only that the number of members of the Committee or Board at the time of the performance of such act was less than the prescribed number.

Resignation of President, Chairman, Vice-Chairman or member.

15. (1) A President of a Village Committee or a Chairman of a Circle Board may resign during the term of his office by notifying his intention to do so, in the case of a President of a Village Committee, to the District Magistrate, and in the case of a Chairman of a Circle Board, to the Commissioner; and on such resignation being accepted by the Magistrate or Commissioner, as the case may be, shall be deemed to have vacated his office.

(2) A Vice-Chairman of a Circle Board may resign during the term of his office by notifying in writing his intention to do so to the Circle Board; and on such resignation being accepted, shall be deemed to have vacated his office.

(3) A member of a Village Committee or Circle Board may resign during his term of office by notifying in writing his intention to do so to the Village Committee or Circle Board, as the case may be, and on such resignation being accepted shall be deemed to have vacated his office.

[Cf. Ben. Act III of 1884, s. 27A.]

Removal of President or Chairman or Vice-Chairman.

16. (1) The District Magistrate may remove a President of a Village Committee and the Commissioner may remove a Chairman of a Circle Board from his office—

(i) if he refuses to act, or becomes incapable of acting, or is declared insolvent ;

(Part I.—Chapter II.—Village Committees and Circle Boards.—Clauses 17, 18.)

(ii) if he is convicted of any such offence or subjected by a Criminal Court to any such order, as, in the opinion of the District Magistrate or the Commissioner, as the case may be, formed after such inquiry as the District Magistrate or Commissioner may consider to be necessary, shows him to be unfit to be President of a Village Committee or Chairman of a Circle Board; or

(iii) on the recommendation of the Village Committee or Circle Board at a meeting, if he is guilty of misconduct or persistent negligence in the discharge of his duties as President or Chairman, or of any disgraceful conduct.

[Cf. Ben. Act III of 1884, s. 19.]

(2) A Circle Board may remove its Vice-Chairman from his office—

(i) if he refuses to act, or becomes incapable of acting, or is declared insolvent; or

(ii) if he is convicted of any such offence, or subjected by a Criminal Court to any such order, as, in the opinion of the Circle Board, formed after such inquiry as the Circle Board may consider to be necessary, unfits him to be Vice-Chairman; or

(iii) if he is guilty of misconduct or persistent negligence in the discharge of his duties as Vice-Chairman, or of any disgraceful conduct.

Filling up of casual vacancy in office of President or Chairman or Vice-Chairman.

17. (1) If a President of a Village Committee or a Chairman or a Vice-Chairman of a Circle Board dies, resigns, or is removed, the Village Committee or the Circle Board, as the case may be, may, at a meeting, within a period prescribed in this behalf by rules made under section 11, elect from among its members a President, a Chairman or a Vice-Chairman, as the case may be.

[Cf. Ben. Act III of 1885, s. 29.]

(2) If any Village Committee or Circle Board fails to elect a new President, Chairman or Vice-Chairman, as the case may be, within the prescribed period, the District Magistrate, in the case of a Village Committee, or the Commissioner, in the case of a Circle Board, may appoint a new President, Chairman or Vice-Chairman.

Term of office of President, Chairman or Vice-Chairman.

18. (1) The term of office of a President of a Village Committee or of an elected Chairman of a Circle Board or of a Vice-Chairman of a Circle Board shall, subject to the provisions of sections 15 and 16, be the residue of his term of office as a member of the Village Committee or of the Circle Board, as the case may be.

(2) The term of office of an appointed Chairman of a Circle Board shall, subject as aforesaid, be one year from the date of his appointment; but he may be re-appointed on the expiration of that term: •

Provided that the term of office of an appointed Chairman shall not extend beyond the time of the first meeting of the members of the next subsequent Circle Board elected or appointed in the manner provided in section 8.

(Part I.—Chapter II.—Village Committees and Circle Boards.—Chapter III.—Powers and Duties of Village Committees.—Clauses 19-22.)

(3) Every appointed Chairman of a Circle Board shall be deemed to be a member of the Board during his term of office.

Incorporation of Village Committees and Circle Boards.

19. Every Village Committee and Circle Board shall be a body corporate by the name of "the Village Committee of (name of village)", and shall have perpetual succession and a common seal, and shall by the said name, sue and be sued, with power to acquire or hold property, both movable and immovable, and, subject to any rules made by the Local Government under section 111, to transfer any such property held by a Village Committee or Circle Board and to contract and do all other things necessary for the purposes of this Act.

Works constructed by a Village Committee and Circle Board to vest in them.

20. Every road, building or other work constructed by a Village Committee or Circle Board from the Village or Circle Fund shall be vested in the Village Committee or Circle Board by which it has been constructed.

[Cf. Ben. Act III of 1885, s. 75.]

Power of Circle Board to make rules as to business and affairs.

21. (1) Every Circle Board, with the sanction of the Commissioner, may, and shall, from time to time, if so required by the Commissioner, make rules regulating—

[Cf. Ben. Act III of 1885, s. 82.]

- (a) the time, place and notice of its meetings, the business to be transacted at such meetings, the conduct of proceedings thereat, and the due record of all dissents and discussions;
- (b) the custody of the common seal and the purposes for which it shall be used;
- (c) the division of duties amongst its members;
- (d) the powers to be exercised by the Chairman or the Vice-Chairman or by sub-committees or members to whom particular duties are assigned;
- (e) the granting of receipts for money received under this Act;
- (f) the duties, appointment, leave, leave-allowances and punishment (including suspension and removal) of officers and servants of the Board; and
- (g) other similar matters.

(2) All rules made under sub-section (1) shall be published in such manner as the Commissioner may direct.

CHAPTER III.

POWERS AND DUTIES OF VILLAGE COMMITTEES.

Duties of Village Committees.

22. Every Village Committee shall,—

(1) in accordance with rules made in this behalf under section 111.—

- (a) exercise a general control over the Dafadars and Chaukidars of the village;

[Cf. Ben. Act VI of 1870, s. 41; and Ben. Act III of 1885, ss. 111, 114, 115.]

(Part I.—Chapter III.—Powers and Duties of Village Committees.—Clauses 23-25.)

- (b) provide, as far as possible, for the sanitation and conservancy of the village and for the prevention of public nuisances therein;
 - (c) make special arrangements for the sanitation and conservancy of fairs and melas held within the village;
 - (d) have control of all drains and other conservancy works within the village which are not under the control of any other authority;
 - (e) execute all works that are necessary for improving the sanitation, conservancy or drainage of the village; and
 - (f) perform all such other acts as may be necessary to carry out the purposes of this Act;
- (2) perform such functions as may be transferred to it by notification under section 31 of the Cattle-trespass Act, 1871; and
- (3) if required to do so by the District Magistrate, provide for the registration of births and deaths within the village under the provisions of the Bengal Births and Deaths Registration Act, 1873.

Ben. Act IV of 1873.

Numbers and salaries of Dafadars and Chaukidars.

23. (1) The number of Dafadars and Chaukidars to be employed in a village, the salary to be paid to them and the nature and cost of their equipment shall be determined from time to time by the District Magistrate after consideration of the views of the Village Committee.

[Cf. Ben. Act VI of 1870, ss. 11 and 12.]

(2) The salaries and the cost of equipment of Dafadars and Chaukidars shall be paid by the Village Committee, and the Dafadars and Chaukidars shall receive their salaries and equipment at such times and in such manner as may be prescribed in this behalf by rules made under section 111.

[Cf. Ben. Act VI of 1870, ss. 43 and 44.]

Appointment and dismissal of Dafadars and Chaukidars.

24. (1) The District Magistrate shall appoint such person as he considers fit to be a Dafadar under this Act, and the Village Committee shall, when a vacancy exists, nominate a person to be a Chaukidar under this Act, and the District Magistrate shall, if satisfied with such nomination, appoint such nominee to be Chaukidar:

[Cf. Ben. Act VI of 1870, s. 35.]

• Provided that, if the Village Committee fails within a reasonable time to nominate a person to be a Chaukidar, or, if the District Magistrate is not satisfied with such nomination, the District Magistrate shall appoint any person, whom he thinks fit, to be a Chaukidar.

(2) The District Magistrate may dismiss any Dafadar or Chaukidar, and the Village Committee may, with the sanction of the District Magistrate, dismiss any Chaukidar.

Power to fine Dafadars and Chaukidars.

25. Every Dafadar and Chaukidar who is guilty of any wilful misconduct in his office, or neglect of his duty, such misconduct or neglect not being an offence within the meaning of the Indian Penal Code, and not being of so grave a character as in the opinion of the District Magistrate to require his dismissal, shall be liable to be punished by the District Magistrate with fine not exceeding the amount of one month's salary.

[Cf. Ben. Act VI of 1870, s. 38.]

Act XLV of 1860.

(Part I.—Chapter III.—Powers and Duties of Village Committees.—Clause 26.)

Powers and duties of Dafadars and Chaukidars.

26. (1) Every Chaukidar shall exercise the following powers and perform the following duties :—

[Cf. Ben.
1870, s. 89.]

(i) he shall give immediate information to the officer in charge of the police-station within the limits of which the village is situated of every unnatural, suspicious or sudden death which may occur, and of any offence specified in Schedule I which may be committed within the village, and he shall keep the police informed of all disputes which are likely to lead to any riot or serious affray;

(ii) he may, without an order from a Magistrate and without a warrant, arrest—

(a) any person who has been concerned in any cognizable offence or against whom a reasonable complaint has been made, or credible information has been received, or a reasonable suspicion exists of his having been so concerned;

(b) any person having in his possession, without lawful excuse, the burden of proving which excuse shall lie on such person, any implement of house-breaking;

(c) any person who has been proclaimed as an offender either under the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1898, or by order of the Local Government;

(d) any person in whose possession anything is found which may reasonably be suspected to be stolen property, or who may reasonably be suspected of having committed an offence with reference to such thing;

(e) any person who obstructs a police-officer while in the execution of his duty, or who has escaped, or attempts to escape, from lawful custody;

(f) any person reasonably suspected of being a deserter from His Majesty's Army or Navy or of belonging to His Majesty's Indian Marine Service and being illegally absent from that service;

(g) any person who has been concerned in, or against whom a reasonable complaint has been made or credible information has been received or a reasonable suspicion exists of his having been concerned in, any act committed at any place out of British India, which, if committed in British India, would have been punishable as an offence, and for which he is, under any law relating to extradition or under the Fugitive Offenders Act, 1881, or otherwise, liable to be apprehended or detained in custody in British India; and

Vict., c. 69.

(h) any released convict committing a breach of any rule made under section 565, sub-section (3), of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1898;

(iii) he shall, to the best of his ability, prevent, and he may interpose for the purpose of preventing, the commission of any offence specified in Schedule I;

(Part I — Chapter III.—Powers and Duties of Village Committees.—Clauses 27-29.)

(iv) he shall assist private persons in making such arrests as they may lawfully make, and he shall report such arrests without delay to the officer in charge of the aforesaid police-station;

(v) he shall observe, and, from time to time, report to the said officer the movements of all bad characters within the village;

(vi) he shall report to the said officer the arrival of suspicious characters in the neighbourhood;

(vii) (a) in any village in which the Village Committee has not been required under clause (3) of section 22 to provide for the registration of births and deaths, he shall report to the said officer at such intervals as the District Magistrate may determine and in the manner prescribed by the District Magistrate, the births and deaths, if any, which have occurred within the village; or

(b) in a village in which the Village Committee is required under the said clause to provide for the registration of births and deaths, he shall report to the President of the Village Committee the births and deaths, if any, which have occurred within the village;

(viii) he shall supply any local information which the District Magistrate or any police-officer may require;

(ix) he shall obey the orders of the Village Committee in regard to keeping watch within the village and in regard to other matters connected with his duties as Chaukidar;

(x) he shall assist the person collecting the village rate in making such collection; and

(xi) he shall carry out such other duties as may be entrusted to him from time to time in accordance with this Act or any rules made thereunder.

(2) Every Dafadar shall exercise all the powers conferred on a Chaukidar under sub-section (1) and shall perform such duties as may be imposed upon him by rules made under section 111.

Procedure on arrest by Dafadars or Chau-kidars.

27. Whenever a Dafadar or Chaukidar arrests any person under section 26, he shall forthwith take the person so arrested to the police-station within the limits of which such village is situated:

[Cf. Ben. Act VI of 1870, s. 40.]

Provided that, if the arrest is made at night, such person shall be so taken, as soon as convenient, off the following morning.

Fines to be credited to District Chaukidari Reward Fund.

28. All fines realized from a Dafadar or Chaukidar under this Act shall be credited to a District Chaukidari Reward Fund, the control over which shall rest with the District Magistrate.

[Cf. Ben. Act VI of 1870, s. 42.]

Power of Village
Committee as to sanitation, conservancy and drainage.

29. (1) If it appears to the Village Committee that, for any reason, it is necessary to improve the sanitary condition of the village or part of the village, the Committee may—

[Cf. Ben. Act III of 1886, s. 116(1), (2) and (3).]

(a) cause huts or privies to be removed either wholly or in part;

(Part I.—Chapter III.—Powers and Duties of Village Committees.—Clauses 30, 31.)

- (b) cause private drains to be constructed, altered or removed;
- (c) cause streets, passages and public drains to be constructed or widened;
- (d) cause tanks or low lands to be filled up or deepened; and
- (e) cause such other improvements to be made as in its opinion are necessary to improve the condition of such village or part.

(2) The Village Committee may, by written notice,—

- (i) require the owner or occupier of any hut, or the owner of any privy, to remove such hut or privy, either wholly or in part, in pursuance of clause (a) of sub-section (1); or
- (ii) require the owner or occupier of any building to construct private drains therefor, or to alter or remove private drains thereof, in pursuance of clause (b) of sub-section (1), within a period to be specified in the notice.

(3) If any work required by any such notice is not executed within the period specified in the notice, the Village Committee may itself cause such work to be carried out, and may recover the cost of such work from the owner or occupier of the building or privy as if it were an arrear of rate imposed under section 38.

Power of Village Committee as to cleansing of villages.

30. (1) The Village Committee may employ a special establishment for the cleansing of the village or any part of the village. [Cf. Ben. Act III of 1885, s. 117.]

(2) Where no establishment is maintained, the Village Committee may, by written notice, require owners or occupiers of land in the village to cleanse their holdings to the satisfaction of the Committee within a period to be specified in the notice.

(3) If any person on whom notice has been served under sub-section (2) fails to comply with the requisition contained in the notice, the Village Committee shall, unless reasonable cause to the contrary is shown,

- (a) cause his holding to be cleansed, and
- (b) recover from such person such portion of the costs of such cleansing as may be approved by the Circle Officer, as if it were an arrear of rate imposed under section 38.

Power of Village Committee to control erection of new buildings.

31. (1) The Village Committee may, subject to rules made in this behalf under section 111, by written order,— [Cf. Ben. Act III of 1885, s. 118.]

- (a) direct, in accordance with a scheme approved by the Circle Board, that no building which it is proposed to erect in such village, and no addition to any existing building therein, shall be placed in advance of an alignment to be prescribed by the Village Committee and demarcated on the ground: and

- (b) prescribe, in accordance with the said scheme, the space which shall intervene between any new or enlarged building and the building next adjacent and between any new or enlarged building and any road in the village.

(2) Where any building, or any addition thereto, has been placed in contravention of an order passed by the Village Committee under sub-section (1), the Village Committee may apply to the District Magistrate, and such Magistrate may make an order—

- (i) directing that the work done, or so much of the same as has been executed in contravention of the order passed under sub-section (1), be demolished by the owner of the building or altered by him to the satisfaction of the Village Committee, as the case may be, within such time as may be fixed by the District Magistrate ; or
- (ii) directing that the work done, or so much of the same as has been executed in contravention of the order passed under sub-section (1), be demolished or altered by the Village Committee at the expense of the owner within such time as may be fixed by the District Magistrate :

Provided that the Magistrate shall not make any such order without giving the owner and occupier full opportunity of adducing evidence and of being heard in defence.

- (3) If any person to whom a direction to demolish or alter any building is given under clause (i) of sub-section (2), fails to obey the same, he shall be liable to a fine which may extend, in the case of a masonry building, to one hundred rupees, and, in the case of any other building, to twenty rupees, and to a further fine which may extend, in the case of a masonry building, to ten rupees, and in the case of any other building, to two rupees for each day during which, after the period fixed by the District Magistrate, he fails to obey the direction to demolish or alter the building.

Power of Village Committee to provide for proper water-supply.

32. (1) A Village Committee may provide the village, or any part thereof, with a supply of water, proper and sufficient, for public and private purposes ; and, for such purposes, may—

[Cf. Ben. Act III of 1885, s. 118A.]

- (a) construct, repair and maintain tanks or wells, and clear out streams or water-courses ;
- (b) purchase or acquire by lease any tank, well, stream or water-course, or any right to take or convey water within or without the village ;
- (c) with the consent of the owner thereof, utilize, cleanse or repair any tank, well, stream or water-course within the village, or provide facilities for obtaining water therefrom ;

(d) deal with any tank, well, pool, ditch, drain or place containing, or used for the collection of any drainage, filth, stagnant water or matter likely to be prejudicial to health by draining or cleansing it, or otherwise preventing it from being prejudicial to health, but not so as in any case to interfere with any private right;

(e) contract with any person for a supply of water; or

(f) do any other acts necessary for carrying out the purposes of this section.

(2) When a Village Committee has under clause (c) cleansed or repaired or provided facilities for obtaining water from any tank, well, stream or water-course, the same, if the water thereof is fit for drinking or culinary purposes, shall be set apart for those purposes, subject to any rights retained by the owner, with the concurrence of the Committee, and shall be kept open to access by the public.

(3) Any tank, well, stream or water-course which a Village Committee may construct, repair or maintain under clause (a), or purchase or acquire by lease under clause (b), shall remain under the control and administration of the Village Committee; and the Committee may, by order duly published in the village or part of the village in which such tank, well, stream or water-course is situated, set apart the same, or, subject to the consent of the owner in accordance with the provisions of clause (c), any other tank, well, stream or water-course within the village, for the supply of water for drinking or culinary purposes.

(4) Any person who voluntarily corrupts or fouls the water of a tank, well, stream or water-course, which is set apart under sub-section (2) or sub-section (3) for the supply of water for drinking or culinary purposes, shall be punished with fine which may extend to twenty-five rupees.

Village-roads and bridges to be under the control of Village Committee.

33. The Village Committee shall have control of all village-roads and bridges thereon, which are not under the control of the District Board, and may do all things that are necessary for the maintenance and repair of such roads and bridges, and may—

(a) lay out and make new village-roads;

(b) build and construct new bridges;

(c) turn, divert, discontinue or stop up any village-road or bridge thereon;

(d) widen, open, enlarge and otherwise improve any such road or bridge thereon; and

(e) provide for the lighting of any road within the village.

[cf. Ben. Act. III of 1885, ss. 108 and 109.]

(Part I.—Chapter III.—Powers and Duties of Village Committees.—Chapter IV.—Village Fund.—Clauses 34—38.)

Establishment of primary schools and dispensaries.

34. The Village Committee may, subject to any rules made in this behalf under section 111, establish primary schools or dispensaries, or assume charge of existing schools or dispensaries, and shall repair, maintain and manage any school or dispensary under its charge.

Further duties of Village Committees.

35. The District Board may, from time to time, with the consent of the Village Committee, make over to a Village Committee, subject to such conditions as they may deem necessary, the management of any institution or the execution of any work or duty within the area over which the Village Committee has control; and thereupon such Village Committee shall do all things necessary for the management of the institution or the execution of the work or duty :

Provided that the funds necessary for the management of the institution and the execution of the work or duty shall be placed by the District Board at the disposal of the Village Committee.

Power of entry.

36. The Village Committee, or any member, officer or servant thereof, may enter into or upon any building or land, with or without assistants or workmen, in order to make any inspection or execute any work for the purposes of, or in pursuance of, clause (1) of section 22 or section 29, 30, 31, 32, 33, 34 or 35 :

[Cf. Ben. Act III of 1885, s. 118 B.]

Provided as follows :—

- (a) no such entry shall be made between sunset and sunrise;
- (b) no dwelling-house shall be so entered, unless with the consent of the occupier thereof, without giving the said occupier at least twenty-four hours' previous written notice of the intention to make such entry; and
- (c) due regard shall always be had, so far as may be compatible with the exigencies of the purpose for which the entry is made, to the social and religious usages of the occupants of the premises entered.

Appointment of Secretary to Village Committee.

37. A Village Committee may appoint a Secretary to assist it in carrying out its duties under this Act, and may pay him such salary as the Committee may consider proper.

CHAPTER IV.

VILLAGE FUND.

Imposition of rate.

38. The Village Committee shall impose yearly on the owners of buildings, tanks, wells, or water-courses, or the occupiers of buildings within the village, a rate equal to—

[Cf. Ben. Act VI of 1870, ss. 18 and 14; Ben. Act III of 1885, s. 118 C (1).]

- (a) the amount required, after deduction of the contribution, if any, made by the Local Government, in this behalf, for the salaries and equipment of the Dafadars, Chaukidars and the salary of the Secretary (if any), and

39—43.)

(b) in pursuance of a resolution passed by a majority of not less than two-thirds of the members of the Village Committee at a meeting specially convened for the purpose, the amount estimated to be required to meet the expenses of the Committee in providing for the sanitation, conservancy, drainage and water-supply of the village, for the establishment, repair, maintenance or management of primary schools and dispensaries, for any other local works likely to promote the health, comfort and convenience of the public and not otherwise provided for in this Act, and generally for carrying out the other purposes of this Act, together with ten per cent. above such amount to meet the expenses of collection and the losses due to non-realization of the rate from defaulters.

Nature of assessment.

39. (1) The rate to be imposed by a Village Committee under section 38 shall be an assessment according to the circumstances and the property within the village of the persons liable to the same.

[Cf. Ben. Act VI of 1870, s. 18.]

(2) Any person who, in the opinion of the Village Committee, is too poor to pay half an anna a month, shall be altogether exempted from payment of any rate under this Act.

Procedure of assessment and revision thereof by the Village Committee.

40. The assessment for the imposition of the rate under section 38 shall be made in accordance with rules prescribed in this behalf under section 111, and any person dissatisfied with the amount at which he has been assessed may, within such time as may be specified in those rules, apply to the Village Committee, either orally or in writing, for a revision of the assessment, and the Village Committee may amend the assessment or confirm the same.

[Cf. Ben. Act VI of 1870, s. 19.]

Power of District Magistrate to revise assessment list.

41. The District Magistrate may, at any time, call for the lists of any village containing the assessment of the village rate imposed under section 38, and may pass such orders on the lists so called for as he may think proper.

[Cf. Ben. Act VI of 1870, s. 20.]

Arrears to be recovered by distraint and sale of moveable property of defaulters.

42. The payment of the rate shall be made in accordance with rules prescribed in this behalf under section 111, and, in case of default of any such payment, the President of the Village Committee, or, if so directed by him, the Secretary, shall cause the Chaudikar or any other person authorized in writing by the President or the Secretary to levy, by the distraint and sale of a sufficient portion of the moveable property of the defaulters, the amount of their respective arrears, together with sums equal to such arrears, respectively, by way of penalty.

[Cf. Ben. Act VI of 1870, s. 27.]

What property may be distrained and sold for arrears.

43. (1) The distraint and sale of such moveable property shall be conducted in accordance with rules prescribed in this behalf under section 111.

(2) All goods and chattels, except plough-cattle and tools and implements of trade and agriculture, found in or upon any building or land occupied by any defaulter, shall be deemed to be his property, and shall be liable to be distrained and sold for the recovery of the arrear.

[Cf. Ben. Act VI of 1870, s. 32.]

44—47.)*

(3) If any of the goods and chattels distrained belong to any person other than the defaulter, the defaulter shall be liable to indemnify the owner of such goods and chattels for any damage he may sustain by reason of such distress, or by reason of any payment he may make to avoid such distress or any sale under the same.

Sale of property beyond limits of the village.

44. If no sufficient moveable property belonging to a defaulter, or being upon the premises in respect of which he is assessed or rated, can be found within the village, the District Magistrate may, on the application of the Village Committee, issue his warrant to any officer of his Court for the distress and sale of any moveable property or effects belonging to the defaulter within any other part of the jurisdiction of the Magistrate, or for the distress and sale of any moveable property belonging to the defaulter within the jurisdiction of any other Magistrate exercising jurisdiction within Bengal; and such other Magistrate shall endorse the warrant so issued, and cause it to be executed, and the amount, if levied, to be remitted to the Magistrate issuing the warrant, who shall remit the same to the Village Committee.

[Cf. Ben.
Act III of
1884, s. 127.]

Irregularities not to avoid distraint.

45. No distress levied by virtue of this Act shall be deemed unlawful, nor shall any person making the same be deemed a trespasser on account of any defect, irregularity or want of form in any list, assessment, notice, summons, power, writing, inventory or other proceeding relating thereto, nor shall such person be deemed a trespasser from the commencement on account of any irregularity afterwards committed by him, but all persons aggrieved by such irregularity may recover full satisfaction for any special damage sustained by them, in any Court of competent jurisdiction, subject to the provisions of section 72.

[Cf. Ben.
Act VI of
1870, s. 34.]

Grants-in-aid from District Fund.

46. The District Board may make to the Village Committee such grants-in-aid from the District Fund, as they may think fit, to enable the Village Committee—

- (i) to improve the sanitation, water-supply and communications; or
- (ii) to further primary education, or
- (iii) for any other local work likely to promote the health, comfort and convenience of the public, within the area over which the Village Committee has control, and may attach to such grants any conditions that may appear to the District Board to be desirable.

Village Fund.

47. (1) All sums realized under section 42 and, subject to the provisions of section 28, all sums realized as fines or costs under this Act, and all other receipts of the Village Committee, Village Bench, or Village Court, shall be paid into a fund to be called "the Village Fund," the accounts of which shall be kept in accordance with rules prescribed in this behalf under section 111.

(Part I.—Chapter IV.—Village Fund.—Chapter V.— Circle Boards.—Clauses 48, 49.)

(2) Except as is otherwise provided in this Act, and subject to such restrictions as the Local Government may from time to time prescribe, the expenses incurred by the Village Committee, the Village Bench or the Village Court in carrying out the purposes of this Act, including such reasonable compensation as the Committee may think fit to pay to owners and occupiers of huts or privies removed under section 29, shall be paid out of the Village Fund :

[Cf. Ben.
Act III of

Provided that the salary of the Secretary to the Village Committee and the salaries and cost of equipment of Dafadars and Chaukidars shall be the first charge upon the Village Fund :

Provided also that all sums made over by the District Board to a Village Committee for any specific purpose shall be applied solely to that purpose. •

Local Government may advance money in cases of default of payment of salary to Secretary, etc.

48. If at any time the salary of the Secretary to the Village Committee, or any of the salaries or any portion of the cost of equipment of Dafadars and Chaukidars, is in arrear, and if the Local Government advance such sum of money as may be necessary to meet such charge, the Local Government may recover the money so advanced from the Village Committee by the process authorized by the Bengal Public Demands Recovery Act, 1913, for the recovery of arrears of public revenue.

Ben. Act III
of 1913.

CHAPTER V.

CIRCLE BOARDS.

Duties of Circle Boards.

49. (1) The Circle Board shall—

- (i) advise and superintend the working of the Village Committees within the Circle ;
- (ii) when it supersedes any Village Committee under section 61, exercise all the powers and perform all the duties conferred or imposed by or under this Act on the Village Committee ; and
- (iii) subject to the direction, if any, of the District Board, make such distribution as the Circle Board thinks fit, among the Village Committees within the Circle, of the sums received from the District Board as a general grant-in-aid.

(2) The Circle Board may, at the request of the District Board, supervise the management of any institution and the execution of any work or the performance of any duty entrusted by the District Board to any Village Committee within the Circle.

(3) The Circle Board may undertake, at the request of the District Board and subject to its control,—

- (i) the construction, maintenance and repair of any roads, including the bridges thereon, which fall within the boundaries of two or more villages within the Circle ; and
- (ii) the performance of any other duty imposed on the District Board by the Bengal Local Self-Government Act of 1885.

of 1885.

(Part I.—Chapter V.—Circle Boards.—Chapter VI.—
General Provisions relating to Village Committees and Circle Boards.—Clauses 50-53.)

Establishment.

50. The Circle Board may appoint a Secretary and such other establishment as may be necessary to assist it in carrying out its duties under this Act, and may pay them such salary as may be approved by the District Board.

Circle Fund.

51. (1) All receipts of the Circle Board shall be paid into a Fund to be called the "Circle Fund", the accounts of which shall be kept in accordance with rules prescribed in this behalf under section 111.

(2) Except as otherwise provided in this Act and subject to such restrictions as the Local Government may from time to time impose, the Circle Fund shall be applicable to the payment of the establishment employed and of the expenses incurred by the Circle Board in carrying out the purposes of this Act:

Provided that all the sums made over by the District Board to a Circle Board for any specific purpose shall be applied solely to that purpose.

CHAPTER VI.

GENERAL PROVISIONS RELATING TO VILLAGE COMMITTEES AND CIRCLE BOARDS.

Delegation.

Delegation of District Magistrate's powers and duties.

52. The District Magistrate may, by an order in writing, delegate the powers or duties specified in the first column of Schedule II to the officers mentioned in the second column thereof.

Disputes.

Dispute between Village Committees and Circle Boards.

53. (1) If a dispute arises between two or more Village Committees which are subordinate to the same Circle Board, the matter shall be referred to such Circle Board, and the decision of the Circle Board thereon shall be final and binding.

(2) If a dispute arises between two or more Village Committees, which are within the same district but which are subordinate to different Circle Boards, the matter shall be referred to the Circle Boards and, if the Circle Boards cannot agree, to the District Board, and the decision of such Circle Boards or District Board, as the case may be, upon the matter so referred, shall be final and binding.

(3) If a dispute arises between a Village Committee, which is subordinate to a Circle Board, and another Circle Board in the same district, the matter shall be referred by the Village Committee to the Circle Board to which it is subordinate and, if the two Circle Boards cannot agree, the matter shall then be referred to the District Board, and the decision of the District Board thereon shall be final and binding.

(4) If a dispute arises between two or more Circle Boards within the area under the authority of a District Board, the matter shall be referred to the District Board, and the decision of such District Board thereon shall be final and binding.

[Cf. Ben. Act III of 1885, s. 135.]

(Part I.—Chapter VI.—General Provisions relating to Village Committees and Circle Boards.—Clauses 54-59.)

Disputes between local authorities in the same district to be referred to the District Magistrate.

54. If a dispute arises between a municipal authority and a local authority or authorities within the same district, the matter shall be referred to the District Magistrate, and the decision of the District Magistrate upon the matter so referred shall be final and binding :

[Cf. Ben. Act III of 1885, s. 136.]

Provided that, if the District Magistrate is a member of one of the local authorities concerned, his functions under this section shall be discharged by the Commissioner.

Decision of disputes not otherwise provided for.

55. (1) If any dispute, for the decision of which this Act does not otherwise provide, arises between a Village Committee or Circle Board and any other local or municipal authority, the matter shall be referred—

[Cf. Ben. Act III of 1885, s. 137.]

(a) to the Commissioner or Commissioners of the Division or Divisions, if the local authorities concerned are in different districts ; and

(b) to the Governor in Council, if the local authorities concerned are in different Divisions and the Commissioners of those Divisions cannot agree.

(2) The decision of the Commissioner or Commissioners, or of the Governor in Council, as the case may be, upon the matter so referred shall be final and binding.

Control.

Powers of Commissioners and of District Magistrates with respect to proceedings of local authorities.

56. (1) It shall be the duty of all Commissioners and District Magistrates to see that the proceedings of Village Committees and Circle Boards are in conformity with law and with the rules in force thereunder.

[Cf. Ben. Act III of 1885, s. 120.]

(2) The Commissioner may, by order in writing, annul any such proceeding which he considers not to be in conformity with law and with the said rules, and may do all things necessary to secure such conformity.

Records to be open for inspection.

57. Every Village Committee and Circle Board shall at all times permit the Commissioner, the District Magistrate, the Subdivisional Magistrate or the Circle Officer to have access to all its books, proceedings and records.

[Cf. Ben. Act III of 1885, s. 121.]

Power to inspect works.

58. The Commissioner, the District Magistrate, the Subdivisional Magistrate or the Circle Officer shall have power at all times to enter on and inspect, or cause to be entered on and inspected, any immovable property occupied by, or any work in progress under the orders of, or any institution controlled by a Village Committee or Circle Board.

[Cf. Ben. Act III of 1885, s. 122.]

Controlling authority.

59. For the purposes of sections 60 and 61, the District Magistrate shall be the controlling authority over Village Committees and the Commissioner shall be the controlling authority over Circle Boards.

*(Part I.—Chapter VI.—General Provisions relating to Village Committees and Circle Boards.—
Clauses 60-62.)*

Power to provide for the performance of duties in case of default by Village Committee

60. (1) When the controlling authority is informed, on complaint made or otherwise, that a Village Committee or Circle Board has made default in performing any duty imposed on it by or under this Act, he may, by an order in writing, if satisfied, after such inquiry as he may consider necessary, that such Village Committee or Circle Board has made default as alleged, fix a period for the performance of that duty.

[Cf. Ben

(2) If that duty is not performed within the period fixed under sub-section (1), the controlling authority may appoint some person to perform it, and may direct that the expense of performing it, with a reasonable remuneration to the person appointed to perform it, shall be forthwith paid by the Village Committee or the Circle Board, as the case may be.

3. If the expense and remuneration directed to be paid under sub-section (2) are not paid, the controlling authority may make an order directing the person having the custody of the balance of the Village or Circle Fund to pay the said sum or as much thereof as is possible from that balance; and such person shall make payment accordingly.

Power to supersede Village Committee or Circle Board in case of incompetency or wilful neglect of duty.

61. (1) If a Village Committee or Circle Board is not competent to perform, or persistently makes default in the performance of the duties imposed upon it by or under this or any other Act, or exceeds or abuses its powers, the controlling authority may, by order specifying the reason for so doing, direct that the Circle Board for the area in which the village is situated, or the District Board, under which such Circle Board has been constituted, shall supersede such Village Committee or Circle Board, as the case may be, for a period to be specified in the order.

[Cf. Ben
Act III of
1885, s. 131.]

(2) Such order shall be published locally in such manner as may be provided by rules made under section 111.

Consequence
supersession.

62. (1) When a Village Committee or Circle Board is superseded under section 61—

[Cf. Ben.
1885, s. 132.]

(a) all members constituting the Committee or Board shall, from the date of the issue of the order referred to in that section, vacate their offices as such members;

(b) all the powers and duties of the Village Committee or Circle Board, as the case may be, shall, until such Committee or Board is re-constituted, be exercised and performed by the Circle Board or the District Board, as the case may be, and all property vested in the Village Committee or Circle Board shall, during the period of such supersession, be vested in the said Circle Board or District Board.

(2) On the expiration of the period of supersession specified in the order referred to in section 61, the Village Committee or Circle Board shall be re-established, by re-election or re-appointment in the manner provided in section 4 or section 8.

*(Part I.—Chapter VI.—General Provisions relating to Village Committees and Circle Boards.—
Clauses 63-66.)*

Power to suspend action of Village
Committee or Circle Board.

63. The District Magistrate, or the District Board, may, by an order in writing, suspend the execution of any order or resolution of a Village Committee or of a Circle Board, within the jurisdiction of such Magistrate or District Board, or the doing of any act which is about to be done, or is being done, by such Village Committee or Circle Board, if in the opinion of the District Magistrate or the District Board the execution of the resolution or order, or the doing of the act, is likely to cause injury or annoyance to the public, or to any class or body of persons, or to lead to a breach of the peace.

[Cf. Ben.
Act III of
1885, s. 124.]

Extraordinary powers in case of emergency.

64. (1) In case of emergency the District Magistrate may provide for the execution of any work, or the doing of any act which a Village Committee or a Circle Board is empowered to execute or do, and the immediate execution or doing of which is in his opinion necessary for the service or safety of the public, and may direct that the expense of executing the work or doing the act, with a reasonable remuneration to the person appointed to execute or do it, shall be forthwith paid by the Village Committee or the Circle Board, as the case may be.

[Cf. Ben.
1885, s. 126.]

(2) If the expense and remuneration directed to be paid under sub-section (1) are not paid, the Magistrate may make an order directing the person having the custody of the balance of the Village Fund or the Circle Fund to pay the said sum, or as much thereof as is possible, from that balance; and such person shall make payment accordingly.

Order of Magistrate or District Board under section 63 or 64 to be reported to the Commissioner.

65. When the District Magistrate or the District Board makes any order under section 63, or the District Magistrate makes any order under section 64, the Magistrate or Board, as the case may be, shall forthwith submit to the Commissioner a copy of the order, with a statement of the reasons for making it and with any explanation which the Village Committee or Circle Board concerned may wish to offer, and the Commissioner may thereupon confirm, modify or rescind the order.

[Cf. Ben.
Act III of
1885, s. 127.]

By-laws.

Power of Circle Board to make by-laws.

66. (1) Every Circle Board may, with the approval of the District Board and subject to the control of the Local Government, make by-laws for carrying out all or any of the purposes of this Act.

[Cf. Ben.
1885, s. 130.]

(2) By-laws made under sub-section (1) shall have the force of law when confirmed by the Commissioner and published in such manner and at such time as the Local Government may direct.

(3) The power to make by-laws conferred by this section is subject to the condition of the by-laws being made after previous publication.

Penalty for infringement of by-laws.

67. In making a by-law under section 66 a Circle Board may provide that a breach of the same shall be punished with a fine which may extend to twenty-five rupees, and in the case of a continuing breach with a further fine which may extend to five rupees for every day during which the breach is continued after the offender has been convicted of such breach.

[Cf. Ben. Act III of 1885, s. 140.]

Miscellaneous.

Penalty on member, officer or servant being interested in contracts made with a local authority.

68. (1) If any member of a local authority, other than a member of a Village Committee acting with the sanction of the Circle Board, or if any officer or servant maintained by or employed under a local authority, has, directly or indirectly, any share or interest in any work done by order of the local authority of which he is a member, or by which he is maintained, or under which he is employed, or in any contract with or under such local authority, he shall be liable on conviction before a Criminal Court to a fine which may extend to five hundred rupees:

Provided that the penalty herein prescribed shall not be deemed to apply by reason only of a person—

(a) having a share in any joint-stock company which shall contract with, or be employed by, or on behalf of, the local authority; or

(b) having a share or interest in any newspaper in which any advertisement relating to the affairs of the local authority may be inserted; or

(c) holding a debenture or being otherwise concerned in any loan raised by, or on behalf of, the local authority

(2) Nevertheless it shall not be lawful for a person having any share or interest, such as is described in clauses (a) and (b) of the proviso to sub-section (1), to act as a member of the local authority in any matter relating to a contract or agreement between the local authority and such company or the manager or publisher of such newspaper.

(3) Nothing in this section shall apply to the payment of fees to a legal practitioner for services rendered by him in his professional capacity.

Power to make compensation out of the Village or Circle Fund.

69. Every Village Committee or Circle Board may make compensation out of the Village Fund or the Circle Fund, respectively, to any person sustaining any damage by reason of the exercise of any of the powers conferred by this Act.

[Cf. Ben. Act III of 1885, s. 145.]

Liability of members.

70. (1) No person shall be liable for the loss, waste or misapplication of any money or other property belonging to the Village Committee or Circle Board, unless such loss, waste or misapplication is a direct consequence of his neglect or misconduct while a member of a Village Committee or Circle Board.

[Cf. Ben. Act III of 1885, s. 142.]

(Part I.—Chapter VI.—General Provisions relating to Village Committees and Circle Boards.—Clauses 71-73.)

(2) In case of such neglect or misconduct a suit for compensation for loss, waste or misapplication may be instituted against such person, in such Court as the Local Government may direct, by the District Board with the sanction of the Local Government or by the Secretary of State for India in Council.

Bar to suits.

71. No suit or other legal proceeding shall lie against a Village Committee or a Circle Board, or any member or officer thereof acting under the direction of such Committee or Board, in respect of anything lawfully and in good faith and with due care and attention done under this Act or any rule made hereunder.

[Cf. Ben. Act V of 1911, s. 155, and Ben. Act VI of 1914, s. 27.]

No suit to be brought until one month's notice of cause of action.

72. (1) No suit or other legal proceeding shall be brought against the members of any Village Committee or Circle Board or any of their officers, or any person acting under their direction, for anything done under this Act, until the expiration of one month next after notice in writing has been delivered or left at the office of such Committee or Board, and also (if the suit is intended to be brought against any member or officer of the said Committee or Board, or any person acting under their direction) at the place of abode of the person against whom such suit is intended to be brought, stating the cause of action and the name and place of abode of the person who intends to bring the suit; and unless such notice be proved, the Court shall find for the defendant.

(2) Every such action shall be commenced within three months after the accrual of the cause of action, and not afterwards.

(3) If any such person to whom a notice under sub-section (1) is given shall, before a suit is brought, tender sufficient amends to the plaintiff, such plaintiff shall not recover.

Abolition of Panchayats and Local Boards and Union Committees.

73. (1) When Village Committees and Circle Boards have been duly constituted in any district or part thereof, in accordance with the provisions of this Act, the Panchayats appointed under the Village Chaukidari Act, 1870, and the Union Committees and Local Boards established under the Bengal Local Self-Government Act of 1885, shall be ipso facto abolished in such district or part, and the enactments specified in Schedule III shall be deemed to be repealed or amended to the extent and in the manner mentioned in the fourth column thereof, in such district or part.

Ben. Act VI of 1870.

Ben. Act III of 1885.

(2) When the provisions of this Act are withdrawn from any district or part thereof, the provisions of sub-section (1) shall cease to operate and the enactments specified in Schedule III shall be deemed to be revived forthwith in such district or part from the date of the publication in the Calcutta Gazette of the notification of withdrawal.

(3) The Local Government may direct, by notification, that, from the date of the abolition of any Union Committee in accordance with sub-section (1), all properties, funds or dues which are vested in or realizable by the said Union Committee, shall vest in or be realizable by, as the case may be, such local authority as may be specified in the notification.

[Cf. Ben. Act III of 1885, s. 45, and Ben. Act V of 1911, s. 177.]

(Part II.—Chapter VII.—Village Benches and Village Courts.—Clauses 74-76.)

PART II.

CHAPTER VII.

VILLAGE BENCHES AND VILLAGE COURTS.

Village Benches.

Constitution
Village Bench.

of 74. Whenever a Village Committee has been established, the Local Government may, by notification, appoint all or any of the members of the Committee to be a Village Bench for the trial of the offences specified in Schedule IV, and may at any time cancel any such notification.

Jurisdiction
Village Bench.

of 75. Notwithstanding anything contained in the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1898, the Village Bench shall have jurisdiction concurrent with that of the Criminal Court, within the local limits of whose jurisdiction the village is situated, for the trial of all offences specified in Schedule IV, Part A, committed within the village, and the Village Bench may try any offence specified in Schedule IV, Part B, committed within the village, if the case is transferred to the Bench by a District Magistrate or Subdivisional Magistrate: Act V of 1898.

(a) a Magistrate before whom a complaint of an offence cognisable by a Village Bench is brought may, unless sufficient reasons exist to the contrary, refer the complainant to the Village Bench;

(b) the District Magistrate or Subdivisional Magistrate may transfer any case from one Village Bench to another or to any other Court subordinate to him.

How case may instituted.

76. A case before a Village Bench may be instituted by petition, made orally or in writing, to the President of the Bench or to a member of the Village Bench, empowered by the President with the approval of the District Magistrate to receive petitions. If the petition is made orally, the President, or the member aforesaid, shall record the name of the petitioner, the name of the person against whom the petition is brought and the nature of the offence charged against such person and such other particulars, if any, as may be prescribed by rules made under section 111, and shall direct the petitioner to appear before the Bench on a certain date.

Village Courts.—Clauses 77-80.)*

Power of Bench to dismiss or to refuse to entertain petition.

77. (1) If upon the face of the petition, or on examining the petitioner, the Bench is of opinion that the petition is frivolous, vexatious or untrue, it shall dismiss the case by order in writing.

(2) If at any time it appears to the Bench—

- (a) that it has no jurisdiction to try the case, or
- (b) that the offence is one for which the sentence which the Bench is competent to pass would be inadequate, or
- (c) that the case is one which should not be tried by the Village Bench, it shall refer the petitioner to the proper Court.

Dismissal of case
for default.

78. If in any case before a Village Bench the petitioner fails to appear on the day fixed, or if in the opinion of the Bench he shows negligence in prosecuting his case, the Bench may dismiss the case for default, and such order of dismissal shall operate as an acquittal.

Summons to accused to appear and answer.

79. (1) If the petition be not dismissed under section 77 or under section 78, the Village Bench shall, subject to the provisions of section 107, by summons or otherwise, require the accused to appear and answer the petition.

(2) If on the day fixed for the trial the accused fails to appear, the Bench may cause him to be produced before it.

(3) If the accused cannot be found, the Bench shall report the fact to the nearest Magistrate who may issue a warrant for the arrest of the accused and forward him on apprehension for trial to the Bench, or release him on bail to appear before it.

(4) When an accused is brought in custody before a Village Bench under sub-section (3) the Bench shall proceed to try him with the least possible delay, and until the trial is completed may detain him in custody in such place and in such manner as may be provided by rule made under section 141.

Bar to appeal from or revision of the order of Village Bench.

80. Notwithstanding anything contained in the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1898, there shall be no appeal by a convicted person in any case tried by a Village Bench, nor shall any application in revision be entertained by any Court in respect of any order passed by such Bench:

Act V of 1898.

Provided that the Subdivisional Magistrate, or the District Magistrate for any part of a district not under the charge of a Subdivisional Magistrate, may cancel any decision or order of a Village Bench and direct the restoration or retrial of any case by the same or any other Village Bench or by any other Court subordinate to him, if the Subdivisional Magistrate or District Magistrate, as the case may be, is satisfied that a serious failure of justice has occurred.

Village Courts.—Clauses 81-83.)*

Power of Village
Bench to impose fine or to award compensation.

81. (1) A Village Bench shall record its decision by order in writing, and may sentence any offender convicted by it to pay a fine not exceeding twenty-five rupees.

(2) If a Village Bench is satisfied that a complaint made before it or transferred to it for trial is vexatious or frivolous, the Bench may order the complainant to pay to the accused such compensation, not exceeding twenty-five rupees, as it thinks fit.

(3) A Village Bench, at the time of passing judgment under sub-section (1), or of making an order under sub-section (2), may sentence the person against whom the judgment or order is passed to imprisonment for a period not exceeding seven days in default of payment of fine or compensation and, if the same be not paid within ten days of the passing of the sentence, or within such further time, if any, as the Bench may allow, may cause him to be arrested and may commit him to the nearest jail to serve his sentence:

Provided that, notwithstanding anything contained in the Indian Penal Code,—

1860.

(a) the fine imposed or compensation awarded by a Village Bench shall not be realized from any person who has served his term of imprisonment under this section;

(b) the person serving his term of imprisonment shall be forthwith released, if the fine or compensation is paid before the expiry of the term of imprisonment:

Provided also that no woman shall be sentenced to imprisonment in default of payment of fine or compensation:

Provided also that the imprisonment in default of payment of compensation shall be simple.

Village Courts.

Constitution
Village Court.

82. Whenever a Village Committee has been established, the Local Government may, by notification, appoint all or any of the members of the Committee to be a Village Court for the trial of all or any of the classes of civil suits specified in section 83, and may at any time cancel any such notification.

Jurisdiction
Village Court.

83. Notwithstanding anything contained in the Bengal, Agra and Assam Civil Courts Act, 1887, the Provincial Small Cause Courts Act, 1887, and the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908, and subject to the provisions of section 84 and section 85, the Village Court and the Court of the Munsif, within the local limits of whose jurisdiction the village is situated, shall have concurrent jurisdiction to try the following classes of suits, namely:—

XII of 1887.
IX of 1887.
1908.

- (a) suits for money due on contracts;
- (b) suits for the recovery of moveable property or the value of such property; and
- (c) suits for compensation for wrongfully taking or injuring moveable property,

17. P. Act
III of 1892,
a. 9.]

(Part II.—Chapter VII.—Village Benches and Village Courts.—Clauses 84-86.)

when the value of the suit does not exceed twenty-five rupees; and

- (d) suits of the kinds specified in clauses (a), (b) and (c), when the value of the suit exceeds twenty-five rupees but does not exceed two hundred rupees:

Provided that the Court of the Munsif, within the local limits of whose jurisdiction the village is situated,—

- (i) on the application of either party to the suit, may withdraw any suit of the classes specified in clauses (a), (b) and (c), and
(ii) on the application of a defendant, shall withdraw any suit of the classes specified in clause (d), from a Village Court for trial by itself.

Certain suits not to be tried by Village Court.

84. No suit shall lie in any Village Court—

- (1) on a balance of partnership account,
- (2) for a share or part of a share under an intestacy, or for a legacy or part of a legacy under a will,
- (3) by or against Government or public officers in their official capacity,
- (4) by or against persons of unsound mind,
- (5) for the assessment, enhancement, reduction, abatement, apportionment or recovery of rent of immoveable property, or
- (6) by a mortgagee of immoveable property for the enforcement of the mortgage by foreclosure or sale of the property or otherwise, or by a mortgagor of immoveable property for the redemption of the mortgage.

[U. P. Act
III of 1892,
s. 9, prov.]

Local limits of jurisdiction of Village Court.

85. (1) No suit other than a suit relating to immoveable property shall lie in any Village Court, unless all or any of the defendants reside within the village at the time of the institution of the suit.

(2) No suit relating to immoveable property shall lie in any Village Court, unless such property or any part thereof is situated within the village.

How suit may be instituted.

86. (1) A suit before a Village Court may be instituted before such Court, in such manner as may be provided by rule under section 111, by petition made orally or in writing. If the petition is made orally, the Court shall record the name of the petitioner and the name of the person against whom the petition is brought, and the nature of the claim put forward against such person and such other particulars, if any, as may be prescribed by rules made under section 111.

Village Courts.—Clauses 87-92.)

(2) The plaintiff on instituting his suit shall state the value of the claim.

Dismissal of suit.

87. (1) If at any time the Village Court is of opinion that the suit is barred by limitation, the Court shall dismiss the suit by order in writing.

(2) If at any time it appears to the Court that it has no jurisdiction to entertain the suit, the Court shall refer the petitioner to the proper Court.

Dismissal of suit
for default.

88. If in any suit before a Village Court the petitioner fails to appear on the day fixed, or, if in the opinion of the Court, he shows negligence in prosecuting his suit, the Court may dismiss the suit for default:

Provided that a Village Court may restore a suit dismissed for default, if within thirty days from the date of such dismissal the plaintiff satisfies the Court that he was prevented by sufficient cause from appearing.

[Cf. Mad.
Act I of 1889,
s. 32.]

Summons to
and answer.

89. If on receiving the petition the Village Court is satisfied that the trial of the suit may be proceeded with, it shall, by summons or otherwise, require the defendant to appear and answer the suit.

Ex parte decision.

90. If the defendant fails to appear and the Village Court is satisfied that he has received notice of the date fixed for the hearing, the Court may decide the suit ex parte:

Provided that any defendant against whom a suit has been decided ex parte may, within thirty days from the date of executing any process for enforcement of the decision, apply to the Village Court to set aside the order; and the Court, if satisfied that the defendant did not receive due notice of the date of hearing, or was prevented from appearing by any sufficient cause, shall set aside the decision and shall appoint a day for proceeding with the suit.

[Cf. Mad.
Act I of 1889,
s. 33.]

No order to be set aside without notice
to opposite party.

91. No decision or order of a Village Court shall be set aside on application under section 88 or section 90 unless notice in writing has been served by the Village Court on the opposite party.

[Cf. Mad.
Act I of 1889,
s. 34.]

Power of Village
Court to determine necessary parties.

92. (1) The Village Court shall add as parties to a suit any persons whose presence as parties it considers necessary for a proper decision thereof, and shall enter the names of such parties in the register of suits; and the suit shall be tried as between the parties whose names are entered in the said register:

Provided that when any party is added, he shall be given an opportunity of appearing on notice given to him in accordance with rule made under section 111 before the trial of the suit is proceeded with.

(2) In all cases where a new party appears under the proviso to sub-section (1) during the trial of a suit, he may require that the trial shall begin de novo.

Certain suits not to be tried by Village Court.

93. No Village Court shall proceed with the trial of any suit in which the matter directly and substantially in dispute is pending for decision in the same Court or in any other Court in a previously instituted suit between the same parties, or between parties under whom they or any of them claim, or has been heard and finally decided in a suit between the same parties, or between parties under whom they or any of them claim.

[Cf. Pun. Act VI of 1912, s. 6.]

Decision of Village Court.

94. When the parties or their agents have been heard and the evidence on both sides considered, the Village Court shall, by written order, make such decision as may seem just, equitable and according to good conscience, and the decision shall also have the effect of a decree.

[Cf. Mad. Act I of 1889, s. 45.]

Instalments.

95. A Village Court in ordering the payment of a sum of money or the delivery of any moveable property may direct that the money be paid, or the moveable property be delivered, by instalments.

[Cf. Pun. Act VI of 1912, s. 17.]

Decision of Village Court to be final.

96. The decision of a Village Court in every suit shall be final as between the parties to the suit:

Provided that the District Judge may, on the application of either party, cancel the order of the Village Court and direct a retrial of the suit by the same or any other Village Court or by any other Court subordinate to him if he is satisfied that there has been a serious failure of justice.

Death of parties.

97. If the plaintiff or defendant in any suit dies before the suit has been decided, the suit may be proceeded with at the instance of, or against, the heirs of the deceased plaintiff or defendant, as the case may be.

Application for withdrawal of suits from Village Courts or revision of the decision of such Courts.

98. Any party applying—

(1) to have a suit withdrawn from a Village Court under the proviso to section 83 for trial in the Court of the Munsif, within the local limits of whose jurisdiction the village is situated, or

(2) under the proviso to section 96 for the retrial of a suit decided by a Village Court, shall, before such application for withdrawal or retrial is entertained, pay to the Court to which such application is made, the amount of fees payable by the plaintiff under the Court-fees Act, 1870, in respect of such suit:

[Cf. Mad. Act I of 1889, s. 22.]

Provided that the Court may order the refund of the amount of fees paid under section 7 of the Court-fees Act, 1870, by any party in accordance with clause (2), if the Court grants the application for retrial of a suit by the same or any other Village Court.

VII of 1870.

99. (1) In all suits tried by the Village Court the costs shall be one anna in the rupee on the amount of the claim.

(Part II.—Chapter VII.—Village Benches and Village Courts.—Clauses 100-103.)

(2) If the claim is decreed in full, the costs shall be realized from the judgment-debtor together with the amount decreed.

(3) If the amount is decreed in part, the costs shall be realized pro rata from the decree-holder and the judgment-debtor.

(4) If the suit is dismissed, the costs shall be realized from the plaintiff.

(5) All costs realized by the Village Court shall be credited to the Village Fund and shall not be paid to either party.

Disallowance of costs in certain cases.

100. If any suit is instituted in the Court of a Munsif which, in the opinion of the Munsif who tries the same (whose opinion shall be final), ought to have been instituted in the Village Court, no costs shall be allowed to a successful plaintiff, and a successful defendant shall be allowed his costs as between pleader and client.

Village Court to declare value of claim in certain cases.

101. When the claim in any suit before a Village Court is not for a specified sum, the Village Court shall declare the value of the claim both for determining the question of jurisdiction and also for the levy of costs.

Execution of decree.

102. (1) If the Village Court granting a decree is unable to effect satisfaction thereof, it shall grant the decree-holder a certificate to that effect.

[Cf. Act VI of 1912,

(2) Any decree-holder wishing to execute a decree of a Village Court may apply to the Court of the Munsif within the local limits of whose jurisdiction the village is situated and shall present with his application a certified copy of the order of the Village Court; but no application for execution shall be entertained by the Munsif—

[Cf. Part VI of Act VI of 1912, s. 23.]

(a) unless the Village Court has certified that application for execution of the decree has been made to it in due time, but that it is unable to effect satisfaction of the decree, and

(b) unless the application is made after the expiry of three months from the date of the decree.

(3) In executing a decree of a Village Court a Munsif shall have the same powers and follow the same procedure as if he were executing a decree passed by himself, and the costs of execution shall be paid to the decree-holder. The costs in the suit shall be credited to Government.

General provisions relating to Village Benches and Village Courts.

Procedure in Village Benches and Village Courts.

103. (1) The provisions of—

(a) the Court-fees Act, 1870,

(b) the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1898, excepting Chapter XXXIII, and

(c) the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908,

VII of 1870. Ac V of 1898

Act V of 1908.

shall not apply to any trial, suit or proceeding before a Village Bench or a Village Court.

(2) The procedure to be followed by a Village Bench or a Village Court in any trial, suit or proceeding and in the enforcement of its decisions and orders, and in the method of forming a quorum shall, subject to the provisions of this Act, be in accordance with rules prescribed in this behalf under section 111.

(Part II.—Chapter VII.—Village Benches and Village Courts.—(Clauses 104, 105.)

Persons who are to preside over Village Bench or Village Court.

104. (1) The Village Bench and the Village Court shall be presided over by the President of the Village Committee, if he is a member of the Bench or Court.

(2) If the President of the Village Committee is absent from a sitting of the Village Bench or Court, or if he is not a member of the Bench or Court, the Bench or Court, as the case may be, shall be presided over by one of its members selected in accordance with rules prescribed in this behalf under section 111.

(3) In case of difference of opinion among the members of the Bench or Court the decision or order of the Bench or Court shall follow the opinion of the majority of the members present and voting.

(4) In case of an equality of votes, the person presiding over the Bench or Court shall have a second or casting vote.

Attendance of witnesses

105. (1) Subject to such conditions and limitations as may be prescribed by rules made under section 111 and subject to the provisions of section 107, a Village Bench or a Village Court may, by summons or otherwise, send for any person to appear and give evidence or to produce or cause the production of any document:

[Cf. Pub. Act VI of 1912, s. 16]

Provided that no person who is exempt from personal appearance in Court under section 133, subsection (1), of the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908, shall be required to appear in person before a Village Court.

Act V of 1908.

(2) A Village Bench or a Village Court shall refuse to summon a witness or to enforce a summons already issued against a witness, where, in the opinion of the Bench or Court, the attendance of the witness cannot be procured without an amount of delay, expense, or inconvenience which, under the circumstances of the case, would be unreasonable.

(3) A Village Bench or Village Court shall not require any person living at a distance exceeding fifteen miles from the Bench or Court to give evidence, unless such sum of money as appears to the Bench or Court to be reasonable and sufficient to defray the travelling and other expenses of the person summoned in attending and returning from the Bench or Court and one day's attendance thereat, together with full and sufficient remuneration for the time spent in so doing, away from his ordinary occupations, be tendered to him when the summons is served.

(4) Every person, whom a Village Bench or a Village Court summons by written order to appear or give evidence, or to produce any document before it, shall be bound to obey such summons as if it were a summons issued by a regular Court under the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1898, or the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908, as the case may be, and in case of disobedience, shall be liable to the like penalties.

[Cf. Pub. Act VI of 1912, s. 33]

Act V of 1898
Act V of 1908

(5) A Village Bench may take cognizance of any offence under this section committed against its order or against the order of the Village Court on application by a member of the Bench or Court and may try the case and, if the offence is proved, may convict the offender and sentence him to a fine not exceeding twenty-five rupees.

Appearance of parties before Village Bench or Village Court.

106. (1) The parties to cases triable by a Village Bench shall appear personally before such Bench :

Provided that the Village Bench, if it sees reason so to do, may dispense with the personal attendance of an accused and permit him to appear by agent.

(2) The parties to suits triable by a Village Court may appear by agent.

"Agent" in sub-sections (1) and (2) means a full-time servant or a partner or a relative of the party, whom the Village Bench or Village Court may admit as a fit person to represent a party, and who is authorized by general or special authority in writing to appear and plead for such party.

[Cf. U. P. Act III of 1892, s. 28 (2). (3).]

(3) Notwithstanding anything contained in the Legal Practitioners Act, 1879, legal practitioners shall not be permitted to practise before a Village Bench or Village Court.

XVIII of 1879.

Appearance of woman and minor.

107. (1) No woman shall, against her will, be compelled to appear in person before a Village Bench or Village Court either as an accused, a defendant or a witness.

(2) A near relative of a woman or of a minor may appear on their behalf as a party to a suit.

Realization of fine, etc.

108. All fines imposed or compensation awarded by a Village Bench and all sums decreed and costs awarded by a Village Court may be realized by the Village Bench or Village Court in the same manner as an arrear of rate imposed under section 38.

Registers and cords.

109. Every Village Bench and Village Court shall maintain a register of cases and a register of suits, respectively, and shall maintain such other registers and records and submit such returns as may be prescribed by rules made under section 111.

[Cf. Pun. Act VI of 1912, s. 3.]

Certain documents not to be charged with fees.

110. (1) The following documents shall not be chargeable with any fee:—

- (a) petitions, applications, informations or processes in respect of any of the offences triable by a Village Bench, when presented, made or laid before the Village Bench, and
- (b) petitions or processes in suits triable by a Village Court, when presented, made or laid before a Village Court.

(2) The Local Government may, by rules made in this behalf under section 111, prescribe the fees, if any, to be levied by the Village Bench or Village Court for copies of any document, and may determine the procedure for the furnishing of such copies.

(Part III.—Chapter VIII.—Miscellaneous.—Clause 111.)

PART III.

CHAPTER VIII.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Rules.

Power of Local Government to make rules.

111. (1) The Local Government may from time to time make rules to carry out the purposes of this Act.

[Cf. Ben
Act III of
1885, s. 128.]

(2) In particular, and without prejudice to the generality of the foregoing power, the Local Government may make rules—

- (a) determining the manner and time of appointment or election of members of Village Committees and Circle Boards established under this Act, the qualifications and disqualifications of such members, the qualifications and disqualifications and registration of voters and candidates and the manner in which the votes shall be taken, and generally regulating all elections under this Act and determining the authority who shall decide disputes relating to such elections;
- (b) fixing the time within which the elections of the President of a Village Committee and the Chairman of a Circle Board shall be held, the time within which the Vice-Chairman of a Circle Board shall be elected and the time within which elections to fill casual vacancies in such offices shall be held;
- (c) regulating the powers of Village Committees and Circle Boards to transfer property;
- (d) prescribing the powers to be exercised by the President of a Village Committee or by sub-committees or members thereof;
- (e) regulating the conduct of meetings of Village Committees and the method of forming a quorum, and the appointment, leave, leave-allowances and punishment (including suspension and removal) of officers and servants of a Village Committee;
- (f) regulating the powers of Village Committees and Circle Boards to contract and do other things necessary for the purposes of their constitution, and the mode of executing such contracts;
- (g) prescribing the registers and records to be maintained and the returns to be submitted by Village Committees, Circle Boards, Village Benches and Village Courts;
- (h) regulating the powers and duties of Village Committees in regard to the control to be exercised by them over Dafadars and Chaukidars within the village;
- (i) prescribing the powers and duties of Dafadars, and fixing the time and manner of the payment by the Village Committee of the salaries of Dafadars and Chaukidars, and the cost of their equipment;

- (j) regulating the powers and duties of Village Committees in regard to sanitation, conservancy, drainage, buildings, roads, bridges and water-supply under sections 22, 29, 30, 31, 32, 33 and 36, and the powers and duties of Village Committees in regard to schools and dispensaries under section 34, and defining and prohibiting public nuisances within the village;
- (k) for the making of an assessment by the Village Committee under section 40, for imposing the rate under section 38, and prescribing under section 42 the method and time of payment of such rate;
- (l) for the conduct of the distraint and sale of moveable property of defaulters under section 43;
- (m) prescribing the method in which the accounts of the Village Fund and of the Circle Fund shall be kept and audited, the financial safeguards to be maintained and the estimates to be submitted by Village Committees and Circle Boards, and providing for the appointment and payment of auditors of the accounts of Village Committees and Circle Boards;
- (n) prescribing the manner in which orders under section 61 shall be published;
- (o) prescribing the particulars of petitions under sections 76 and 86 which shall be entered in the registers of Village Benches and Village Courts;
- (p) determining the manner in which the person to preside over a Village Bench or a Village Court, in the absence of the President of the Village Committee, or when the President of the Village Committee is not a member of the Bench or Court, shall be selected;
- (q) regulating the procedure to be followed by a Village Bench or a Village Court in the institution, trial and disposal of criminal cases and civil suits, and prescribing the method of forming a quorum;
- (r) regulating the issue, service or execution of summonses, warrants and other processes by Village Benches or Village Courts, the detention of persons apprehended under section 79 and the issue and service of notices by Village Committees;
- (s) determining the procedure for the execution of decrees, orders and sentences of Village Courts and Village Benches;
- (t) regulating the transfer by Village Benches or Village Courts of summonses, warrants and other processes to ordinary Courts for their service or execution by such Courts; and

(Part III.—Chapter VIII.—Miscellaneous.—Clauses 112-115.)

(u) prescribing the fees to be levied by Village Benches and Village Courts for copies of documents, and determining the procedure to be followed in furnishing such copies.

SCHEDULE IV.

OFFENCES TRIABLE BY A VILLAGE BENCH.

(See sections 74 and 75.)

PART A.

1. Offences under sections 20, 26 and 27 of the Cattle-trespass Act, 1871.

I of 1871.

2. Offences under enactments, other than the Indian Penal Code, 1860, or any rules or by-laws made thereunder which are punishable with fine only up to a limit of twenty-five rupees.

Act XLV of 1860.

3. Offences under section 34 of the Police Act, 1861.

V of 1861.

4. Offences under the following sections of the Indian Penal Code, 1860, namely:—sections 160, 178, 179, 264, 265, 266, 269, 289, 290, 294, 328, 334, 341, 352, 358, 426, 447, 448 and 504; and when the value of the property in the opinion of the Village Bench is not over twenty rupees, sections 379 and 411.

Act XLV of 1860

PART B.

Offences under the following sections of the Indian Penal Code, 1860, namely:—sections 267, 283, 428, 430, 506 and 509; and when the value of the property in the opinion of the Magistrate is not over twenty rupees, sections 403 and 417.

according to rules to be made under clause 111. Sub-clauses (2) and (3) embody section 32 of the Village Chaudidari Act, 1870.

Clause 44.—To enable arrears of the village rate to be realized from persons who have not sufficient moveable property within the village, power has been taken on the lines of section 127 of the Bengal Municipal Act, 1884, to sell a defaulter's property situated outside the village.

Clause 45 reproduces the provisions of section 34 of the Village Chaudidari Act, 1870.

Clause 46.—This clause should be read with item 20 of Schedule III.

Clause 47.—All receipts of the Village Committee and of the Village Bench and Village Court will be credited to the Village Fund.

The expenses of the Village Bench or Village Court and of the Village Committee as well as the compensation to be paid to owners and occupiers of huts or privies removed under clause 29 will be paid out of the Fund.

The salary of the Secretary and the salaries and cost of equipment of Dafadars and Chaudidars are declared to be the first charge on the Fund.

Provision has also been made to prevent the diversion to other purposes of any money made over by the District Board for any specific purpose.

Clause 48.—This clause enables the Local Government to realize under the Bengal Public Demands Recovery Act, 1913 (Bengal Act III of 1913), money advanced by them to defray the charges of watch and ward if the Village Committee makes default in payment.

Clause 49 declares the duties of Circle Boards, which will include supervision, and also the maintenance of communications in which several villages have a common interest and the performance of any duty entrusted to them by the District Board.

Clause 50 provides the necessary establishment, and a Circle Fund is established by clause 51.

Clause 52 provides by means of a schedule for the delegation of certain of the powers and duties of the District Magistrate under this Act.

Clauses 53, 54 and 55 provide for the decision of disputes on the same lines as sections 133, 135, 136 and 137 of the Bengal Local Self-Government Act of 1885.

Clauses 56, 57 and 58 follow sections 120, 121 and 122 of the Bengal Local Self-Government Act of 1885.

Clauses 60, 61 and 62 correspond to sections 125, 131 and 132 of the Bengal Local Self-Government Act of 1885. The power of control however is to be exercised in the case of a Village Committee by the District Magistrate and in the case of a Circle Board by the Commissioner (see clause 59).

Clauses 63, 64 and 65 apply the emergency provisions contained in sections 124, 126 and 127, respectively, of the Bengal Local Self-Government Act of 1885.

Clauses 66 and 67 apply the provisions of sections 139 and 140 of the Bengal Local Self-Government Act of 1885 to by-laws made by Circle Boards.

Clause 68 follows section 144 of the Bengal Local Self-Government Act of 1885, but makes an exception in favour of a member of a Village Committee acting with the sanction of the Circle Board, owing to the difficulty in outlying villages of obtaining suitable contractors to carry out local works.

Clauses 69 and 70 correspond to sections 145 and 142, respectively, of the Bengal Local Self-Government Act of 1885.

Clause 71 is based on section 155 of the Calcutta Improvement Act, 1911, and section 27 of the Bengal Medical Act, 1914. This clause is intended to prevent unnecessary harassment of local bodies or members thereof when they act in good faith and with due care and attention.

Clause 72 corresponds to section 146 of the Bengal Local Self-Government Act of 1885.

Clause 73 abolishes the Panchayats and the Union Committees and Local Boards in any district in which Village Committees and Circle Boards are constituted. This necessitates the modification of the existing Village Chaudidari Act and the Local Self-Government Act in those areas. The modifications are set out in extenso in Schedule III to the Bill.

Power has also been taken under this clause to revive these Acts in any area from which the proposed Act is withdrawn at any time.

Sub-clause (3) empowers the Local Government to dispose of properties vested in a Union Committee when it is abolished.

Clause 74 provides for the constitution of Village Benches in selected areas to try petty criminal cases.

Clause 75 provides that when cases of the kinds specified in Part A of Schedule IV occur in the village they may be tried by the Village Bench to which more serious cases of the kinds specified in Part B may also be transferred by the District or Subdivisional Magistrate. It will, however, be open to a complainant to institute the case in the ordinary Courts, if he is so disposed, but a Magistrate before whom a complaint triable by a Village Bench is brought may refer the complainant to the Village Bench [Cf. the Madras Village Courts Act Amendment Bill, 1917, cl. 17, proposed section 76(7)]. The District and Subdivisional Magistrates will also have the power to transfer cases from the file of a Village Bench.

Clause 76 provides for the institution of cases before a Village Bench, and the recording of complaints made orally in the village.

Clause 77 provides for the summary dismissal of false and frivolous complaints, and for the refusal by the Bench to take cognizance of certain cases.

Clause 78 provides for the dismissal of complaints for default.

Clause 79 empowers the Bench to secure the attendance of the accused, who will not be arrested on warrant except by order of a Magistrate. If an accused, who has absconded, is forwarded in custody by the Magistrate, he will be detained in custody in the village till the Bench can be assembled to try the case. Cases of detention will be few as the Magistrate will ordinarily grant bail in petty cases.

Clause 80 provides that there shall be no appeal from an order of the Village Bench, but that the Subdivisional Magistrate or the District Magistrate where there is no Subdivisional Magistrate, shall have power to order retrial of the case either by an ordinary criminal court or by a Village Bench if there has been a serious failure of justice.

Clause 81.—The Village Bench may sentence an accused to a fine up to Rs. 25, and may order a complainant who has brought a frivolous or vexatious complaint to pay compensation to a like amount.

As in the Code of Criminal Procedure, provision is made for imprisonment in default of payment of fine or compensation, but safeguards have been imposed to relieve the offender of further liability when justice has been sufficiently vindicated, and to exempt women from imprisonment.

Clause 82 empowers the Local Government to constitute Village Courts in selected local areas for the trial of all or any of the classes of civil suits specified in clause 83.

Clause 83 is subject to the provision of clause 84 and provides, firstly, that certain classes of petty suits for money or for moveable property similar to those triable by Village Courts in the United Provinces under the United Provinces Act III of 1892, may be tried by Village Courts in Bengal, the Courts of the Munsif having concurrent jurisdiction. The limit of jurisdiction of Village Courts in Bengal in regard to such suits has been raised to Rs. 25, which is slightly more than the limit imposed in the United Provinces and Madras.

It will be open to either party to move the Munsif for the transfer to the ordinary courts of any suit specified in sub-clauses (a), (b) and (c).

Provision has also been made by sub-clause (d) that suits of the same classes but of a higher money value may also be instituted in the Village Court, if the plaintiff so desires, but that a defendant in such cases may claim a transfer to the ordinary civil court.

Clause 84 follows section 9 of the United Provinces Act III of 1892, but also excludes from the jurisdiction of the Village Court all kinds of suits in regard to rent, and suits for enforcement of a mortgage debt against the property mortgaged and also suits for the redemption of a mortgage.

Clause 85 defines the limits of the local jurisdiction of the Village Court in the interest of defendants.

Clause 86 provides for the institution of suits before Village Courts by a simple form of petition either oral or written.

Clause 87 provides for the dismissal of suits that are barred by limitation, and for the procedure to be adopted by Village Courts in refusing to entertain suits, which are outside their jurisdiction.

Clause 88 provides for the dismissal of suits for default, with power to the Village Court to restore a suit in cases of hardship, on the same lines as the power conferred by section 32 of Madras Act I of 1889.

Clause 89 enables the Village Court to call on the defendant to appear and answer.

Clause 90 empowers the Village Court to decide the suit ex parte if the defendant fails to appear, and if it is proved that due notice was given to him of the date fixed. Provisions similar to those contained in section 33 of Madras Act I of 1889 have been inserted enabling the defendant to apply for restoration of the suit on showing good cause for his non-appearance.

Clause 91 follows section 34 of Madras Act I of 1889.

Clause 92 gives the Village Court power to add parties to the suit at any stage of the trial, subject to the provision that a party so added must receive due notice and may claim that the hearing of the suit be commenced de novo.

Clause 93 prescribes that the Village Court is not to proceed with the trial of any suit which is barred under the principles of res judicata or lis pendens. It follows section 6 of Punjab Act VI of 1912.

Clause 94, which is based on section 45 of Madras Act I of 1889, prescribes that the decision of the Court shall be such as may seem just, equitable and according to good conscience.

Clause 95 corresponds with section 17 of Punjab Act VI of 1912 and empowers the Court to allow the realization of money or any moveable property by instalments.

Clause 96 declares that the decision of a Village Court shall not be subject to appeal but enables either party to the suit to apply to the District Judge for an order for retrial if the District Judge is satisfied that there has been a serious failure of justice.

Clause 97 enables a suit to proceed when the plaintiff or defendant dies during the pendency of the suit.

Clause 98, which follows section 22 of Madras Act I of 1889, requires that if a party applies to have a suit withdrawn from a Village Court or to have it retried, he shall at the time of making the application pay into the Court the full amount of fees payable under the Court-fees Act, 1870. In case the Court orders retrial of the suit by the same or another Village Court, it may order a refund of the fees.

Clause 99.—This clause prescribes a simple scale for calculating the costs of a suit tried by a Village Court. In practice the expenses of a Village Court will not be large, but a small fee by way of costs must be realized from the parties to defray working expenses. Costs realized by the Village Court will not therefore be payable to the parties, but they will be credited to the Village Fund out of which the expenses of the Court will be met. The absence of court-fees will reduce the expenses of parties to a negligible amount in almost every case (cf. clause 110).

Clause 100 provides for the disallowance of costs if any suit is instituted in the Court of a Munsif, which in the opinion of the Munsif ought to have been instituted in the Village Court. It is based on clause 8 of the Madras Village Courts Act Amendment Bill, 1917.

Clause 101 empowers the Village Court to declare the value of a claim in a suit where the claim is not for a specified sum of money.

Clause 102 provides for the execution of a decree of a Village Court when that Court cannot grant satisfaction, and is based on sections 22 and 23 of Punjab Act VI of 1912. An application for execution of a Village Court decree by a Munsif will not be entertained unless a certificate is attached to the effect that application for execution has been made in due time to the Village Court, but that it has been unable to effect satisfaction. The costs of execution will be paid to the decree-holder in cases in which he will be put to expense in obtaining execution and the costs in the suit in such cases will be credited to Government instead of to the Village Fund. This will tend to discourage slackness by Village Courts in executing their own orders.

Clause 103.—The Court-fees Act, 1870, the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1898, excepting Chapter XXXIII, and the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908, will not apply to proceedings before a Village Bench or Village Court. Minor details of procedure will be provided for by simple rules made under clause 111. The execution of decrees in respect of immoveable property will also be provided for by rules under that clause.

Clause 104 provides that the President of the Village Committee if he is a member of the Village Bench or Court shall preside, and that the decision shall follow the opinion of the majority.

Clause 105.—Sub-clause (1) is based on section 16 of Punjab Act VI of 1912, but exempts from personal appearance persons who are already exempted under section 133 (1) of the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908.

Sub-clause (2) authorizes a Bench or Court to refuse to summon or to enforce a summons issued against a witness whose attendance cannot be procured without unreasonable delay or expense, and sub-clause (3) provides that unless the expenses of a person living at a distance exceeding 15 miles from the Bench or Court house be paid in advance such person shall not be required to attend. These two provisions are intended to prevent the unnecessary summoning of persons living at a distance. The cases will be petty local cases which can be disposed of ordinarily on the evidence of the villagers.

Sub-clauses (4) and (5) provide penalties for disobedience to an order of the Village Bench or Village Court.

Clause 106 deals with the attendance of parties before a Village Bench or Village Court. Parties are ordinarily to plead their own causes, but in civil suits, and, with the permission of the Bench, in criminal cases they may appear by agent. The definition of "agent" is based on section 23 of the United Provinces Act III of 1892, but it has been made more restrictive in order to exclude the village tout.

Sub-clause (3) bars the appearance of legal practitioners before Village Benches and Village Courts.

Clause 107 deals with the representation of women and minors.

Clause 108 provides that all fines imposed and compensation awarded under the proposed Act shall be realized in the same manner as an arrear of rate imposed under the Act.

Clause 109 provides for the maintenance of registers of cases and suits by the Village Bench and Village Court and for such other records as they may be required to maintain by rules made by the Local Government.

Clause 110.—Owing to the levy of costs in a consolidated form under clause 99 it is unnecessary to charge separate fees on documents or for the service of processes. The Local Government will, however, prescribe fees for the supply of copies of documents by a Village Bench or Village Court.

Clause 111.—The rule-making clause is based on section 138 of the Bengal Local Self-Government Act of 1885 and brings together the rule-making powers referred to in the various clauses of the Bill. The rules to be made under this clause are to be made subject to the condition of previous publication.

Clause 112 is intended to prevent a member of a Village Bench or Court from trying any case or suit in which he is personally interested.

Clause 113, which is based on section 61 of Madras Act I of 1889, is intended to prevent members of Village Committees, etc., from bidding for or buying property sold under the provisions of the proposed Act.

Clauses 114 and 115 correspond to section 141 of the Bengal Local Self-Government Act of 1885.

Schedule III repeals in areas in which the proposed Act is in force those provisions of the Chaukidari Acts which have been superseded by the Act or which are reproduced in it.

It also provides in detail for the abolition of Local Boards and Union Committees in areas in which the Act is in force, and transfers the ordinary duties of the Local Board to a Circle Board.

Under item 4 of the Schedule the Circle Board takes the place of the Local Board as the electoral unit for membership of the District Board.

Provision is made under item 20 to enable the District Board to grant subventions to Circle Boards and Village Committees out of the District Fund.

DISTRICT REPORTS ON WEATHER AND CROPS

For the week ending on the 4th April 1918.

Summary.—During the week light rain fell over the greater part of the province facilitating agricultural operations generally. More rain is, however, wanted. Harvesting of spring crops is nearing completion. Sowing of jute and autumn paddy continues. The average price of common rice for the province has remained stationary as compared with that of the previous week.

Village Courts.—Clauses 84-86.)*

when the value of the suit does not exceed twenty-five rupees; and

- (d) suits of the kinds specified in clauses (a), (b) and (c), when the value of the suit exceeds twenty-five rupees but does not exceed two hundred rupees:

Provided that the Court of the Munsif, within the local limits of whose jurisdiction the village is situated,—

- (i) on the application of either party to the suit, may withdraw any suit of the classes specified in clauses (a), (b) and (c), and
- (ii) on the application of a defendant, shall withdraw any suit of the classes specified in clause (d),

from a Village Court for trial by itself.

Certain suits not to be tried by Village Court.

84. No suit shall lie in any Village Court—

[U. P. Act
III of 1902,
s. 9, prov.]

- (1) on a balance of partnership account,
- (2) for a share or part of a share under an intestacy, or for a legacy or part of a legacy under a will,
- (3) by or against Government or public officers in their official capacity,
- (4) by or against persons of unsound mind,
- (5) for the assessment, enhancement, reduction, abatement, apportionment or recovery of rent of immoveable property, or
- (6) by a mortgagee of immoveable property for the enforcement of the mortgage by foreclosure or sale of the property or otherwise, or by a mortgagor of immoveable property for the redemption of the mortgage.

Local limits of jurisdiction of Village Court.

85. (1) No suit other than a suit relating to immoveable property shall lie in any Village Court, unless all or any of the defendants reside within the village at the time of the institution of the suit.

(2) No suit relating to immoveable property shall lie in any Village Court, unless such property or any part thereof is situated within the village.

How suit may be instituted.

86. (1) A suit before a Village Court may be instituted before such Court, in such manner as may be provided by rule under section 111, by petition made orally or in writing. If the petition is made orally, the Court shall record the name of the petitioner and the name of the person against whom the petition is brought, and the nature of the claim put forward against such person and such other particulars, if any, as may be prescribed by rules made under section 111.

Village Courts.—Clauses 87-92.)

(2) The plaintiff on instituting his suit shall state the value of the claim.

Dismissal of suit.

87. (1) If at any time the Village Court is of opinion that the suit is barred by limitation, the Court shall dismiss the suit by order in writing.

(2) If at any time it appears to the Court that it has no jurisdiction to entertain the suit, the Court shall refer the petitioner to the proper Court.

Dismissal of suit
for default.

88. If in any suit before a Village Court the petitioner fails to appear on the day fixed, or, if in the opinion of the Court, he shows negligence in prosecuting his suit, the Court may dismiss the suit for default:

Provided that a Village Court may restore a suit dismissed for default, if within thirty days from the date of such dismissal the plaintiff satisfies the Court that he was prevented by sufficient cause from appearing.

[Of Mad.
Act I of 1889,
s. 32.]

Summons to
and answer.

89. If on receiving the petition the Village Court is satisfied that the trial of the suit may be proceeded with, it shall, by summons or otherwise, require the defendant to appear and answer the suit.

Ex parte decision.

90. If the defendant fails to appear and the Village Court is satisfied that he has received notice of the date fixed for the hearing, the Court may decide the suit ex parte:

Provided that any defendant against whom a suit has been decided ex parte may, within thirty days from the date of executing any process for enforcement of the decision, apply to the Village Court to set aside the order; and the Court, if satisfied that the defendant did not receive due notice of the date of hearing, or was prevented from appearing by any sufficient cause, shall set aside the decision and shall appoint a day for proceeding with the suit.

[Of Mad.
Act I of 1889,
s. 33.]

No order to be set aside without notice
to opposite party.

91. No decision or order of a Village Court shall be set aside on application under section 88 or section 90 unless notice in writing has been served by the Village Court on the opposite party.

[Of Mad.
Act I of 1889,
s. 34.]

Power of Village
Court to determine
necessary parties.

92. (1) The Village Court shall add as parties to a suit any persons whose presence as parties it considers necessary for a proper decision thereof, and shall enter the names of such parties in the register of suits, and the suit shall be tried as between the parties whose names are entered in the said register:

Provided that when any party is added, he shall be given an opportunity of appearing on notice given to him in accordance with rule made under section 111 before the trial of the suit is proceeded with.

Village Courts.—Clauses 93-99.)*

(2) In all cases where a new party appears under the proviso to sub-section (1) during the trial of a suit, he may require that the trial shall begin de novo.

Certain suits not to be tried by Village Court.

93. No Village Court shall proceed with the trial of any suit in which the matter directly and substantially in dispute is pending for decision in the same Court or in any other Court in a previously instituted suit between the same parties, or between parties under whom they or any of them claim, or has been heard and finally decided in a suit between the same parties, or between parties under whom they or any of them claim.

[Cf. Pun. Act VI of 1912, s. 6.]

Decision of Village Court.

94. When the parties or their agents have been heard and the evidence on both sides considered, the Village Court shall, by written order, make such decision as may seem just, equitable and according to good conscience, and the decision shall also have the effect of a decree.

[Cf. Mad. Act I of 1889, s. 45.]

Instalments.

95. A Village Court in ordering the payment of a sum of money or the delivery of any moveable property may direct that the money be paid, or the moveable property be delivered, by instalments.

[Cf. Pun. Act VI of 1912, s. 17.]

Decision of Village Court to be final.

96. The decision of a Village Court in every suit shall be final as between the parties to the suit:

Provided that the District Judge may, on the application of either party, cancel the order of the Village Court and direct a retrial of the suit by the same or any other Village Court or by any other Court subordinate to him if he is satisfied that there has been a serious failure of justice.

Death of parties.

97. If the plaintiff or defendant in any suit dies before the suit has been decided, the suit may be proceeded with at the instance of, or against, the heirs of the deceased plaintiff or defendant, as the case may be.

Application for withdrawal of suits from Village Courts or revision of the decision of such Courts.

98. Any party applying—

(1) to have a suit withdrawn from a Village Court under the proviso to section 83 for trial in the Court of the Munsif, within the local limits of whose jurisdiction the village is situated, or

(2) under the proviso to section 96 for the retrial of a suit decided by a Village Court, shall, before such application for withdrawal or retrial is entertained, pay to the Court to which such application is made, the amount of fees payable by the plaintiff under the Court-fees Act, 1870, in respect of such suit:

Provided that the Court may order the refund of the amount of fees paid under section 7 of the Court-fees Act, 1870, by any party in accordance with clause (2), if the Court grants the application for retrial of a suit by the same or any other Village Court.

VII of 1870.

Costs.

99. (1) In all suits tried by the Village Court the costs shall be one anna in the rupee on the amount of the claim.

(Part II.—Chapter VII.—Village Benches and Village Courts—Sections 100-103.)

(2) If the claim is decreed in full, the costs shall be realized from the judgment-debtor together with the amount decreed.

(3) If the amount is decreed in part, the costs shall be realized pro rata from the decree-holder and the judgment-debtor.

(4) If the suit is dismissed, the costs shall be realized from the plaintiff.

(5) All costs realized by the Village Court shall be credited to the Village Fund and shall not be paid to either party.

Disallowance of costs in certain cases.

100. If any suit is instituted in the Court of a Munsif which, in the opinion of the Munsif who tries the same (whose opinion shall be final), ought to have been instituted in the Village Court, no costs shall be allowed to a successful plaintiff, and a successful defendant shall be allowed his costs as between pleader and client.

Village Court to declare value of claim in certain cases

101. When the claim in any suit before a Village Court is not for a specified sum, the Village Court shall declare the value of the claim both for determining the question of jurisdiction and also for the levy of costs.

Execution of decree.

102. (1) If the Village Court granting a decree is unable to effect satisfaction thereof, it shall grant the decree-holder a certificate to that effect.

[Act VI of 1912, s. 22] Pun.

(2) Any decree-holder wishing to execute a decree of a Village Court may apply to the Court of the Munsif within the local limits of whose jurisdiction the village is situated and shall present with his application a certified copy of the order of the Village Court; but no application for execution shall be entertained by the Munsif—[Act VI of 1912, s. 23] Pun.

(a) unless the Village Court has certified that application for execution of the decree has been made to it in due time, but that it is unable to effect satisfaction of the decree, and

(b) unless the application is made after the expiry of three months from the date of the decree.

(3) In executing a decree of a Village Court a Munsif shall have the same powers and follow the same procedure as if he were executing a decree passed by himself, and the costs of execution shall be paid to the decree-holder. The costs in the suit shall be credited to Government.

General provisions relating to Village Benches and Village Courts.

Procedure in Village Benches and Village Courts.

103. (1) The provisions of—

(a) the Court-fees Act, 1870,

(b) the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1898, excepting Chapter XXXIII, and

(c) the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908,

VII of 1870 Act V of 1898

Act V of 1908.

shall not apply to any trial, suit or proceeding before a Village Bench or a Village Court.

(2) The procedure to be followed by a Village Bench or a Village Court in any trial, suit or proceeding and in the enforcement of its decisions and orders, and in the method of forming a quorum shall, subject to the provisions of this Act, be in accordance with rules prescribed in this behalf under section 111.

GOVERNMENT OF BENGAL.

BENGAL LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL.

NOTIFICATION.

No. 932L., dated the 8th July, 1918.—The following Bill was introduced in the Bengal Legislative Council on the 3rd July, 1918, and is hereby published for information, together with the Statement of Objects and Reasons annexed thereto:—

A BILL

further to amend the Bengal Tenancy Act, 1885.

WHEREAS it is expedient further to amend the Bengal Tenancy Act, 1885, in the manner hereinafter appearing; VIII of 1885.

And whereas the previous sanction of the Governor General has been obtained under section 79, sub-section (2), of the Government of India Act, 1915, to the passing of this Act;

5 & 6 Geo. V.
c. 61

It is hereby enacted as follows:—

Short title.

1. This Act may be called the Bengal Tenancy (Amendment No. 2) Act, 1918.

Amendment of section 74 of Act VIII of 1885

2. Section 74 of the Bengal Tenancy Act, 1885 VIII of 1885 (hereinafter called the said Act), shall be renumbered as sub-section (1) of section 74, and after the said sub-section the following shall be added, namely:—

(a) in excess of the net amount prescribed by section 41 of the Cess Act, 1880, or

of 1880

(b) on any scale in excess of that prescribed by clause (3) of that section.

levied in addition to the actual rent, shall be illegal, and all stipulations and reservations for payment of any such excess contained in any contract made between a landlord and a tenant on or after the 13th day of October, 1880, shall be void;

Provided that, subject to the provisions of section 72 of the Indian Contract Act, 1872, no suit shall lie for the recovery of anything paid before the commencement of the Bengal Tenancy (Amendment No. 2) Act, 1918, on account of the impositions referred to in sub-section (2).”

IX of 1872

Amendment of section 75

3. In section 75 of the said Act,—

(1) after the words “in excess of the rent” the words “of road cess or public works cess” shall be inserted; and

(2) after the words “lawfully payable, may” the following shall be inserted, namely:—

“subject to the proviso to sub-section (2) of section 74.”

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

UNDER the provisions of section 41 of the Cess Act, 1880 (Bengal Act IX of 1880), the amount payable on account of road and public works cesses by a cultivating raiyat to the person to whom his rent is payable is one-half of the full rate. When the Cess Act was first introduced in 1871, Government took the exceptional precaution of issuing a proclamation pointing out how the payments of raiyats were to be calculated, and informing them of their liabilities and rights. In 1885 it was brought to the notice of Government that it was a common practice of zamindars to recover from their raiyats the full amount of the road cess and public works cess payable to Government in respect of their estates. A notification was again published for the information of all persons concerned that the amount payable with his rent on account of road and public works cesses by any cultivating raiyat is only one-half of the full rate of such cesses. In I. L. R. 33 Cal. 683 it has been held that cess does not come within the definition of an ibwab contained in section 74 of the Bengal Tenancy Act, 1885 (VIII of 1885), as it is not an imposition on the tenant by the landlord in addition to the rent but a tax imposed by Government, and that therefore a contract to pay more than the proportion payable by the tenant under section 41 of the Cess Act is not illegal. Recent inquiries have disclosed the fact that the limits laid down in section 41 of the Cess Act are being ignored on the authority of the High Court's rulings. On grounds of public policy it is desired to amend the law so as to bring it into consonance with the intention of the framers of the Cess Act, 1880.

2. The object in view is sought to be attained by an amendment of section 74 of the Bengal Tenancy Act, providing that all impositions upon tenants, of road and public works cesses, in excess of the limits prescribed by section 41 of the Cess Act, 1880, in addition to the actual rent, shall be illegal, and that all contracts to pay more than the prescribed proportion made later than the 13th October, 1880, the date on which the Cess Act came into force, shall be void. Consequential amendments have also been made in section 75 of the Bengal Tenancy Act, 1885.

3. The proposed amendment will not affect contracts entered into by the holders of permanent mukarriri leases, who will still be subject to the provisions of section 179 of the Bengal Tenancy Act.

4. Provision has been made that no suit shall lie for the recovery by tenants from their landlords of cess paid before the date on which the Bengal Tenancy Act will be amended.

GOVERNMENT OF BENGAL.

BENGAL LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL.

NOTIFICATION.

No. 1058 L., dated Calcutta, the 6th August, 1918.—His Excellency the Governor having been pleased to order, under rule 31(1) of the Bengal Legislative Rules, 1912, the publication of the following Bill, together with the Statement of Objects and Reasons which accompanies it, in the Calcutta Gazette, the Bill and the Statement of Objects and Reasons are accordingly hereby published for general information. It is proposed to introduce and consider and to pass the Bill at the meeting of the Bengal Legislative Council to be held on the 19th instant:—

THE CHITTAGONG PORT (AMENDMENT) BILL, 1918.

A

to amend the Chittagong Port Act, 1914.

of 1914

WHEREAS it is expedient to amend the Chittagong Port Act, 1914, in the manner hereinafter appearing:

It is hereby enacted as follows:—

Short title

1. This Act may be called the Chittagong Port (Amendment) Act, 1918.

Amendment of section 58
of Bengal Act V of 1914

2. In section 58 of the Chittagong Port Act, 1914,—

of 1914

(1) sub-section (2), and

(2) in sub-section (3), the words, figure and brackets “Subject to the limits enacted by sub-section (2)”, shall be omitted.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

THE object of this Bill is to improve the financial position of the Port of Chittagong, which is very unsatisfactory. Under section 58 of the Chittagong Port Act, 1914 (Ben. Act V of 1914) the river due imposed on goods landed from, and shipped into, sea-going vessels is limited to the statutory maximum of four annas per ton. There is no such maximum limit in the Port of Calcutta—see section 108 of the Calcutta Port Act, 1890 (Ben. Act III of 1890). The intention of the Bill is to remove this limitation, thus enabling the Commissioners of the Port of Chittagong to assimilate, so far as possible, the schedules of their charges to those in force in the Port of Calcutta.

to consolidate and amend the law relating to hackney-carriages and palanquins and to make certain provisions with regard to rickshaws in Calcutta was referred, have considered the Bill and the papers noted in the margin, and have the honour to submit this our Report, with the Bill, as amended by us, annexed hereto. In reprinting the Bill, all changes made by us have so far as possible been underlined, but in the present report we refer specifically to such changes only as appear to us to be of some importance. Several minor alterations are not discussed.

Clause 2(b).—A reference to other towns and local areas to which the Act may be extended has been inserted in order to put such towns or local areas on the same footing as Calcutta when it is desired to exclude or include any local area in the vicinity of such towns or local areas.

Clause 4 (3).—The portion from “and includes” to the end of this sub-clause has been struck out as we do not consider it advisable that the functions of the Commissioner of Police under the Act should be delegated.

Clause 4 (4).—This sub-clause has been struck out as being unnecessary as there are now only a few references to the Corporation.

Clauses 5 and 8.—We have omitted clause 8 and have revised clause 5 so as to enable the Commissioner of Police to fix the time when hackney-carriages should be registered, as it is not possible to register all hackney-carriages at the same time. Amendments in this respect have also been made in clauses 10 (2), 26 (2), 34 (2) and (3) and 62 (2).

Clause 6.—We consider that the control of hackney-carriages should be transferred from the Corporation to the Commissioner of Police in Calcutta, and alterations have been made in this clause and in clauses 4(3), 7, 17(2), 30(2), 60, 79 and 81 with a view to give effect to this transfer.

Clause 7.—We consider that the functions of the Registering Officer should not be delegated to any police-officer below the rank of sergeant, and we also consider that the functions of the Registering Officer conferred by clauses 9, 10, 13, 25, 26, 31, 33 and 61 should be retained by the Registering Officer.

Clause 9(2).—It seems to us desirable to include in this sub-clause a provision to the effect that the Registering Officer shall satisfy himself that the municipal tax in respect of the carriage has been duly paid for the half-year before he registers the carriage.

Clause 10(1).—It seems to us to be necessary to make it clear in this sub-clause that the license shall only be delivered upon payment of the registration fee leviable under a by-law made under clause 71 of the Bill. A similar alteration has been made in clause 26(1).

Clause 12.—We have re-drafted sub-clause (1) to include in it a provision for service of a notice in writing upon owners of hackney-carriages to produce them for inspection at such time as the Registering Officer may appoint.

Similar alterations have been made in clause 28.

Clause 13.—We do not consider it equitable that the driver's license should be cancelled if the carriage is unfit for public use. We have therefore struck out the reference to the driver in this clause. We have made similar alterations in clauses 23, 31 and 42.

Clause 14.—We have added two sub-clauses to this clause in order to make it necessary for the registered owner of a hackney-carriage to give notice of the transfer of his carriage, or of the discontinuance of the use of the carriage as a hackney-carriage.

Clause 17, sub-clause (2).—We consider it desirable to insert a second proviso to enable the carriage to be released on the owner furnishing security for its production.

Sub-clause (3).—We consider that a carriage seized under clause 17(2) may, if necessary, be detained at the Registration office.

Sub-clause (4).—We have extended the period of 10 days to 15 days. We have also inserted a provision for previous advertisement of the auction.

Sub-clause (5).—We have extended the period from 20 days to one month.

Similar alterations have been made in clause 30.

Clause 21.—We have inserted the word "wilfully" before the word "neglects" in order to make intention the essence of the offence. Clauses 40 and 41 have been similarly altered.

Clause 22 (2).—We have extended the period of non-delivery from three days to seven days. A similar alteration has also been made in clause 41(2).

Clause 23.—We have omitted the reference to the driver's license as a consequential amendment following the alteration made in clause 13. We consider that it should be compulsory for the Registering Officer to take possession of the plate in the circumstances and we have therefore substituted "shall" for "may". Similar alterations have been made in clause 42.

Clause 25.—We have inserted the words "or intended to be used" in this clause to enable an owner to have the horses registered, even though there is no carriage to be registered along with them.

Clause 26.—For the reasons noted against clause 10 we have revised sub-clause (1) of this clause.

Clause 28.—For the reasons noted against clause 12 we have revised sub-clause (1) of this clause. We have also added a proviso to sub-clause (2) giving the owner an opportunity before prosecution to explain the non-production of his horse.

Clause 30.—We have revised this clause on the same lines as clause 17.

Clause 31.—For the reasons given against clause 13 we have omitted the reference to the driver's license.

Clause 34 A.—This new clause provides for notice to be given of a change of a driver's residence. It is considered desirable that the Registering Officer should know where the drivers actually reside.

Clauses 40 and 41.—The alterations made in these clauses are made for the same reasons as those given against clauses 21 and 22.

Clause 42.—We have revised this clause on the same lines as clause 23.

Clause 45.—We have added a provision requiring the Magistrate to inform the Registering Officer of every endorsement which he makes on the driver's license under this clause.

Clause 47 (2) (c).—We have struck out this alternative provision as being unnecessary. The reference to this provision in the proviso to clause 47 (2) has also been omitted as a consequential amendment.

Clause 49 (2).—We have substituted five miles for four miles as the rate of speed for a hackney-carriage hired by time.

Clause 51.—We have inserted sub-clause (q) in order to prevent carriages being left unattended in streets or public places. Sub-clause (r) is designed to put a stop to the growing evil of the use of hackney-carriages for immoral purposes.

Clause 53.—The words "or attendant" have been inserted after the word "driver" wherever it occurs in this clause, so as to extend the scope of the clause to an attendant.

Clause 57 (1).—We have recast this sub-clause making it optional for the hirer to drive to the nearest Magistrate or to the Registering Officer.

Clause 59 (2).—The words "Local Government" have been substituted for the word "Corporation", as we recommend that the by-laws under clause 71 should be made by the Local Government.

Clause 60 (1).—We consider that in view of the transfer of hackney-carriages to the Commissioner of Police, the Commissioner of Police should be consulted before the Corporation builds public stands under this clause.

Clause 63 (1) (b).—We consider it desirable to include in the particulars of the register of licenses the place where the palanquin is to be kept.

Clause 67 (3).—We have altered the license fee of palanquin bearers from eight annas to four annas. We consider eight annas too much in the case of palanquin bearers.

Clause 71.—Now that the control of hackney-carriages is to be transferred to the police it is advisable that by-laws under the Act should be made by the Local Government.

Sub-clause (jj).—We consider that this new provision is necessary in order to protect hackney-carriage horses from cruel or inhumane treatment.

Sub-clause (l).—We have revised this sub-clause in order that the placing of advertisements on hackney-carriages, etc., may be permitted under certain conditions.

Clause 75 (1).—We have reduced the period within which prosecutions may be instituted from three months to one month, as is the case in Madras, as we consider that offences under this Act should be prosecuted with as little delay as possible.

Clause 76.—We have extended the scope of this clause to include all property, instead of merely that of the Corporation, as it seems right that all property should be treated alike in this respect.

Clause 77 (1).—We have substituted the words "officer in charge" for the words "Inspector or other officer on duty."

Clause 77 (3).—This sub-clause has been added as it is more convenient for people to make inquiries from the Registering Officer concerning any article left in a public conveyance.

Clause 79 A.—This new clause is based on section 127 of the Public Health Act, 1875 (38 & 39 Vict., c. 55) and section 11 of the Infectious Diseases (Prevention) Act, 1890 (53 & 54 Vict., c. 34) and provides for the disinfection of a hackney-carriage or palanquin engaged to convey a patient suffering from any dangerous infectious disorder or a corpse. We consider that a clause like this is very necessary in this Bill.

Clause 79 B.—We consider it necessary to provide in the Bill that the driver of a hackney-carriage or the bearer of a palanquin should not be arrested nor the carriage or palanquin seized when it is actually used for the conveyance of a passenger until some arrangement is made for the passenger to proceed to his destination, and we have suggested two methods by which this may be effected.

Clause 80 (1).—This sub-clause has been revised on the lines of section 22 of Burma Act IV of 1917.

Clause 81.—We consider that the "Commissioner of Police" should be included in this indemnity clause.

Clause 82.—Some necessary alterations have been made in this clause. A reference to clause 80 has been included in sub-clause (2) in order to provide for the disposal of fees and fines in areas outside Calcutta.

Clause 82 A.—This new clause supplies a defect in the existing Act. It provides that a hackney-carriage registered in any town or area outside Calcutta can ply for hire within a radius of six miles from the place where it is registered. This will enable such carriages to ply in adjacent places without being registered in those places.

We recommend that the Bill, as thus amended, be passed.

CALCUTTA :

The 23rd August, 1918.

*[This member signed subject to the following note :—

"I agree generally though I voted against the transfer of the control to the Police Commissioner."]

NOTE OF DISSENT BY THE HON'BLE RAI RADHA CHARAN PAL BAHADUR.

It is nearly 54 years ago since the first legislation on the subject was undertaken. The objects of that measure were "to restrain the extortion of native livery-stable keepers, to provide a regulated scale of fares and otherwise to place the relations of the carriage-hiring community and the owners and drivers of gharries on a satisfactory footing". It became law as Bengal Act I of 1864. An amending Act was introduced for the more efficient control over drivers, and it became law as Bengal Act V of 1866. This Act continued till 1878. From 1864 to 1878 the Registering Officer was under the control of the Commissioner of Police. In 1878 an amending measure was introduced by the Hon'ble Mr. Reynolds which became Bengal Act IV of 1878, and it authorized the Local Government to place the Registering Officer under the control and supervision of the Corporation, and since 1878 the Registering Officer and the administration of the Hackney-carriage Act have been placed under the Corporation of Calcutta. The history of the administration of the hackney-carriage department under the Corporation is a steady and continuous development, progress and improvement of hackney-carriages in Calcutta. The Corporation had its standing hackney-carriage committee which worked with unremitting zeal and energy for the improvement of the hackney-carriage service and this has been acknowledged by Government. When the department has been for over 40 years under the Corporation which has done so much to improve the service, I hope the Legislature will be very chary to take away the administration of this department from a popular body and place it in the hands of a single person, however exalted his position and authority may be. The Corporation proposed in 1910 an amendment of the Hackney-carriage Act of 1891, in order to further improve the service. An amending Bill was introduced in 1916, but as the Select Committee materially changed it, the Bill was withdrawn, re-drafted and re-introduced this year. If the original Bill had been sent up to the Council the question of transfer of the Hackney-carriage Department to the Police would not have arisen. The Bill of 1918 was sent to the Corporation when the Chairman advocated the transfer of the hackney-carriage to the Police, for he started the idea "that the hackney-carriage should be under the Police and the fire-brigade under the Corporation as was the ordinary system in other countries". He asked "as a quid pro quo that the control of the fire-brigade should be transferred from the Police to the Corporation". There was divergence of opinion amongst the members of the Corporation. Mr. Phelps stated that the hackney-carriage service had attained a certain amount of efficiency after many years and the Police had a lot of important things to do and he, therefore, failed to see what advantage would accrue from the transfer. The Hon'ble Raja Hrishikesh Laha, representing an important section of the community, thought that the public would not like the transfer because they would not be able to approach the Police so easily as the Corporation. He emphasized that the public would surely oppose the proposal. The Chairman, Mr. Payne, admitted that there had been substantial improvement in the hackney-carriage service, but he thought it would be a quid pro quo to get the fire-brigade in exchange. In my opinion, it is the idea of getting in hand the fire-brigade department that dominated the proposal. The Corporation, on the advice of Mr. Payne, by a very bare majority (it would not be far wrong to assume by the Chairman's casting vote) resolved "that the control of the hackney-carriages should be transferred to the Police and that the control of the fire-brigade should at the same time be transferred to the Corporation". But, as stated by the Hon'ble Member in charge of the Bill, the fire-brigade will not be made over in exchange to the Corporation, and, therefore, it must be assumed that the Corporation is not prepared to part with the hackney-carriage department. It has been urged by two European Associations that the hackney-carriages should be transferred to the Police as, in their opinion, all vehicles should be under their control. May I ask what about the carts? The cart registration is in the hands of the Corporation and I believe it will be admitted that the bullock cart owners and drivers are more difficult to be dealt with than the owners and drivers of hackney-carriages. The present Commissioner of Police asked for the transfer of the hackney-carriage department. His predecessors, during the last 40 years, did not ask for it, and the ground, so far as I understand, urged by Mr. Clarke is the difficulty in serving summonses on hackney-carriage drivers. I do not understand why, now that under the present Bill the addresses and changes of addresses of drivers must be notified to the Registering Officer, what particular difficulty will arise in serving the summons. If there is any difficulty surely the same must appear in the case of bullock carts. I do not know whether the next stage will be to take away cart registration from the Corporation.

Much is said about the efficient supervision of the Police. I do not cast any reflection upon them, but as it may imply relative inefficiency of the Corporation in the matter of the administration of the hackney-carriage department, I should like to quote here what a European Commissioner, representing the Trades Association, observed :—

“ Mr. Shelton said that the control exercised over the taxi-cabs in Calcutta was not as it should be. There was no classification of the taxi-cabs, no uniformity in the dress of the drivers, and no inspection of fittings or machinery. He, therefore, suggested that the taxi-cabs should be brought under the control of the Corporation.” Further, “ Mr. Shelton said that, when this question of controlling the taxi-cabs in Calcutta was discussed previously it was thought that under the Police they would be more efficiently managed, but it proved otherwise. As they had a well-organized department in the Corporation, namely, the hackney-carriage department, he thought they could very efficiently deal with the taxi-cabs. These vehicles were generally in a dirty condition and, therefore, stricter supervision was necessary.”

I can confidently state that the public opinion, particularly the Indian section of the community, are opposed to the transfer. Both the British Indian Association (I assume from Raja Hrishikesh Laha's observations) and the Indian Association are strongly opposed to it.

I do not wish to add any observation of mine. As regards the transference of the department to the Police it will not centralize the control in one place, for there is the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals who will deal with the gharriwallahs quite independently of the Police. Next, the Corporation will shortly have a Civil Veterinary Department and all horses and other animals in the city must pass through its hands. The complete control of all animals in Calcutta, inclusive of the S. P. C. A. agency, and the administration of the Glanders and Farcy Act will be transferred to the Corporation. As soon as the war is over and funds are available, the Corporation will organize this department.

Another point is that an appeal against the order of the Registering Officer lies with the Commissioner of Police. Here again I oppose the one-man rule. A Board should be constituted consisting of the representatives of the municipalities included in the area and the Commissioner of Police may be associated with them, and they should form the appellate authority, whose decision should be final, or, in the alternative, a Court of Law.

There may be some other points on which I may have to speak in the Council, but it is not necessary to note them all here.

I would recommend that the opinion of public bodies on the new proposal which was not in the Bill as introduced in Council be invited.

NOTE OF DISSENT BY THE HON'BLE RAI MAHENDRA CHANDRA MITRA BAHADUR.

I AGREE to the modifications made by the Select Committee in the Hackney-carriage Bill, subject to the following note of dissent :—

Looking to the history of legislation, it appears that Bengal Act V of 1866 which was introduced by Mr. F. R. Cockrell in the Bengal Legislative Council was amended in 1878 by Mr. Reynolds. The Act of 1866 placed the Registering Officer and the administration of the law relating to hackney-carriages entirely under the control of the Commissioner of Police, Calcutta. The object of Mr. Reynolds' amending Act (Bengal Act IV of 1878) was to authorize the Local Government to place the Registering Officer under the control and supervision of the Corporation. Since then the Registering Officer and the administration of the Hackney-carriage Act have been transferred from the Commissioner of Police to the Corporation of Calcutta. Since 1878 the hackney-carriage service has been administered satisfactorily by a body of gentlemen elected by the rate-payers of Calcutta and appointed by Government.

As there are no adequate reasons for this transfer, I do not agree with the majority of the members of the Select Committee who consider that the control of the hackney-carriages should be transferred from the Corporation to the Commissioner of Police, Calcutta, and in my opinion alterations should not, therefore, be made in clauses 6, 4(3), 7, 17(2), 30(2), 60, 79 and 81.

A BILL

to consolidate and amend the law relating to hackney-carriages and palanquins and to make certain provisions with regard to rickshaws in Calcutta.

WHEREAS it is expedient to amend the law relating to hackney-carriages and palanquins and to make certain provisions with regard to rickshaws in Calcutta ;

It is hereby enacted as follows :—

CHAPTER I.

PRELIMINARY.

Short title, commencement and extent.

1. (1) This Act may be called the Calcutta Hackney-carriage Act, 1918

[Cal. A. 1,
Ben. Act V of 1911, ss 1(3),
148.]

(2) It shall come into force on such date as the Local Government may, by notification, direct; and

(3) It shall apply in the first instance only to Calcutta.

Further provisions as to extent.

2. The Local Government may, by notification,—

(a) extend this Act, or any portion thereof, to any other town or local area; or

(b) exclude from, or include in, Calcutta, or any other town or local area to which this Act is extended under clause (a), any local area in the vicinity of the same and defined in the notification :

Provided that no notification under this section shall be published in respect of any area included in a Military Cantonment without the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council :

Provided also that, before finally publishing any notification under this section, the Local Government shall publish a draft of the same in such manner as they may think fit, and any rate-payer or inhabitant of the area affected by such draft may, if he objects to the draft, submit his objection in writing to the Local Government within six weeks from its publication, and the Local Government shall take such objection into consideration.

Repeal.

3. (1) The Calcutta Hackney-carriage Act, 1891, is hereby repealed.

[Cf. s. 2]
Ben. Act I
of 1891.

(2) This repeal shall not affect the validity of anything done or suffered, or of any right, title, obligation or liability which may have accrued under the said Act; and all registrations made, licenses issued, penalties incurred, and other things duly done under the said Act shall, so far as they are consistent with this Act, be deemed to have been respectively made, issued, incurred or done hereunder.

(3) All proceedings now pending, which may have been commenced under the said Act, shall be deemed to be commenced under this Act.

Definitions.

4. In this Act, unless there is something repugnant in the subject or context,— [Cf. s. 3.]

(1) "bearer" when used with reference to rickshaws includes any person employed to draw or push a rickshaw;

(2) "Calcutta" means, subject to the exclusion or inclusion of any local area by notification under clause (b) of section 2, the area described in Schedule I to the Calcutta Municipal Act, 1899;

Ben. Act
III of 1899

(3) "the Commissioner of Police" means the officer appointed under section 4 of the Calcutta Police Act, 1866;

Ben. Act
IV of 1866.

(4) (Omitted);

(5) "hackney-carriage" means any wheeled vehicle, drawn by horses and used for the conveyance of passengers, which is kept, offered or plies for hire by the hour or day or according to distance;

(6) "horse" includes mule and pony;

(7) "notification" means a notification published in the Calcutta Gazette;

(8) "palanquin" means a vehicle for the conveyance of passengers which is carried by men;

(9) "rickshaw" means a two-wheeled vehicle for the conveyance of passengers which is drawn by a man or men; and

(10) "stage-carriage" means any hackney-carriage, the passengers in which pay or are charged separate and distinct fares, or pay or are charged, at the rate of separate and distinct fares, for their respective places or seats therein or conveyance thereby.

The Calcutta Hackney-carriage Bill, 1918.(Chapter II.—Registration of Hackney-carriages.— Clauses 5—10.)

CHAPTER II.

REGISTRATION OF HACKNEY-CARRIAGES.

Hackney-carriages to be registered annually.

5. Every hackney-carriage in Calcutta shall be annually registered by a Registering Officer, on such date as the Commissioner of Police may direct. [Cf. s. 5.]

Duties of Registering Officer.

6. (1) The Registering Officer shall be a Deputy Commissioner of Police specially appointed by the Local Government for this purpose, and he shall keep a register in which he shall enter every hackney-carriage under the class proscribed thereof by by-law made under section 71. [Cf. s. 5.]

(2) Every act, matter or thing done by the Registering Officer, under or by virtue of this Act, shall be subject to the control of the Commissioner of Police.

(3) (Omitted).

Power to Registering Officer to delegate his functions.

7. The Registering Officer may, with the sanction of the Commissioner of Police, by general or special order in writing, delegate to any police-officer, not below the rank of sergeant, all or any of the powers and duties conferred or imposed upon the Registering Officer by this Act or any by-law made thereunder, except those conferred or imposed upon him by sections 9, 10, 13, 25, 26, 31, 33 and 61. [New.] [Cf. B.N. Act III of 1899, s. 18.]

8. (Omitted).

Procedure for registration

9. (1) Any person, who is desirous of registering a hackney-carriage, shall apply to the Registering Officer, stating the class in which he desires that the carriage may be registered, and shall submit the carriage for the inspection of the Registering Officer. [Cf. s. 7.]

(2) The Registering Officer shall satisfy himself that the municipal tax imposed upon such carriage for the current half-year has been paid, and decide whether the carriage is fit to be registered in the class applied for, and shall register it in that class or refuse to grant the application.

(3) The person in whose name any carriage is registered shall be deemed to be the owner of such carriage for the purposes of this Act.

License for carriage.

10. (1) The Registering Officer shall, at the time of registration, upon payment of such fee as may be fixed by by-law made under clause (f) of section 71, deliver a license, duly signed by him, to the owner of every hackney-carriage. [Cf. s. 8.]

(2) Such license shall, if not cancelled or suspended, continue in force for one year from the first day of the month in which the carriage is registered.

The Calcutta Hackney-carriage Bill, 1918.(Chapter II.—Registration of Hackney-carriages.— Clauses 11—14.)

Particulars of registration and license.

11. The following particulars shall be entered in the register, and shall be specified in the license to be given to the owner :—

[Cf. s. 9]

- (a) the class, and the number assigned to the carriage in the register ;
- (b) the name and residence of the owner, the description of the carriage, and the place where such carriage is to be kept ;
- (c) the number and description of horses to be employed in drawing such carriage ;
- (d) the number of passengers the carriage is licensed to carry ;
- (e) the date on which the license was granted ; and
- (f) such other particulars as may be prescribed by by-law made under section 71.

Production of carriages for inspection half-yearly.

12. (1) The owner of every hackney-carriage registered under this Act shall, on receipt of a notice in writing in this behalf, produce the carriage before the Registering Officer, for inspection, at such time as may be specified in the notice within two weeks after the expiration of six months from the date of every such registration.

[New]

(2) If the owner of any such carriage fails to produce the same for inspection in accordance with the provisions of sub-section (1), he shall be liable to a fine not exceeding five rupees for every day during which, after the expiry of the period specified in sub-section (1) and before the carriage is produced for inspection, the carriage is used as a hackney-carriage, and, in default of payment of fine, to simple imprisonment for a period not exceeding fourteen days.

Registration of carriage and owner's license may be cancelled or suspended.

13. The Registering Officer may cancel or suspend, for such period as he thinks fit, the registration of any carriage and the license granted to the owner under this Act, whenever it appears to him that such carriage is unfit for public use.

[Cf. s. 11.]

Notice to be given of change of ownership.

14. (1) Whenever any change takes place in the ownership of a hackney-carriage, if the person to whom such carriage is transferred desires to use it as a hackney-carriage, he shall, before so using it, give to the Registering Officer notice in writing of such transfer.

[Cf. s. 12.]

(2) Every such notice shall contain the particulars specified in clauses (a), (b) and (c) of section 11.

(3) If any such person, before giving such notice as aforesaid, uses such carriage as a hackney-carriage, he shall be liable to a fine not exceeding five rupees, and, in default of payment of fine, to simple imprisonment for a period not exceeding seven days.

Clauses 15—17.)*

(4) Every owner of a hackney-carriage registered under this Act shall, within fourteen days of the transfer of such carriage to another person, or of the discontinuance of the use of the carriage as a hackney-carriage, give notice thereof to the Registering Officer, in the case of a transfer stating the name and residence of the transferee.

(5) If any such owner fails to give notice in accordance with the provisions of sub-section (4), he shall be liable to a fine not exceeding five rupees, and, in default of payment of fine, to simple imprisonment for a period not exceeding seven days.

Notice to be given of change of owner's residence or place where carriage is kept

15. (1) Whenever the owner of a hackney-carriage registered under this Act changes his residence or the place where such carriage is kept, he shall, within one week from the date of such change, give to the Registering Officer a notice in writing thereof.

[Cf. s. 13.]

(2) Every such owner who neglects to give such notice shall be liable for every such offence to a fine not exceeding five rupees, and, in default of payment of fine, to simple imprisonment for a period not exceeding seven days.

Change of ownership or residence to be entered in register.

16. The Registering Officer, on receiving a notice under section 14, sub-section (1) or (4), or section 15, sub-section (1), or after a conviction under section 14, sub-section (3) or (5), or section 15, sub-section (2), shall make the necessary alteration in the register and in the license.

[Cf. s. 14.]

Penalty for using unregistered carriage.

17. (1) If any hackney-carriage is used as such without having been duly registered under this Act, the owner of such carriage shall be liable to a fine not exceeding one hundred rupees, and, in default of payment of fine, to simple imprisonment for a period not exceeding three months.

[Cf. s. 15.]

(2) Any police-officer, or any person duly authorized by the Commissioner of Police in that behalf, may seize such carriage together with the horses and harness thereof and remove the same to a police-station:

Provided that, if it be proved on arrival at the police-station or afterwards that any horse so removed has been duly registered under this Act with its harness, that horse and harness shall be released forthwith:

Provided also, that any carriage so removed shall be released on the owner thereof furnishing security to the satisfaction of the officer in charge of the police-station for the production of the carriage when required.

(3) Any carriage seized under sub-section (2) which is not released under the second proviso thereto may be detained at the police-station or sent to the Registration office and detained there until any fine imposed by the Magistrate has been paid.

The Calcutta Hackney-carriage Bill, 1918.(Chapter III.—Plate on Hackney-carriage.— Clauses 18—21.)

(4) If the hackney-carriage so seized be not claimed and if any fine imposed be not paid, together with any costs or charges incurred, within fifteen days of such seizure or imposition of such fine, respectively, such carriage may be sold by auction, after previous advertisement of such auction, and the sale-proceeds applied to the payment of the fine and all costs and charges incurred on account of the detention and sale.

(5) The surplus, if any, if not claimed by the owner within a further period of one month, shall be credited and applied in the same manner as fees and fines realized under this Act.

CHAPTER III.

PLATE ON HACKNEY-CARRIAGE.

1. Plate to be affixed outside carriage.

18. Upon the registration of any hackney-carriage, the Registering Officer shall cause to be affixed on some conspicuous part of the outside of such carriage a plate bearing the class and the number of such carriage in the register and the number of passengers which it is licensed to carry.

[Cf. s. 16.]

Penalty for using carriage without plate

19. If any hackney-carriage is let, used or plies for hire without having a proper plate affixed thereto under this Act, the owner thereof shall be liable to a fine not exceeding fifty rupees, and, in default of payment of fine, to simple imprisonment for a period not exceeding fourteen days.

[Cf. s. 17.]

New plate may be had on loss or obliteration of former one.

20. If, during the year of registration, the words or figures on any plate affixed to a hackney-carriage become indistinct or obliterated, or if the plate is lost or stolen, the owner of such carriage shall produce the carriage before the Registering Officer and, after proving the loss of the plate or on delivering the defective plate, to the Registering Officer, as the case may be, shall be entitled to have a new plate affixed upon payment of a fee of eight annas :

[Cf. s. 18.]

Provided that if any plate, in lieu of which a new plate has been affixed under this section, be afterwards recovered, the same shall forthwith be delivered to the Registering Officer.

Penalty for using obliterated plate or for failing to deliver lost plate when recovered.

21. Every owner of a hackney-carriage registered under this Act who uses or permits to be used any plate after the writing thereon has become indistinct or obliterated, and every person into whose possession any plate which has been lost or stolen comes, and who refuses or wilfully neglects for three days to deliver the same to the Registering Officer as required by the proviso to section 20, shall, for every such offence, be liable to a fine not exceeding ten rupees, and, in default of payment of fine, to simple imprisonment for a period not exceeding seven days.

[Cf. s. 19.]

The Calcutta Hackney-carriage Bill, 1918.

(Chapter III.—Plate on Hackney-carriage.—Chapter IV.—Registration and Identification of Horses.—Clauses 22—25.)

Plate to be delivered on expiration of registration.

22. (1) Upon the expiration or other determination of the registration of a hackney-carriage, the owner of such carriage shall cause the plate affixed thereto under this Act to be delivered to the Registering Officer.

[Cf. s. 19]

(2) Any person who, after the expiration of the period aforesaid, wilfully neglects for seven days to deliver the plate to the Registering Officer, and every person who uses or retains any plate affixed in respect of a registration which is no longer in force, shall, for every such offence, be liable to a fine not exceeding fifty rupees, and, in default of payment of fine, to simple imprisonment for a period not exceeding fourteen days.

Power to take possession of plate on cancellation or suspension of registration

23. Whenever the Registering Officer cancels or suspends for any period, under section 13, the registration of any hackney-carriage he shall take possession of the plate affixed to such carriage under this Act.

[New]

Penalty for using or having counterfeit plate

24. (1) Every person who, for the purpose of deception or with a view to avoiding any of the provisions of this Act.

[Cf. s. 20.]

(i) uses or has in his possession any plate resembling or intended to resemble any plate affixed under this Act, or

(ii) uses, affixes or has in his possession any plate issued under this Act, shall, for every such offence, be liable to a fine not exceeding one hundred rupees, and, in default of payment of fine, to simple imprisonment for a period not exceeding one month.

(2) The Registering Officer or any police-officer, may seize any plate used or had as aforesaid, wherever the same may be found.

(3) Whenever a police-officer seizes any plate under sub-section (2), he shall forthwith deliver it to the Registering Officer.

CHAPTER IV.

REGISTRATION AND IDENTIFICATION OF HORSES.

Horses to be registered annually.

25. Every horse used, or intended to be used, for drawing a hackney-carriage, together with the harness of such horse, shall be annually registered by the Registering Officer at the time and in the manner provided by Chapter II with respect to the registration of hackney-carriages:

[Cf. s. 46]

Provided that the Registering Officer may refuse to register any horse if such horse or its harness appears to him to be unserviceable or unfit for public use.

The Calcutta Hackney-carriage Bill, 1918.(Chapter IV.—Registration and Identification of Horses.—Clauses 26—29.)

License for horse. 26. (1) The Registering Officer shall, at the time of registration, upon payment of such fee as may be fixed by by-law made under clause (f) of section 71, deliver a license, duly signed by him, to the owner of every horse. [Cf. s. 8.]

(2) Such license shall, if not cancelled or suspended, continue in force for one year from the first day of the month in which the horse is registered.

Particulars of register and license. 27. (1) The following particulars shall be entered in the register, and shall be specified in the license to be given to the owner, namely:— [Cf. ss. 9, 47.]

- (a) the class of the hackney-carriage with which the horse is to be used, and whether it is to be used singly or in a pair;
- (b) the name and residence of the owner;
- (c) the number assigned to the horse in the register;
- (d) the place where it is intended to keep the horse;
- (e) the date on which the license was granted; and
- (f) such other particulars as may be prescribed by by-law made under section 71.

(2) All the provisions of this Act in any way relating to the notification to the Registering Officer of the change of ownership and of residence of the owners of hackney-carriages and of the place where such carriages are kept shall be applicable in like manner to the owners of licensed horses.

(3) The person in whose name a horse is for the time being registered shall be deemed to be the owner of such horse for the purposes of this Act. [Cf. s. 7(3).]

Production of registered horses for inspection half-yearly 28. (1) The owner of every horse registered under this Act shall, on receipt of a notice in writing in this behalf, produce the horse and the harness used therewith before the Registering Officer, for inspection, at such time as may be specified in the notice within two weeks after the expiration of six months from the date of every such registration. [New.]

(2) If the owner of any such horse fails to produce the same with its harness in accordance with the provisions of sub-section (1) he shall be liable to a fine not exceeding two rupees for every day, during which, after the expiry of the period specified in sub-section (1) and before the horse is produced for inspection, the horse is used to draw a hackney-carriage, and, in default of payment of fine, to simple imprisonment for a period not exceeding fourteen days:

Provided that, before prosecuting the owner under this sub-section, the Registering Officer shall consider any explanation for the failure to produce the horse with its harness that may be put forward by the owner.

Identification of horse. 29. Upon the registration of any horse, the Registering Officer shall cause to be attached or applied to such horse such mark of identification as may be prescribed by by-law made under section 71. [Cf. s. 16.]

The Calcutta Hackney-carriage Bill, 1918.

(Chapter IV.—Registration and Identification of Horses.—Chapter V.—Driver's License and Ticket.
—Clauses 30—33.)

Penalty for using horse not bearing identification mark.

30. (1) If any horse is employed for drawing a hackney-carriage let or used or plying for hire without bearing a mark of identification attached or applied to it under this Act, the owner of such horse shall be liable to a fine not exceeding fifty rupees, and, in default of payment of fine, to simple imprisonment for a period not exceeding fourteen days.

[Cf. s. 17.]

(2) Any police-officer, or any person duly authorized by the Commissioner of Police in that behalf may seize such horse with its harness and remove the same to a police-station:

Provided that any horse with its harness so removed shall be released on the owner thereof furnishing security to the satisfaction of the officer in charge of the police-station for the production of the horse and its harness when required.

(3) Any horse with its harness seized under subsection (2) which is not released under the proviso thereto may be detained at the police-station or sent to the Registration office and detained there until any fine imposed by the Magistrate has been paid.

(4) If the horse and the harness so seized be not claimed and if any fine imposed be not paid, together with any costs or charges incurred, within fifteen days of such seizure or imposition of such fine, respectively, such horse and its harness may be sold by auction, after previous advertisement of such auction, and the sale-proceeds applied to the payment of the fine and all costs and charges incurred on account of the detention and sale.

(5) The surplus, if any, if not claimed by the owner within a further period of one month, shall be credited and applied in the same manner as fees and fines realized under this Act.

Cancellation or suspension of registration of horse and owner's license.

31. The Registering Officer may cancel, or may suspend for such period as he thinks fit, the registration of any horse and the license granted to the owner under this Act, whenever it shall appear to him that such horse or the harness used therewith is unfit for public use.

[Cf. s. 13.]

Application of certain provisions relating to hackney-carriages to horses.

32. All the provisions of this Act in any way relating to the renewing, producing, using, or taking possession of plates affixed to hackney-carriages shall, in like manner, and so far as the same may reasonably be applied, be applicable to the marks of identification attached or applied to horses.

[New.]

CHAPTER V.

DRIVER'S LICENSE AND TICKET.

Driver of hackney-carriage to have license.

33. (1) No person shall act as a driver of a hackney-carriage without a license granted by the Registering Officer.

[Cf. s. 21.]

*The Calcutta Hackney-carriage Bill, 1918.(Chapter V.—Driver's License and Ticket.—
Clauses 34, 35.)*

(2) No person shall be so licensed unless the Registering Officer, after due inquiry, is satisfied—

(a) that he is competent to drive a hackney-carriage, and has a sufficient knowledge of localities in Calcutta;

(b) that he is of sober habits, and has not been convicted of any offence which, in the opinion of the Registering Officer, is of such a nature as to render him unfit to hold a driver's license; and

(c) that he is not less than eighteen years of age.

Particulars and duration of license.

34. (1) Every license granted under section 33, sub-section (1), shall contain—

[C. s. 31]

(a) the number of the license;

(b) the name, father's name, place of abode, and age of the person to whom such license is granted;

(c) the date on which the license was granted; and

(d) a summary of the more important statutory provisions and by-laws affecting drivers of hackney-carriages;

and shall bear the signature of the Registering Officer.

(2) Every license granted under section 33, sub-section (1), shall, if not cancelled or suspended, continue in force for one year from the first day of the month in which it is granted, and shall thereafter be renewed, provided that the Registering Officer is satisfied that the driver continues to fulfil the conditions prescribed by clauses (a) and (b) of sub-section (2) of that section.

(3) For every such license and for every renewal thereof there shall be paid a fee of two rupees.

(Proviso omitted).

Notice to be given of change of driver's residence

34A. (1) Whenever a driver licensed under this Act changes his residence he shall, within one week from the date of such change, give to the Registering Officer a notice in writing thereof.

[C. s. 18.]

(2) Every such driver who neglects to give such notice shall be liable for every such offence to a fine not exceeding five rupees, and, in default of payment of fine, to simple imprisonment for a period not exceeding seven days.

Penalty for not having license, or lending it out.

35. If any person acts as the driver of a hackney-carriage, without holding a license in force for the time being, or transfers, or lends his license, or allows the same to be used by any other person, he shall, for every such offence, be liable to a fine not exceeding twenty rupees, and, in default of payment of fine, to simple imprisonment for a period not exceeding ten days.

[C. s. 32.]

The Calcutta Hackney-carriage Bill, 1918.(Chapter V.—Driver's License and Ticket.— Clauses 36—40.)

Penalty for permitting unlicensed person to act as driver.

36. If any owner of a hackney-carriage permits any person, who has not obtained a driver's license, or whose license has either expired or been cancelled or suspended, to drive such carriage for hire, he shall be liable, for every such offence, to a fine not exceeding fifty rupees, and, in default of payment of fine, to simple imprisonment for a period not exceeding fourteen days:

[Cf. s. 23.]

Provided that such owner and such unlicensed driver shall be subject to all the provisions of this Act, for any act done or omitted to be done by such driver during such employment, in like manner as if such driver had been duly licensed.

Particulars of license to be registered and copy given on payment of fee.

37. The particulars of every license which is granted under section 33 shall be entered in the register to be kept for that purpose at the office of the Registering Officer; and a certified copy of such particulars shall be furnished to every person applying for the same on payment of a fee of eight annas.

[Cf. s. 24.]

Driver to wear metal ticket

38. (1) The Registering Officer shall, at the time of granting a license to any driver of a hackney-carriage, deliver to him a metal ticket bearing the number of his license.

[Cf. s. 25.]

(2) Every driver to whom such ticket is delivered shall, at all times while acting as driver or while attending before any Magistrate, carry such ticket exposed to view.

(3) In case any such driver omits to wear such ticket exposed to view while acting as driver or attending before a Magistrate, he shall be liable to a fine not exceeding ten rupees, and, in default of payment of fine, to simple imprisonment for a period not exceeding seven days.

Driver entitled to new ticket on loss or obliteration of former one

39. If, during the term of the license, the number on any ticket becomes indistinct or obliterated or the ticket is lost or stolen, the licensed driver shall produce his license before the Registering Officer, and on proving the loss of the ticket or on delivering the defective ticket to the Registering Officer, as the case may be, shall be entitled to have a new ticket upon payment of a fee of eight annas:

[Cf. s. 26.]

Provided that, if any ticket, in lieu of which a new ticket has been issued under this section, be afterwards recovered, the same shall forthwith be delivered to the Registering Officer.

Penalty for using obliterated ticket, or for failing to deliver lost ticket when recovered

40. Every driver licensed under this Act who uses or wears the ticket granted to him after the number thereon has become indistinct or obliterated, and every person into whose possession any ticket which has been lost or stolen comes and who refuses or wilfully neglects for three days to deliver the same to the Registering Officer as required by the proviso to section 39, shall, for every such offence, be liable to a fine not exceeding ten rupees, and, in default of payment of fine, to simple imprisonment for a period not exceeding seven days.

[Cf. s. 26.]

The Calcutta Hackney-carriage Bill, 1918.(Chapter V.—Driver's License and Ticket.—Clauses 41—45.)

License and ticket to be delivered on expiry

41. (1) Upon the expiration or other determination of any license granted to a driver under this Act, such driver shall deliver his license and ticket to the Registering Officer.

[Cf. s. 27]

(2) Every driver who wilfully neglects for seven days to deliver such expired license and ticket to the Registering Officer, and every person who uses, wears or retains any such expired license or ticket or any license or ticket other than such as shall have been delivered to him under the provisions of this Act, and every person to whom any ticket has been delivered under this Act, who lends or transfers such ticket, whether current or expired, to any other person, and every person who wears or uses the ticket of any other person, shall, for every such offence, be liable to a fine not exceeding fifty rupees, and, in default of payment of fine, to simple imprisonment for a period not exceeding fourteen days.

Power to take possession of driver's ticket on cancellation or suspension of registration

42. Whenever the Registering Officer cancels or suspends for any period, under section 13 or section 31, the registration of any hackney-carriage or horse, as the case may be, he shall take possession of the ticket which was delivered to the driver of such carriage under section 38 or section 39.

[New]

Penalty for using or wearing counterfeit ticket

43. (1) Every person who, for the purpose of deception, uses or wears any ticket resembling or intended to resemble any ticket granted under section 38 or section 39 shall, for every such offence, be liable to a fine not exceeding one hundred rupees, and, in default of payment of fine, to simple imprisonment for a period not exceeding one month.

[Cf. s. 28]

(2) The Registering Officer or any police-officer may seize any such expired or counterfeit ticket, wherever the same may be found.

(3) Whenever a police-officer seizes any expired or counterfeit ticket under sub-section (2), he shall forthwith deliver it to the Registering Officer.

Penalty for failing to produce license before Magistrate

44. Whenever any driver is summoned to appear before any Magistrate to answer any charge preferred against him under this Act, he shall carry with him his license, and produce the same if required so to do; and any driver who, on such requisition, fails to produce such license shall, for every such offence, be liable to a fine not exceeding five rupees, and, in default of payment of fine, to simple imprisonment for a period not exceeding five days.

[Cf. s. 29(1).]

Endorsement of conviction, warning or reprimand, on license

45. Whenever a Magistrate convicts a driver of any offence punishable under this Act, or warns him of his liability to punishment for any such offence, or

[Cf. s. 30]

The Calcutta Hackney-carriage Bill, 1918.(Chapter V.—Driver's License and Ticket.— Clauses 46, 47.)

reprimands him in respect of his conduct as a driver, the Magistrate shall endorse on the driver's license—

- (a) the nature of the offence for which the driver was convicted, the date of the conviction and the penalty imposed, or
 - (b) the warning or reprimand given,
- as the case may be, and shall inform the Registering Officer of every such endorsement.

Revocation or suspension of driver's license on conviction.

46. (1) Any Magistrate before whom any driver is convicted of any offence, whether under this Act or under any other Act, may cancel his license or may suspend the same for such period as the Magistrate thinks fit, and for that purpose may require the driver, or any other person in whose possession such license and the ticket thereto belonging shall then be, to deliver up the same.

[Cf. s. 30.]

(2) Every driver or other person who, on being so required, refuses or neglects to deliver up the license and ticket, shall be liable, for every such offence, to a fine not exceeding twenty rupees, and, in default of payment of fine, to simple imprisonment for a period not exceeding ten days.

(3) The Magistrate shall forward every license and every ticket delivered to him under sub-section (1) to the Registering Officer, together with a memorandum of his sentence in the case.

(4) The Registering Officer shall enter the fact of such sentence in the register referred to in section 37. and if the license has been suspended, the Registering Officer shall, on application at the end of the period of suspension, re-deliver such license and ticket to the person to whom they were granted.

Power to Registering Officer to cancel or suspend driver's license.

47. (1) If it appears to the Registering Officer that any licensed driver is not a fit person to drive a hackney-carriage, he may cause a notice to be served on such driver, requiring him to appear before the Registering Officer, at such time as may be specified in the notice, for re-examination. Every such notice shall state the reasons for such re-examination.

[Cf. s. 30.]

(2) (a) If such driver fails to appear in pursuance of the notice served under sub-section (1), or

(b) if, upon his appearance, the Registering Officer finds that he is not a fit person to drive the hackney-carriage, or

(c) (Omitted.)

(d) if the owner of the carriage or of the horse used therewith on being summoned to produce the driver to answer any charge preferred against him under this Act fails to do so ;

the Registering Officer may cancel the driver's license or may suspend the same for such period as he thinks fit, and may for that purpose require the driver, or any other person in whose possession such license or the ticket thereto belonging may then be, to deliver up the same :

The Calcutta Hackney-carriage Bill, 1918.(Chapter VI.—Fares, Hiring and Plying for Hire.— Clauses 48—51.)

Provided that, before passing an order under clause (d), the Registering Officer shall consider any explanation for the failure that may be put forward by the driver or the owner as the case may be.

(3) Every driver or other person who fails to comply with any requisition made upon him under sub-section (2) shall be liable, for every such offence, to a fine not exceeding twenty rupees, and, in default of payment of fine, to simple imprisonment for a period not exceeding ten days.

CHAPTER VI.

*FARES, HIRING AND PLYING FOR HIRE.

Owner to keep list of fares inside
carriage

48. (1) The owner of every hackney-carriage registered under this Act shall cause to be put up, in such manner and in such position as may be directed by the Registering Officer, on the inside of such carriage, a list in such language or languages as the Local Government may, by notification, prescribe, showing the amount of fare according to distance and time which may be demanded and taken from the hirer of such carriage.

[C. s. 32.]

(2) Every owner who fails to comply with the provision of this section shall, for every such offence, be liable to a fine not exceeding ten rupees, and, in default of payment of fine, to simple imprisonment for a period not exceeding seven days.

Maximum distance which driver is bound to drive.

49. (1) The driver of every hackney-carriage registered under this Act shall drive such carriage to any place which is not more than six miles from the place where the same has been hired, to which he shall be required by the hirer thereof to drive the same.

[C. s. 32.]

(2) When any carriage is hired by time, the driver thereof shall drive the same at a rate not less than five miles within one hour.

(3) Any such driver who, without sufficient excuse (the burden of proving which excuse shall lie upon him), fails to comply with the provisions of this section shall be liable to a fine not exceeding twenty rupees, and, in default of payment of fine, to simple imprisonment for a period not exceeding ten days.

Penalty for refusing to let a carriage for hire.

50. Any owner, driver, or person in charge of any hackney-carriage registered under this Act, who, without sufficient excuse (the burden of proving which excuse shall lie upon him), refuses to let such carriage for hire, shall be liable for every such offence to a fine not exceeding fifty rupees, and, in default of payment of fine, to simple imprisonment for a period not exceeding fourteen days and shall also pay to the party complaining such compensation as the Magistrate thinks fit.

[C. s. 33.]

Penalty on driver and attendant for certain offences.

51. Every driver or attendant of a hackney-carriage who—

[C. s. 36,
Mad. Act V of
1911, s. 37.]

(a) is drunk during his employment;

(b) makes use of insulting or abusive language or gesture during his employment;

The Calcutta Hackney-carriage Bill, 1918.(Chapter VI.—Fares, Hiring and Plying for Hire.— Clause 52.)

- (c) stands (elsewhere than at some stand or other place appointed for the purpose) or loiters, for the purpose of being hired, in or upon any public street, road or place;
- (d) suffers his carriage to stand for hire across any street or alongside of any other carriage;
- (e) refuses to give way (when he reasonably and conveniently may do so) to any other carriage;
- (f) wilfully obstructs or hinders the driver of any other carriage in taking up or setting down any passenger, into, or from such other carriage;
- (g) wrongfully prevents or endeavours to prevent the driver of any other carriage from being hired;
- (h) demands or takes more than the proper fare to which he is legally entitled;
- (i) refuses to admit and carry in his carriage the number of passengers which such carriage is licensed to carry;
- (j) carries more than such number of passengers;
- (k) refuses to carry by his carriage such quantity of luggage as is prescribed by by-law made under section 71;
- (l) being hired, permits or suffers any person to be carried in, or upon, or about such carriage during such hire, without the consent of the person hiring the same;
- (m) drives in the carriage any animal which is not so secured as to be under the control of the driver;
- (n) being hired by time or distance, before he has been discharged by the hirer, wilfully deserts from the hiring;
- (o) plies for hire with any carriage or horse which shall be at the time unfit for public use;
- (p) disobeys any direction given by a police-officer for the regulation of traffic and the control of carriages on hackney-carriage stands;
- (q) leaves his carriage unattended in any street or public place:
- (r) allows his carriage to be used by any person for the purpose of soliciting any other person to immorality, shall be liable to a fine not exceeding one hundred rupees, or, imprisonment for a period not exceeding two months.

Penalty on driver for refusing to attend at premises of owner.

52. Any licensed driver, employed as a driver by the owner of any hackney-carriage registered under this Act, who, without sufficient excuse, refuses or neglects to attend at the premises where such carriage is kept for the purpose of driving any such carriage, whereby such owner is prevented from letting out the same, shall be liable for each offence to a fine not exceeding ten rupees, and, in default of payment of fine, to simple imprisonment for a period not exceeding seven days.

[C. 37.]

The Calcutta Hackney-carriage Bill, 1918.(Chapter VI.—Fares, Hiring and Plying for Hire.— Clauses 53—55.)

Owner may be summoned to appear before Magistrate and to produce driver or attendant.

53. (1) When a complaint is made before a Magistrate against the driver or attendant of a hackney-carriage registered under this Act for any offence committed by him against the provisions of this Act, or any by-law made hereunder, such Magistrate may, if the driver or attendant fails to appear, forthwith summon the owner of the carriage or of the horse used therewith, or both such owners, as he may consider necessary, personally to appear and to produce the driver or attendant of such carriage to answer the complaint.

[Cf. s. 28.]

(2) If any such owner, without reasonable excuse, neglects or refuses to appear personally, or to produce the driver or attendant in compliance with a summons issued under sub-section (1), he shall be liable to a fine not exceeding fifty rupees, and, in default of payment of fine, to simple imprisonment for a period not exceeding fourteen days, and so from time to time, as often as he shall be so summoned, until such driver or attendant shall be produced by him :

Provided that if such owner, without reasonable excuse, neglects or refuses to appear personally, or to produce such driver or attendant on the second or any subsequent summons requiring him so to do, the Magistrate may proceed to hear and determine the complaint in the absence of the owner and the driver or attendant, as the case may be, or any of them.

Procedure on refusal to pay fare.

54. (1) If any person, who has hired a hackney-carriage registered under this Act, and who, without sufficient excuse, refuses to pay to the owner or driver thereof, on demand, the proper fare to which he is entitled the Magistrate may order payment of such fare and also of such compensation for loss of time as shall seem reasonable.

[Cf. s. 29.]

(2) If any person who has used any such carriage attempts to evade payment of the fare, or any portion of the same, he shall be liable to a fine not exceeding fifty rupees, or to simple imprisonment for a period not exceeding fourteen days in addition to the payment of such fare and compensation, as hereinbefore mentioned.

Penalty for destroying carriage-plate, etc.

55. Any person who maliciously or knowingly tears, destroys, defaces, obliterates or removes any plate, table of fares, driver's ticket or mark of identification which has been affixed, put up, granted, attached or applied under the provisions of this Act, shall be liable for every such offence to a fine not exceeding twenty rupees, and, in default of payment of fine, to simple imprisonment for a period not exceeding ten days.

[Cf. s. 40(1).]

The Calcutta Hackney-carriage Bill, 1918.(Chapter VI.—Fares, Hiring and Plying for Hire.— Clauses 56—60.)

Penalty for wilful injury to carriage.

56. Any person using a hackney-carriage registered under this Act who wilfully injures the same, shall be liable to a fine not exceeding twenty rupees, and, in default of payment of fine, to simple imprisonment for a period not exceeding ten days; and shall also pay to the owner of the carriage such compensation for the injury, as the Magistrate may direct.

[Cf. s. 41.]

Disputes how to be settled.

57. (1) In case of any dispute between the hirer and driver of any hackney-carriage registered under this Act,

[Cf. s. 42.]

the hirer may require the driver to drive to the Court of the nearest Magistrate or to the Registering Officer; and, if any driver refuses to obey such requisition, the hirer may give such driver into the custody of the nearest police-officer.

(2) The police-officer shall thereupon take the driver and the hirer, together with the carriage and horse, to such Court or Registering Officer, and the Magistrate or Registering Officer, as the case may be, may hear and determine the dispute in a summary way.

Table of distances signed by Registering Officer conclusive.

58. In the case of disputes as to fare to be calculated according to the distance, any table or book signed by the Registering Officer shall, on proof of such signature, be taken to be conclusive evidence of the distances therein stated.

[Cf. s. 43.]

Hackney-carriage may ply for hire as stage-carriage.

59. (1) Any hackney-carriage registered under this Act may ply for hire as a stage-carriage.

[Cf. s. 44;
1911, s. 43(2).]

(2) The owner or driver of a carriage so plying for hire or hired as a stage-carriage shall not be subject to any by-law made under clause (g) of section 71, but shall be entitled to demand and take for the hire of such carriage such fares as shall be agreed upon between him and the several hirers, respectively, subject to any maximum which may be prescribed by the Local Government by an order in writing.

(3) All the other provisions of this Act shall be applicable to the case of a hackney-carriage plying as a stage-carriage, so far as the same may be applicable in each case.

Stands to be appointed.

60. (1) The Corporation of Calcutta shall, in consultation with the Commissioner of Police, from time to time appoint the places in Calcutta that are to be used as public stands for hackney-carriages.

[Cf. s. 45;
Mad. Act V of
1911, s. 44.]

(2) Every public stand so appointed shall have a board placed in a conspicuous place on the same containing a notice in such language or languages as the Local Government may, by notification, prescribe, stating that the stand is a public stand under this Act and specifying the number of carriages that may stand upon it.

The Calcutta Hackney-carriage Bill, 1918.(Chapter VII.—Palanquins.—Clauses 61—66.)

CHAPTER VII.

PALANQUINS.

Palanquins to be registered annually.

61. Every palanquin plying for hire in Calcutta shall be registered annually by the officer appointed for registering hackney-carriages, at the time and in the manner provided by Chapter II with respect to the registration of hackney-carriages:—

Provided that the Registering Officer may refuse to register any palanquin, or may cancel or suspend for such period as he thinks fit, the registration thereof, whenever such palanquin appears to him to be unfit for public use.

License for palanquins.

62. (1) The Registering Officer shall, at the time of registration, deliver a license, duly signed by him, to the owner of every palanquin. [Cf. ss. 11, 46.]

(2) Such license shall, if not cancelled or suspended, continue in force for one year from the first day of the month in which the palanquin is registered.

Particulars of register and license.

63. (1) The following particulars shall be entered in the register and shall be specified in the license to be given to the owner, namely:— [Cf. s. 47.]

- (a) the number of the palanquin;
- (b) the name and residence of the owner, and the place where the palanquin is to be kept;
- (c) the number of persons the palanquin is licensed to carry;
- (d) the date on which the license was granted;
- (e) such other particulars as may be prescribed by by-law made under section 71.

(2) All the provisions of this Act in any way relating to the notification to the Registering Officer of the change of ownership or of residence of the owners of hackney-carriages shall be applicable in like manner to the owners of palanquins.

Plate to be affixed outside palanquin.

64. (1) Upon the registration of any palanquin, the Registering Officer shall cause to be affixed on some conspicuous part of the outside of such palanquin a plate bearing the number of such palanquin in the register and the number of persons it is licensed to carry. [Cf. ss. 16, 17, 46.]

(2) If any palanquin is let, used or plies for hire without having a proper plate affixed thereto under sub-section (1), the owner thereof shall be liable to a fine not exceeding twenty rupees, and, in default of payment of fine, to simple imprisonment for a period not exceeding ten days.

(3) The person in whose name a palanquin is for the time being registered shall be deemed to be the owner thereof for the purposes of this Act.

Application of certain provisions relating to hackney-carriages to palanquins.

65. All the provisions of this Act in any way relating to the cancellation or suspension of the registration of hackney-carriages and to the renewing, producing, using or taking possession of plates affixed to hackney-carriages shall be applicable in like manner to palanquins. [New.]

The Calcutta Hackney-carriage Bill, 1918.(Chapter VII.—Palanquins.—Chapter VIII.—Rickshaws.—Clauses 66—70.)

Owner to keep list of fares inside palan-
quin.

66. The owner of every palanquin registered under this Act shall cause to be put up, in such manner and in such position as may be directed by the Registering Officer, on the inside of such palanquin, a list in such language, or languages as the Local Government may, by notification, prescribe, showing the amount of fare according to distance and time which may be demanded and taken from the hirer of such palanquin.

[Cf. s. 49.]

License for bearers
of palanquins.

67. (1) No person shall act as the bearer of a palanquin registered under this Act unless such person has obtained a license from the Registering Officer in the manner prescribed by Chapter V for drivers of hackney-carriages.

[Cf. s. 51.]

(2) All the provisions of this Act in any way relating to the taking out, granting, renewing, producing or using the licenses, or to the issuing, granting, wearing, using or taking possession of tickets granted to drivers of hackney-carriages, shall be applicable in like manner to the bearers of palanquins.

(3) For every license to act as a palanquin-bearer, granted under this Act, there shall be paid a fee of four annas; and for every renewal thereof there shall be paid a fee of two annas.

Maximum distance to which palanquins are to be carried.

68. (1) The bearers of every palanquin registered under this Act shall carry such palanquin to any place which is not more than five miles from the place where the same has been hired, to which they shall be required by the hirer thereof to carry the same.

and (2).]

(2) When any such palanquin is hired by time, the bearers thereof may be required to carry it at any rate not exceeding two and a half miles within one hour.

Provisions regarding owners and drivers of hackneycarriages applicable to owners and bearers
of palanquins.

69. All the provisions of this Act as to offences committed by or against the owners and drivers of hackney-carriages and the penalties in respect of the same and recovery thereof, and all the remedies given to or against hirers, owners or drivers of hackney-carriages, except the provisions contained in section 53, shall be applicable, so far as the same may reasonably be applied, to the owners and bearers of palanquins.

[Cf. s. 52(4).]

CHAPTER VIII.

RICKSHAWS.

Rickshaws.

70. All the provisions contained in this Act, relating to palanquins, and the hirers, owners and bearers thereof, shall be applicable, mutatis mutandis, and so far as the same may reasonably be applied, to all rickshaws plying for hire in any town or place in which this Act is in force, and to the hirers, owners and bearers of such rickshaws.

[New.]

The Calcutta Hackney-carriage Bill, 1918.(Chapter IX.—By-laws.—Clauses 71, 72.)

CHAPTER IX.

BY-LAWS.

Power to Local Government to make
by-laws.

71. (1) The Local Government may make by-laws [Cf. s. 53.] generally for carrying out the provisions and intentions of this Act; and in particular, and without prejudice to the generality of the foregoing power, they may make by-laws—

- (a) regulating the examination and qualification of drivers of hackney-carriages and bearers of palanquins and rickshaws, and the conditions under which they may be employed;
- (b) prescribing the uniforms to be worn by drivers and attendants of hackney-carriages;
- (c) specifying the description of horses, harness, or other things to be used in hackney-carriages, palanquins and rickshaws, the dimensions and colours of such carriages, palanquins and rickshaws, and prescribing the condition in which such carriages, palanquins and rickshaws and the horses, harness and other things used therewith, shall be kept;
- (d) prescribing the mark of identification of horses to be used in any hackney-carriage;
- (e) providing for the division of hackney-carriages into classes (if any);
- (f) prescribing the fees to be paid for the registration of carriages, horses, palanquins and rickshaws, respectively, under this Act, and for alterations to be made in any register kept thereunder;
- (g) prescribing the fares to be paid for the hire of hackney-carriages, palanquins and rickshaws, respectively;
- (h) regulating the quantity of luggage to be carried by hackney-carriages;
- (i) for the inspection of the premises on which any such carriages, palanquins, rickshaws, horses, harness and other things are kept;
- (j) for the protection of weak, lame or sickly horses and the prevention of their use in hackney-carriages;
- (j*i*) for the regulation of the use of horses in hackney-carriages;
- (k) for the publication of a table of distances;
- (l) for regulating or preventing the placing of advertisements on or in hackney-carriages, palanquins or rickshaws; and
- (m) prescribing particulars to be entered in the registers and licenses under this Act.

(2) By-laws made under this section shall be published in such manner as the Local Government may direct. [Cf. Ben. Act 111 of 1884, s. 351A(2).]

Penalty for infringement of
by-laws.

72. Whoever infringes any by-law made under this Act shall be liable to a fine not exceeding twenty rupees, and, in default of payment of fine, to simple imprisonment for a period not exceeding ten days. [Cf. s. 54.]

The Calcutta Hackney-carriage Bill, 1918.(Chapter X.—Prosecutions.—Chapter XI.— Miscellaneous.—Clauses 73—77.)

CHAPTER X.

PROSECUTIONS.

Effect of substituted service of summons

73. A summons against a driver of a hackney-carriage registered under this Act for any offence against this Act may be served either on the person accused, or on the owner of the carriage, or on the owner of the horse used therewith, and the service on the owner shall be as effectual as if it had been made on the driver personally.

[Cf. Act V of 1908, Sch. I, O. V, 20 (2).]

Ex parte disposal of criminal charges.

74. If, in any prosecution under this Act, the person charged does not appear as directed by the summons, the Magistrate may, upon proof of service, and if no sufficient cause be shown for the non-appearance, proceed to hear and determine the case in his absence.

[Cf. s. 55; Mad. Act V of 1911, s. 47.]

Liability to fine when incurred.

75. (1) No person shall be liable to prosecution for any offence under this Act, unless the complaint respecting such offence be made within one month from the commission of such offence.

[Cf. s. 56; Mad. Act V of 1911, s. 48(2).]

(2) For the purposes of this section every omission punishable under this Act shall be deemed to be a continuing offence so long as the omission continues.

Damage to property to be paid for.

76. (1) If, through any act, neglect or default on account whereof any person is fined under this Act, any damage to any property has been committed by such person, he shall be liable to make good such damage to the owner of such property as well as to pay such fine.

[Cf. s. 57.]

(2) The amount of such damage shall be determined by the Magistrate by whom such person has been fined; and, in default of payment of the amount of such damage on demand, the same may be levied in the same manner as a fine.

CHAPTER XI.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Property left in carriage, palanquin or rickshaw to be deposited in police-station.

77. (1) If any property is left by any person in a hackney-carriage, palanquin or rickshaw, the driver or bearer thereof, as the case may be, shall, within twenty-four hours, carry such property, if not sooner claimed by the owner thereof, to the nearest police-station, and shall there deposit it with the officer in charge.

[Cf. s. 59.]

(2) The said officer shall forthwith enter in a book to be kept for that purpose—

- (a) the description of such property;
- (b) the name and address of the driver or bearer who brings it;
- (c) the day and hour when it is brought;
- (d) the name and address of the owner of the hackney-carriage, palanquin or rickshaw in which the property has been left, and the registered number of such carriage, palanquin or rickshaw; and shall grant a receipt for the same.

The Calcutta Hackney-carriage Bill, 1918.(Chapter XI.—Miscellaneous.—Clauses 78—79B.)

(3) The said officer shall also send a copy of every such entry to the Registering Officer.

Penalty for neglecting to deposit property.

78. Any driver or bearer who fails to deposit any property left in a hackney-carriage, palanquin or rickshaw within the time prescribed in section 77, subsection (1), shall be liable to a fine not exceeding fifty rupees, and, in default of payment of fine, to simple imprisonment for a period not exceeding fourteen days.

(3).]

turned to owner

79. The property entered under section 77, subsection (2), shall be returned to the person who proves to the satisfaction of the Commissioner of Police or such other police-officer, not below the rank of Inspector, as he may appoint in this behalf, that the same belonged to him, on payment of all costs incurred, together with such reasonable sum to the person who brought the same as the Commissioner or such other officer may determine :

(4).]

Provided that, if within six months from the date of such deposit no person satisfies the Commissioner that he is the owner of the property, the Commissioner may cause the property to be sold, or otherwise disposed of; and the proceeds, after deducting therefrom the expenses, together with a reasonable sum to the driver or bearer, shall be credited and applied in the same manner as fees and fines realized under this Act.

Disinfection of hackney-carriage or palanquin after conveying a patient or corpse.

79A. (1) Every owner of a hackney-carriage or palanquin or the driver or bearer thereof, not providing for disinfection of the carriage or palanquin, at a place appointed by the Registering Officer, immediately after it has, with his knowledge, conveyed any person suffering from any dangerous infectious disorder, or after it has been used for conveying a corpse, and which fact had been previously notified by the hirer to the owner, driver or bearer shall, for every such offence, be liable to a fine not exceeding fifty rupees, and, in default of payment of fine, to simple imprisonment for a period not exceeding fourteen days :

[Cf. ss. &
39 Vict., c. 55,
s. 127 and 58
c. 31, s. 11.]

Provided that no such owner, driver or bearer shall be required to convey any person so suffering or any corpse until he has been first paid a sum sufficient to defray the loss and expenses incurred thereby, such sum not to exceed ten rupees in the case of a hackney-carriage and five rupees in the case of a palanquin.

Provision for passenger in case of seizure of hackneycarriage or palan-
quin.

79B. If a police-officer has cause to arrest a driver of a hackney-carriage or a bearer of a palanquin for any offence under this Act or any other bailable offence, or to seize a hackney-carriage or palanquin or a horse employed in drawing such carriage for a breach of any of the provisions of this Act or of any rule made thereunder, when such carriage or palanquin is being used for the conveyance of a passenger, such police-officer shall, if so required by the passenger,—

(a) provide him with another carriage or palanquin, or

(b) permit the carriage or palanquin to proceed to the place to which the passenger desires to proceed, and shall thereafter complete the arrest.

Fees and fines how to be dealt with.

80. (1) All fees and fines realized under this Act shall be credited to Government, and all charges incurred on the administration of this Act shall be met from such fees and fines. At the end of each year the balance of fees and fines realized during the year, after all such charges have been met, shall be paid to the Calcutta Municipal Fund.

[Cf. s. 60;
of 1917, s. 22.]

(2) In the event of one or more municipalities being included in Calcutta by virtue of a notification published under clause (b) of section 2, such balance shall be divided annually between the Corporation of Calcutta and such other municipality or municipalities in such proportion as the Local Government may from time to time determine.

Liability.

81. No suit shall be maintainable against the Commissioner of Police or any municipal authority, officer or servant or any police-officer or any person acting under the direction of the Commissioner of Police or of any municipal authority, officer or servant or of a Magistrate, or of any person appointed under section 82, sub-section (1) of this Act, in respect of anything lawfully and in good faith and with due care and attention done under this Act or any by-law made thereunder.

[Cf. Ben.
Act III of
1899, s. 635.]

Effect when Act extended outside
Calcutta.

82. (1) Whenever this Act is extended to any other town or local area outside Calcutta under clause (a) of section 2, the Local Government may, by notification, appoint persons, or local authorities, to exercise and perform in such town or area the same powers and duties as are conferred or imposed by this Act on the Corporation of Calcutta and the Commissioner of Police, respectively.

[Cf. s. 61.]

(2) In each town or local area to which this Act may be extended, for the word "Calcutta" in sections 5, 33, 60, 61 and 80, sub-section (2) shall be read the name of such town or area, and for the words "Calcutta Municipal Fund" in section 80, sub-section (1), shall be read the fund of the local authority for such town or area.

The Calcutta Hackney-carriage Bill, 1918.

(Chapter XI.—Miscellaneous—Clause 82A.)

Hackney-carriages outside Calcutta to ply within certain radius.

82A. (1) Notwithstanding anything contained in this Act, a hackney-carriage registered under this Act in any town or local area outside Calcutta may ply for hire in any place outside Calcutta within a radius of six miles from such town or local area.

(2) All the provisions of this Act shall be applicable to the case of a hackney-carriage plying within such radius, so far as the same may be applicable in each case.

THE SCHEDULE.—FORM OF CERTIFICATE.

A BILL

to make provision for the prevention of adulteration of food in Bengal.

WHEREAS it is expedient to make provision for the prevention of adulteration of food in Bengal ;

It is hereby enacted as follows :—

CHAPTER I.

PRELIMINARY.

Short title and local extent

1. (1) This Act may be called the Bengal Prevention of Adulteration Act, 1918.

[Cf. U. P.
1912, s. 1.]

(2) This section shall extend to the whole of Bengal, except Calcutta as defined in clause (7) of section 3 of the Calcutta Municipal Act, 1899; and the Local Government may, from time to time, by notification in the Calcutta Gazette, extend all or any of the other sections of this Act to any local area outside Calcutta in Bengal.

Ben Act
III of 1899

(3) The Local Government in extending all or any of the sections of this Act, as provided in sub-section (2), may extend the same in respect of all articles of food or may limit the operation of the section or sections extended to any specified article of food.

Definitions

2. In this Act, unless there is anything repugnant in the subject or context,—

(1) an article of food shall be deemed to be “adulterated” if the quality of that article has been reduced, lowered, or injuriously affected—

[Cf. Ben
Act III of 1899, s. 3(a).]

(i) by the mixing or packing with the article of any other substance; or

(ii) by the substitution for the article of any other substance wholly or in part; or

(iii) by the abstraction from the article of any valuable constituent thereof wholly or in part;

(2) “food” includes every article used for food or drink by man other than drugs or water;

[Cf. U. P.
1912, s. 2.]

(3) “local area” includes a municipality, cantonment, and any other area declared by the Local Government by notification in the Calcutta Gazette to be a local area for the purposes of this Act;

(4) “local authority” means—

(i) in the case of any municipality, the Chairman of such municipality;

(ii) in the case of a cantonment, the cantonment authority; and

Clauses 3—5.)*

(iii) in the case of any other local area, the District or Subdivisional Magistrate;

(5) a "public analyst" means any person appointed by the Local Government to perform the duties and to exercise the powers of a public analyst as prescribed by this Act.

Power of Local Government to appoint public analyst.

3. The Local Government may, by notification in the Calcutta Gazette, appoint a person to be the public analyst for any area specified therein.

[Cf. U. P. Act VI of 1912, s. 3.]

Power of Local Government to declare normal constituents of any article of food.

4. The Local Government may declare the normal constituents of any article of food and may determine, by rules in this behalf, what deficiency in any of these constituents, or what addition of extraneous matter or proportion of water in a sample of any article of food, shall, for the purposes of this Act, raise a presumption until the contrary is proved that the quality of the article of food has been reduced, lowered or injuriously affected; and a public analyst shall have regard to such rules in certifying the result of an analysis under this Act.

[Cf. 62 & 63 Vict., c. 51, s. 4.]

CHAPTER II.

GENERAL PROVISIONS.

Sale of food.

Prohibition of sale, etc., of food not of the proper nature, substance or quality.

5. (1) No person shall sell to the prejudice of the purchaser any article of food which is not of the nature, substance or quality of the article demanded by such purchaser; and no person shall manufacture for sale any article of food which is not of the nature, substance or quality which it purports to be:

Provided that an offence shall not be deemed to be committed under this section in the following cases, that is to say:—

- (a) where any matter or ingredient not injurious to health has been added to any article of food because the same is required for the production or preparation thereof as an article of commerce, in a state fit for carriage or consumption, and not fraudulently to increase the bulk, weight or measure of the article or to conceal the inferior quality thereof; or
- (b) where any article of food is unavoidably mixed with some extraneous matter in the process of collection or preparation; or
- (c) where the article of food was purchased by the vendor as the same in nature, substance and quality as that demanded by the purchaser, and with a written warranty to the effect that it was of such nature, substance and quality; or
- (d) where the article of food is sold in the same state in which the vendor purchased it; or

(Chapter II.—General Provisions.—Clause 6.)

(e) where a patent has been granted under any law for the time being in force in respect of any article of food, and the article is sold in the state required by the specification of the patent.

(2) In any prosecution under this section it shall be no defence to allege that the vendor or manufacturer was ignorant of the nature, substance or quality of the article sold, exposed for sale or manufactured for sale by him.

(3) In any prosecution under this section the Court shall, unless and until the contrary is proved, presume that any article of food found in the possession of a person who is in the habit of manufacturing like articles for sale has been manufactured for sale by such person.

Prohibition of sale, etc., of articles of food which are not of the prescribed standard of purity.

6. (1) Notwithstanding anything contained in section 5, no person shall sell, expose for sale or manufacture or store for sale, any of the following articles, namely:—

[C. 6 Bom. Act III of 1898, ss. 415 and 417A.]

- (a) milk (other than condensed milk in hermetically closed receptacles),
- (b) butter,
- (c) ghee,
- (d) mustard oil, and
- (e) any other article of food which may be notified by the Local Government in this behalf, unless the following conditions are fulfilled, namely:—

(i) in the case of milk (other than condensed milk in hermetically closed receptacles), the animal from which the milk is derived shall be definitely stated in such manner as the local authority may, by general or special order, require, and the article sold, exposed for sale or stored for sale, as the case may be, shall be the natural secretion from the udder of such animal, from which no ingredient has been extracted and to which no water or other substance (including any preservative) has been added, and shall not contain a less proportion of non-fatty solids and of fat than such as the Local Government may prescribe;

(ii) in the case of butter, it shall be exclusively derived from milk or cream (other than condensed milk or cream), or both, with or without salt or other preservative, and with or without the addition of colouring matter, such preservative or colouring matter being of such a nature and in such quantity as not to render the article injurious to health, and shall not contain a greater proportion of water than may be prescribed by the Local Government in this behalf;

[C. 50 & 51 Vict., c. 29, s. 3 and 7 Edw. 7, c. 21, ss. 3 (b) and 4.]

(iii) in the case of ghee, it shall not contain any substance which is not derived exclusively from milk

(Chapter II.—General Provisions.—Clauses 7, 8.)

(iv) in the case of mustard oil, it shall be derived exclusively from mustard seed; and

(v) in the case of any food notified by the Local Government under clause (e), it shall fulfil such conditions as may be prescribed by the Local Government in regard to such food.

(2) No person shall sell, expose for sale, or manufacture or store for sale any thing which is similar to any of the articles specified in clauses (a), (b), (c) and (d) of sub-section (1) or to any article notified by the Local Government under clause (e) of that sub-section, under a name which in any way resembles the name of such article.

(3) In any prosecution under this section the person selling or exposing for sale any of the articles specified in clauses (a), (b), (c) and (d) of sub-section (1), or any article notified by the Local Government under clause (e) of that sub-section, shall not be deemed to have committed an offence, if he proves to the satisfaction of the Court before whom he is charged that the article was purchased by him as the same in nature, substance and quality as that demanded by the purchaser, and with a written warranty to the effect that it was of such nature, substance and quality.

(4) In any prosecution under this section it shall be no defence to allege that the vendor, manufacturer or storer was ignorant of the nature, substance or quality of the article sold, exposed for sale, or manufactured or stored for sale, by him.

(5) In any prosecution under this section the Court shall, unless and until the contrary is proved, presume that any of the articles specified in clauses (a), (b), (c) and (d) of sub-section (1) or any article notified by the Local Government under clause (e) of that sub-section found in the possession of a person who is in the habit of manufacturing or storing like articles for sale, has been manufactured or stored for sale by such person.

Use of warranty as defence.

7. The warranties referred to in clause (c) of the proviso to sub-section (1) of section 5 and sub-section (3) of section 6 shall not be available as a defence unless the vendor has, within seven days after service of the summons, sent to the purchaser a copy of the warranty with a written notice stating that he intends to rely thereon and specifying the name and address of the person from whom he received it.

[Cf. ss 62 & 63 V. S. Act, c. 31, s. 20(f).]

Prohibition of adulterants in places where ghee, mustard oil, etc., are manufactured.

8. (1) No person shall keep or permit to be kept in any factory, in which butter, ghee, mustard oil or any article notified by the Local Government under clause (e) of sub-section (1) of section 6 is manufactured, any substance intended to be used for the adulteration of such butter, ghee, mustard oil or other article.

[Cf. Ben. Act III of 1899, s. 493B.]

(2) If any article capable of being so used is found in such factory, the Court shall, unless and until the contrary is proved, presume in any prosecution under this section that it is intended to be used for the purposes of adulteration.

(Chapter II.—General Provisions.—Clauses 9—11.)

Receptacles for separated or skimmed condensed milk to be marked.

9. No person shall sell or expose for sale any tin or other receptacle containing condensed milk which has been separated or skimmed, unless such tin or receptacle bears a label on which and on its wrapper (if any) it is clearly indicated, both in English and in Bengali, that the milk has been skimmed and is not suitable for feeding infants under one year of age.

Analysis of food.

Power of purchaser to have article of food analysed

10. Any purchaser of an article of food shall be entitled, on payment of such fee as the Local Government may prescribe, to have such article analysed by the public analyst appointed for the area within which such article is purchased and to receive from him a certificate, in the form prescribed in the Schedule to this Act, of the result of his analysis.

[C. U. P. Act VI of 1912, s. 7.]

Compulsory sale of food, etc., for purpose of analysis

11. (1) Any person duly authorised by the Local Government or by any local authority empowered by the Local Government in this behalf, may require, on tendering the price for it, the sale to him during the process of manufacture, for the purpose of analysis, of such quantity of—

[C. Ben Act III of 1899, s. 307.]

(i) any food, or

(ii) any ingredients used in the manufacture of food,

as is reasonably requisite for division and disposal under section 12; and any person in possession of the said food or ingredients shall be bound to sell such quantity.

(2) Any person duly authorised by the Local Government or by any local authority empowered by the Local Government in this behalf, may also require the surrender to himself, for the purpose of analysis, of such quantity as is reasonably requisite for division and disposal under section 12, of any food which for the purpose of sale is—

(a) in course of transit in any local area, or

(b) stored in any place in the said local area;

and any person in possession of the said food shall be bound to surrender such quantity:

Provided that in every such case the price of the food so surrendered shall be payable from such fund as the Local Government may prescribe to the owner of the food, if claimed by such owner within one month from the date of the said surrender.

(3) Any person duly authorised by the Local Government or by any local authority empowered by the Local Government in this behalf, may also require, by tender of the price, the sale to him, for the purpose of analysis, of such quantity of any food exposed or intended for sale, as is reasonably requisite for division or disposal under section 12; and any person in possession of or exposing the same for sale shall be bound to sell such quantity.

(Chapter II.—General Provisions.—Clauses 12—14.)

Procedure

for.

12. (1) Any purchaser who wishes to have an article of food analysed under section 10, and any person who purchases, for the purpose of analysis, a sample of food under section 11, sub-section (1) or sub-section (3), shall, after the purchase has been completed, forthwith notify to the seller, or his agent selling the article, his intention to have the same analysed, and shall divide the article into three parts, to be then and there separated, and each part to be marked and sealed or fastened up in any manner which its nature will permit.

[Cf. U. P.

(2) The person purchasing the article or sample shall deliver one of the said parts to the seller or his agent, and shall retain another part for future comparison, and shall send the remaining part to the public analyst appointed for the area where the article is sold.

(3) When any food is surrendered under section 11, sub-section (2), the person to whom it is surrendered shall forthwith notify to the person in charge of the said food his intention to have the same analysed, and shall thereupon deal with the food so surrendered in the manner provided in sub-sections (1) and (2).

[Cf. Ben.
Act III of

Inspection and seizure of food.

Power to seize food which is believed to be adulterated

13. (1) Any person duly authorised in this behalf by rule made under this Act may, at any time by day or by night, inspect and examine any food which is being manufactured for sale, or is in course of transit or stored for sale, or is hawked about or exposed for sale, and any utensil or vessel used for preparing, manufacturing or containing any such food; and no person shall offer resistance to, or obstruct, any such inspection or examination.

[Cf. Ben. Act
s. 603.]

(2) If the person so authorised has reason to believe any such food to be adulterated, he may seize and remove such food, utensil or vessel in order that the same may be dealt with in accordance with the provisions of section 14; and no person shall offer resistance to, or obstruct, any such seizure or removal.

(3) The person authorised as aforesaid may, instead of carrying away any food, utensil or vessel seized under sub-section (2), leave the same in such safe custody as he thinks fit in order that the same may be dealt with as provided in section 14; and no person shall remove such food, utensil or vessel from such custody or interfere or tamper with the same in any way while so detained.

(4) When any food is seized under sub-section (2), the person seizing it shall separate therefrom such quantity as is reasonably requisite for division and disposal for the purposes of this sub-section, and shall thereupon divide and dispose of such quantity in the manner provided in section 12, sub-sections (1) and (2).

Food, etc., seized under section 13 to be taken before Magistrate.

14. (1) Any food, utensil or vessel under section 13, sub-section (2), shall, subject to the provisions of sub-sections (3) and (4) of that section, be taken as soon as may be after such seizure, before a Magistrate.

[Cf. Ben.
Act III of
1899, s. 605.]

(2) If it appears to the Magistrate that any such food is adulterated, or that any such utensil or vessel is used for preparing, manufacturing or containing the same, he shall cause the food, utensil or vessel to be forfeited to the local authority for the area in which the seizure has taken place, in order that it may be destroyed or otherwise disposed of by that authority, at the cost of the person in whose possession it was at the time of its seizure, and such cost shall be realized as if it were a fine imposed under this Act.

(3) If it appears to the Magistrate that any such food is not adulterated, or that any such utensil or vessel is not used for preparing, manufacturing or containing the same, the person from whose shop or place the food, utensil or vessel was taken shall be entitled to have it restored to him, and it shall be in the discretion of the Magistrate to award to such person from such fund as the Local Government may prescribe in this behalf, such compensation, not exceeding the actual loss which he has sustained, as the Magistrate may think proper.

Miscellaneous.

Duty of public analyst to supply certificate of analysis

15. (1) Every public analyst to whom any article of food has been submitted for analysis under this Act, shall deliver to the person so submitting it a certificate in the form prescribed in the Schedule to this Act, specifying the result of his analysis, and shall send a copy of the same to the local authority concerned.

[Cf. U. P.
Act VI of
1912, s. 11.]

(2) Any document purporting to be such certificate signed by a public analyst shall be sufficient evidence in any inquiry, trial or proceeding under this Act of the result of such analysis :

Provided that any Court before which a case may be pending under this Act, whether exercising original, appellate or revisional jurisdiction, may, in its discretion, at the request either of the accused or the complainant, cause any article of food to be sent for analysis to the Chemical Examiner to Government, who shall thereupon analyse the same and report the result of such analysis to the said Court; and the expense of such analysis shall be paid by the accused or the complainant as the Court may, by order, direct.

Cognizance
of offences.

16. No prosecution for any offence under this Act shall be instituted without the order or consent in writing of the local authority within whose jurisdiction the offence is committed.

[Cf. U. P.
Act VI of
1912, s. 12.]

Jurisdiction.

17. No Magistrate whose powers are less than those of a Magistrate of the second class shall try any offence under this Act.

[Cf. U. P.
Act VI of
1912, s. 13.]

Limitation
prosecutions.

18. (1) No summons shall issue for the attendance of any person accused of an offence under this Act unless the same is applied for within thirty days from the date upon which the order or consent referred to in section 16, shall have been made or given.

[Cf. U.
Act VI of
1912, s. 14.]

(Chapter II.—General Provisions.—Clauses 19, 20.)

(2) Every summons issued in a prosecution under this Act shall specify the particulars of the offence charged and the name of the complainant, and the date fixed for the hearing of the case shall not be less than seven days from the day on which the summons is served upon such person.

Fines, etc., how to be credited.

19. All fines realised under this Act in any local area to which all or any of the sections of this Act have been extended, and all other sums, if any, which the Local Government may direct to be utilized for the purposes of this Act, shall be credited—

- (i) to the municipal fund, if the local area be within the limits of any municipality;
- (ii) to the cantonment fund, if the local area be within the limits of any cantonment; or
- (iii) to such fund as the Local Government may direct, in the case of any other local area.

Power of Local Government to make rules

20. (1) The Local Government may, subject to the condition of previous publication, make rules to carry out the purposes of this Act.

[Cf. Ben. Act VI of 1914, s. 33.]

(2) In particular, and without prejudice to the generality of the foregoing power, the Local Government may make rules—

- (a) determining what deficiencies in or additions to any article of food, the normal constituents of which have been declared under section 4, shall raise the presumption that the quality of such article has been reduced, lowered or injuriously affected;
- (b) prescribing the proportion of non-fatty solids and of fat which must be contained in milk sold, exposed for sale or stored for sale;
- (c) prescribing the maximum proportion of water which may be contained in butter sold, exposed for sale or stored for sale;
- (d) prescribing the conditions to be fulfilled by any food notified by the Local Government under clause (e) of sub-section (1) of section 6;
- (e) providing for the appointment by the Local Government, or by any local authority empowered by the Local Government in this behalf, of persons to perform the duties and to exercise the powers mentioned in section 11, or section 13;
- (f) prescribing the fees to be charged by a public analyst for analysing articles of food under this Act; and
- (g) prescribing the funds to which fines and other sums shall be credited under clause (iii) of section 19.

(Chapter III.—Penalties.—Clause 21.)

CHAPTER III.

PENALTIES.

Penalties.

21. Whoever contravenes any of the provisions of this Act mentioned in the first column of the following table shall be punished with fine, which may extend to the amount mentioned in that behalf in the third column of the said table.

Explanation.—The entries in the second column of the following table, headed "Subject", are not intended as definitions of the offences described in the provisions mentioned in the first column, or even as abstracts of those provisions; but are inserted merely as references to the subject thereof:—

Provisions of the Act.	Subject.	Maximum fine which may be imposed.
Section 5, sub-section (1).	Sale, etc., of adulterated food.	Two hundred rupees for a first offence and one thousand rupees for any subsequent offence.

¹ Here insert the name of the person submitting the article for analysis.² Here insert the name of the person delivering the sample. If the sample is received by post or by railway, entry should be made accordingly.³ When the article cannot be conveniently weighed, this passage may be erased or the blank may be left unfilled.⁴ Here the analyst may insert, at his discretion, his opinion as to whether the mixture (if any) was for the purpose of rendering the article potable or palatable, or of preserving it, or of improving the appearance, or was unavoidable, and may state whether it was in excess of what is ordinary or otherwise, and whether the ingredients or materials mixed are or are not injurious to health.

NOTE.—In the case of a certificate regarding milk, butter or any article liable to decomposition, the analyst shall specially report whether any change had taken place in the constitution of the article that would interfere with the analysis.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

THE adulteration of food, particularly of articles of common consumption, such as milk, ghee, mustard-oil, etc., is extremely prevalent, and the existing law has entirely failed to check the evil. The present Bill has been framed for the purpose of remedying the defects in the law, which make this practice possible, and of ensuring the purity of the staple articles of food which are most liable to adulteration.

The Bill, which excludes Calcutta from its operation, provides for the fixing of a statutory standard of purity for various important articles of food. In the interests of the consumer the Bill is based on the general principle that a person who sells food must take the responsibility that the food is not adulterated; but protection is afforded to a vendor who sells an article which he purchased with a written warranty to the effect that it was the same in nature, substance and quality as that demanded by the purchaser. It prohibits the storing of adulterants in any factory where ghee, mustard-oil, etc., are manufactured, and powers are taken for the appointment of public analysts, for the compulsory sale to authorised persons of food for the purpose of analysis, and for the inspection and seizure of food which is believed to be adulterated. A private purchaser is also given power, under certain safeguards, to cause his purchases of food to be analysed. A certificate granted by a public analyst will be taken as sufficient evidence of the results of the analysis in a Court of Law.

The subjoined notes explain the more important clauses.

NOTES ON CLAUSES.

1. Clause 1.—Calcutta is excluded from the scope of the Bill as the Calcutta Municipal Bill contains special provisions dealing with the same subject. With this reservation the power of extension has been made as general as possible to meet the varying circumstances of the mufassal.

2. Clause 2.—The definition of the word “adulterated” is similar to that contained in Bengal Act I of 1917.

3. Clause 4.—Power is taken to the Local Government to declare the normal constituents of any article of food and to make rules to determine what variations from the normal will raise the presumption that the quality of the food has been reduced, lowered or injuriously affected.

4. Clause 5.—This clause, the basis of which is the offence of cheating, follows similar provisions in the United Provinces Prevention of Adulteration Act, 1912 (U. P. Act VI of 1912).

5. Clause 6.—It is proposed to enact more stringent provisions based on fixed standards in respect of certain important articles of food by means of this clause, which is mainly based on sections 415 and 417A of the City of Bombay Municipal Act, 1888 (Bom. Act III of 1888). The provisions have been made more stringent in the interests of the consumer on the principle that a person who sells food must himself take the responsibility that the food is not adulterated; but protection is given to a person who sells under a warranty.

The provision in this clause relating to butter is based on section 3 of the Margarine Act, 1887 (50 & 51 Vict., c. 29) and sections 1 (b) and 4 of the Butter and Margarine Act, 1907 (7 Edw. 7, c. 21).

6. Clause 7.—This clause, which is based on section 20 (1) of the Sale of Food and Drugs Act, 1899 (62 & 63 Vict., c. 51), is intended to prevent collusion between the vendor and the warrantor, by prescribing a time limit for the production of the warranty.

7. Clause 8.—This clause is based on section 495B of the Calcutta Municipal Act, 1899 (Ben. Act III of 1899). The operation of this clause has, however, been limited to factories.

8. Clause 9.—This clause has been inserted to ensure the labelling of tins of skimmed condensed milk in such a way as to warn the public that it is unsuitable for infants. The clause is based on Hongkong Ordinance No. 20 of 1911.

9. Clause 10.—This clause is based on section 7 of the United Provinces Prevention of Adulteration Act, 1912 (U. P. Act VI of 1912).

10. Clause 11.—This clause is based on section 507 of the Calcutta Municipal Act, 1899 (Ben. Act III of 1899), and provides for the compulsory sale or surrender for the purposes of analysis of food during the processes of manufacture, transit and storage.

11. Clause 12.—This clause is based on section 9 of the United Provinces Prevention of Adulteration Act, 1912 (U. P. Act VI of 1912), but differs from that section inasmuch as it makes division into three parts compulsory, following the English Law on the subject.

12. Clause 13.—This clause is based on section 503 of the Calcutta Municipal Act, 1899. Provision is made for safeguarding the position of the owner of food seized, by compulsory analysis of the food.

13. Clause 14.—This clause is based on section 505 of the Calcutta Municipal Act, 1899.

14. Clauses 15, 16, 17 and 18 follow similar provisions in the United Provinces Prevention of Adulteration Act, 1912 (U. P. Act VI of 1912).

15. Clause 19 provides for the credit of monies to be realized under this Bill.

16. Clause 21.—The penalties proposed under this Bill follow those enacted in the Calcutta Municipal (Amendment) Act, 1917 (Ben. Act I of 1917).

Bill further to amend the Bengal Tenancy Act, 1885, was referred, have considered the Bill and the papers noted in the margin, and have the honour to submit this, our Report, with the Bill as amended by us, annexed hereto.

In reprinting the Bill, all changes made by us have so far as possible been underlined.

Clause 2.

2. We have made it clear that the reference in clause (a) of the proposed new sub-section (2) of section 74 of the Bengal Tenancy Act, 1885, is to clause (2) of section 41 of the Cess Act, 1880.

3. In order to meet the objections which have been raised as to the effect of the Bill as introduced on existing written agreements to pay cess in excess of the provisions of the Cess Act, it has been considered desirable to save existing written contracts; and a new proviso to this effect has been inserted in the proposed new sub-section (2). The existing proviso barring the recovery of excess cess will remain as a second proviso.

4. As section 179 of the Bengal Tenancy Act already protects permanent mukarrari lease-holders in any contract which they make with their tenants on the subject of cess, it was not considered necessary to make in the original draft of the Bill any reference to such cases. As, however, it has been pointed out that there should be a similar protection in the cases of leases executed before the passing of the Bengal Tenancy Act, we recommend that there should be a general saving provision dealing with mukarrari leases; and a provision for this purpose has been inserted as a proposed new sub-section (3) in section 74 of the Bengal Tenancy Act.

Clause 3.

5. The amendment here proposed is simply consequential.

6. We recommend that the Bill as thus amended be passed.

THE BENGAL TENANCY (AMENDMENT No. 2) BILL, 1918 ;

(as amended by the Select Committee).

[NOTE.—The amendments made by the Select Committee have been underlined.]

further to amend the Bengal Tenancy Act, 1885. ●

WHEREAS it is expedient further to amend the Bengal Tenancy Act, 1885, in the manner hereinafter appearing; VIII of 1885.

And whereas the previous sanction of the Governor General has been obtained under section 79, sub-section (2), of the Government of India Act, 1915, to the passing of this Act; 5 & 6 Geo. 5, c. 61.

It is hereby enacted as follows :—

Short title.

1. This Act may be called the Bengal Tenancy (Amendment No. 2) Act, 1918.

Amendment of section 74 of Act VIII of 1885.

2. Section 74 of the Bengal Tenancy Act, 1885 (hereinafter called the said Act), shall be renumbered as sub-section (1) of section 74, and after the said sub-section the following shall be added, namely :— VIII of 1885.

(a) in excess of the net amount prescribed by clause (2) of section 41 of the Cess Act, 1880, or Ben. Act IX of 1880.

(b) on any scale in excess of that prescribed by clause (3) of that section, levied in addition to the actual rent, shall be illegal, and all stipulations and reservations for payment of any such excess contained in any contract made between a landlord and a tenant on or after the 13th day of October, 1880, shall be void :

Provided that nothing in this sub-section shall affect the terms of a written contract registered before the commencement of the Bengal Tenancy (Amendment No. 2) Act, 1918 :

Provided also that, subject to the provisions of section 72 of the Indian Contract Act, 1872, no suit shall lie for the recovery of anything paid before the commencement of the Bengal Tenancy (Amendment No. 2) Act, 1918, on account of the impositions referred to in sub-section (2). IX of 1872.

(3) Nothing in this section shall be deemed to affect the terms of a permanent mukarrari lease granted by a proprietor or holder of a permanent tenure in a permanently settled area.”

Amendment of section 76.

2. In section 76 of the said Act—

(1) after the words "in excess of the rent" the words "or road cess or public works cess" shall be inserted; and

(2) after the words "lawfully payable, may" the following shall be inserted, namely:—

"subject to the second proviso to sub-section (2) of section 74."

*1. Will the Government be pleased to state whether it is a fact that non-official visitors to jails in Bengal have been informed that they are not allowed to inspect or inquire about political prisoners in jails, and, if the answer is in the affirmative, whether any steps have been taken to appoint special visitors for such prisoners? Non-official visitors and political prisoners.

Answer by the Hon'ble MR. KERR :—

"It is understood that the question refers to persons detained under Regulation III of 1818. These persons are detained under the warrant of the Government of India and the Regulation provides for the appointment of visitors. Such visitors have been appointed by the Government of India and are distinct from the ordinary jail visitors appointed by the local Government. Instructions have been issued accordingly to the jail authorities."

*2. (a) Is it a fact that at the Bagerhat Jail in the district of Khulna, Hindu prisoners are compelled to take their food from utensils used by Muhammadans? Hindu prisoners in Bagerhat Jail.

(b) If the answer be in the affirmative, will the Government be pleased to state whether they are taking any steps to remedy this state of affairs?

Answer by the Hon'ble MR. KERR :—

"No. There are separate cooking arrangements and utensils for Hindus and Muhammadans."

*3. Will the Government be pleased to state how much money is likely to be spent by the 31st March, 1918, out of the special grant of Rs. 2½ lakhs provided in the Budget for 1917-18, for mitigating the effects of floods in the Burdwan Division? Burdwan flood.

Answer by the Hon'ble MR. COWLEY :—

"It is anticipated that the full grant of Rs. 2½ lakhs provided in the budget for 1917-18 for mitigating the effects of floods in the Burdwan Division will be expended before the 31st of March, 1918."

Village Union Committees.

I. (a) Will the Government be pleased to give an approximate idea of the total number of Village Union Committees that will have to be formed in order to parcel out all the districts in the Province of Bengal into Village Union Committees?

(b) How many Village Union Committees have been formed up to date?

(c) At the rate of progress for the last three years, what time is it likely to take to parcel out the whole of the Province into Village Union Committees?

(d) What is the existing machinery for starting, guiding and supervising Village Union Committees?

(e) Is the existing machinery well able to cope with the work indicated in clause (d)?

Answer by the Hon'ble MR. O'MALLEY :—

" (a) Taking the average area of a Union as 10 to 12 square miles, the number is 7,000 to 7,180.

(b) The total number sanctioned up to date is 233.

(c) Ten Union Committees were formed in 1914-15, 8 in 1915-16, and 72 in 1916-17: the formation of 77 more Unions has been sanctioned since the end of the last year. The rate of progress in the past does not afford a criterion of the rate that may be possible in the future. It is hoped that when the Village Self-Government Bill passes into law, there will be a rapid extension of village self-governing bodies and that eventually there will be a network of them throughout the Presidency.

(d) Recently the District Board of Murshidabad has submitted proposals for starting Union Committees, but with this exception the initiative has hitherto been taken by the local officers of Government. The Union Committees are under the control of the District Boards, but in practice they are dependent for guidance and supervision on the District and Subdivisional Officers, and also on Circle Officers in districts in which such officers have been appointed.

(e) The number of Union Committees has, until recent years, been so small that the machinery has been adequate. Progress is at present checked by the limited number of Circle Officers available, but it is hoped to increase the number of these officers very considerably during the next few years."

Co-operative movement in Bengal.

II. Taking into account the facts that the total number of members of the Co-operative Credit Societies in Bengal is only 121,833 (including non-agricultural societies) and the total agricultural population is over 33 millions, will the Government be pleased to give an approximate idea as to what time it is likely to take to confer the benefits of the co-operative movement on at least half the agricultural population of Bengal? Will the Government be pleased to state whether they are taking any steps for the expansion of the movement?

Questions and Answers.

Answer by the Hon'ble MR. KERR :—

" A statement is laid on the table showing for each year since the beginning of the Co-operative movement the number of societies and the number of members in the districts which now constitute the Presidency of Bengal. The Hon'ble Member is reminded that the rate of progress shown by this statement is far more rapid than was the rate of progress of Raiffeisen Loan Banks in Germany. The first German bank was opened in 1849, the second in 1854, the third in 1862, and the fourth in 1868. It was not until 1880 that they began to multiply perceptibly, and the number of 2,000 was reached in 1896, 37 years after the inauguration of the first bank. Government are not prepared to prophesy regarding the date by which half of the agricultural population of Bengal will be receiving the benefits of the Co-operative movement.

The question of increasing the staff of the department with a view to more rapid expansion is under consideration."

Statement referred to in the answer by the Hon'ble MR. KERR to question No. 11 (unstarred) asked by the Hon'ble MR. PROVASH CHUNDER MITTER at the Council Meeting of the 18th December, 1917, showing the progress of the Co-operative movement in Bengal during the period 1904-05 to 1916-17.

Year.				Number of Co-operative Societies.	Number of members.
1904-05				20	957
1905-06				34	1,767
1906-07				83	4,621
1907-08				225	8,043
1908-09				311	11,918
1909-10				473	20,732
1910-11				719	29,674
1911-12				943	38,569
1912-13				1,121	57,061
1913-14				1,663	90,363
1914-15				1,992	107,118

III. (a) Has any officer been appointed to inquire into the question of primary education in Bengal as promised by the Hon'ble Sir S. P. Sinha at the meeting of the Council held in September? Primary education in Bengal.

(b) If so, who has been so appointed?

(c) When did he start his work and when is he likely to submit his report?

Answer by the Hon'ble MR. O'MALLEY :—

" Mr. M. P. West, of the Indian Educational Service, has been placed on special duty for six months with effect from the 1st November, 1917, to conduct a survey of the state of primary education in Bengal. He is expected to submit his report on the conclusion of his special duty."

IV. Will the Government be pleased to state the reason for not admitting eligible female students into the Calcutta Medical College? Female medical students.

Questions and Answers.

Answer by the Hon'ble MR. DONALD :—

" Government welcome the opportunity of giving a general statement of the facts of this case, which will incidentally answer questions IV—VII.

In 1884, the late Maharani Svarnamoyee came forward to supplement the efforts which were then being made by the local Government to encourage the provision of qualified female medical practitioners, and made a donation of Rs. 1½ lakhs for the promotion of female medical education. She imposed no restrictions upon the mode in which her gift should be administered, but it was understood at the time that she would be gratified if the money was expended on the construction of a hostel for Indian ladies studying medicine in Calcutta. Arrangements were consequently made for the construction of the hostel in the grounds of the Medical College, Calcutta, which now bears the name of the donor, at a total initial cost of Rs. 1,66,369, the difference between that sum and the amount given being borne by Government. Subsequent to that date, major improvements have been made in the hostel at a cost of Rs. 9,300, which has also been paid by Government. The management and control of the hostel was at first entrusted to the Bengal Branch of the Committee of the Dufferin Fund, but since 1913 it has been in the hands of the Governing Body of the Medical College; the whole cost of upkeep is met from provincial revenues, and the staff attached to it are treated as Government servants. There are at present 18 lady students at the College, of whom only one is of pure Indian nationality. In the last five years only 16 lady students have qualified, and of these only two bear Indian names; out of the 18 lady students referred to only 11 come from Bengal.

As is known, the number of male students in the Medical College has increased largely in recent years, the total being returned as 1,040 in 1917-18, as compared with 149 in 1889-90. It is also well known that more students apply for admission to the College than can be accommodated. Apart from this increase in the numbers to be taught, the expansion of the activities of the institution in many directions has led to an acute pressure on the space available within its boundaries, and it has become very desirable to find more accommodation for various purposes. Objection, again, has frequently been taken to the education of male and female medical students in the same institution, and there are various drawbacks attaching to arrangements for a few ladies only in a college of over 1,000 students of the other sex.

In these circumstances, a proposal was mooted that the hostel should be taken over for the general work of the College, while arrangements should be made for the education of lady students elsewhere. The Lady Hardinge Medical College at Delhi was started with the deliberate purpose of giving separate medical education to ladies in an institution staffed by ladies, and if the female students who had hitherto resorted to the Calcutta Medical College betook themselves in future to Delhi, their training could be completed in entirely suitable surroundings. Pending a final decision on this suggestion, the admission of more lady students to the Medical College was suspended, and it may be mentioned that no Indian student has, as a fact, joined the College since 1911-12; in any event, the present arrangements will be continued until those at present under tuition complete their training.

There has been subsequent discussion regarding the precise facilities which might be offered to ladies proceeding for this purpose to Delhi and enquiries have been made of the authorities of the Delhi College as to the possibility of admission there of ladies from this province. No final decision has been come to in the matter, and there is no wish to deal with the question without hearing the views of those interested in it. If the latter will communicate their opinions they will be duly considered.

Questions and Answers.

There is no intention of depriving ladies in Bengal of the opportunity for medical training; the scheme outlined would ensure this opportunity in circumstances more suitable than those which at present exist, while incidentally facilitating the work of the Medical College in the manner described. The action which has been taken has been with the knowledge of the Hon'ble Maharaja Manindra Chandra Nandi, of Cossimbazar, as representing the deceased donor.

As regards the specific reference in question VII of the Eden Hostel, that institution is excellently fitted for the training of men and women in gynaecology, but it is not a zenana hostel; it is already fully utilised for purposes of training, and is in fact almost inadequate for the numbers of students under instruction."

V. (a) Is it a fact that the late Maharani Swarnāmoyee built a hostel for facilitating the study of medicine by women in India?

Hostel for female medical students.

(b) If so, is that building a trust building in the possession of the Government?

Answer by the Hon'ble MR. DONALD :—

"The Hon'ble Member is referred to the statement made in reply to question No. IV."

By the Hon'ble MR. PROVASH CHUNDER MITTER :—

VI. If it is a fact that eligible female students are no longer admitted into the Medical College, will the Government be pleased to state how it is proposed to facilitate medical studies amongst female students especially in this Province?

Medical studies amongst female students.

Answer by the Hon'ble MR. DONALD :—

"The Hon'ble Member is referred to the statement made in reply to question No. IV."

By the Hon'ble MR. PROVASH CHUNDER MITTER :—

VII. (a) Are the Government aware of the opinion that has been expressed that the Eden Hospital is one of the best, if not the best, institution for the medical training of women in India, and especially for the relief of zenana women?

Medical training for women.

(b) Is this institution fully utilised for such training?

VIII. (a) Is it a fact that Muhammadan boarders have been directed to remove from the boarding quarters attached to the Dacca College to rooms in the Secretariat building?

Muhammadan student boarders at Dacca.

(b) What were the total charges, item by item, which boarders had to pay in the College boarding quarters and what will be the total charges, item by item, in the Secretariat?

(c) Will the Government be pleased to state, in detail, the reasons which led them to remove the Muhammadan students from the College boarding quarters to the Secretariat?

Questions and Answers.

Answer by the Hon'ble MR. O'MALLEY :—

“(a) Yes.

(b) The charge for Muhammadan students in the Dacca College hostel was only Re. 1-14 a month, viz., Re. 1 on account of electric light, 10 annas on account of conservancy and 4 annas on account of the hire of furniture. The number of Muhammadans in the College hostel was 34, and the same number of boarders in the Secretariat building pay Re. 1-14 or, if they provide their own furniture, Re. 1-10. Others pay Rs. 3-8 a month. The question whether the scale of fees should be revised is under the consideration of Government.

(c) It was decided to open a hostel in the Secretariat building in order that Muhammadan students living in unsuitable localities might be provided with good hostel accommodation and brought near the College, the gymnasium and the playing-fields; and it was considered desirable that those living in the College hostel should live together with their Muhammadan fellow-students.

Conversion of Mohsin grants
into scholarships.

IX. (a) Will the Government be pleased to state whether leading non-official Muhammadan gentlemen were consulted before the conversion of Mohsin grants into scholarships was decided upon?

(b) If so, will the Government be pleased to lay on the table copies of opinions received from such sources?

Answer by the Hon'ble MR. O'MALLEY :—

“(a) It is presumed that the Hon'ble Member refers to the conversion into stipends of the grant given from the Mohsin Fund to schools and colleges on account of short fee payments of Muhammadan pupils and students. The answer is in the negative.

(b) In view of the answer to (a) this question does not arise.”

Vacancies in the Alipore Judge's Court.

X.—Is it a fact that recently on the occasion of a few vacancies in the Alipore Judge's Court, Muhammadan applications were not entertained, and that the vacancies were all filled up by the appointment of Hindus?

Answer by the Hon'ble MR. KERR :—

“Recently there were nine vacancies for probationers in the office of the District Judge, 24-Parganas, and there were 105 applicants, of whom seven were Muhammadans. The District Judge considered their applications, but was unable to appoint any of them on that occasion. Subsequently, when three more vacancies occurred, the Judge sent for six of the Muhammadans who had previously applied. Only two, however, appeared; one was over age, but the other was appointed.”

Grievances of a Muhammadan
probationer.

XI.—(a) Will the Government be pleased to state whether the following statement is correct :—

One Tejarat entered the Jessore Collectorate as a probationer, after having passed the Entrance Examination and served at Magura as a comparing clerk for five years since 1912. His services were dispensed with owing to a fall in copying fees. At about this time, there was a vacancy in the Collector's office and many Muhammadans, including Tejarat, applied. The appointment was given to a Hindu who was much junior to Tejarat?

Questions and Answers.

(b) Will the Government be pleased to state the total number of ministerial officers in the Jessore Collectorate, and also, how many of these are Muhammadans?

(c) Will the Government be pleased to state why the appointment in the vacancy referred to in clause (a) above was not given to Tejarat or to any Muhammadan and also why a Hindu, junior to Tejarat, was selected?

Answer by the Hon'ble MR. KERR :—

" (a) and (c) The Hon'ble Member is referred to the answer given to the question on the same subject [LV (c)] asked by the Hon'ble Maulvi Abul Kasem in the Council meeting held on the 20th November, 1917.

(b) There are 59 ministerial officers in the Jessore Collectorate, of whom 14 are Muhammadans."

XII —(a) Will the Government be pleased to lay on the table all papers relating to the establishment of the Permanent Committee for the supervision of Muhammadan Marriage Registrars? Supervision of Muhammadan
Marriage
Registrars.

(b) What were the objects for which the Permanent Committee was originally established and on what principles have appointments to the Permanent Committee been made in the past?

(c) What has been the average annual expenditure on account of the travelling allowances of members of the Permanent Committee for the period—

(i) from the establishment of the Committee up to the 30th November, 1917;

(ii) from the constitution of the present Presidency up to the 30th November, 1917.

Answer by the Hon'ble MR. KERR :—

" (a) The Permanent Committee for the supervision of Muhammadan Marriage Registrars was constituted by a resolution of the Government of Bengal dated the 31st May, 1884. A copy of paragraph 9 of that resolution which relates to the Permanent Committee, and a copy of the rules for their guidance referred to therein are laid on the table.

(b) The objects are stated in the rules which have been laid on the table. Muhammadan gentlemen who were believed to be in a position to advise Government regarding the administration of the Act have been appointed to the Committee.

(c) (i) Travelling allowance was first paid to Eastern Bengal members in 1908 and to Western Bengal members in 1916. No figures are available for the period before April 1, 1913.

(ii) Rs. 444."

Rules for the guidance of the Permanent Committee for the supervision of Muhammadan Registrars appointed under Act I (B.C.) of 1876, and of Kazis appointed under Act XII of 1880. (Referred to in the answer by the Hon'ble MR. KERR to question No. XII asked by the Hon'ble MAULVI A. K. FAZL-UL-HAQ at the Council Meeting of the 18th December, 1917.)

1. The Committee shall consist of five or more members appointed by the Local Government, the appointments being notified in the Calcutta Gazette. The Inspector-General of Registration for the time being shall be ex officio President of the Committee. Three members to form a quorum. In case of the death, resignation, or inability (from any cause) to act of any member, the President shall submit a fresh nomination for the consideration of Government.

Questions and Answers.

2. The Committee shall meet at the office of the Inspector-General of Registration on first Tuesday in every alternate month, commencing from January, provided there is business to necessitate its assembling so often. Due notice of the matters to be laid before the Committee shall be circulated beforehand. In case of any urgent business, or upon the requisition of three members, the President shall call a special meeting of the Committee for the consideration of such business.

3. The Committee shall have power to deal with the following matters :—

- (1) The consideration of all nominations to the post of Muhammadan Registrars, made by the District Registrars under Rule 2 of the rules framed under the Muhammadan Marriage Registration Act, for recommendation to Government.
- (2) The temporary suspension or removal of Muhammadan Registrars, subject to the submission of a report for the final orders of Government.
- (3) The consideration of all nominations to the post of Kazi, made by District Registrars, for recommendation to Government.
- (4) The temporary suspension or removal of Kazis, subject to the submission of a report for the final orders of Government.

4. Subject to the approval of Government, the Committee shall be empowered to arrange for the examination from time to time of all Muhammadan Registrars :—

- (1) In the Muhammadan law of marriage and divorce.
- (2) Act I (B.C.) of 1876 and its rules.

Copy of paragraph 9 of Resolution, dated the 31st May, 1884, referred to in the answer by the Hon'ble MR. KERR to unstarred question No. XII asked by the Hon'ble MAULVI A. K. FAZL-UL-HAQ at the Council Meeting of the 18th December, 1917.

9. Mr. Rivers Thompson also approves of the rules proposed for the guidance of the Permanent Committee for the supervision of Muhammadan Registrars, appointed under Act I (B.C.) of 1876, and of Kazis, appointed under Act XII of 1880.

The Committee propose that this Permanent Committee should consist of five members, the Inspector-General of Registration for the time being to be ex officio President, three members to form a quorum, and the appointments to be gazetted. The Lieutenant-Governor accordingly directs the establishment in Calcutta of a Permanent Committee, which will be composed of the gentlemen named below, if they be willing to serve on the Committee :—

The Inspector-General of Registration—Member and President, ex officio.

The Hon'ble Syed Amir Ali.

- (i) appointment;
- (ii) transfer; and
- (iii) punishment of Muhammadan Marriage Registrars have come up before the Permanent Committee since the creation of this Presidency up to the 30th November, 1917?

(b) In how many cases were the recommendations of the Committee in agreement with the recommendations of District Registrars, and in how many cases did the Committee overrule the recommendations of District Registrars?

(c) Is it a fact that some District Registrars protested against the decisions of the Permanent Committee in some cases?

(d) Is it a fact that some District Registrars have approached Government for the abolition of the Permanent Committee?

(e) Is it a fact that Government propose to abolish the Permanent Committee at Calcutta?

(f) If the answer to clause (e) be in the affirmative, will the Government be pleased to state, in detail, the reasons which have led the Government to decide upon the proposed abolition?

(g) Was Muhammadan opinion consulted in the matter? If so, will the Government be pleased to state the names of the gentlemen so consulted and also lay on the table their opinions and any other papers relating to the subject?

(h) Will the Government be pleased to state what new scheme they propose to adopt as a substitute for the Permanent Committee?

Answer by the Hon'ble MR. KERR :—

" (a)—

(i) 89.

(ii) 36.

(iii) 11.

(b) The Permanent Committee agreed with the District Registrar in 106 cases and disagreed in 23 cases: in the remaining 7 cases District Registrars had made no proposal.

(c) No such case had been brought to the notice of Government, but it has been ascertained from the Inspector-General that in one case the District Registrar expressed his dissatisfaction with the selection of a candidate made by the Permanent Committee.

(d) No.

(e), (f), (g) and (h) The Hon'ble Member appears to be under a misapprehension. Government have no intention of abolishing the Permanent Committee, but they have decided that local Muhammadan Committees will be in a better position than the Permanent Committee to advise them on the subject of appointments. XIV. Will the Government be pleased to indicate in what respects economy in public expenditure has been effected in consequence of the war in the various departments of the public service under their control?

Economy in public expenditure.

Answer by the Hon'ble MR. DONALD :—

" It is impossible to give a detailed account of the economies effected in public expenditure in consequence of the war, since, as a result of the restriction of expenditure to schemes of imperative urgency, the preparation of new schemes has been largely suspended, while prepared schemes, not of an urgent character, have not been examined with a view to their relative importance and to the provision of funds in the budget. It may be said generally that in consequence of the war, Government have curtailed all heavy fresh expenditure which could not be justified by special considerations."

XV. (a) Is it a fact that the office of the Registrar, Co-operative Societies has been removed from Writers' Buildings?

(b) If so, will the Government be pleased to state, in detail, the reasons which led Government to this decision?

Answer by the Hon'ble MR. KERR :—

" (a) and (b) The office of the Registrar, Co-operative Societies, will shortly be removed from Writers' Buildings to No. 6, Dacre's Lane, in order to provide space which is urgently required for the Press in Writers' Buildings."

By the Hon'ble MAULVI A. K. FAZL-UL-HAQ :—

XVI. (a) Is it necessary for the Registrar, Co-operative Societies, to have inter-departmental consultations with other departments?

(b) Who are the officers with whom the Registrar is most likely to have such consultations?

(c) In case such officers and the Registrar are located in different buildings, how will such consultations be carried on in future?

(d) Will the Government be pleased to state whether such consultations can generally be carried on by correspondence?

Answer by the Hon'ble MR. KERR :—

" (a) Yes.

(b), (c) and (d) The Registrar frequently has occasion to consult the Revenue Secretary and the Director of Agriculture; such consultations are generally conducted verbally and not by correspondence; the removal of the Registrar's office to No. 6, Dacre's Lane, will not prevent verbal consultation."

By the Hon'ble MAULVI A. K. FAZL-UL-HAQ :—

XVII. Will the Government be pleased to state the expense that will have to be incurred in removing the office of the Registrar, Co-operative Societies, from Writers' Buildings as—

- (i) initial expenditure; and
- (ii) recurring expenditure?

Answer by the Hon'ble MR. KERR :—

" The removal of the Registrar's office will involve some initial expenditure on racks and furniture, the amount of which has not yet been ascertained. As No. 6, Dacre's Lane, is the property of Government, there will be no additional recurring expenditure."

XVIII. (a) Is it a fact that the bulk of the Government servants drawing comparatively small pay have been put to difficulties on account of the abnormal increase in the prices of the necessities of life due to the war?

(b) Are the Government contemplating remedial measures to afford them some sort of relief?

Questions and Answers.

(c) Are the Government aware of any action taken by the Government of Bombay relating to the appointment of a Committee to consider the question of the grant of local allowances, particularly in the case of Government servants drawing less than Rs. 100 per mensem, and of house-rent allowances for menial employees during the period of the war?

(d) If the answers to clauses (a) and (c) are in the affirmative, will the Government be pleased to state—

- (i) whether they contemplate taking similar action in Bengal; or
- (ii) whether they propose to meet the situation in some other way?

(e) If the answer to clause (c) is in the negative, are the Government considering the desirability of obtaining the necessary particulars from the Government of Bombay, with a view to the adoption of a similar measure in Bengal?

Answer by the Hon'ble MR. DONALD :—

“(a) All Government servants on fixed pay are suffering from the increase in the prices of the necessaries of life due to the war.

(b) and (d) No general scheme or enquiry is at present in contemplation.

(c) and (e) Government understand that such a Committee has been appointed, but have no definite information as to the terms of reference to it. They will take steps to ascertain the precise position.”

XIX. (a) Has the attention of Government been drawn to the fact that a species of water-hyacinth, commonly called kachuri in the vernacular, has been spreading far and wide throughout the eastern districts, fouling water and in many places obstructing navigation? Water-hyacinth in Eastern Bengal.

(b) Is it a fact that these plants contain germs of malarial poison, or has any investigation shown that they are in any way injurious to the health of human beings?

(c) If so, are the Government considering the desirability of instructing Magistrates, whether as District Officers or as Chairmen of District Boards, to take prompt measures through the thana officers, or the village panchayat, or any other agency available, to remove the obnoxious plants?

Answer by the Hon'ble MR. O'MALLEY :—

“(a) and (c) The Hon'ble Member is referred to the answer to question No. XXII asked at the Meeting of the Council on the 13th December, 1916.

(b) and (c). Government are advised that water-hyacinth does not contain germs of malaria poison, but that there is a danger of the plant obstructing waterways and assisting to bring about the silting up of tanks and thus indirectly affecting health conditions. The value of the plant as a manure when reduced to ash has been established and, as explained in a press communiqué, dated the 25th June, 1917, of which a copy is laid on the table, 4,000 maunds of ash have been purchased by Messrs. Shaw, Wallace & Co. and 550 maunds by the Government farm at Dacca, the total weight of the plant destroyed being over 17,000 tons. It is hoped that increasing quantities will be destroyed as the knowledge of its commercial value for manurial purposes spreads among the cultivators.”

Copy of Press Communiqué referred in the answer by the Hon'ble MR. O'MALLEY to question No. XIX (unstarred) asked by the Hon'ble BABU AMBIKA CHARAN MAZUMDAR at the Council Meeting of the 18th December, 1917.

Calcutta, the 25th June, 1917.

Press Communiqué by—The Secretary to the Government of Bengal, Revenue Department.

IN a Press communiqué issued in April 1916 on the subject of water-hyacinth (Eichornia crassipes) it was stated that there was good reason to believe that this weed might, on account of the potash contained in it, prove of considerable value as a manure. It was further stated that field tests would be carried out at Dacca in the season 1916 to test the agricultural value of water-hyacinth.

The results of these tests are now available, and will shortly be published as a Pusa Bulletin* under the joint names of Mr. Finlow, Government Fibre Expert, and Mr. McLean, Deputy Director of Agriculture, Eastern Bengal. They confirm in every way the hopes expressed regarding the value of water-hyacinth as a manure.

* Water-hyacinth: Its value as a manure by R. S. Finlow, B. Sc., F. I. E., and K. McLean, B. Sc.

Jute was used at the test crop and the hyacinth was employed in two forms, viz. :—

- (a) In the rotted state (37 maunds 10 seers=2,980 lbs. per acre).
- (b) As ash after burning (365 lbs. of ash, containing 26 per cent. potash per acre).

Besides the ordinary check plots a number of other plots were manured with amounts of pure potash salts equivalent to those applied in the hyacinth. The tests showed that hyacinth, either rotted or in the form of ash, is a valuable manure for jute especially on the red soils of the Presidency, where its application may increase the yield of fibre by as much as 6 maunds per acre.

Similar increases in yields from plots manured with potash salts showed that the valuable constituent of hyacinth, as far as jute is concerned, is its potash.

It was found that the ash varies considerably in composition, its potash content having been found as low as 10 per cent., and as high as 34 per cent., the higher figure being obtained from a sample of hyacinth grown in deep water. Owing to the danger of loss of potash from the dried or rotted plant, it will be found more profitable to collect the hyacinth in the dry weather, i.e., from the middle of October till the end of March. Messrs. Shaw, Wallace & Co. of Calcutta have offered to buy any quantity of hyacinth ash at the rate, until further notice, of Rs. 4 per commercial unit of potash delivered in Calcutta; thus the price paid for ash will vary according to the quantity of potash contained, ash containing 10 per cent. of potash fetching Re. 1-7 a maund, and ash containing 30 per cent. of potash fetching Rs. 4-4 per maund delivered in Calcutta. This firm have already purchased over 4,000 maunds of ash at the above rates. This, along with 550 maunds purchased by the Dacca Government farm, means the destruction of over 17,000 tons of the weed. It also means the addition of over 33 tons of potash to the stock of manure in Bengal.

By the Hon'ble BABU AMBIKA CHARAN MAZUMDAR :—

XX. (a) Are the Government in possession of any information showing that it is in the contemplation of some of the State prisoners under Bengal Regulation III of 1818 and détenus under the Defence of India Act, now in the Alipore Central Jail, to go on hunger-strike owing to alleged hardships in that jail?

Hunger-strike by détenus in the Alipore Jail

(b) Is it true that some of them have actually refused to take any food since the 1st December current?

(c) Are the Government considering the advisability of appointing a few non-official members of this Council to visit the State prisoners and détenus now in the Central Jail at Alipore, and, under proper safeguards, to inquire into and report on any complaints they may have to make as regards their treatment in that jail?

Answer by the Hon'ble MR. KERR :—

"(a) and (b) Some of the State prisoners in the Alipore Jail abstained from food on the 30th November. They definitely stated that they had no complaints as to their treatment in jail or as to the food or clothing supplied, but they refused to take their food as a protest against their incarceration.

(c) Any complaints that the State prisoners and détenus wish to make can be made direct to Government. Government do not consider it desirable to set up a Committee intermediate between themselves and the State prisoners."

The Hon'ble BABU AMBIKA CHARAN MAZUMDAR, put the following Supplementary question :—

"Are the Government in possession of any information regarding the removal of one of these détenus from the Alipore Central Jail to Amraoti, and that he is now in a serious condition on account of his abstention from food. If so, will the Government be pleased to state what steps they are taking in regard to this case?"

The Hon'ble SIR HENRY WHEELER said :—

"I think, Sir, that this is a detail which hardly arises out of the question of the Hon'ble Member. I may, however, tell him that the latest information we have about this man was that he had taken food."

XXI. Will the Government be pleased to lay on the table a copy of the list of sluices that have been constructed in Schedule D Embankments in the South-Western Circle since 1912, with a full description of such sluices?

Sluices in South
Western Circle.

Answer by the Hon'ble MR. COWLEY :—

"A copy of the descriptive list of sluices that have been constructed in Schedule D Embankments in the South-Western Circle since the year 1912 is laid on the table."

Questions and Answers.

Statement referred to in the answer by the Hon'ble Mr. COWLEY to question No. XXI asked by the Hon'ble RAI MAHENDRA CHANDRA MITRA BAHADUR at the Council Meeting of the 18th December, 1917, showing the sluices constructed on Schedule D Embankments in the South-Western Circle since 1912.

Name of sluice.	Position of sluice.	Schedule D Embank- ment No.	When con- structed.	Cost.	Number of vents.	Size of vents.	REMARKS.
Jhanpur ...	14th mile of the Damodar Left Embankment (Burdwan).	32	1917	Rs. 25,421	4	5' x 6'. Floor level 97'00 M.S.L.	This is a brick masonry sluice of 4 vents, each 5' x 6' constructed for supplementing the water-supply of the Eden Canal. The vents are provided with draw shutters of $\frac{1}{4}$ " W.I. plates framed, which are worked by screw geared arrangement. The sluice channel is provided at the river face with a masonry stop-dam of 7 vents, each 7 feet wide with a floor level at 97'00. The stop-dam vents are operated by planks working in grooves. The sluice is used only for feeding the canal and not for drainage.
Allumpore ...	15th mile of the Hooghly Left Embankment (24-Parganas).	61	1914	47,479	3	5' x 6'. Floor level - 8'50 M.S.L.	This sluice is for drainage of an area of $13\frac{1}{2}$ square miles comprised within the villages of Allumpore, Chaudpore, Satgachia, Banaberia, Charkigatta, Sonapur, Nandakhali, Domgaria Dhancheberia, Hourri, Raunaut, Bakhara, Goumandi, Makalia, Ramnagar, Jakiberia and Sauc. The sluice is of masonry and has 3 vents 5' x 6' each. A recent political trial at Dacca.

XXIII. (a) With reference to the recent trial of Profulla Ranjan Ray and Satish Chandra Sinha at Dacca, by Special Commissioners under the Defence of India Act, will the Government be pleased to state the reasons for the change of the place of trial from the Sessions Court at Dacca to the new Secretariat Building at Ramna?

(b) When was the said change decided upon and by whom? When was the defence pleader informed about it; and when did the trial commence?

(c) In affecting the said change did the authorities take into consideration the convenience or inconvenience of the defence?

(d) Was any application made by the defence stating the inconvenience it was put to by the said change, and asking for an adjournment to enable it to move Government for cancellation of the orders in this behalf?

(e) Is it a fact that the defence were at first refused copies of all papers, including the list of prosecution witnesses, and that an application for the same was rejected by the Special Commissioners?

(f) Is it a fact that copies of some papers and the list of witnesses were not given to the defence pleader until he actually wanted to retire from the case?

(g) Will the Government be pleased to consider the desirability of engaging pleaders at the expense of the Government for the defence of such persons tried under the Defence of India Act as are unable to meet the expenses of their own defence?

Answer by the Hon'ble MR. KERR :—

"(a), (b) and (c) The place of trial was decided in consultation with Government; the Secretariat Building was selected in order to secure more complete protection of the witnesses.

(d), (e) and (f) Government have no information on these points which refer to the judicial proceedings of the Commission.

(g) Government are not prepared to consider this suggestion."

- XXV. (a) Are the détenus permitted to send any representations or complaints direct to the Additional Secretary or other higher officials? Representation by détenus.
 (b) If not, are the Government considering the desirability of permitting such applications to be sent direct to these officials?
 (c) Has any subordinate official any discretion in the matter of either forwarding or withholding such communications?
 (d) Are the Government aware of the impression in the public mind that such communications do not sometimes reach their destination?

Answer by the Hon'ble MR. KERR :—

- " (a) and (b) *Détenu*s are permitted to send representations or complaints direct to the Additional Secretary subject to the usual censorship over their correspondence
 (c) The answer is in the negative.
 (d) Government are not aware of the existence of such an impression for which there appears to be no foundation "

- XXVI. (a) What is the lowest rank of police officers authorised to record statements of détenus, and at what places and what hour are such statements usually recorded? Recording of statement of *détenu*s.
 (b) Is there any rule requiring the presence of higher police officers at the time of recording such statements? If so, of what rank?
 (c) Are such statements usually recorded during the period of detention of persons under rule 12 A of the Defence of India Rules?
 (d) Is it a fact that the arrested persons are taken away several times in each case from their place of temporary detention, under rule 12 A to the office of the "S.B." or "I.B." of the Criminal Investigation Department in Calcutta for the purpose of making such statements?
 (e) Are the Government aware of the general impression in the public mind that these persons are subjected, at the said office, to various kinds of torture unless they make these statements?

Answer by the Hon'ble MR. KERR :—

- " (a), (b) and (c) Statements of persons arrested under rule 12 A are recorded by officers of all ranks, from Superintendents to Sub-Inspectors. They are recorded sometimes in the home of the person arrested, sometimes in the jail and sometimes in the Police office. There is no rule prescribing the attendance of superior officers, but in fact they are frequently present.
 (d) Under the authority of Government a person detained in a jail under rule 12 A is sometimes taken to the offices of the Criminal Investigation Department in Calcutta for the purposes of the inquiry.
 (e) Government cannot say whether there is any such general impression; they can only say that there is no foundation for it."

XXX. (a) With regard to the statement that Haridas's servant ^{A deceased} "undertook to cater for Haridas if the Inspector guaranteed payment," and ^{détenu's servant.} that "this was done," will the Government be pleased to state where and when this arrangement was made, and for what reasons?

(b) For how long was this arrangement continued, and how much was the servant paid in pursuance thereof?

(c) Did the servant refuse to cater for Haridas at any time, and was any representation made orally by Haridas, before the said arrangement was made?

(d) What is the name and address of the said servant?

Answer by the Hon'ble MR. KERR :—

"The arrangement was made to meet the possibility of Haridas running out of funds before the grant of an allowance for which he had not applied at the time of his death. The name of the servant was Bonamali Das. Government have no further information on the subject."

By the Hon'ble BABU BHABENDRA CHANDRA RAY :—

XXXI. (a) With reference to the statement that the remains of Haridas were consigned to the Ganges, will the Government be pleased to state whether it is the usual practice in that part of the country thus to dispose of any unclaimed body after post-mortem examination? ^{Disposal of the remains of a deceased détenu.}

(b) If not, why was this course adopted in this case?

Answer by the Hon'ble MR. KERR :—

"(a) The answer is in the affirmative."

XXXII. (a) Will the Government be pleased to make a statement giving the name, age, and period of detention undergone, of each inmate of the jails in the Presidency of Bengal, who has been treated, or kept under observation, for mental derangement during the last six months? ^{Treatment of mentally deranged prisoners.}

(b) In which of these instances were the persons kept in solitary cells, and for what periods were they so kept, previous to such treatment or observation?

(c) How and where are each of these persons being treated now?

Answer by the Hon'ble MR. KERR :—

"During the last six months inmates of different jails in the Presidency were under observation for mental derangement for varying periods. Eventually these men have been, or will be, disposed of by the orders passed in their individual cases. The Governor in Council considers that no useful purpose would be served by the supply of the further details asked for, but if the Hon'ble Member desires information regarding any individual case he should refer particulars of it to the Secretariat."

Promotion of members of the Provincial Judicial Service.

XXXIII. (a) Will the Government be pleased to state the principle governing the promotion of the members of the Provincial Judicial Service?

(b) Will the Government be pleased to state whether the quality or quantity of work is taken into consideration in deciding whether any particular member of the Provincial Judicial Service is efficient or not?

(c) Is there any prescribed mode of judging the quality of the work done by the members of the Provincial Judicial Service? If so, what is that mode?

(d) Is there any circular issued by the Hon'ble High Court or the Government which insists upon any particular outturn of judicial work by the members of the Provincial Judicial Service?

(e) Is it a fact that there is a feeling of competition amongst the said members about the quantity of work done by them and that this has seriously affected the quality of their work?

Answer by the Hon'ble MR. KERR :—

"(a) The Hon'ble Member is referred to the answer given to the Hon'ble Mr. Z. R. Zahid Suhrawardy at the meeting of the Bengal Legislative Council on the 13th December, 1916, on the same subject.

(b) The quality of an officer's work is the main consideration. As between officers doing work of equal merit, consistent and unexplained deficiency in quantity is an element necessarily taken into account.

(c) No.

(d) No.

(e) Neither the Government nor the High Court can speak as to the feeling of competition. There is no reason to believe that there has been any falling off in the quality of the work done."

Damage of crops
by insect pests.

XXXIV. (a) Will the Government be pleased to state whether any attempt has been made to ascertain the total value of the crops damaged by insect pests?

(b). If so, what is the total loss?

(c) What steps, if any, have been taken by the Agricultural Department in regard to these insect pests?

(d) Is there any truth in the statement that the Agricultural Department does not possess sufficient knowledge and staff to deal with these pests?

(e) Is it also true that the Agricultural Department has so far done nothing in this direction and that the present Divisional Officers of that Department have given no help in any case of outbreak of insect pests?

(f) Is it in the contemplation of Government to employ special investigating officers to deal with the whole matter?

Questions and Answers.

Answer by the Hon'ble Mr. KERR :—

“(a) No.

(b) The information is not available.

(c) The officers of the Agricultural Department visit the places where insect pests make their appearance, and suggest and demonstrate remedial measures. The expert officers of the department visited 35 localities in 1916-17 in this connection. The Economic Botanist is now engaged in testing the practical value of suggested remedies for insect pests and in investigating plant pests in general, in order to discover effective remedies.

(d) The allegation is not correct. The Department of Agriculture, like other scientific departments, does not claim to possess a complete knowledge of the subjects which it is investigating: an increase of staff would facilitate investigation, but an increase of the staff of other branches of the department is considered by Government to be more urgently required.

(e) It is not true that the Agricultural Department has done nothing with regard to insect pests or that the Divisional Officers have given no help. Particulars of the assistance given will be found in the annual report of the department, which will shortly be published.

(f) Government employ an Entomological Collector who investigates insect pests.”

By the Hon'ble BABU AKHIL CHANDRA DATTA :—

XXXV. (a) Do the Agricultural Department take an annual survey of the ufra tract with a view to ascertain the progress of the disease—its appearance and re-appearance over certain tracts? Annual survey of ufra tract.

(b) Will the Government be pleased to state the way in which the special annual grant of the Government of India, in this connection, is being spent in Bengal?

(c) Is any experiment of any description conducted in Tippera and Noakhali?

(d) Is there any special officer of the Department appointed to look after the disease?

(e) Is so, where are his headquarters?

(f) How long has he been engaged and what has been the result of his investigations?

(g) Have the Government considered the desirability of training an Indian either here or in foreign countries, who will make a special study of insects and ufra?

Answer by the Hon'ble Mr. KERR :—

“(a) A survey of the ufra-infected tract in Dacca district was conducted in 1915-16, and of the tracts in Bakarganj and Faridpur districts in 1916-17. No annual survey takes place, but observations are taken of the spread of the disease and of its relative intensity in different years.

Questions and Answers.

(b) The Government of India have made no special annual grant for the treatment of ufra.

(c) Yes.

(d) The Mycological Collector is principally employed in studying ufra : he works under the supervision of the Imperial Mycologist at Pusa, who is devoting special attention to this disease.

(e) The headquarters of the Mycological Collector are at Dacca.

(f) The Mycological Collector was appointed eight years ago. For detailed information as regards the present state of investigations the Hon'ble Member is referred to the report which will shortly be published.

(g) Government already employ Indian officers who have been trained in Entomology and Mycology on the study of insects and of ufra. It has recently been decided that for the present the entomological and mycological work of Bengal can be suitably controlled from Pusa, with the reservation that a special officer may be required for a time in connection with ufra."

(b) To what grades, if any, do the scientific assistants of the experts belong, and what are the names of such officers and their educational attainments?

Answer by the Hon'ble MR. KERR :—

"(a) A statement containing the information is laid on the table.

(b) The assistants of the expert officers of the Agricultural Department are on a time-scale pay of Rs. 100 rising by annual increments of Rs. 10 to containing their names and educational attainments is laid on the table."

American trained
students.

XXXVIII. (a) Did the Government send a number of passed students of the Sibpur Agricultural College to America?

(b) If so, are the Government in a position to say how these students are at present engaged?

(c) Are they in Government service?

(d) If so, in what capacities are they serving the Government?

(e) Will the Government be pleased to give a detailed statement of those employed in their service at present in this connection, showing—

(i) the grades to which they have been appointed in Bengal;

(ii) in what lines they have specialised in foreign countries and whether they are engaged in these lines; and

(iii) the nature of the work entrusted to them?

(f) Have they got sufficient training to continue the work of the experts when the latter go on leave?

(g) If not, are the Government taking steps to educate them up to it?

Answer by the Hon'ble MR. KERR :—

“ (a) Eight such students were sent to America between 1904 and 1907.

(b), (c) and (d) Most of them are now employed in the Agricultural Departments of Bengal and of Bihar and Orissa.

(e) Mr. J. N. Chakrabarty, Mr. D. Datta and Mr. H. P. Mitra are employed as Divisional Superintendents of Agriculture in Bengal on pay of Rs. 200—400. Mr. Chakrabarty has specialised in Agronomy and Dairying; Mr. Datta in plant-breeding and Horticulture, and Mr. Mitra in plant-breeding: they are not now employed as specialists.

(b) If so, will the Government be pleased to state the circumstances relating to his change of office?

Answer by the Hon'ble MR. KERR :—

" (a) Yes.

(b) When Mr. Milligan was appointed to officiate as Director of Agriculture, Bengal, he was allowed to retain a lien on his post of Imperial Agriculturist at Pusa. He desires to revert to his permanent post and he will do so as soon as arrangements have been made for the appointment of his successor."

XL. (a) Are the Government in a position to state the present retail price of salt in the different districts of Bengal? Manufacture and price of salt.

(b) Will the Government be pleased to state what the approximate cost of manufacture of salt is in Bengal under existing circumstances?

(c) Are the Government considering the desirability of directing an inquiry into how far the manufacture of salt in Bengal may tend to reduce the prices in the local salt market?

(d) With reference to the memorandum by the Government of Bengal dated the 5th April, 1917, regarding the manufacture of salt in Bengal, will the Government be pleased to state whether any inquiry has been made as to the suitability of brine obtainable on the Chittagong side of the Bay of Bengal?

(e) Are the Government considering the desirability of making an inquiry as to the particular facilities for the manufacture of salt on the Chittagong side?

Answer by the Hon'ble MR. DONALD :—

" (a) The Hon'ble Member is referred to the prices-current of food-grains, salt, etc., for the last half of November 1917, published in the Supplement to the Calcutta Gazette of the 12th December, 1917. A statement giving the prices on the 15th December is laid on the table.

(b) No calculations have been made as to the cost of manufacture, and no approximate figure can be given.

Questions and Answers.

(c) The answer is in the negative. Madras salt is available in large quantities at prices lower than that of imported salt, which is the article ordinarily consumed, but there appears to be little disposition on the part of the public to have recourse to it.

(d) The possibilities of manufacture on the Chittagong side of the Bay of Bengal have been brought to the notice of Government. Suitable brine is said to be obtainable at Cox's Bazar and to the south, but a difficulty exists in the lack of easy communications to that area, while labour may not be readily available. It may be added in this connection that Government have ascertained that there is no immediate fear of any shortage of imported salt."

(c) Will the Government be pleased to make a statement giving the names of newspapers that receive the free supply of the Calcutta Gazette?

Answer by the Hon'ble MR. DONALD :---

" (a) Yes.

(b) No definite principle has been laid down. As a general rule each paper is considered on its merits and with reference to its circulation. Recent applications for the free supply of the Gazette have been refused owing to the shortage of paper.

(c) A statement giving the names of the papers which are supplied with the Gazette, free of cost, is laid on the table. The question of the revision of the list is under consideration."

Darjeeling.

(b) Is it also a fact that a similar petition was submitted to the Commissioner of the Rajshahi Division?

Questions and Answers.

(c) Is it a fact that while no action has, up till now, been taken on the said petition, a masonry receptacle for depositing the refuse of the stalls, just in front of the ladies' entrance to the Church, is actually under construction?

(d) Are the Government aware that as a result of the above action of the Darjeeling Municipality, the local Brahmos have been obliged to discontinue holding their prayers in the Brahmo Church for nearly three months?

Answer by the Hon'ble MR. O'MALLEY :—

" (a) Yes.

(b) Yes.

(c) It is not a fact that no action has been taken on the petition. Instructions have been issued to the Commissioner of the Rajshahi Division in Municipal Department letter No. 2143 M., dated the 29th November, 1917, of which a copy is laid on the table. Government has no information as to the construction of a masonry receptacle.

(d) It is understood that the services at the Brahmo Church have been discontinued."

Copy of Municipal Department letter No. 2143 M., dated the 29th November, 1917, to the Commissioner of the Rajshahi Division.

WITH reference to the correspondence ending with your memorandum No. ^{6190-G}_{XLVII-41}, dated the 31st July 1917, I am directed to forward, in original, for favour of disposal by you in consultation with the Deputy Commissioner, Darjeeling, the enclosed memorial from Sir K. G. Gupta and others, protesting against the use of the new structure on the east of Brahmo Mandir in the Darjeeling Bazar for the purposes of a fish market.

2. It appears that the fish market is a source of nuisance to the members of the Brahmo Samaj attending the Mandir and that in consequence of it Sunday services have had to be stopped. I am therefore to suggest that steps may be taken to bring about some means of relief by negotiations between the Samaj authorities and the Municipality, and in the last resort only by action under section 63 of the Bengal Municipal Act.

Ground-nut industry in Bengal.

XLII. (a) Are the Government in a position to give any information regarding the prospects of the ground-nut industry in Bengal?

(b) Are the Government aware of any experiment made in ground-nut cultivation in Bengal?

(c) If so, what are the results?

Answer by the Hon'ble MR. KERR :—

"(a) Yes.

(b) The crop has been under experimental observation in Bengal for some years by the Agricultural Department.

(c) The cultivation of ground-nuts has met with some success in the districts of Birbhum and Bankura and the area shows a tendency to expand. The chief difficulty lies in harvesting the nuts, which have to be dug out of the ground. The crop is suitable for high lands and is capable of yielding up to 20 maunds per acre of unhulled nuts. The ground-nut crop in some parts of India has been subject to serious disease which has been partly met by the growing of disease-resisting varieties. Up to date no serious outbreak has been reported in Bengal. Until disease has, however, made its appearance and been successfully combated, or until further evidence has been adduced to indicate that the crop in Bengal may be considered reasonably safe from the more virulent diseases, it would be premature to assume that the industry will ultimately prove an economic success in the Presidency."

(e) Is it a fact that in the Calcutta Commercial Institution, which has got the status of a college, the admission test is much lower than that prescribed for the Dacca School of Engineering?

Answer by the Hon'ble MR. O'MALLEY :—

“(a) The Hon'ble Member is referred to the reply to the next clause of his question.

(b) Yes.

(c) Government are advised that the standard up to which the theoretical subjects are generally taught is not so high as that of the B.Sc. course.

Teachers of the Dacca School of Engineering.

Questions and Answers.

(b) Are the Government aware that on account of the provisions of the circular referred to in clause (a) the graduate teachers of the Dacca School of Engineering, who have reached or are on the point of reaching the highest grade fixed, feel that their future prospects have been ruined as they have no chance of securing the Assistant Head Master-ship of this Institution or the Head Mastership of any High School under the Government?

(c) Is it a fact that the Head Master of the above school is in the Indian Educational Service, while the Assistant Head Master, a B.A., B.E., is still in the Subordinate Service?

(d) Is it true that the Assistant Head Master is not given the allowance which is granted to Assistant Head Masters of Government High Schools?

Answer by the Hon'ble MR O'MALLEY —

(a) Teachers of the Calcutta Commerical Institute are designated Lecturers. Circular No. 714-30A-17, dated the 11th May, 1917, to which the Hon'ble Member presumably refers, does not apply to them.

(b) Government are not aware of such a feeling. Technical Examination Board and the Dacca School of Engineering.

L. (a) Will the Government be pleased to state whether the Inspector of the Joint Technical Examination Board has inspected the Dacca School of Engineering within the last five years?

(b) If so, will the Government be pleased to publish his recommendations?

(c) What effect has been given to those recommendations, if any?

Answer by the Hon'ble MR O'MALLEY. —

" (a) There is no post of Inspector of the Joint Technical Examination Board: that body deputes one or more officers to inspect technical institutions on its behalf. An inspection of the Dacca School of Engineering was made in February, 1915, by Mr. C. P. Walsh, then Superintending Engineer, Eastern Circle, and Mr. B. Heaton, Principal, Civil Engineering College, Sibpur. An inspection of the electrical and mechanical branch of the school was made in December, 1914, by Mr. W. H. Everett, Offg. Superintendent of Industries and Inspector of Technical Institutions, and Mr. A. K. Taylor, Electrical Engineer in charge of the Calcutta Electrical Division of the Public Works Department.

(b) An extract from the inspection note of Mr. Walsh and Mr. Heaton is laid on the table, together with an extract from the inspection note of Mr. Everett and Mr. Taylor.

(c) Sanction was given to the affiliation of the school to the full upper subordinate standard of the Board in civil engineering for five years from 1915-16, and in mechanical and electrical engineering from 1913-14 to 1915-16. Subsequently orders were passed that the teaching of the mechanical and electrical branch of the overseer course should be discontinued with effect from the 1st April, 1916."

Questions and Answers.

Extract from a note on an inspection of the Dacca School of Engineering made by Messrs. C. P. Walsh, Superintending Engineer, Eastern Circle, and B. Heaton, Principal, Civil Engineering College, Sibpur, on behalf of the Joint Technical Examination Board, on Monday and Tuesday, 8th and 9th February, 1915.

We recommend that the Government of Bengal may grant affiliation to the Dacca School of Engineering up to the full standard of the Board in Civil Engineering for a period of five years from the date of expiry of the last order. That the attention of Government be drawn to the following proposals :—

- (1) To separate the school from the Dacca College and to style the Head Master "Principal".
- (2) To constitute a governing body with functions similar to that of the Sibpur College.
- (3) To fix for three years a consolidated grant for contingencies and for the repairs of the workshop buildings and to entrust its administration to the governing body.
- (4) To the suggested strengthening and re-arrangement of the teaching staff.
- (5) To the case of the Head Clerk.
- (6) To the reduction of the numbers of reduced freeships at Sibpur and to the creation of four stipends yearly of Rs. 10, to enable poor students to attend the Dacca School of Engineering.
- (7) To the granting of travelling allowance to the staff and students, so as to enable instructions in practical surveying to be carried out under canvas in a suitable locality.
- (8) To the provision of furniture for the Science class-rooms, drawing boards and cement testing machines.
- (9) To minor items of equipment required for the workshops.

Extract from a note on an inspection of the Electrical and Mechanical Branch, Dacca School of Engineering, made by Messrs. W. H. Everett and A. K. Taylor, on the 9th and 10th December, 1914.

As matters now stand we recommend : (1) that the present mechanical and electrical course at Dacca be terminated as soon as this can be done—the present third year students (four only in number) being accommodated at Sibpur ; (2) that the electrical laboratory be abolished and the staff transferred to Sibpur, where we understand extra help is required to cope with the rapidly increasing numbers in this branch. The Mechanics' laboratory should remain, as this will still be required for students of the ordinary Civil Engineering course. The school may be recommended for temporary affiliation in this branch for the overseer examination of 1915.

origin, but they are of long antiquity. My information is evidently not correct. I thought that 'Hadis,' or 'Haris', as they are called in Eastern Bengal, were meant.

In that case I beg to withdraw my amendment." ••

The motion was then, by leave of the President, withdrawn.

(Amendment No. II (//).)

The Hon'ble BABU KISHORI MOHAN CHAUDHURI moved that the word "Kochs" in line 11 of sub-section (2) of section 19A be omitted.

He said :—

"My Lord, Kochs in Bengal are naturalised, and I understand that the Hon'ble Mr. Cumming is also of the opinion that the Kochs should be included with certain restrictions; some insertion should be made so that it may be restricted to the Dacca Division only, and refer only to persons who are of Garo origin. My idea is that there may be some difficulty even in Eastern Bengal. I think it should be omitted altogether. If there are in Eastern Bengal—and I am not aware of it—some who are recent settlers there coming from the Garo tract, some restrictions may be made. So far as I know Kochs exist in different parts of Bengal; they came here long ago even if they are aboriginals. If the Kochs are included then the Rajbansis should be also included, because there is no very great distinction between the Kochs and the Rajbansis. I think the 'Kochs' should be omitted altogether."

The Hon'ble MR. CUMMING said :—

"Sir, in view of the Hon'ble Member's amendment that the word 'Kochs' should be omitted, I propose to make an amendment which, I think, would meet his wishes, namely, that the term should refer only to those of that tribe who are in Eastern Bengal. Eastern Bengal officers have themselves recommended that the Kochs of that area should be included; and I think that the Hon'ble Member's idea was primarily obtained from the report of Mr. McAlpin who at first said that he thought that the Kochs were too advanced to be classed as aborigines, but who subsequently informed me that the Kochs of Eastern Bengal should be included. I therefore object to the omission of the word 'Kochs' altogether."

The Hon'ble BABU KISHORI MOHAN CHAUDHURI said :—

"If the Members coming from Eastern Bengal have no objection, I have no objection to accepting the amendment proposed, but I think that only the Dacca Division should be included. With that restriction my motion may be accepted."

The PRESIDENT said :—

"The Hon'ble Member in charge of the Bill proposes to move that amendment if the Hon'ble Member will withdraw his own."

The Hon'ble BABU KISHORI MOHAN CHAUDHURI said :—

"In that case, I withdraw my amendment."

The motion was then, by leave of the President, withdrawn.

(Amendment No. III.)

The following motion was also held to be withdrawn :—

The Hon'ble Kumar Shib Shekhareswar Ray to move that the word "Kochs" in line 11 of sub-section (2) of section 19A be omitted.

*The Bengal Tenancy (Amendment) Bill.Mr. Cumming; Babu Ambika Charan Mazumdar.(Amendment No. I (I).)

The Hon'ble MR. CUMMING moved that after the word "Kochs" in line 11 of sub-section (2) of section 49A, the brackets and words "(Dacca Division)" be inserted.

He said :—

"Sir, for the reasons which I have already given, I propose to move the amendment."

The Hon'ble BABU AMBIKA CHARAN MAZUMDAR said :—

"My Lord, it seems to me that both the words 'Bakarganj District' after the words 'Maghs' and the words 'Dacca Division' after the words 'Kochs' are unnecessary, and ought not to be there for the simple reason that we need not specify territories where those people may be. The Maghs in Bakarganj may remove to the neighbouring districts of Faridpur, and if they do so, there is no reason why they should not enjoy the protection which has been granted to Maghs in Bakarganj. I do not know why they should be at a disadvantage when they remove to any other place. Consequently the territorial distinction ought not to be there; wherever they may be they should have the rights and privileges conferred by the proposed legislation. As far as the words 'Dacca Division' are concerned, I know that there are no Kochs in the districts of Faridpur and Barisal, but I do not know whether they may not be found in Mymensingh and Dacca. However, in the view I have expressed, I hope that both the words 'Bakarganj' and 'Dacca Division' will be removed so that these privileges may be enjoyed by these specified tribes wherever they may be."

The motion was put and agreed to.

(Amendment No. I (II).)

The Hon'ble MR. CUMMING moved that for the word "Bakarganj" in line 12 of sub-section (2) of section 49A, the words "Bakarganj District" be substituted.

He said :—

"Sir, this is purely formal and would be in harmony with the addition which has already been made regarding the Kochs."

The motion was put and agreed to.

(Amendment No. I (III).)

The Hon'ble MR. CUMMING moved that the words "and allied castes or tribes" in lines 13 and 14 of sub-section (2) of section 49A be omitted.

He said :—

"Sir, the Hon'ble Babu Kishori Mohan Chaudhuri has a similar motion. Objection has been made, and I think, with some reason, that as we have tried to meet the opinions which have been given, by inserting a definite statement in the Bill of those whom Government hold to be aboriginals, we should not go back and insert an indefinite phrase like 'allied castes and tribes.' I am, therefore, prepared to withdraw that part of the clause from the Bill."

The motion was put and agreed to.

*The Bengal Tenancy (Amendment) Bill.Mr. Cumming; The President; Babu Kishori Mohan Chaudhuri.LIST OF BUSINESS—ITEM No. 2.*THE BENGAL TENANCY (AMENDMENT) BILL, 1917.

The Hon'ble ⁶⁰MR. CUMMING moved that the Report of the Select Committee on the Bengal Tenancy (Amendment) Bill, 1917, be taken into consideration.

The motion was put and agreed to.

The Hon'ble MR. CUMMING said :—

"With your permission, Sir, I wish to make a further formal motion at this stage, namely, that the clauses be now considered for settlement in the form recommended by the Select Committee."

The PRESIDENT said :—

• "May I explain to Hon'ble Members that this is purely formal and a necessary motion? The Bill has been altered in the Select Committee and we now desire to take into consideration the Bill as amended by the Select Committee."

The motion was put and agreed to.

The PRESIDENT said :—

"There will be some small alterations in the order in which the amendments are taken. Some of the amendments are not strictly in their correct order. The first amendment that will be taken up is the amendment proposed by the Hon'ble Babu Kishori Mohan Chaudhuri to omit the word "Hadis" in section 49A. That will be taken up first."

AMENDMENTS TO THE BILL.(Amendment No. II (I).)

The Hon'ble BABU KISHORI MOHAN CHAUDHURI moved that the word "Hadis" in line 10 of sub-section (2) of section 49A be omitted.

He said :—

"My Lord, I think that the word 'Hadis' should be omitted whether they are taken as 'Hadis' or 'Haris' practically so far as Bengal is concerned they are naturalised. There are in Eastern Bengal persons who are called 'Hadis' practically carrying on the same profession as 'Haris' in Northern and Western Bengal too. In that case they should not be taken as aboriginals. I therefore propose that the word 'Hadis' should be omitted."

The Hon'ble MR. CUMMING said :—

"Sir, my opinion is that the Hon'ble Member seems to be under a misapprehension. I think he is referring to certain 'Hadis' in Northern Bengal, but as explained in the letter of the Director of Land Records which is included in the opinions which are before the Council, it was stated that these 'Hadis' are of Garo origin in Eastern Bengal; and it is to them that the Bill is intended to refer."

The Hon'ble BABU KISHORI MOHAN CHAUDHURI said :—

"My Lord, of course my information is that in Eastern Bengal there is another class of persons who are called 'Hadis' who might be of Garo."

*The Bengal Tenancy (Amendment) Bill.The President; Rai Debender Chunder Ghose Bahadur; Mr. Cumming.(Amendment No. II (III).)

The following motion was then held to be withdrawn :—

The Hon'ble Babu Kishori Mohan Chaudhuri to move that the words "allied castes or tribes" in lines 13 and 14 of sub-section (2) of section 49A be omitted.

(Amendment Nos. IV and V.)

The PRESIDENT said :—

"Amendments marked 4 and 5, proposed section 49E, deal with the same point. The Hon'ble Member whose names stands first on the agenda paper will move his amendment first."

The Hon'ble RAI DEBENDER CHUNDER GHOSE BAHADUR moved that for the words "under his own cultivation" in line 5 of section 49E, the words "in his possession" be substituted.

He said :—

"My Lord, in section 49E, line 5, we have the words 'under his own cultivation' with reference to the aboriginal tenure-holder, raiyat or under tenure-holder who does not necessarily cultivate his own land, and if you are to give the power to mortgage property to them, an aboriginal tenant, then by using the words 'under his own cultivation' you restrict his right to mortgage. I do not think that this was the intention of the framers of the Bill, and I believe that it was an oversight, and I therefore suggest that in line 5, the words 'in his possession' be substituted for the words 'under his own cultivation.' This includes direct as well as indirect possession."

The Hon'ble BABU AMBIKA CHARAN MAZUMDAR moved that for the words "under his own cultivation" in line 5 of section 49E, the words "held by him" be substituted.

He said :—

"My Lord, following in the footsteps of my learned friend Rai Debender Chunder Ghose Bahadur, I will go a step further and, to remove all ambiguity, ask that the words 'held by him' be substituted for the words 'under his own cultivation.' In fact the Government probably do not want to restrict the usufructuary mortgages simply to land immediately in the cultivation of an aboriginal. The expression 'in his possession,' as suggested by my hon'ble friend, may also be liable to misconstruction as to the meaning of the word 'possession' whether it is khas possession or indirect possession, so that to remove all doubts and difficulties, the words 'held by him' are necessary. In fact there may be many tenure-holders who have not an inch of ground under his own cultivation; the section proposes to give him the right of usufructuary mortgage be tenure-holders also, and in such a case the tenure-holder would be deprived of the advantage given by section 49E. So I think the words 'held by him' would cover both the intention of the framers of the Bill as well as the intention of my hon'ble friend. It is also a very comprehensive term and cannot lead to any misconception or misunderstanding."

The Hon'ble MR. CUMMING said :—

"Sir, far from this being unintentional and far from failing to carry out the intentions of the framers of the Bill, it is the very opposite; it is deliberately intended. The amendment proposed is a very dangerous one; it is intended that a person holding land through raiyats should not be allowed to mortgage, because, if he does so, the mortgagee would become the landlord over his raiyats, and the very evils which this Bill is intended to combat would come into being. Anyone who has studied the literature on the subject realises how the disintegration of these Sonthal villages has been continuous and that this is one of the methods by which this disintegration is produced. I therefore object to the amendment which strikes at the very root of the intention of the framers of the Bill."

The Bengal Tenancy (Amendment) Bill.Mr. Cumming.

The Hon'ble Rai Debender Chunder Ghose's motion was then put and lost.

The Hon'ble Babu Ambika Charan Mazumdar's motion was then put to the vote.

*The Bengal Tenancy (Amendment) Bill.Rai Debender Chunder Ghose Bahadur ; Mr. Cumming.(Amendment No. VI.)

The Hon'ble RAI DEBENDER CHUNDER GHOSE BAHADUR moved that for the word "seven" in line 7 of section 49E, the word "nine" be substituted.

He said :—

"My Lord, this is a section which gives liberty to an aboriginal tenant to enter into an usufructuary mortgage with another person for a period of 7 years. It appears that when the Bill was originally framed, the period given was 9 years; when the Bill went to the Select Committee, the Select Committee found that in the Chota Nagpur Tenancy Act, Bengal Act I of 1908, the period given in such cases was 7 years, so, without giving any reason, they said that because it was 7 years in the Chota Nagpur Tenancy Act, therefore we must adopt the same period. i.e., give 7 years as the maximum period of a usufructuary mortgage. Now this law is a law in continuance of the policy of this Government of making the rights of the less intelligent people of the country inalienable. They are improvident, extravagant and the State comes to their aid and says, 'Your rights, in your landed property, will not pass to another; if it passes, it must pass to some person of your class.' One of the earliest legislative enactments in this connection was the Punjab Alienation Act, and in that Act the period given in these matters, i.e., usufructuary mortgage is 20 years. Similarly, when there was a regulation passed for the Ajmere tracts, the period given was 20 years, and I am told,—I am not speaking from first-hand experience,—that in the Central Provinces also the period is considerably longer. In this Bill as it was framed the period was 9 years. The Bill, as I understand it, was originally framed by Mr. McAlpin, who has an intimate acquaintance with the conditions of life of these aboriginals in several districts, and the Bill was introduced in Council by the Hon'ble Mr. Beatson Bell, who certainly was not wanting in knowledge of the conditions of life of these people. Under those circumstances, without any reason, any intelligible reason being given, except that the period of 7 years is given in the Chota Nagpur Tenancy Act, Sir, I would submit that it is not safe to make it so short as 7 years. We must remember that in the Chota Nagpur Division there is a very large community of aboriginals, and it is not so small as we find in other districts of Bengal proper. That being so, you can have as short a period as 7 years because there would be many more people willing to advance money on the security of landed property in Chota Nagpur than would be the case in Bengal, and therefore I submit that it would be well to give a little longer period as originally given in the Bill. Nine years is not very long, but still I bow to the opinion of the gentlemen who are responsible for the Bill as it was originally framed."

The Hon'ble MR. CUMMING said :—

"Sir, I think these are rather meticulous criticisms. The Hon'ble Member has referred to Mr. McAlpin who, he says very properly, was the author of this legislation. At the time when the Bill was under preparation I asked Mr. McAlpin why the period of 9 years had been fixed; unfortunately he could not tell me, and after much research it could not be found why 9 years had been fixed; and it was on his initiative that we agreed to bring the Bill in conformity with the period which is already in force in section 46 of the Chota Nagpur Tenancy Act. I therefore hold, Sir, that there is no good reason why 9 should be taken, while there is good reason why 7 should be taken. I think that the Council may, without apprehension, adopt the period that was adopted unanimously by the Select Committee."

The motion was then put and lost.

The Bengal Tenancy (Amendment) Bill.

Rai Debender Chunder Ghose Bahadur : Mr. Cumming ; Babu Ambika Charan Mazumdar.

(Amendment No. VII.)

The Hon'ble RAI DEBENDER CHUNDER GHOSE BAHADUR moved that section 49E be numbered as sub-section (1) of that section and that the following be inserted after the proviso to that section, namely :—

“(2) An aboriginal tenant's power and right to mortgage shall be restricted to only one form of mortgage, namely, the usufructuary mortgage.”

He said :—

“My Lord, I find that in this Bill there is a later provision, section 49K, which debars the Court from selling the right of the mortgagee for the satisfaction of the mortgage-debt, and if that be so, it comes to this that if a man enters into a mortgage and agrees to repay the debt after a certain period and mortgages his right to the land as security creditor they will be without a remedy so far as security is concerned if he goes to court, because the court will refuse to sell the secured land of the judgment-debtor, and pass only a personal decree. That being so, it would be much better to say, in so many words, without leaving this question to be raised hereafter, that there will be only one form of mortgage, i.e., usufructuary mortgage and no other form of mortgage. It will save litigation.”

The Hon'ble MR. CUMMING said :—

“I cannot accept the correctness of the Hon'ble Member's argument that, while a simple mortgage is not forbidden, yet under section 49K the remedy for enforcing an usufructuary mortgage through the civil court is forbidden, but I am prepared to meet him. I should like to read his amendment in the following form, if he will accept this alteration :—

“An aboriginal tenant's power to mortgage his land shall be restricted to only one form of mortgage, namely, a complete usufructuary mortgage.”

The Hon'ble RAI DEBENDER CHUNDER GHOSE BAHADUR said :—

“I accept that.”

The Hon'ble MR. CUMMING said :—

“Sir, I suggest that the amendment, as modified, be accepted.”
The motion was put in the modified form and agreed to.

(Amendment No. VIII.)Proposed Section 49F.

The Hon'ble BABU AMBIKA CHARAN MAZUMDAR moved that after sub-section (1) of section 49F the following be added, namely :—

“Provided that the Collector shall not ordinarily withhold such permission in the case of an aboriginal tenure-holder applying to settle with a non-aboriginal person any hill or rock or other land within his tenure which may be wholly unfit for cultivation.”

He said :—

“My Lord, the amendment which I have moved refers to section 49F. That section deals with leases, sub-leases and mortgages by aboriginals to various classes of people. It is provided that if he wants to do all these things he must go to the Collector to have his permission. That, no doubt protects, the aboriginal generally from letting out his land to a non-aboriginal to his own detriment, but it seems to me that there are certain classes of land which may be very usefully, I may say to the very best interests of the aboriginals, leased out to non-aboriginals. I have seen in many Sonthal Parganas districts where hills, rocks and other lands, wholly unfit for cultivation, have been let out to non-aboriginal persons to considerable advantage. These lands have long been useless to them, but to health-seekers and other people who want to build houses in these parts of the country, these rocks, hills and other lands, unfit for cultivation, are let at a very fair rent, and at the same time with a very fair bonus. We ought not to deprive the aboriginal tenure-holders or raiyats of these advantages. Of course Simultala and other places do not belong to Bengal now, but you may enquire of the Ghatwals of Telua or the Thakurs of Rohini, and you will find what advantages they have derived by letting out hills and rocks to other people which were perfectly useless to them before, and I think the objects of the Bill would be fully maintained if an additional advantage is given to the non-aboriginal tenure-holders and raiyats who has to let out lands which are wholly unfit for cultivation to non-aboriginals for purposes for which they themselves cannot use them, and with this view I move that this permission of the Collector shall not ordinarily be withheld in case an aboriginal tenure-holder applies for permission to settle with a non-aboriginal person land which is unfit for cultivation. I have used the word 'ordinarily' deliberately. I do not wish that the aboriginal tenure-holder should foolishly part with his land, which he may use for other purposes, and therefore when the Collector shall have to consider an application for settling land with other people made to him, he shall have an opportunity of considering whether it was a case in which permission ought or ought not to be granted for the benefit of the aboriginal. And, of course, if he finds an exceptional case he may withhold the permission. That is the object of this amendment, and I hope it will meet with the approval of Government."

The Bengal Tenancy (Amendment) Bill.Mr. Cumming; Babu Ambika Charan Mazumdar.

The Hon'ble MR. CUMMING said :—

"Sir, the Hon'ble Member has prepared this amendment, as he says, in the interests of the aboriginals. My reply to that is that the clause as framed does not prohibit such a transfer; and if the Collector finds that it is to the interest of the aboriginals in such cases as the Hon'ble Member has mentioned, surely the Collector would be the very first to allow the transfer. But I go further and suggest that details of this nature seem rather out of order in legislation of this type. The underlying principle is that in certain classes of cases the aboriginal is not allowed to transfer of his own volition, but that he must get the permission of his Collector; and again I refer to the literature on the subject. The Sonthals say,— 'We wish to be protected against ourselves; we wish that our power of transfer should be limited'; and I think that, if there is a transfer and if it is at all suitable in the interests of the aboriginals, the Collector would be the first to allow it to take place."

The Hon'ble BABU AMBIKA CHARAN MAZUMDAR said :—

"My Lord, it is with the object of giving the Collector some idea of the policy of the legislation that I want this amendment, and I fully understand that the Collector may grant permission in case of hills, rocks and so forth, but the amendment would give him an idea as to the policy which we are pursuing in framing this section, i.e., in the case of hills, rocks, etc., the policy is to grant permission and not withhold it. The Collector may be misled. He may have his own ideas and opinions and he may refuse bodily all applications of that sort. To give him an idea as to what is the policy of the law, not to restrict the right of transfer in certain cases, that I have moved this amendment."

The motion was then put and lost.

(Amendment No. IX.)Proposed Section 46 G.

The Hon'ble RAI DEBENDER CHUNDER GHOSE BAHADUR moved that the word "valid" be inserted after the words "shall be" in line 4 of section 49G. and the rest of the section beginning with the word "registered" and ending with the word "jurisdiction" be omitted.

He said :—

"My Lord, I understand that the framers of the Bill would not have it declared that any transaction in contravention of the provisions of this chapter shall be valid, and that it will be more effective if we were to tell the Registrar not to register any instrument or transaction in contravention of the provisions of this chapter. It is throwing a very great burden on the Registrar and unfortunately the Registration Department is the least educated in law. I think it would lead to considerable legal proceedings or proceeding before the Sub-Registrar and District Registrar and so on if you allow a provision like this to remain in the Statute Book. But if you say it will not be valid, I think it will answer your purpose. The registration of a document does not necessarily make it valid ; it is merely a help in the procedure before a court as regards evidence of the transaction and also as evidence of something of a transaction that happened at a certain time. If the transaction itself is invalid, is forbidden by law, I do not see why you should go out of your way and say that no Registrar shall register it. There is no harm if it is registered, nor is it necessary in a legislative enactment to say that it will not be valid for any purpose. I do not know whether if you say it will not be valid, whether it will be recognised as valid by any court, in the exercise of its criminal jurisdiction, though it may be some evidence of the commission of a crime. I do not know whether you can restrict the criminal court from looking into it, and therefore I say that the rest of the sentence is needless."

The Hon'ble MR. CUMMING said :—

"Sir, the Hon'ble Member bases his amendment, I apprehend, on two grounds : first as a matter of drafting and secondly as a matter of common sense. First as to the matter of drafting, if the Hon'ble Member's proposal were carried out, I ask him to consider what would be the difference between 49G and 49B, and I would further point out to him that the phrases to which he objects are contained in no fewer than three Acts. In the Chota Nagpur Act it is said that no transfer shall be registered or shall be in any way recognised as valid by any court whether in the exercise of civil, criminal or revenue jurisdiction. In the Punjab Alienation of Land Act it is stated that an instrument which contravenes any provision of this Act shall not be permitted to be registered, and in the Sonthal Parganas Settlement Regulation it is stated that no transfer or transaction in contravention of this Act shall be registered or shall be in any way recognised as valid in any court whether in the exercise of civil, criminal or revenue jurisdiction. I think, Sir, whether on the ground of common sense or on the ground of drafting the framers of the Bill had ample reason for making this addition."

The Bengal Tenancy (Amendment) Bill.Rai Debender Chunder Ghose Bahadur ; Mr. Cumming ; The President.

The Hon'ble RAI DEBENDER CHUNDER GHOSE BAHADUR said :—

"My Lord, there is a preceding section 49C, which says that any transaction in contravention of the previous section will be invalid, and my objection is that part if not the whole of section 49G is redundant. It is not necessary, and the luxury of having the provision as regards registration and having a broad statement to the effect that no court in the exercise of any civil, criminal or revenue jurisdiction will recognise it, will not make this piece of legislation a work of art. If you use other words, if you put in redundant or unnecessary provisions, then one cannot admire the workmanship."

The motion was then put and lost.

(Amendment No. X—first part.)

The Hon'ble MR. CUMMING moved that after the word "continued" in line 6 of sub-section (1) of section 49H the words "or is" be inserted.

He said :—

"The object of this amendment is purely verbal. The wording of the clause is 'has continued,' but the idea of continuance is not correct with reference to the use of section 49F, and I therefore wish to add the words 'or is' after the word 'continued' in order to make the whole phrase logical."

The motion was put and agreed to.

(Amendment No. XI.)

The PRESIDENT addressing the Hon'ble Rai Debender Chunder Ghose Bahadur said :—

"Does the Hon'ble Member wish to move his amendment?"

The Hon'ble RAI DEBENDER CHUNDER GHOSE BAHADUR said :—

"My proposed amendment will not now be necessary in view of the amendment which has been accepted."

The Hon'ble Member, accordingly, with the approval of the President, withdrew the following motion standing in his name—, namely, "that for the word 'or' in line 7 of sub-section (1) of section 49H the words 'or has been in possession in contravention of the provisions of' be substituted."

(Amendment No. X—second part.)

The Hon'ble MR. CUMMING then moved that after the figures and letter "49 F" in line 7 of sub-section (1) of section 49H the words "as the case may be" be inserted.

He said :—

"This again, Sir, is a matter of drafting. It is considered proper to make this addition if the first part of the amendment was accepted."

The motion was put and agreed to.

(Amendment No. XII.)

The Hon'ble RAI DEBENDER CHUNDER GHOSE BAHADUR moved that for the word "ejection" at the end of proviso (b) to sub-section (1) of section 49H, the word "ejectment" be substituted.

The Bengal Tenancy (Amendment) Bill.

Babu Ambika Charan Mazumdar; Mr. Cumming; Kumar Shib Shekhareswar Ray.

He said :—

"My Lord, 'ejection' is a good English word, but in this case of landlord and tenant the legal phraseology is 'ejectment.' I think, I am not wrong in saying that it is more usual to say 'ejectment' in place of 'ejection.'"

The Hon'ble BABU AMBIKA CHARAN MAZUMDAR said :—

"'Ejection' is a queer expression, although it may be good English, but I would use the word 'eviction' which I think is more appropriate."

The Hon'ble MR. CUMMING said :—

"I accept the Hon'ble Member's amendment and beg to thank him for pointing out the defect."

The motion was put and agreed to.

(Amendment No. XIV.)

The Hon'ble KUMAR SHIB SHEKHARESWAR RAY moved that for the first two lines of sub-section (2) of section 49H the following be substituted, namely :—

"Within a month of passing an order under sub-section (1), the Collector shall either—".

He said :—

"My Lord, this is a small matter. A limitation of this kind is necessary because considerable delay may be caused in the Collector's office before the order is carried out and the land is disposed of in the manner prescribed. I therefore hope that my amendment will be accepted."

The Hon'ble MR. CUMMING said :—

Sir, I understand the Hon'ble Member to say that unless a limitation of this kind is imposed a considerable delay will occur in the Collector's office. I object to any limitation of this description. I think it unreasonable to bind the Collector to this period. Besides it is not inconceivable that the matter might never come up at all before the Collector within the prescribed period. It is rather unfair, and on general grounds it is unreasonable, to bind the Collector."

(Amendments Nos. XIV, XV, XVI and XVII.)

The PRESIDENT said :—

" In the next amendment on the paper, the Hon'ble Member in charge of the Bill proposes to leave out the word 'heir' and to substitute the words 'heir or legal representative' for it. The amendment which appears after that on the paper stands in the name of the Hon'ble Rai Debender Chunder Ghose Bahadur, who proposes to leave out the word 'heir' altogether and substitute the words 'legal representative' for it. I shall therefore call upon him to move his amendment first."

The Hon'ble BABU AMBIKA CHARAN MAZUMDAR said :—

" My Lord, might I rise to a point of order and obtain Your Excellency's ruling? I think amendment No. XVI, which stands in my name, should precede both Nos. XIV and XV."

The PRESIDENT said :—

" I do not understand on what grounds the Hon'ble Member asks that his amendment should precede No. XV. The amendment will precede No. XIV, but I do not understand why it should precede No. XV."

The Hon'ble BABU AMBIKA CHARAN MAZUMDAR said :—

" For this reason, my Lord, the amendment of the Hon'ble Mr. Cumming, No. XIV, is to add the words 'heir or legal representative' and amendment No. XV is also practically to that effect, but amendment No. XVI wants to eliminate the word 'heir' altogether and to substitute certain other words for it, so that if amendment No. XVI be carried it will not be necessary to move Nos. XIV and XV at all, but if amendments Nos. XIV and XV be carried, it will cancel No. XVI."

The PRESIDENT said :—

" I have already ruled to that effect. Amendment No. XV also proposes to leave out the word 'heir,' and there is no reason why Nos. XVI should precede No. XV."

The Hon'ble RAI DEBENDER CHUNDER GHOSE BAHADUR moved that in sub-section (2) of section 49H for the word "heir", in the two places where it occurs, the words "legal representative" be substituted.

The Bengal Tenancy (Amendment) Bill.Mr. Cumming; Rai Debender Chunder Ghose Bahadur.

He said :—

"My Lord, as you recognise testamentary powers in aboriginals, it is just possible that on the death of an aboriginal, if he leaves a will which is proved, that his heir may not be the person to represent the estate. Somebody other than the heir may be his legal representative. An heir may be the legal representative, but not necessarily so; somebody else may also be the legal representative, and therefore I think that if the Collector or the person who has the disposing power is to find out the person to whom the possession of the property is to be given, and if he is not allowed any liberty in the matter, or if he has to find out the proper person to represent the estate, then the proper expression should be 'legal representative', which expression may include the heir, but not always so. As regards any other alteration, 'heir' or 'legal representative', of course that gives liberty to the disposing authority to select either the heir or the true legal representative who might not be the heir. That is my submission to the Council."

The Hon'ble MR. CUMMING said :—

"This is a matter of legal drafting; and in this case I am advised that although 'legal representative' might suitably be substituted for 'heir' it will be better to have both phrases. It is for this reason that my name is down for another amendment to that effect. But I appeal to Hon'ble Members that in actual practice in dealing with Sonthals the person who would first occur to the mind of the Collector if the aboriginal tenure-holder, raiyat or under-raiyat were not available, would be the heir of such person, failing a member of his own family. That being so, as a matter of practical politics I suggest that the word 'heir' be retained."

The Hon'ble RAI DEBENDER CHUNDER GHOSE BAHADUR said :—

"I accept the Hon'ble Mr. Cumming's suggestion and I beg to withdraw my amendment."

The motion was then, by leave of the President, withdrawn.

The Hon'ble BABU AMBIKA CHARAN MAZUMDAR moved that for the word "heir", in line 3 of clause (a) of sub-section (2) of section 49H, the words "son, daughter, wife or husband, as the Collector may think fit" be substituted.

He said :—

"My Lord; section 49H relates to eviction by the Collector in certain cases, that is to say, when a person comes into possession of any land in contravention of the provisions of the previous section, the Collector may evict him and restore the land to the transferee or his heirs. My objection is this. I do not want to cut down the power of the Collector; the word "heir" always implies a certain law under which this heirship is claimed. You cannot have an heir without some sort of jurisprudence to determine the heirship. As regards most of the aboriginals, they are neither Hindus nor Muhammadans. In certain tracts they are akin to the Muhammadans and in others they are akin to the Hindus, so that when the Collector shall have to determine an heir in the absence of a transferee, by what law is he to be guided? Will he come under the Hindu law or the Muhammadan law? I know that heirship is also determined by custom, but I think among these aboriginal tribes you cannot find a well-defined custom always prevailing, so that it will be very difficult for the Collector to find out the heir. Besides a man may turn up and say that he is the brother of the deceased and claim the property, and the Collector orders that the property be given to him. Then again someone else may turn up and say he is the son of the deceased. It would lead to interminable cases compelling the Collector to enquire into all sorts of questions of law and custom. The object of the present measure is this, as it appears to me, that when the Collector takes up the matter into his hands, the land should go first of all to the nearest kith and kin of the transferor and not to a non-aboriginal. That is the spirit. Now, it is not also a case of heirship because as soon as the tenant transferor has made the transfer he loses his right, he forfeits it. Then the legislature wants to come in and say, 'We shall have someone nearest to him.' It is not a case of heirship, it is only a case of aboriginal versus non-aboriginal. In that case, I believe the object of the law would be fully satisfied if we distinctly mention son, daughter, wife or husband, as the case may be, or as the Collector thinks fit. I propose to give a wider latitude to the Collector ; he may give it to the son or to the daughter or to the wife, or in the case of the wife being the tenant to the husband ; so that it is not a case of heirship under any law ; in fact there being hardly any law which you can say determines the case of this aboriginal or that aboriginal. In these cases, the purposes of the law would be best served by specifying the relations to whom the property can be given. Otherwise, the landlord will be involved in frequent quarrels and litigations, which is, I believe, not the avowed object of the proposed legislation. I have mentioned the specific heir to provide that he is not a non-aboriginal and also that he is one of the nearest kith and kin of the transferor. So instead of having the word 'heir,' which would bring in intricate questions of law and fact, it would be much better to define exactly to whom the Collector may give the property,—the son, daughter, wife or husband, as the Collector may think fit. I want to give a certain amount of discretion to the Collector. I have already said there is no question of heirship, because the right has been forfeited. It is the intention of the legislature to keep the lands in the hands of the aboriginals by declaring in favour of anyone who may be nearly related to the deceased. The introduction of the word 'heir' will give rise to difficulties and uncertainties which we ought to avoid."

The Hon'ble Mr. PROVASH CHUNDER MITTER said :—

"My Lord, I desire to support this amendment. The object of this is to afford protection to the aboriginals, and I understand that that protection would be amply secured if you give the protection to the immediate heirs of that aboriginal, and the words 'son, daughter, wife or husband' will preclude a lot of artful supposed distant relations coming forward as heirs, and as indicated by my hon'ble friend, these aboriginals are governed by customary laws. Then the object of this legislation not being to give it to such persons, therefore these words I submit will serve that object fully, and therefore I support this amendment."

The Hon'ble Mr. CUMMING said :—

"My Lord, I have listened to the remarks of the hon'ble gentlemen who have spoken. I appreciate their arguments. They both desire that the property should be retained in the Sonthāl family. That, of course, is the object of the Bill, but, at the same time, I am advised by those who have knowledge of the practical working that there will be no difficulty if the word 'heir' be retained. However, as I have already stated, I am prepared in order to cover the cases of those who are not actually members of the family, to include Sonthāls who are local representatives. One Hon'ble Member desires to restrict the Collector to this form, but I think it is neither wise nor necessary. I would only suggest to him—supposing the grandson were the heir, would he be precluded from receiving the property? I do not think so. I, therefore, advise the Council to retain the phrase in this more generic form."

 does so to the prejudice of his natural heir or the person who would, in due course otherwise, have succeeded him, and the Collector intervenes and restores that person who would in the natural course of events have succeeded to that holding. These words would, at any rate among the Sonthals, prevent the Collector from putting into an abandoned holding the former owner's natural successor. Among the Sonthals a daughter is not an heir; in the absence of a son, a brother is a prior heir; and in the natural course of events, if there are no sons or son's sons to the Sonthal, his brother and after him the brother's son would succeed. The Collector would be unable to do that simple act of justice. I am not aware of the tribal law prevailing among other races to which the Act may be applicable, but they may have other customs which also the Collector would be unable to give effect to if these four particular heirs and successors are mentioned and the Collector given no discretion."

The motion was put and lost.

The Hon'ble Mr. CUMMING moved that in sub-section (2) of section 49H for the word "heir" in the two places where it occurs, the words "heir or legal representative" be substituted.

He said

"I now move the amendment which stands in my name. I need not

The Bengal Tenancy (Amendment) Bill.Babu Ambika Charan Mazumdar; Mr. Cumming; Kumar Shib Shekhaheswar Ray.

The Hon'ble BABU AMBIKA CHARAN MAZUMDAR said :—

"My Lord, I fully support this amendment. We have already made the Collector a zamindar without a zamindari. I think we ought not to make him an irresponsible zamindar. When the Collector settles the amount, he ought not to be allowed to settle on terms other than those which appertain to the original holding, and I think it is but just and reasonable that he should be confined to the terms incidental to the original holding and not to deviate from them either in the way of strictness or of laxity."

The Hon'ble MR. CUMMING said :—

"Sir, this amendment is proposed on the ground that it is intended to prevent the detriment of the landlord's interest. I think the Hon'ble Members who have spoken have overlooked the fact that this is a penalty clause, that the landlord has already had one year in which to exercise his rights, and that the Collector does not come in at all within this year. I put it to the Council whether it is unreasonable after that period to give the Collector such discretion as he thinks fit to exercise. I, therefore, oppose the amendment."

The Hon'ble KUMAR SHIB SHEKHARESWAR RAY said :—

"My Lord, it is quite possible that a holding may not be taken on the same terms, but a non-aboriginal may come forward and pay the same rate of rent. The zamindar has got six months' time."

The Hon'ble MR. CUMMING said :—

"No, he has got one year's time."

The Hon'ble KUMAR SHIB SHEKHARESWAR RAY said :—

"It does not matter, it may be one year, it only shows that he cannot get an aboriginal tenant to take the holding at the existing rent, but that is no reason why he should not settle the holding with a non-aboriginal. It was not the zamindar's fault that the holding was taken away from the occupier and made over to him for resettlement."

(Amendment No. XIX.)

•The Hon'ble BABU AMBIKA CHARAN MAZUMDAR moved that after sub-section (2) of section 49H the following be added, namely :—

"Provided that if the Collector restores the transferor to the possession of the transferred land, he shall order him either to refund the consideration money actually paid by the transferee or pay such compensation to him as may appear reasonable to the Collector under the circumstances of the case."

He said :—

"We have sufficiently safeguarded the interests of the aboriginals and we have gone so far as to lay down that if the transfer is in contravention of the provisions of this chapter, the Collector may turn out the transferee and restore the transferor to the possession of the transferred land or in his absence to his heir or legal representative. Now, Sir, it is a well-known maxim of law that no man ought to be allowed to derive the benefit of his own fraud. It is a mistake to suppose that aboriginals are so simple that we may not find simpler persons among non-aboriginals. If a person transfers his lands to a non-aboriginal and the Collector turns him out, is it not fair that he the transferor should also return the money which he has swallowed? If we do not provide a safeguard like that it might be said that we are putting a premium on fraud. I know some of these aboriginals to be very shrewd people, and in fact we should not be justified in presuming that the blame should be entirely on the side of the non-aboriginals. Both may be guilty or one may be more guilty than the other, and in these cases it is only just and fair that the money should be refunded by the transferor, and I have added further that it may not be the money actually paid; it may be some reasonable compensation. If the Collector thinks that the transferee is more to blame than the transferor he may give him a nominal compensation; if he thought the case was the reverse, he may give him the full compensation or the money actually paid, so that in any case he ought to compensate the transferee, whether in smaller or larger amounts it does not matter. It would be impolitic to allow an aboriginal to deal with his property in any manner he likes in contravention of this law, and then set the Collector in motion so that he may take the property as well as the money. It has often been said that one cannot be pardoned and yet retain the offence. I have not intentionally retained the words 'of the transfer' for this reason that the transferor may have misused the whole of the money obtained by him, and his legal heir or representative may not have got anything out of it, so that this proposal for granting compensation to the transferee should not be extended beyond the transferor himself, and it seems to me that there is no reason why the Collector should not be empowered to consider whether in each particular case the transferor was not to some extent blameable for the transfer. He evidently got the money, and the Collector ought to have the power

The Bengal Tenancy (Amendment) Bill.

Mr. Cumming ; Babu Ambika Charan Mazumdar ; Rai Debender Chunder Ghose Bahadur.

to see whether he should go scot-free or whether he should pay something according to his complicity in the matter. I think it would not be good policy to allow the man to retain his land, and yet swallow all the money which he has received. I venture to submit that the Council will consider that it is not always the case that it is only a non-aboriginal trying to induce an aboriginal to enter into a transaction like this. I think it is fair that opportunity should be given to the Collector to decide whether he should be given compensation or not."

The Hon'ble Mr. CUMMING said :—

"Sir, I object to this amendment. The Hon'ble Member will recollect that if a transfer is ab initio void, the Collector is trying to put it right. He first gives the landlord a chance of doing so, and then he takes action himself. The question for consideration is, I suggest, entirely alien to this, and I venture to think that an examination of this point would introduce many complications. At first sight it might appear that the aboriginal tenant had got the money in his pocket, and that all that ought to be done was to ask him to give it up, but in actual practice the consideration is probably the payment of some debt; and if so, the Collector would have to examine the whole matter of the initiation of this debt. I therefore think that all this is alien to the object of the Bill. I, therefore, recommend to the Council that this amendment be not accepted."

The motion was then put and lost.

(Amendment No. XX.)

The Hon'ble BABU AMBIKA CHARAN MAZUMDAR moved that at the end of section 49H the following be added, namely :—

- (3) Nothing in this section shall apply to or affect the right of an auction purchaser in a sale either under proviso (a) or proviso (c) to section 49K, whether he be an aboriginal or not."

He said :—

"I move this amendment practically against the interests of my own profession which thrives owing to the obscurity of the law and the weakness of judges. We have in this piece of legislation two provisos (a) and (c) to section 49K which refer to sales either for arrears of rent or for the recovery of public demands. Evidently, Sir, the present legislation refers to private transfers. But difficulties may arise unless we explicitly say that these provisions do not apply to auction purchasers. Under these two sub-sections any tenure or holding belonging to an aboriginal may be sold in execution of a decree of a competent court, and purchased by anyone, and therefore to make it clear in this case the purchaser may be an aboriginal or a non-aboriginal, so that their case ought not to come under the stringent provisions of this new chapter. Only to make it clear, I say, let us distinctly say that it does not apply to their case."

The Hon'ble Mr. CUMMING said :—

"Sir, I appreciate the point that has been raised by the Hon'ble Member who desires to make the Act more clear with reference to clause 49K, but as this is a matter of legal drafting, I suggest to him that the phrase with which the clause begins 'notwithstanding anything in this Act.....' is sufficient for the purpose; and on the ground that the amendment is unnecessary, I ask that it be not accepted."

The Hon'ble RAI DEBENDER CHUNDER GHOSE BAHADUR said :—

"My Lord, section 49K does not end with the proviso (a), but there are other provisos, namely (b) and (c). It is not exactly clear, so it is a point which ought not to be left in doubt. It is true that upon one reading of the Act the impression is that it relates only to transfers between parties independent of law courts, and it does not refer to involuntary or compulsory sales, but to avoid any unnecessary litigation it might be well to adopt my hon'ble friend's suggestion that it should be clearly stated that nothing in this section applies to what he calls auction sales and compulsory sales, and there will be no harm thereby especially when we find that the Bill is not free from redundancy in other matters; for instance, as regards the validity of certain transfers coupled with the matter of registration, that any deed of sale in contravention of the provisions of this Act, or shall not be registered and no court shall recognise it. All that is redundant. I do not see why it should not be absolutely clear though we may be open to the charge of redundancy. As a matter of supererogation we might have the clause which the Hon'ble Member Babu Ambika Charan Mazumdar has suggested."

The Bengal Tenancy (Amendment) Bill.Kumar Shib Shekhareswar Ray.(Amendment No. XXI.)Proposed section 49J.

The Hon'ble KUMAR SHIB SHEKHARESWAR RAY moved that the following be omitted from sub-section (1) of section 49J, namely :—

- (i) the word "or" at the end of clause (a);
- (ii) the whole of clause (b); and
- (iii) the words and figures "subject to the provisions of sections 86 and 87" in lines 9 and 10 of that sub-section.

He said :—

"My Lord, this is a very important matter. Section 49J, as it now stands, threatens us with a serious encroachment on our vested rights—rights which we have been enjoying from time immemorial. Talking of vested rights, my Lord, I think I should make it clear at the very outset that the zamindars of Bengal will be the first persons to give up every bit of their vested rights for the benefit of their country if it can be proved to their satisfaction that by doing so the benefit obtained will be commensurate with the extent of sacrifice involved. But unless and until this can be proved, we can never entertain any proposal which interferes with our rights and thus means a repudiation of the sacred undertaking given to us by the Government at the time of the Permanent Settlement of Bengal.

My Lord, in the matter of settlement of our waste lands or lands abandoned or surrendered by our tenants, we have all along exercised a free and unrestricted right, but this provision of the Bill is going to put a restraint on our free action; it proposes to lay down that under certain circumstances we shall have to obtain the sanction of the Collector first.

My Lord, this is a very serious matter. Let us see how it is proposed to justify this interference with our rights. It is no doubt an admitted fact that the aboriginal tribes require some protection against being cheated out of their lands by designing persons. It is therefore undoubtedly necessary that certain restrictions should be put on them so that they might not run into hopeless debts or foolishly alienate their lands. With these ends in view, various enactments have been passed in the provinces of Bihar and Orissa, the Punjab and the Central Provinces. But let me tell your Lordship that nowhere in those enactments has any restriction been placed on the landlord as to how he should dispose of the holdings abandoned or surrendered by the aboriginals. Mr. Beatson Bell, who is originally responsible for this Bill, did admit in his notes that this is an innovation. He says :—

'This is new, but experience shows that provisions regarding the prohibition or restriction of transfers are defeated by so-called surrenders or abandonments. Provision is therefore made for making the resettlement of such lands by the landlord subject to the approval of the Collector.'

Yes, I admit that in theory at least there is a possibility of defeating the intention of the legislature in this way; but let us come to the practical side of the question. Do we for a moment realise that in order to alienate his holding by such surreptitious means the aboriginal shall have to enter into a conspiracy with his landlord and the intending non-aboriginal purchaser. But what gain does the landlord derive by joining the disgraceful conspiracy. It might be contended that a non-aboriginal will pay the landlord a bigger registration fee than an aboriginal purchaser. But we should remember that the maximum fee itself in one single transaction of this kind hardly exceeds Rs. 25, so the prospect of getting a rupee or two more is certainly not so big a temptation as to make a respectable zamindar stoop so low. Most of my official colleagues here surely know that no big or respectable zamindar can act in this way ; they undoubtedly care more for their reputation than for such petty pecuniary gains secured by so unfair a means. Now let us see what grave risks the other conspirator, I mean the occupier of the so-called abandoned holding, runs. Under the Bengal Tenancy Act (section 87) the abandoned holding may be reclaimed by the original tenant at any time within a period of two years of the abandonment. Under the circumstances can we seriously believe that any sensible person will part with his hard-earned money for so doubtful and risky a transaction.

My Lord, I hope I have been able to show that the fears of Mr. Beatson Bell are entirely baseless. But assuming that he is right and we the zamindars are a set of unscrupulous people, I frankly ask the Member in-charge will this restriction be at all effective? When all parties are agreed, are there not a thousand and one ways by which they can secure the desired end? By previous arrangement, cannot the zamindar auction-purchase the aboriginal's holding in execution of a rent decree and then settle it with the desired party? I think that this is a much safer plan than the so-called surrenders and resettlements so much feared by Mr. Beatson Bell.

My Lord, it will thus be seen that while this provision of the Bill proposes to take away a long-enjoyed privilege from the zamindars, the benefit it intends to confer is practically nil.

In this connection I should also like to point out that all non-officials consulted on this subject have objected to this intrusion on our vested rights. Even some of the very highly placed Government officials consulted have admitted the impropriety of the proposed interference with our rights.

The District Judge of Birbhum says :—

'In my judgment this is a most important innovation proposed. I find that nearly all the subordinate officers whom I consulted are against the proposed innovation. They are of opinion that the landlords' powers of resettlement should be left unfettered.'

The District Judge of Midnapore says :—

'This is a serious encroachment on a landlord's liberty of contract, and as I have already indicated, I am of opinion that there is no justification for it in a district where the aboriginals whom it is intended to protect have no inherent rights, so to speak, in the soil.'

The Commissioner of the Burdwan Division says :—

'Strong objection is taken to the curtailment of the landlord's right to settle abandoned holdings. Mr. Boyle points out that Sonthals very often abandon a village entirely owing to the death of a leader or some superstition and may desert their villages never to return, and if permission to resettle these holdings is to be obtained from the Collector, the time of the Collector and the landlord would be wasted and the aboriginal tenants would be put to unnecessary expense.'

My Lord, let me also quote what two of the premier zamindari associations of the country say on this subject.

The Secretary of the British Indian Association writes :—

'My Committee beg leave to point out that section 49J introduces a new element, in that it gives power to the Collector to interfere with the vested rights of zamindars. Under the Permanent Settlement the latter have the undoubted right to settle the land in the best way they can, and there is no restriction put on this right. This principle has been recognised and confirmed in all legislation subsequent to the Permanent Settlement relating to landlords and tenants ; and as the proposed clause will be a direct violation thereof, my Committee cannot too earnestly pray for its omission from the Bill.'

The Bengal Tenancy (Amendment) Bill.Mr. Cumming; Mr. Bompas.

The Secretary of the North Bengal Zamindars' Association writes :—

'Section 49J of the Bill puts vexatious and unwarranted restraint on the free-will and judgment of the landlords and imposes on them an obligation which is hardly compatible with their permanent proprietary right ; as such this section should be omitted altogether.'

My Lord, in view of the opinions expressed above may I not hope that our vested rights will be properly respected and not lightly set at naught as proposed.

My Lord, in dealing with the aborigines every care should be taken to protect them from unscrupulous persons, but zamindar's aid and not his discontent should be sought to effect this. If any undue restriction is put on the zamindars it is the aborigines who will suffer most. No zamindar, in that case will dare settle lands directly with the aborigines. The only result of this interference with our rights would be that in future the poor aborigines, instead of securing occupancy rights under us, will have to remain satisfied with the inferior and insecure position of under-tenants of our creatures whom we will be forced to set up as an intermediary between us and the aborigines. My Lord, I have not concealed any facts, I have been plain and clear on every point and now I hope that the Hon'ble Member in charge of this Bill will realise the situation and be kind enough to accept my amendment."

The Hon'ble MR. CUMMING said :—

"Sir, I fully admit that this is an important innovation. It is alleged that the vested interests of the zamindar are in danger. Those who have framed this Bill have no desire to affect injuriously the vested interests of the zamindars, but there are some zamindars who are also money-lenders. The zamindars as a rule prefer Sonthal tenants, and the two representatives of the landlord community who were on the Select Committee and who had also Sonthal tenants considered that this amendment in its present form was a suitable one. The genesis of it is as follows :—

Mr. McAlpin from the beginning said that something should be done to prevent collusive surrenders. It was found then that in Chota Nagpur no action had been taken to meet this. The Chota Nagpur officers have reported to their Government that there is a defect here and that when the law is next amended, provision should be made on the lines of the clause as it stands in the Bill. That is why in drafting this Bill it has been determined to legislate against collusive surrenders. The Hon'ble Member has raised a point that such legislation does not exist anywhere else in India. I think, Sir, he is under a misapprehension, because in section 36 of the Central Provinces Tenancy Act provision has been made so that a heir of a raiyat who has surrendered his holding may apply to the revenue officer within two years to have him placed in possession of his holding. That is the same principle which we desire to enforce here. On these grounds, Sir, that it is to meet a definite evil and that there is an analogy for it in another Act dealing with similar circumstances, I think that the clause should stand as it is in the present Bill before the Council."

The Hon'ble MR. BOMPAS said :—

"My Lord, I do not think it is necessary to go so far as the Hon'ble Mr. Cumming to find a precedent for the provision which it is proposed to introduce into the Act. In the Sonthal Parganas, since 1872, the landlords have not been allowed to exercise the right of settling abandoned holdings ; that right, in the interests of the village communities, was transferred to village headmen. The Sonthal Parganas were recently under this Government with its seat in Calcutta and a great part of the district consists of permanently-settled zamindari. That is a distinct precedent for controlling the power of resettlement of abandoned holdings. I think that the Hon'ble Members will not have any difficulty in supporting the clause, as it stands, if they have clearly realised the object of the legislation embodied in this Bill. We have a community of aborigines which originally had a strong village system, and it is found that the members of this community are losing their lands and that the communal system is being broken up. To remedy that state of affairs, two courses are possible : you may protect the individual against himself, or you may ignore the individual and look solely to the interests of the community. This Bill is to some extent a double-barrelled Bill and aims at both objects. When it forbids an individual aboriginal to mortgage his land for more than seven years even to another aboriginal, it is protecting the individual against himself ; when the Bill forbids an aboriginal to sell or give his land to a fellow aboriginal it is restricting the liberty of the individual in the interests of the individual himself. There is another course which is primarily the object of this Bill, as is seen from the fact that it forms an amendment to the Bengal Tenancy Act, and that is to look to the interests of the community and protect the community against invasion from outside. The original system of tenure prevailing among the Sonthals is the communal system. The village community under its headman is responsible for the payment of rent of the village and within the village the headman is supreme. That is a rational system of land tenures and unfortunately as it is found in few parts of Bengal it is totally outside the purview of the Bengal Tenancy Act ; it is not recognised by our Rent Law at all. In this amendment of the Bengal Tenancy Act there is sufficient recognition of it inasmuch as this provision is intended to prevent an encroachment on the rights of village communities and the breaking up of village communities. A Sonthal village is a self-contained unit. The village has its headman, its priest and its village messenger. Its numerous village festivals and ceremonies are all carried out as a community, and as a community the Sonthals are fairly strong ; taken as an individual his want of intelligence makes him an easy prey to more intelligent people. The only hope of keeping these people as fairly self-respecting, independent members of society is obviously by maintaining the village communal system. You have a village of Sonthals and if you introduce into it a number of people of other castes of superior intellect and superior ability such people will not take any part in the village life ; they will not be subordinate to the village headmen. They gradually increase their holdings and in the course of a few years your village community comes to an end. It is sufficiently apparent that once that process has set in, the only end is that the aborigines become landless labourers. Now this Bill prevents the transfer, except with the consent of the Collector, of aboriginal holdings to non-aboriginals, but it is found by experience that is not sufficient. I speak from experience. I was Deputy Commissioner of the Sonthal Parganas for six years ; and during the whole of that period settlement operations were in progress. In the course of these operations full statistics were obtained of the manner in which holdings were alienated from aboriginals to non-aboriginals, and it was found that the greatest percentage of objectionable alienations took the form of resettlement with the consent of the village headmen or the zamindar's agent. That is natural. If a raiyat is entering into an invalid contract, it is almost certain that he must obtain the consent of the zamindar's agent or of the village headman, where it exists. When there is an obvious way of evading the provisions of the Bill that an aboriginal may not transfer his holding by making a collusive abandonment it is necessary to provide against such evasion and that is done by providing that in resettlements, sales or in other formal transfers, a fellow aboriginal shall have a prior right to take the abandoned holding; and it is only by such a provision as far as I know and as far as my experience goes that you can maintain the integrity of the village community."

The Bengal Tenancy (Amendment) Bill.Mr. Bompas.

The Hon'ble KUMAR SHIB SHEKARESHWAR RAY said :—

"My Lord, it is surely not a good argument that because some people act in a suspicious manner all people must be suspected. In fact one can only rely on this argument when a large number of people act in a suspicious manner. I do not think that the Hon'ble Mr. Cumming has been able to show that a large number of zamindars act in this manner, and so, until he can show that, I do not think he can reject my amendment."

Then, again, he has referred to the provision in the Central Provinces Act. We have got a similar provision in section 87 of the Bengal Tenancy Act—'If a raiyat voluntarily abandons his residence without notice to his landlord, and without arranging for payment of his rent as it falls due, and ceases to cultivate his holding either by himself or by some other person, the landlord may, at any time after the expiration of the agricultural year in which the raiyat so abandons and ceases to cultivate, enter on the holding, and let it to another tenant or take it into cultivation himself.'..... 'When a landlord enters under this section, the raiyat shall be entitled to institute a suit for recovery of possession of the land at any time not later than the expiration of two years, or, in the case of a non-occupancy raiyat, six months from the date of the publication of the notice; and thereupon the Court may, on being satisfied that the raiyat did not voluntarily abandon his holding, order recovery of possession on such terms, if any, with respect to compensation to persons injured and payment of arrears of rent as to the Court may seem just.'

Especially, in view of the further amendment that has been proposed by the Hon'ble Mr. Cumming himself, I do not think that there is any necessity for encroaching upon our rights. This amendment which is amendment 25, says :—'If any person, who is not an aboriginal, obtains or retains possession of any tenancy or portion thereof in contravention of the provisions of subsection (1), such person shall, for the purposes of section 49H, be deemed to be a transferee, and the Collector may take action, so far as may be, in accordance with the provisions of that section.' As Mr. Cumming is going to move this amendment, I take it that it will be passed, in that case when the Collector comes to know that any so-called abandoned holding has been conveyed collusively, he may take steps under this section. So the real interests of the aboriginal tenants, that Mr. Bompas has referred to, will be amply safeguarded. Is there any force in the argument that land once held by an aboriginal should be always held by an aboriginal? They are after all, as far as the non-aboriginal districts are concerned, only emigrants and as such what right have they to a preferential claim on a plot of land even if it has been abandoned by an aboriginal. I do not think they can have any preferential claim.

I think I shall have to ask for a division, and before resuming my seat I should like to appeal to my non-official European colleagues here that if they feel convinced by my arguments, they should not be deterred from voting in my favour solely on the ground that they belong to the Government party. There is no party in this Council. This Council is only an Advisory Board. We may succeed or fail in carrying a motion, but it does not affect the Government in the least, because our opinions are only a kind of recommendation to the Government. So under these circumstances it is rather the duty of everybody to vote as he thinks proper."

After Lunch.(Amendment No. XXII.)

The Hon'ble BABU AMBIKA CHARAN MAZUMDAR moved that the words "retain it in his own possession", in lines 3 and 4 of clause (ii) of sub-section (1) of section 49J be omitted, and the following be added after that clause, namely :—

"(iii) retain it in his own possession".

He said :—

"This motion deals with the question of the settlement of land when it is vested in the zamindar on account of a void transfer, or when it is vested in him owing to surrender of land. In this case a zamindar may first of all settle the tenancy or a portion thereof with an aboriginal. He can do it without any reference to anybody, and in the second place, with the approval of the Collector in writing, he can settle it with a non-aboriginal; and then it is said that he can retain it in his own possession. So that as the section stands, the power of the landlord to retain the land in his own possession is also subject to the approval of the Collector. My contention is that we have made sufficient encroachment on the rights of the landlord, and we need not encroach further. In the first place, when the right of settlement comes to him, he may settle with an aboriginal, that is all right. In the second place, if he does not want to settle with an aboriginal he is made to take the sanction of the Collector. But I do not understand why he should not be permitted to retain the land in his own possession when he fails to settle it with a non-aboriginal. It may be argued that if the landlord is allowed to retain the land in his own possession, without the intervention of the Collector, he may avoid settling it with any tenant whether aboriginal or non-aboriginal. My contention is this, that the landlord should not be debarred from dealing with his land, if he is a landlord, even to the extent of keeping the land in his own possession without the sanction of the Collector. Landlords of course are considering to be very rack-renting and so forth. My Lord, I am not one of those big zamindars who need complain about this provision, but I think in justice to them, we ought not to be very hard upon them. They are not in fact such unscrupulous people as they are supposed to be. They are very good people; when they have to establish schools and colleges, and when they have to found charitable institutions they are very useful as collecting agents of Government; they have to pay very heavy Government revenue, whether they realise their rent or not; they have to pay the cess demand due from the tenants even before they can realise 50 per cent. of it from the tenants themselves. I think under these circumstances, it is not a wise policy to kill the goose that lays the golden eggs. Therefore, I wish to take the words 'retain in his own possession' from sub-clause (2) and make it an independent sub-sectional clause. Three things are open to the landlord: first he will have to settle with an aboriginal, and in the second place if he wants to settle it with a non-aboriginal he will have to go to the Collector who will have an opportunity of seeing whether it was not possible for him to settle with an aboriginal tenant, and in the third place, if he does not want to settle with an aboriginal or non-aboriginal, he may keep it in his own possession. I do not see why you should compel him to ask the Collector's permission if he wants to keep such lands which have been surrendered by a tenant, in his own possession. I think that this clause ought to be taken out and made an independent clause so that it may not be affected by any approval or disapproval of the Collector."

The Bengal Tenancy (Amendment) Bill.Mr. Cumming.

The Hon'ble Mr. CUMMING said:—

"Sir, the Hon'ble Member desires that if the landlord retains the tenancy in his own possession he should not require the approval of the Collector in writing; and by way of argument he says that we, that is to say, the Council, have already sufficiently encroached upon the rights and privileges of zamindars. I think the Hon'ble Member overlooks again what the object of the Bill is. The object of this Bill is, as far as possible, to keep the lands in the hands of the Sonthals. Now, as regards landlords, there are two classes. There are those who are not money-lenders and who always like Sonthals as tenants and there are those who are money-lenders. As regards the landlords who are not money-lenders, they have no objection to this; they are quite agreeable that the Collector should have a say in the matter. The landlords who are money-lenders naturally object to this proposal, but it is precisely against the money-lender landlords that we wish to legislate. Therefore, it is highly desirable that the Collector should have an opportunity of approving the case in which the landlord desires to retain the tenancy in his own possession. The Hon'ble Member has spoken as if nothing has been done, no concession has been made; as if no consideration of the interests of the landlords has been taken at all. But he should realise that in the Select Committee, sub-clause (b) (2) of clause 49H was very materially altered; and it was laid down that the landlord had one year in which to exercise his right of settlement, and that the Collector on his part should exercise his right within six months. These are two material concessions that have been made to the landlord. I, therefore, think, Sir, that either on general grounds or particular grounds, there is no reason for altering 49J as it stands in the Bill at present."

The Bengal Tenancy (Amendment) Bill.Mr. Cumming.

(Amendment Nos. XXIII and XXIV.)

The Hon'ble Mr. CUMMING moved that after the word "possession", at the end of clause (ii) of sub-section (1) of section 49J, the following be added, namely :—

"Provided that such approval shall not be withheld if the Collector is satisfied that the surrender or abandonment referred to in this sub-section is not made with the object of evading the provisions of sections 49B, 49E or 49F."

The Bengal Tenancy (Amendment) Bill.

The President ; Mr. Cumming ; Kumar Shib Shekhareshwar Ray ; Maharajadhiraja Bahadur of Burdwan.

He said :—

"Sir, it will be observed that the Hon'ble Kumar Shib Shekhareshwar Ray has tabled an amendment, the purport of which is that if the surrender is bonâ fide, approval should always be given. As the prime object of the drafting of this clause is to legislate against mala fide surrenders, I am prepared to suggest to the Council that a proviso be inserted in the terms which I have read. I wish, that the Collector should be satisfied that the surrender is not made for the object of defeating any of the principles of the Act. I, therefore, move the amendment which stands in my name."

The PRESIDENT said :—

"The Hon'ble Member (Kumar Shib Shekhareshwar Ray) understands that if this amendment is carried, he will not be able to move his amendment (No. XXIV)."

The motion was put and agreed to. The following amendment was then held to be withdrawn :—

The Hon'ble KUMAR SHIB SHEKHARESWAR RAY to move that the following be added at the end of sub-section (1) of section 49J, namely :—

"Provided that such approval shall always be given if the surrender or abandonment referred to in this sub-section is made bonâ fide."

(Amendment No. XXV.)

The Hon'ble MR. CUMMING moved that for sub-section (2) of section 49J, the following be substituted, namely :—

"(2) If any person, who is not an aboriginal, obtains or retains possession of any tenancy or portion thereof in contravention of the provisions of sub-section (1), such person shall, for the purposes of section 49H, be deemed to be a transferee, and the Collector may take action, so far as may be, in accordance with the provisions of that section."

He said :—

"It will be observed, Sir, that this is an amplification of sub-clause (2) of section 49J, as it stands in the Bill before the Council, and the reason for this amplification is as follows :—

The Bill, as it stands, does not make it clear that the Collector can, on his own motion or on the motion of the landlord, turn out a money-lender who has managed to obtain possession by a collusive transaction with the landlord. Sir, it struck me, after the Bill had proceeded from the Select Committee, that there was a defect here ; and after consideration this amendment has been drafted for the purpose of meeting that defect, namely, of turning out a money-lender who came into possession by a collusive abandonment.

It will be observed that he is called a transferee and reference is made to section 49H, under which the Collector can take certain action as regards eviction. I, therefore, recommend, Sir, this sub-clause in its revised form for the acceptance of the Council."

The Hon'ble MAHARAJADHIRAJA BAHADUR of Burdwan said :—

"My Lord, I was a member of the Select Committee and I wish to draw your Lordship's attention to the fact that had the amendment, which the Hon'ble Mr. Cumming has just moved, been moved or discussed in the form in which it is now proposed, some of us would have opposed it. In his desire to keep out the money-lenders, Mr. Cumming seems to overlook the fact that in this section we have been trying to give a little more free hand to the landlord who is after all the real proprietor and in his desire to keep out the money-lender, if the money-lender happens to be the zamindar himself, he will have to suffer because he lent the money to the aboriginal tenant. I prefer the wording of the section, as it stood and as it was passed by the Select Committee; and I, therefore, oppose this motion."

The Bengal Tenancy (Amendment) Bill.Mr. P. C. Mitter.

The Hon'ble Mr. P. C. MITTER, said :—

"My Lord, I am sorry to have to oppose the amendment proposed by Mr. Cumming. The Council will observe that under section 49J, as it now stands, if this settlement with the tenant is in contravention of the provisions of sub-section (1), the Collector may take action, so ordinarily that ought to be sufficient. Now, the Council will also observe in the amendment proposed by the Hon'ble Mr. Cumming that no time-limit is mentioned. In the ordinary course, this will come under section 49H, sub-section (2) (b), and under clause (b) it will be observed that if the zamindar settles within one year, well and good, if not, the Collector may within six months settle the land on behalf of the landlord. This amendment wants to get rid of a suspicious settlement, therefore, in the amendment as it stands, there is nothing to prevent the Collector getting rid of such a settlement after 10 years. Some time-limit ought to be mentioned. There is another point which would appear, and that is in case of civil settlements, the person settling has to take the sanction of the Collector. If he has not, then clause (2) of section 49J will make such settlement a bad one. Therefore, Sir, from that point of view, the amendment seems to me to be unnecessary."

(Amendment No. XXVI.)

The Hon'ble BABU KISHORI MOHAN CHAUDHURI, with the approval of the President, withdrew the following amendment which stood in his name, viz.:—

" that before the decree, in line 2 of proviso (b) to section 49K, the words 'bonâ fide' be inserted."

(Amendment No. XXVII.)

The Hon'ble MR. CUMMING moved that in line 4 of proviso (b) to section 49K, before the word "contract" the words "bonâ fide" be inserted.

He said :—

"The reason for this amendment is the desire to meet the point raised by the Hon'ble Member who has just spoken, and I presume that, because I am moving this, he has agreed to withdraw his amendment."

The motion was put and agreed to.

(Amendment No. XXVIII.)Proposed Section 49K.

The Hon'ble BABU KISHORI MOHAN CHAUDHURI moved that for the words "any contract" in line 4 of proviso (b) to section 49K, the words "any bonâ fide contract or transfer" be substituted.

He said :—

"I propose that in line 4 of proviso (b) to section 49K, the words 'any bonâ fide contract or transfer' be substituted. The only words I wish to add are 'or transfer'. If this is done, it will obviate the necessity of having section 49P. As far as I have been able to see 'transfer' is the only thing dealt with by that section. If 'bonâ fide transfer' be added here along with 'contract', I do not think there will be any necessity to have section 49P. It is in that view that I propose to have the words or transfer added."

The Hon'ble MR. CUMMING said :—

"Sir, in answer to the Hon'ble Member the reply that one would naturally make would be that provision is already made for this in section 49P at the end of the Bill. He, however, says that if the words 'or transfer' be included in clause 49K, the necessity for 49P, will disappear. This, however, is a matter for technical drafting, and I am advised that it is desirable to keep the question of contract and transfer separate, and that is why there are two clauses; moreover, we have got precedents for that in the Chota Nagpur Act. I, therefore, oppose the amendment of the Hon'ble Member."

The Bengal Tenancy (Amendment) Bill.Babu Kishori Mohan Chaudhuri; Mr. Cumming; Mr. Ashraf Ali Khan Chaudhuri.

The Hon'ble BABU KISHORI MOHAN CHAUDHURI said :—

"If these two sections are retained separately, I have no objection. It is only for simplicity's sake, I urge this. If the Hon'ble Member thinks two sections should be kept separate; that can be done; I have no objection."

The motion was then, by leave of the President, withdrawn.

(Amendment No. XXIX.)

The Hon'ble BABU KISHORI MOHAN CHAUDHURI moved that for the figures "1916", in line 4 of clause (i) of proviso (b) to section 49K, the figures "1917" be substituted.

He said :—

"In this amendment my intention is that the clause should not be retrospective. And if it is made retrospective at all, it may be made so only with effect from the date or month in which this amended Bill was introduced. Therefore I propose that in place of the figures '1916' in line 4 of clause (i) of proviso (b) of section 49K, the figures '1917' be substituted. My object is not to make it retrospective and I do not think that any case has been made out necessitating its being made retrospective for a year. I hope the Council will take into consideration whether it should have retrospective effect. I hope my amendment will be accepted."

The Hon'ble MR. CUMMING said :—

"Sir, the Hon'ble Member says that no reason has been made out why this should be retrospective. I wish to point out to him and to the members of this Council that legislation for the Sonthals of the districts of Bankura, Birbhum and Midnapore has been pending since 1914. The draft was circulated in 1914 and it was known that such legislation might at any moment be undertaken. Again in 1916 another draft was circulated and therefore it was made quite clear that Government had the matter under their consideration. When the Bill was brought before the Select Committee in the form in which it was introduced in Council, the period was two years, but the Select Committee thought it right to reduce the term to one year, to which I, as member in charge of the Bill, was prepared to accede; and I do not think that it would be right to go any further. Those who know the area and the people concerned are aware that the Sonthals have been eagerly expecting legislation of this kind, and the people who have been dealing with the Sonthals have known for at least one year, I would go further and say two years, that they have been doing it at their peril. I therefore recommend to the Council that this amendment be not accepted."

The Hon'ble BABU KISHORI MOHAN CHAUDHURI said :—

"Very well Sir, after that explanation, I beg to withdraw my amendment."

The motion was then, by leave of the President, withdrawn.

(Amendment No. XXX.)

The Hon'ble MR. ASRAF ALI KHAN CHAUDHURI moved that clause (b)(ii) of section 49K, be omitted.

He said :—

"My Lord, this amendment is nearly the same as that moved by the Hon'ble Babu Kishori Mohan Chaudhuri. It is about the retrospective effect, but it does not concern the three districts of Bankura, Birbhum and Midnapore. It is about other districts to which this Bill will not apply at once. When the notification under section 49A will be published in the Calcutta Gazette, the Bill will apply. The transfer of land has been restricted by sale or by decree of Court. There are two provisos, one is that if the decree of the Court is for arrears of rent, then the decree for transfer is quite all right, or if there is a decree on account of the contract for sale, which contract was made one year before the Act came into force. In the case of other castes and tribes also to which this chapter has been applied, this Bill will have effect from one year before the date of the publication of the notification under section 49A, sub-section (2), so it comes to this, that supposing after this Bill has been passed into law, after six months you publish the notification and if there is a transaction within one year then it becomes null and void. I do not know about the Eastern Bengal and Western Bengal, but in the Alipur Duars and Darjeeling districts there are many tea plantations. There, there are several landlords and tenants who have bought lands and put money into the improvement of the land ; they have erected machinery and put in a large amount of money. If this clause is kept then after the notification is made, all those transactions that have been made within one year, become null and void and all their money goes. It is for this reason I say that this ought to be amended. As regards Birbhum, Bankura and Midnapore I do not object to it, because it might be said that before the Bill had been circulated in all these districts, they might have known all about it, but in Northern Bengal and Eastern Bengal I believe that the people do not know much about it. There might have been some circulation amongst the Divisional Commissioners and Collectors and some people may know about it, but the ordinary public do not know much about it, and for this reason I say this clause should be omitted."

The Hon'ble MAULVI A. K. FAZL-UL-HAQ said :—

"My Lord, without entering into the merits of the controversy which has been raised by this amendment, I beg to point out to this Council that the accepted principle of legislation is that it should not interfere with rights already created. It is for this reason that whenever any amending Act is passed, care is taken not to make it retrospective, unless the exigencies of the moment require that the Act should take effect immediately or retrospectively. It is true, as the Hon'ble Member in charge of the Bill has pointed out, that sufficient notice has been given, by means of circulars and otherwise, that legislation on the lines intended was impending, but even then I should like to point out that it is very rarely that people can make out that although some sort of legislation might be pending, what would be the exact lines on which that legislation would be undertaken. That matter has been pointed out by the Hon'ble Mr. Ashraf Ali Khan Chaudhuri who said that there may be people who have, in spite of the fact that they knew that legislation was pending, spent money in the improvement of land which has somehow or other passed into their hands, and it will be a great hardship to them, if the Act is made retrospective so as to touch their interests. I should therefore heartily support this amendment."

The Hon'ble MR. CUMMING said :—

"Sir, the objections on theoretical grounds as explained in this amendment to the clause as drafted, namely, clause (b), sub-clause (ii), are greater than in the previous amendment, but at the same time I think that if the Council once appreciate the position of affairs, they must realise that there are good grounds for it. When the Bill was first drafted, the word 'aboriginal' was not even defined. In Select Committee it has been made clear, that it is intended to refer to the Sonthals of certain districts in the first instance, and then to certain other aboriginal tribes. At the present moment Government have no immediate intention of extending the Act, if it is passed into law, to any of these other aboriginals mentioned in clause 49K, but fair warning is now given to all those concerned that transfers of the nature contemplated in this Bill are not looked upon with favour by Government. I think, therefore, that if an undertaking be given that for a year from now no extension amongst other tribes will be made, then they will be in the same position as the landlords of the areas in which the Sonthals are. With this explanation I trust that the Hon'ble Member, who has raised this amendment, will not press it."

The Bengal Tenancy (Amendment) Bill.Mr. Ashraf Ali Khan Chaudhuri.

The Hon'ble Mr. ASHRAF ALI KHAN CHAUDHURI said :—

"My Lord, I am afraid I cannot accept what Mr. Cumming has said, for this reason, that no immediate intention of the Government to notify will be worse for the people. Because they will know that if an undertaking is given, it will not be published for at least one year. Prudent people or those who are educated will not have dealings with any land belonging to aborigines, but what will happen in practice? The poor people, agriculturists, will enter into dealings as to these lands, and they will purchase it; you cannot alter their nature. When they know that it is not coming for some years, they will not stop or wait, they will go on buying lands. If it was passed into law at once, if there had been no retrospective effect, the Collector would come in and the dealings would become null and void. But the result of giving an undertaking would be a host of litigations and instead of these poor aborigines being saved, they would be dragged into Court and they would lose all their money. That is the chief thing to which I should like to draw the attention of the Hon'ble Member in charge, and, it is for this reason, that I should like to oppose what Mr. Cumming has said."

The Bengal Tenancy (Amendment) Bill.

Babu Kishori Mohan Chaudhuri; Rai Debender Chunder Ghose Bahadur; Mr. Cumming.

(Amendment No. XXXI.)

The Hon'ble BABU KISHORI MOHAN CHAUDHURI withdrew the following amendment which stood in his name, namely :—

"That the words 'at least one year', in line 3 of clause (ii) of proviso (b) to section 49K be omitted."

(Amendment No. XXXII.)

The Hon'ble RAI DEBENDER CHUNDER GHOSE BAHADUR moved that clause (c) of the proviso to section 49K, be omitted.

He said :—

"My Lord, my amendment refers to section 49K, the first part of which runs thus :—'Notwithstanding anything in this Act, no decree or order shall be passed by any Court for the sale of the right of an aboriginal tenure-holder.' Then comes the proviso which says : 'That if the landlord gets a decree for arrears of rent, he will have the right to sell it up,' and then comes clause (c) of the proviso, which says : 'Nothing in this section shall affect any right for the sale of any such tenure or holding for the recovery of any dues which are recoverable as public demands.'

Now as an ordinary person having a claim for damages or having an unsecured debt, will not be able to sell the land of an aboriginal, he is deprived of the ordinary rights of the creditor. But it is provided in the last part of the section that this embargo or this prohibition of the usual course by a creditor will not apply in the case of a proceeding for the recovery of any dues as public demands. That means that if there be a certificate under the Public Demands Recovery Act the person in whose favour the certificate is passed will be able to sell the right of an aboriginal tenure-holder, raiyat or under raiyat in his tenure or holding. It puts the holder of the certificate of public demands in an exceptional position, and there is nothing to justify this exceptional position of the holder of a certificate for public demands. I am aware that in such proceedings the Crown has priority for the realization of its dues, but others are not prevented from adopting the same course as the Crown adopts for the realisation of its dues, but by this Bill you tell the general public that you are entitled to a sum of money as a debt due by an aboriginal, the debt is not an arrear of rent, you have no remedy except to attach his person, but you tell the Collector to pass a certificate for public demands, and you will be able to recover whatever you want under your certificate from the aboriginal. The Collector who has been so very tender to the aboriginal is given a free hand to sell up the landed property of the aboriginal for the recovery of the public demand. I do not know whether many members are aware that by the certificate procedure you can recover all sorts of things if it is a thing due to the State, the Government or to the Court of Wards or to the proprietor of an attached estate. Therefore you not only place Government in an exceptional position, but persons coming under the Court of Wards. Many extravagant and improvident men are wards of court and the estates of many such persons are attached and kept under the control of the Collector, and they will have the benefit of recovering their money like ordinary creditors and not placed in the same position as an ordinary creditor against an aboriginal under this Act. I do not think that this is evenhanded justice or fair treatment. If you do really feel for the aboriginal why then expel him from his lands if he has not paid up his certificate demands."

The Hon'ble MR. CUMMING said :—

"Sir, there is a superficial equity about the remarks of the Hon'ble Member, but I do not think he fully realizes that in the first place the Crown should have and has absolute priority, and in the second place by the balancing of sub-clause (a) and sub-section (c) it will be seen that the dues of landlords and the demands of the general taxpayer are being placed on an equal footing. If the Hon'ble Member were strictly logical, he should also propose that sub-clause (a) should not also form part of the Bill, and I do not think he proposes to do that. The Bill, as it stands safeguarding the dues of the landlord and the dues of the general tax-payer, is, I think, fair. For this ground, Sir, I oppose the amendment."

The Bengal Tenancy (Amendment) Bill.Babu Ambika Charan Mazumdar ; Mr. Cumming.

The motion was then put and lost.

(Amendment No. XXXIII.)Proposed section 49L.

The Hon'ble BABU AMBIKA CHARAN MAZUMDAR moved that after the words "reasonable time", in line 7 of section 49L, the words "not exceeding three months in all" be inserted.

He said :—

"My Lord, it will be remembered that in the original Bill it was proposed to take away the power of the civil court in executing decrees against aboriginals. This was opposed in the Select Committee and it has been stated that the civil courts would be in a position to execute decrees for rent against aboriginal tenants, but it has been provided that the courts should give reasonable time to the debtor in order to pay off his debt. No time-limit has been fixed, and I consider it to be a very great hardship on the landlords just to hang on for the recovery of his rent for an indefinite period even when he has obtained a decree. In fact, up to the decree, it is an easy process. The difficulty of the landlord really begins after the decree has been obtained, and if it is left entirely to the discretion of the court to grant time to the judgment-debtor, in such cases, without any time limit, the decree may not be executed for a long time, say for six months or a year, and we ought to consider the position of the landlord. In this case it is a one-sided piece of legislation, but at the same time we must not forget that in showing our sympathies for the aboriginal, we should not be very harsh upon the landlord decree-holders. Therefore I propose that there should be a limit to the discretion of the court in granting time, and that it ought not to exceed three months. There may be a judgment-debtor against whom the landlord has got a decree for rent and he comes to court and says 'I shall pay you say within two or three years.' So let us have some limit not exceeding three months, and not keep the decree-holder hanging on for an indefinite period entirely at the discretion of the court ; this is not fair nor just."

The Hon'ble MR. CUMMING said :—

"Sir, the argument of the Hon'ble Member amounts to this, that if you give one concession, that is an argument for giving another. The Hon'ble Member has rightly pointed out that the clause in the original draft to which many took exception outside this Council has been modified and the terms of 49L as now drafted simply indicate to the court that reasonable time should be given. I think, in other circumstances, the Hon'ble Member would ask whether the civil court could not be trusted to use their discretion properly. I do not really see, Sir, why in this particular case their discretion should be circumscribed, and I can easily conceive of circumstances in which a period of three months might not be reasonable. I, therefore, oppose the amendment."

The motion was then put and lost.

(Amendment No. XXXIV.)Proposed section 49M.

The Hon'ble BABU AMBIKA CHARAN MAZUMDAR moved that in the proviso to sub-section (2) of section 49M, after the word "officer" in the second place where that word occurs, the words "or Court" be inserted.

The Bengal Tenancy (Amendment) Bill.

Mr. Cumming ; Rai Debender Chunder Ghose Bahadur ; Babu Kishori Mohun Chaudhuri ; Mr. Ashraf Ali Khan Chaudhuri.

He said :—

"In this section the power of revision is given to ~~any~~ officer whom the Local Government may appoint in that behalf. It may so happen that the officer whose order will be revised, will be the District Judge and in such cases power is generally given to the High Court to revise it. I do not think that the word 'officer' is sufficiently indicative of a tribunal like the High Court. Therefore, I suggest that after the word 'officer' the words 'or Court' may be inserted."

The Hon'ble MR. CUMMING said :—

"I am sorry, Sir, that I do not quite realise why the Hon'ble Member desires to introduce this. Let us consider what are the powers of the Collector under this Bill against which provision for appeal is made in clause 49M. There is the first, 49F, provision of transfer; there is next in 49H, provision for ejectment, and finally in 49J, there is approval of re-settlement. It is laid down in 49M, that appeals should lie against the order of the Collector of the district, and then in the sub-section to which the Hon'ble Member refers, provision is made that an appeal may lie to such officer as the Local Government may appoint. Surely, it is natural that the officer, who would be appointed, would be one who would be in the chain of which the Collector is one of the lower links. Therefore, on the ground that the addition is unnecessary, and to some extent meaningless, I oppose the amendment."

The motion was then put and lost.

(Amendment No. XXXV.)Proposed Section 49O.

The Hon'ble RAI DEBENDER CHUNDER GHOSE BAHADUR moved that after the words "shall lie", in line 2 of section 49O, the word "in any Civil Court", be inserted.

He said :—

"The amendment, my Lord, is really a verbal amendment and it does not go against the objects of the Bill, but to make the Bill more clear. section 49O runs thus: 'Notwithstanding anything in this Act, no suit shall lie to vary or set aside any order passed by the Collector in any proceeding under this chapter except on the ground of fraud or want of jurisdiction.' I would add the words 'in any Civil Court' after the words 'shall lie' as the expression 'Criminal suit' is to be found in English statutes."

The Hon'ble MR. CUMMING said :—

"I accept the amendment."

The motion was then put and agreed to.

(Amendment No. XXXVI.)

The Hon'ble BABU KISHORI MOHUN CHAUDHURI withdrew the following amendment which stood in his name, namely :—

"That section 49P be omitted."

(Amendment No. XXXVII.)

The Hon'ble MR. ASHRAF ALI KHAN CHAUDHURI moved that clause (b) of section 49P be omitted.

The Bengal Tenancy (Amendment) Bill.

Mr. Cumming; Mr. Ashraf Ali Khan Chāudhuri; Kumar Shib Shekhareswar Ray; The President.

He said :—

"My Lord, it is the same as the amendment I moved a few minutes ago on the retrospective effect of the whole chapter. My argument will be just the same as that in my previous motion. I have nothing particular to say, but as the Hon'ble Member in charge is going to meet me by giving me an undertaking that no publication will be made within one year, I would say then that if his intention is that no retrospective effect will be given in practice, why burden this Bill with more paragraphs?"

The Hon'ble MR. CUMMING said :—

"Sir, as regards the principle at stake I have nothing to add to what has already been said under clause 49K. As regards the burdening of the Bill to which the Hon'ble Member has alluded, I have already explained why, as a matter of drafting, sections 49K and 49P have been prepared separately. I, therefore, oppose the amendment."

The Hon'ble MR. ASHRAF ALI KHAN CHAUDHURI said :—

"Does the Hon'ble Member give an undertaking that it will not be notified within one year and state how that undertaking will be put into practice?"

The Hon'ble MR. CUMMING said :—

"Sir, obviously my remarks regarding the other case are equally applicable to this; and, as to how the undertaking will be carried out in practice, if an officer of Government speaking in this Council gives an undertaking, I do not think that his successor will repudiate it."

The motion was then, by leave of the President, withdrawn.

The Hon'ble MR. CUMMING moved that the Secretary be directed to re-number the clauses and sub-clauses of the Bill in consecutive order and make corresponding alterations in all cross references thereto.

The Hon'ble KUMAR SHIB SHEKHARESWAR RAY said :—

"My Lord, can a motion be made under rule 46 of the Business Rules now?"

The PRESIDENT said :—

"I think it would be better to dispose of this formal motion now. After that a ruling will be given on the point raised by the Hon'ble Member."

The motion was put and agreed to.

The PRESIDENT said :—

"The Hon'ble Member asks whether it is now possible to make a motion under rule 46 of the Business Rules. I understand that under clause (2) of rule 47, an Hon'ble Member desires to object to the motion that the Bill be passed be taken to-day. If that is so, the next stage of the Bill will be postponed to a further meeting of the Council, and it will then be in order for any Hon'ble Member to send in a motion under rule 46. Unless the objection is made to-day, I think the Hon'ble Member would not be in order in moving a motion under rule 46, because if he will turn to rule 21, he will find that the Member who wishes to make any original motion on a Bill, must either give notice of his intention at the next previous meeting, or send such notice to the Secretary ten days before the day of the meeting at which he intends to make the motion."

The Bengal Tenancy (Amendment) Bill.Babu Bhabendra Chandra Ray ; The President ; Mr. Cumming.

The Hon'ble BABU BHABENDRA CHANDRA RAY said :—

"My Lord, as certain amendments have been made, with your Excellency's permission, I object to the Bill being passed to-day under Rule 47 (2) of the business rules of the Bengal Legislative Council (page 167 of the Bengal Council Manual). From the many amendments brought forward by the Hon'ble mover in charge himself it is evident that the Bill was rushed through the Select Committee and that proper attention was not paid to it. Some important changes, such as the enumeration of certain particular classes in the Bill have substantially altered it and no reason according to Rule 37(2) of the Business Rules of the Bengal Legislative Council for inserting these particular names have been stated.

My Lord, for all these reasons we want little more time to consider the Bill in all its aspects and propose further amendment if necessary. My Lord, as the Bill is not of any urgency I hope your Lordship will be pleased not to exercise your extraordinary power of suspending the rules and to allow the Bill to be passed to-day.

The Hon'ble Member in charge has said that I have taken advantage of this particular section only to delay the matter as a matter of fact."

The PRESIDENT said :—

"As I read rule 47 an objection on these grounds will be valid unless the Hon'ble Member in charge can show any urgent reason why the Bill should be proceeded with to-day. Before, however, passing a final order on that ruling, I would like the Hon'ble Member in charge of the Bill to show cause, if he desires to do so, why the Bill should be proceeded with to-day."

The Hon'ble MR. CUMMING said :—

"Sir, I was unaware until about half the amendments had been disposed of that the Hon'ble Member desired to make this objection. Undoubtedly he is in order as the rule of the Council lays down that the burden of proof shall be upon the member of Government to show that it is absolutely necessary that the Bill should be proceeded with to-day. This Bill is not a matter of life and death, but at the same time I should like the Hon'ble Members to realize that this legislation has been asked for over 40 years, that it has been the result of a special inquiry made by a very able officer in the year 1909, and that it has been no less than three times circulated all over the Province. I do think, therefore, that it is asking a great deal by taking advantage of this particular rule to move the Council not to pass the Bill at this sitting. I cannot urge, however, that any untoward happening will ensue if the Bill be not passed to-day. I may state that there are few pieces of legislation which have been so carefully considered and which have been the result of a very definite local demand as this one has been. All those locally concerned, both officials and non-officials, Sonthals and non-Sonthals in the area concerned, are convinced that very prompt legislation of this nature is required; nay more, the Sonthals themselves are most insistent on this point. Yes, they appeal to us 'do come and protect us', 'come over and help us'. If the members who represent the Indians in this Council think that their appeal should not be listened to, I have nothing more to say. But I think that it is taking an unfair advantage of the power that the rule gives to the Hon'ble Member."

The PRESIDENT said :—

"Does the Hon'ble Member desire to press his objection?"

The Hon'ble BABU BHABENDRA CHANDRA RAY said :—

"Yes, my Lord."

The PRESIDENT said :—

"The next stage of the Bill will be taken in the January meeting of the Council."

THE BENGAL PUBLIC DEMANDS RECOVERY (AMENDMENT) BILL, 1917.

LIST OF BUSINESS—ITEMS Nos. 4 & 5.

The Hon'ble MR. CUMMING presented the Report of the Select Committee on the Bengal Public Demands Recovery (Amendment) Bill, 1917, and moved that the said Report be taken into consideration.

The motion was put and agreed to.

- The Hon'ble MR. CUMMING also moved that the Bill be passed.
- The motion was put and agreed to.

THE BENGAL PRIMARY EDUCATION BILL, 1917.

LIST OF BUSINESS—ITEMS Nos. 6 & 7.

The Hon'ble BABU SURENDRA NATH RAY moved for leave to introduce a Bill to provide for the extension of primary education in all municipalities in Bengal and in other selected areas in Bengal.

He said:—"My Lord, I beg leave to introduce my Bill for making primary education compulsory within the municipalities of this Presidency including the Municipality of Calcutta and to selected areas within the jurisdiction of the District Boards which have been constituted into Union Committees under section 38 of Bengal Act III of 1885. The question of compulsory primary education has been one of the most difficult questions for every civilised Government to deal with but we find that all civilised Governments have taken up the question as best as they can. With the progress of civilisation we feel the necessity of training the mind from the purely physical needs of the body and we can train the mind of the people by educating them. In these advanced times, when there is a keen struggle for existence, uncivilised and uneducated nations are bound to die out. We no longer hear of the Red Indians who at one time spread over the whole continent of America. Education can only enable a nation to survive the struggle for the fittest. If the masses of the Indian people do not see the light of education they also will in course of time cease to exist as a nation. But the masses cannot be educated in one day nor can they be expected to acquire the higher standard of education. The signs of the times indicate that unless early steps are taken to educate the masses of the people of India in however rudimentary a form they would not survive as a nation.

The masses may be roughly divided into two classes, viz., the agricultural class and the workmen or the labouring class. It is education which develops the faculties of men, helps them in the formation of regular habits and these qualities count a great way in the future prospect both of the agricultural and workmen class. I want, however, to impress upon this Council that education in however rudimentary a form, i.e., reading, writing, and arithmetic imparted to the masses will not only be a great help to them but also enable this country to hold its own in the near future in respect of agricultural and industrial development against foreign competition. It has been said that from the standpoint of the nation as a whole, as organised in the State, and, therefore, also from the standpoint of the monarchy, there can be no doubt that it is in its own interest that all national forces should be developed to their utmost capacity in order that they may the better subserve the ends of national self-preservation and self-realisation. As things now are in the civilised world a nation lagging behind in this respect is bound to be overtaken by its more energetic neighbours. For no one can entertain any doubt that in the great struggle for national dignity and power, those nations will be best able to hold their own which best look after the training and education of youth by insisting on a high standard of efficiency in the schools.' It is also necessary that the masses of the people should take their proper share in the political advancement of the country and for this reason some education is necessary. There can be no greater misconception than to suppose that 'the ignorance of the masses is the best guarantee for a firm Government'.

In ancient times the goal of education was to make the rising generation fit for the State. It was expected that the citizen would be able to help the State in times of peace and war when required and in fact apart from the State they would have no separate existence. This was also the idea pervading Plato's Republic where he brings in the question of Philosopher King and the Community of men. In the Mediæval ages the dominating influence of the Church shaped the education of the times and it was considered that the object of education was to render the citizens fit for the Church, i.e., for the eternal kingdom of God and the training was rather of religious and ecclesiastical character. In modern times, however, the interest of the individual has grown to be of more importance and to educate a man as a reasonable being free to determine his own life has grown to be the dominant ideal.

Education is now compulsory in most of the European countries. In England elementary education had no national importance till certain voluntary societies took up the work. It was the society for promoting Christian knowledge which handed over its purely educational work to the National Society for promoting the education of the poor in the Principles of the Established Church. It was in 1833 that the first Government grant of £20,000 was voted for education. In 1839 a Committee of the Privy Council was appointed to administer the education and thus originated the Education Department. By the Education Act of 1870 three new principles were introduced into educational legislation—a compulsory local rate, a representative local authority and compulsory attendance of children at school. School Boards were to be established where the school accommodation was insufficient, or where an application was made by the electors. Compulsory attendance could be enforced if the Board desired, but no provision was made for compulsion apart from School Boards which were not bound to include religion in their course of instruction. The Act of 1870, however, left full liberty to the schools attached to the several churches to give to their scholars the distinctive dogmatic teaching to which the managers attached special importance provided that the secular instruction should fill four-fifths of the day's exercises and should be thoroughly efficient. On these conditions the State recognised voluntary schools and made liberal grants for their maintenance. In consequence there was not a remote corner in England or Scotland where the inhabitants were not within reach of a public elementary school under Government inspection. A later Act in 1876 enforced it to be the duty of every parent to send his child to school between the ages of 5 and 14, forbade employment under that age except to those who procured a labour certificate and provided that indigent parents might claim from the guardians the payment of school-fees. In 1880 Mr. Mundella's Act established direct and universal compulsion, and empowered the local school authorities to enforce it. In 1891 Sir William Hart Dyke's Act practically abolished the payment of school-fees and thus threw upon the State the duty of compensating school managers for the loss of nearly two millions of annual revenue hitherto contributed by parents. A subsequent Act in 1896 provided a special aid-grant for the further relief of voluntary school managers. Later legislation during the administration of Lord Salisbury had the effect of altering materially the proportions in which the educational revenue is provided. In the year 1899-1900 the contribution from public sources including the grants from the Treasury and from the local taxation amounted to £11,106,735 out of a total expenditure of £12,336,986. These financial changes had not been without an important influence on the character of elementary education. It should be remembered that the department does not appoint or dismiss the teachers, nor pay them, nor recognise them as civil servants. The curriculum of instruction is largely in the hands of the local managers and from the first the main influence of the Education Department has been exercised through its methods of awarding grants to those bodies. In fact during many years the prime function of the department was not to direct education or to set up a national system but to distribute grant-in-aid of local effort, and to do this on a graduated scale under such conditions as would stimulate improvement and ensure to the nation a good educational return for its expenditure.

Education, specially primary education, has made great progress in Germany and France. In the beginning of the seventeenth century primary education was made compulsory in some of the smaller States of Germany and boys and girls between the ages of 6 and 12 were required to attend throughout the year except at harvest time. At first the enforcement of compulsory education met with serious obstacles in those countries partly owing to poverty and also because of the carelessness, indolence and obstinacy on the part of the parents. There were also difficulties in the way of introduction of compulsory education due to overcrowding of schools and the insufficient training of teachers. Besides public schools there was a very large number of private schools in the towns which seem to indicate that there was a demand for them. Although many of the primary schools of the century hardly deserve the name of educational institution compulsory school attendance paved the way for that uplifting of the masses which was accomplished in the nineteenth century. The general character of the period was marked by the steady progress of the masses and the spread of democratic spirit. The aristocracy had lost its former predominance. With the progress of commerce and manufactures personal property grew in extent and the middle classes attained legal and political equality. The Parliamentary representation of the people was, no doubt, originally intended to bestow on the well-to-do and educated middle classes, the influence which was their due. During the second half of the century a new movement began to make itself felt, the rise of a 'Fourth Estate'. With the rapid growth of large towns and capitalistic enterprise in the industrial world, with a steadily improving standard of life and education, these masses, i.e., the labour party, constituting the political party of social democracy officially recognised as members of the political organism by the establishment of universal suffrage, have become an important factor of social and political life.

It is said that in Germany the increasing prosperity of the training colleges and the primary schools was due to the earnest and elevating belief that it was a sacred duty to provide a proper training of youths, a true education of the whole people.

We find that in the United States education is highly prized, and next to primary it is here that the science of education is most widely studied. Each State makes its own educational arrangements, but there is a general uniformity of classification of the schools into elementary, secondary and University. Education is compulsory in some States but it is felt that the citizens appreciate education so highly that it is not necessary to enforce attendance at school.

I have given a brief history of the development of primary education in some of the countries of Europe and in the United States of America, which shows how education has developed in those countries.

The history of primary education in this country is not very clear. We had no doubt our seats of learning in Ancient India, but we do not know and are not in a position to say how far the masses of the people participated in education, or more correctly speaking primary education in the sense in which it is used now. The Permanent Settlement of 1793 recognised in perpetuity the rent-free grants of land enjoyed alike by the Sanskrit tolis and Muhammadan mukhtabs. It was, however, during the administration of Lord William Bentinck that in the year 1835 there was a widespread enquiry in the then existing state of popular education. Mr. Adam who was placed in charge of the enquiry estimated the number of village schools and pathsalas at about 100,000 in Lower Bengal and he earnestly pleaded for the instruction of the people. We find, however, that no general effort was made to assist or improve the indigenous schools for a number of years. It was in 1853 that the 'Circle System' was introduced which had for its immediate aim the improvement of the indigenous schools and masters. We find from the Report of the Indian Education Commission of 1883 that in 1870-71, excluding the primary classes of secondary schools, there were in Bengal only 68,500 pupils in primary schools recognised by the Department, while in 1881-82 there were nearly 900,000. Still the proportion of public funds, including the term provincial, local and municipal funds, spent on primary education was by far the lowest in any province in India, being 13 per cent. less than in the Punjab, and 27 per cent. below Bombay.

That something has been done within recent years for the promotion of primary education cannot be gainsaid. But a great deal more ought to be done. 'We are all in agreement that primary education should be further extended' said by His Excellency the Viceroy at the last Conference of Public Instruction in January last.

I need hardly say that the state of primary education in this Presidency is far from being satisfactory. The total number of pupils attending primary schools on the 31st March, 1917, was 1,124,109, of these 550,806 were Hindus and 552,589 Muhammadans. The Hindus have now 32·7 per cent. of their boys of school-going age in primary institutions, and the Muhammadans 28·9 per cent. It is a matter of congratulation that the Muhammadans have made such progress and are running an equal race with their Hindu brethren.

I do not want to enter at present into the details of the financial side of the question. It is true there is a section in the Bill, section 17 (1) about the imposition of an 'Educational Cess', but the cess is to be imposed if the existing resources of the local body or any grant from Government are not sufficient to meet the cost of such primary education. I have provided in clause (5) of the section that 'whenever an education cess is levied within any area primary education shall be made free within that area'.

To impart education to the masses is the primary duty of Government. The people of this Presidency contribute very largely to the development of primary education. Even the Director of Public Instruction in his last report said 'What is imperatively needed, especially in the Presidency and Burdwan Divisions, is more schools of some stability. This can only be effected by much larger contributions from public funds. The pupils already contribute 56·3 per cent. of the funds. They cannot in fairness be asked to contribute more'. I need hardly say that we shall have to depend for the furtherance of primary education mainly upon the revenues of the country.

The municipalities of the Bombay Presidency are in receipt of handsome contributions from Government and for that reason they can very well afford to forego any help from Government for promoting primary education, but such is not the case with the municipalities of Bengal. In Bengal, primary education will not make any progress without material support from Government.

In the Bombay Act, primary education is sought to be made compulsory within the municipal area of the Bombay Presidency except that of the town of Bombay itself. I want, however, to introduce the provisions of the Bill not only to what I may term mufassal municipal area, but also to the city of Calcutta and to Union Committees, because there are places which, though they have not been constituted as municipalities, are still centres of trade and are busy haunts of men and where the benefits of primary education may with advantage be introduced.

I have made this Bill applicable to 'boys' only and not to 'girls'.

In one of his addresses on Education and Empire, the Right Hon'ble Mr. Haldane (now Lord Haldane) said 'Educate your people and you have reduced to comparatively insignificant dimensions the problem of raising the condition of your masses'.

I need hardly say that the above remarks apply equally to India. Some of the Indian States such as Baroda and Mysore have already taken up the work in right earnest and have made considerable progress."

The motion was put and agreed to.

c The Hon'ble BABU SURENDRA NATH RAY also moved that the Bill be circulated for eliciting opinion thereon.

The Hon'ble SIR S. P. SINHA said :—

"My Lord, at this stage I desire to say very little except to congratulate the Hon'ble Member on having the privilege to introduce this Bill in this Council, so that Bengal follows at any rate if she does not lead the other provinces in introducing this necessary and long due measure. As the Hon'ble Member has observed, the necessity for universal primary education is admitted, on all hands, and the question has been hitherto one of ways and means. It is because the Hon'ble Member has sought to tackle, if I may use that phrase, the problem of problems—the question of ways and means by providing that municipalities should be able to raise the means for this purpose. it is because he has tried in this Bill to solve that problem in that way, that I specially congratulate him. My Lord, the Hon'ble Member quoted some interesting figures comparing what has been done in other provinces in the way of contribution for primary education, with what has been done in Bengal. It is true that the contributions in other provinces for the purpose have been very often larger than those in Bengal, but I think in fairness it ought also to be stated that the contributions for the purposes of secondary education and higher education have been in Bengal much larger than those of the other provinces. Perhaps in so contributing we have not sufficiently taken care of the interests of the poor; perhaps in doing what we have done, we have pampered the classes who ought to be able to look after their own education. I consider the introduction of this Bill a good augury for the day when the classes now called the educated classes will direct their energies for the purpose of impressing upon Government the necessity for spending all the money they can, not upon the education of the privileged classes so much as on the education of their poorer brethren. I also look forward to the day when it will be possible for the Hon'ble Member or some other Hon'ble Member to add to the Bill, or bring in another Bill for the purpose of including a not less important section of the community, viz., our girls, within the purview of this Bill, for until that is done, I do not think we shall be able to claim for ourselves, the same position and the same footing of equality with the civilised nations, the history of primary education among whom my Hon'ble friend has very pertinently referred to to-day. With these few words, I desire to commend on behalf of the Government this Bill for the earnest consideration of the Council and the country at large, and I trust that on all hands there will be the same 'burning desire as that which inspired my friend to-day to contribute each one to the best of his capacity for the purpose of providing education for the poor."

The motion was put and agreed to.

*Resolutions.Rai Radha Charan Pal Bahadur ; The President.RESOLUTIONS.*LIST OF BUSINESS—ITEM No. 9.

The Hon'ble RAI RADHA CHARAN PAL BAHADUR said :—

"My Lord, before I move the motion that stands in my name, I beg to make an humble and respectful submission to Your Excellency. This is a very important resolution which is agitating my community at the present moment. My Lord, we have had a full day's work from 11 o'clock till nearly 5 o'clock. I am sure not only Your Lordship, but other members of this Council are quite fatigued after a whole day's strenuous and hard work. My Lord, when you made your able, interesting, eloquent and impressive speech on this matter, Your Lordship came from your breakfast table to the Council Chamber. Now, My Lord, after a full day's work to take up this important question, in which I understand many of my friends on the non-official side will take part, will be inflicting a very great hardship on us. I appeal to Your Lordship's sympathy—I should say mercy—and crave Your Lordship either to postpone this resolution either to to-morrow's meeting or to the next meeting of the Council, and direct the Secretary to put this as the first item on the agenda. I make this humble submission to your Excellency and make a candid statement of our present position at this time when the sun is about to set."

The PRESIDENT said :—

"The Hon'ble Member's idea of a hard day's work does not coincide with mine. We have only sat since 11 o'clock, we have had one hour's interval and it is now nearly a quarter to five. If the Hon'ble Member will do some arithmetic, he will find what his hard day's work consists of ; it is only 4 or 5 hours' work. I do not think the Council as a whole has had an unduly long day's work. I would suggest that the Council should at least sit for some little time longer ; some Hon'ble Members have come from a long distance to attend the Council, and the Hon'ble Member is of course perfectly aware of the rule that resolutions should be taken up at the end of the other business of the day. It was always the intention that resolutions should be taken up after the other business of the day had been dealt with. In these circumstances, I would suggest that the Council should at least sit a little longer before adjourning."

The Hon'ble RAI RADHA CHARAN PAL BAHADUR said :—

"My Lord, I bow to your Excellency's decision."

The Hon'ble RAI RADHA CHARAN PAL BAHADUR moved the following resolution :—

This Council recommends to the Governor in Council that an advisory committee of officials and non-officials consisting, among others, of an Indian Judge of the High Court and a practising member of the Calcutta Bar, be appointed to investigate into and report on all internment cases that have already taken place and that may take place in future and to recommend in each case—

- (a) the place of detention ;
- (b) the allowance to be granted to the détenu and to the members of the family as may be deemed necessary ;
- (c) the educational facilities which may be required in particular cases ;

and that the said advisory committee be empowered to co-opt any resident in the district wherein the persons effected live and who, in their opinion, is likely to be of assistance in the investigation and examination of the case.

Resolutions.Rai Radha Charan Pal Bahadur.

He said :—

"I would like to clear my ground before I enter into the merits of this resolution. We listened with very great attention to the interesting, able, and eloquent and impressive speech that Your Excellency delivered at the last meeting. We could not at that time quite follow what was actually intended to be done by Government to meet the public demand on this subject. Subsequently we had an opportunity of reading Your Excellency's speech and also of reading in the newspapers an official communiqué on the subject and we find that the Governor General in Council has been pleased on the recommendation of Your Excellency's Government to appoint a Committee presided over by an eminent judge of Great Britain and some of my countrymen, not only from Bengal but in other parts of India to investigate and to find out whether there is any widespread criminal conspiracy in India and whether any legislation is necessary to cope with the evil. My Lord, we have nothing to complain about this ; in fact, we welcome such an inquiry, but, My Lord, at the present moment, what we want is not merely an inquiry of the sort which has now been instituted by Government, but something more.

"My Lord, at the last Budget debate, while approving the detention of dangerous characters, I expressed a hope that a Committee may be appointed to investigate and inquire into the cases of suspected persons before their liberty is taken away and they are interned, causing distress, desolation and despair in their homes. Your Excellency with your high statesmanship and keen insight at once found out that there was not much difference between the Government and the public in this matter—the difference being only in the method of investigation of the cases. We are grateful that the attitude of the community is not misunderstood. Not merely loyalty to the British constitution and allegiance to the British Crown but our self-interest and self-conservation demand that peace and order should reign undisturbed throughout the length and breadth of the land. Anarchism must be suppressed. The political, social, moral and material advancement of the country cannot go on if the canker of anarchism finds lodgement in its body politics. When we remember the crimes against law and order that took place in the country we cannot but feel that it is our duty, in our own interests, to rally round the Government and to strengthen its hands in suppressing them. Economic causes may have brought forth this malignant disease, but that is no reason that it should be allowed to grow to the detriment of our lives and properties. This is the view of every British subject in this Presidency—nay, throughout India, who has a stake in the country. But the question which is uppermost in everybody's mind is, should not the Government change its method of dealing with the cases ? I hope I may be pardoned if I say that there is a widespread and deep-seated feeling of discontent throughout the length and breadth of the country at the manner in which these cases of suspected persons are disposed of by Government. At present it practically rests with the executive officer, namely, an additional Secretary of Your Excellency's Government to act on the Police reports that are often-times based on the information of spies and informers. Although the ordinary law of the land can be moved to bring the suspected persons to justice, for want of proper legal evidence the Government are advised to resort to the provisions of the Defence of India Act. I do not mean to say that the decisions in these cases are all unjustified or arrived at without due deliberation and consideration. I fully appreciate the difficulties of Government. On the one hand they must protect the lives and property of the people and on the other hand they must safeguard the innocent from being the victims of mischievous and intriguing people. It is our duty, My Lord, to assist the Government with our advice and suggestion in this matter and I hope that our suggestion will be taken in the spirit in which it is offered. My Lord, there is a general and insistent demand growing daily in intensity and volume that the administration of this Act should not be dependent on the unaided judgment of a single executive officer however fair-minded and impartial he may be. It is a stupendous task—a serious responsibility is imposed on the shoulders of a single officer armed with the power of depriving any one of His Majesty's subjects of his liberty which is his birth-right, on the ex-parte and untested reports of officers who might be possibly misled by others. My proposition, without weakening the hands of Government in any way, suggests a course which will be in conformity with the procedure which I believe exists in England and which will to a certain extent ensure justice and conciliate public opinion. In the absence of a judicial tribunal, a quasi-judicial advisory committee should be appointed to advise the Government in each case. The whole object is that as action is being taken under exceptional circumstances and under a special law without the ordinary safeguards there should be some quasi-judicial authority substituted for the executive to guarantee that the liberty of the unfortunate man will not be lightly and without a most careful consideration, as far as the altered situation will permit, be taken away. I think a committee consisting of a judge of the High Court, a practising lawyer who is capable of testing evidence, a high executive officer co-opting and a well known and well-informed resident of the district will be a perfectly independent and impartial body and will inspire the confidence both of the Government and the people. An Advisory Board with the co-opted local member will be in a better position to make a recommendation to the Government as to what allowance should be made to the détenu and to the family after due investigation of his pecuniary circumstances. As the application of the Defence of India Act merely restricts the movements of the persons interned and in the case of school boys the restraint is made with a view to dissociate immature youths from evil companions without in any way intending to blast the future career of the youths or to cast an indelible stigma upon them, it is hoped that the Government would take a paternal solicitude for their welfare and ask the Board to recommend what educational facilities can be arranged for the boy during the period of his internment. Such a committee will weigh with a full sense of responsibility all facts which will be brought to their notice. The analogy of a special tribunal may be taken as a proof to show how successfully a mixed tribunal has worked. The object of the Government and the people is the same, that the persons guilty or clearly suspected of committing crimes should be punished or restrained. That object can be best attained by substituting the machinery of a quasi-judicial body in the place of a single executive officer. We are also anxious on behalf of the people to see that no injustice is done to any body by his liberty being curtailed on insufficient evidence and on mere suspicion. I am conscious that I am not addressing in vain your Excellency's Government in moving this resolution. Your Excellency is a representative of the British Crown. I know that it is repugnant to the instincts of the freedom-loving people of the British Isles to deprive any person of his liberty without trial. As in the absence of a regular trial the Government are liable to misconstruction and misunderstanding, we want the hands of Government should be strengthened by the appointment of the Advisory Board. I, therefore, earnestly hope that in the interest of Government as well as of the people Your Excellency may be pleased to accept the resolution."

The Hon'ble MR. AMINUR RAHMAN said :—

"My Lord, barely a month ago Your Excellency announced in this Council that the India Government has been persuaded to appoint a commission for the investigation of all matters connected with the anarchist movement in this country. It was also announced that the services of an eminent English Judge would be enlisted for the purpose. We have already seen the names of the gentlemen who are going to serve on this commission in the papers. Nobody will deny that it is a fairly representative body and consisted of men who stand very high in the estimation of the people. The very fact that the Government have at last agreed to let non-officials into the secret ought to disarm the suspicions of those who have held that the Government was pursuing a policy of unscrupulous repression. Even if there be some reasonable grounds for such suspicion one ought to suspend one's judgment about the policy of Government specially with regard to the arrest and internment of suspected persons until the commission has published its report on these matters. Any Committee that may be appointed by this Government will be placed in exactly the same position as the commission in regard to the facilities for the purpose of investigation and the materials that they will have to work upon. I do not think two separate bodies differently composed will come to two different conclusions if the facts and figures in connection with these matters are fully and honestly placed before them. For this reason I maintain that the establishment of a Committee for the purpose of investigation and report is absolutely unnecessary. The resolution goes further. It suggests that a Committee be empowered to make recommendations on each individual case about the place of detention, the allowance to be granted to a détenu, etc. If we agree to the appointment of such a Committee, we have to assume that the present machinery is not working satisfactorily. In Bengal there is a strong prejudice against the Police and probably in some cases one can easily justify one's opposition to the system of Police administration. It may be that for this very reason even great public men who generally make a generous allowance for the frailties of human nature and the foible of a time-worn system have begun to denounce the Police. As for myself I cannot ascribe a policy of vindictive savagery to any responsible department of the Government. But I do think that there are cases where some unscrupulous and villainous members of the Police force have acted with an utter disregard to the feelings and prejudices and comforts of the détenus. I must say at once that I do not know of any such cases myself; but one cannot easily disregard the version given by eminent and responsible Indian leaders about individual cases of Police oppression that have come under their notice. One such case of wilful neglect of the health and comfort of a prisoner in any European country would be sufficient to create an agitation far more vigorous and probably far more impressive than any the Government has to deal with in this country. The people who are ignorant about the circumstances that lead to these arrests and who are kept in the dark about the conditions surrounding the life of these men naturally accept the statements of their leaders and feel compelled to bring them before the Government and urge on them the necessity of adopting some measure of reform in this respect. But there are difficulties in this way of the pursuit of the object which my Hon'ble friend has in view. In the first place any committee formed in Calcutta cannot conscientiously give any judgment about any of the matters enumerated in the list without the members themselves investigating on the spot the condition of the place of detention and the circumstances of the family. If they are not in a position to do that then they also may make such errors of judgment or unwittingly commit an act of injustice equal in gravity to any committed by the Police. The mere co-option of residents of different districts will not improve matters, as these also will have to labour under the same disadvantages. If the Hon'ble Member can suggest any way of avoiding these difficulties I may be inclined to support his resolution; but as it stands it has these obvious defects.

The Hon'ble BABU BHABENDRA CHANDRA RAY said :—

"My Lord, when at the last meeting of the Council the consideration of this resolution was postponed, it was with a view to enabling us to take stock of the situation created by Your Lordship's announcement of a Committee to which the whole matter of internment would be submitted for 'investigation and decision'. The constitution and terms of reference of this Committee have since been published. And it cannot have escaped your Lordship that the announcement in this behalf has failed to evoke any great interest among the public. So far as the personnel of the Committee goes, it may be unexceptionable in one way, but it certainly admits of improvement. The main purpose for which the aid of the Committee seems to have been invoked is the determination of the lines on which some permanent criminal legislation may be undertaken, if necessary, to meet the situation. This appears to have led some people to believe that there is no want of resolution on the part of the authorities as regards such an extraordinary legislation, and that it is expected that the newly appointed Committee will perhaps lend the weight of its high authority to any legislative proposal which Government may have up their sleeves. This may be a mere phantasy, but, My Lord, there it is in the popular mind. And I think it my duty to draw Your Lordship's attention to this matter, and I hope that something will be done to reassure the people as regards the intentions of Government.

To avoid misconception, I shall at once say that I admit the necessity for arming the executive with some emergency powers in a crisis like the one through which the Empire is now passing. But what we insist on, and what the present resolution asks for, is that we the non-official community are to be associated with the executive in the administration of these extraordinary powers. The very fact that the present demand was not put forward before now is ample proof that we were never in a mood to lightly interfere with the authority of the executive; and that circumstances must have happened which do not permit us to acquiesce in the present system of administration of the Defence of India Act any longer. A somewhat similar demand was embodied in a resolution which was very ably moved in the Imperial Legislative Council by Mr. Dadabhoi in February last. Sir Reginald Craddock who replied on behalf of Government pointed out that even in England the order of internment is issued by the Secretary of State before reference is made at all to the Advisory Committee constituted under the Defence of the Realm Act, and that no such reference is made except when any individual interned has made a representation. My Lord, I must admit that the functions of the Committee which we now suggest will be of a more enlarged nature than those discharged by the Advisory Committee in England. It must be remembered that the operation of the Defence of the Realm Act affects only aliens and persons of alien associations, whereas the Defence of India Act is admittedly being made use of for dealing with the children of the soil. Moreover, the British police, on whose report action is taken in England, command greater confidence of the public than the Police here. Then again, if the truth must be told, the Home Secretary in England, being one of the people, enjoys greater confidence than our executive here, which is less pervious to the influence of public opinion. Our experience of the manner in which this war measure has been made use of, tells us that the Criminal Investigation Department in its capacity as the custodian of official conscience has had everything in its own way. And we would be failing in our duty if we were to maintain an attitude of indifference any longer.

The effect of the indiscriminate and reckless use of these extraordinary powers in Bengal was feelingly described by Mr. Bhupendra Nath Basu from his seat in the Imperial Legislative Council. And I cannot resist the temptation of repeating his eloquent words in this connection. 'If I could', said Mr. Basu, 'if I had the power and ability of placing before the members of this Council the scenes of desolation and sadness that pervade in the country homes of Bengal; if I could place before you the agony, the despair of sorrowful and bereft families; if I could place before you the discontent spreading from home to home, from hamlet to hamlet, from village to village, from city to city in Bengal; if I could place before you what the future impression will be if things like these are allowed to go on from day to day; then I am sure we should find a ready response in support of the resolution so ably moved'. My Lord, the Hon'ble Mr. Cumming would perhaps characterise it as 'oriental hyperbole'; but this picture represents only too faithfully the state of things about a year ago, and the situation has certainly been aggravated now. Sir Reginald Craddock, with almost a chuckle of complacency, admitted the accuracy of the picture drawn. He said: 'I feel myself, Sir, and I think probably many of the Council will feel also that the harrowing scenes such as these, the truth of which I do not dispute, make it all the more imperative and necessary that all of us should do our best to check the young men of this kind being misguided and led astray'. The determined, heartless policy, which this cold-blooded attitude of Sir Reginald Craddock's typifies, has since levied its toll of tragedy in the shape of suicide, insanity and early death among détenus in Bengal. My Lord, picture to yourself a bright young man of good lineage, scarcely out of his teens, with a brilliant career before him—the delight and promise of his parents, and the future hope of his country—a loving friend and comrade—a spotless character, noble and sweet—the very pattern of youth. But perchance there lurks the faintest trace of suspicion against him in a pair of police brows, and his liberties are restrained without much time being wasted in useless enquiries. The grounds of suspicion, even according to the Code of the Criminal Investigation Department, are not apparently very serious, for we find him 'domiciled' with his parents—a rare indulgence, though it is enough to cut short his studies in which he has so long excelled. Some little time elapses, and it pleases the authorities to remove all restraints imposed on him, for quite as mysterious reasons as led to his internment. The absolute innocence of the boy was perhaps no longer a matter of doubt to any one. He is set free, but only in theory. For we find the relentless emissaries of the Criminal Investigation Department dogging his steps with unabated zeal, taunting him at every turn, warning him off the company of his friends, subjecting him in short to all the indignities of the worst felon. Another convincing proof of his restored freedom comes in the shape of an order prohibiting him from joining a college. We do not know, perhaps will never know, who really was responsible for this insensate order. Whether it were the local educational authorities, or some higher executive officials, who were guilty of this monumental indiscretion, we do not care. They will have to account for it before their God. But the result is that an unutterable sense of helplessness, degradation and despair comes upon the youth. The alluring prospects of an honourable and useful career are blotted out, leaving the horizon a perfect blank. Life loses all its attractions for him, and he seeks repose in death.

My Lord, who after all is responsible for the suicide of Sachindra? Is it not the soulless system of indiscriminate internment and espionage? This unfortunate young man employed his last moments in this world in framing as severe an indictment against the present administration as ever was framed by martyred humanity. Does your Lordship care to know how this case of suicide has stirred the inmost heart of Bengal? 'A throbbing of life will be felt in the country at my death', thus predicted Sachindra—and how truly predicted it! 'I shall thank God if my death be of any help to any one similarly circumstanced with me',—thus wrote he almost with the last drop of his blood. Will the last appeal of this young man fall on unheeding years?

My Lord, as I speak, there rises before my mind the vision of a score of my countrymen who have abstained from food for some days past as a protest against their detention and the treatment accorded to them. The condition of some of them is grave, but I am relieved to learn to-day that at least one of them has taken food and his life has been saved. They may be quite wrong in the step they have taken, but Your Lordship should take note of the seriousness of the situation which this indicates.

Resolutions.Babu Surendra Nath Ray.

There are people whose blind wisdom leads them to deny the staring existence of things which they dislike to own. It pleased the Hon'ble Sir Henry Wheeler to have a fling at the non-official members of this Council who interpellate Government about the working of the Defence of India Act. He made the statement that 'the answers that they have given should have dispelled any uneasiness which might be created by the questions themselves'. If Sir Henry meant to be humorous, I think he could not have chosen a more improper occasion. If Your Lordship believes me, the questions, far from causing any uneasiness themselves, represent very imperfectly the state of unrest and alarm that exists in the land on account of the administration of the Defence of India Act and of the alleged unfair treatment of détenus. If I were permitted to retort to Sir Henry Wheeler, I would say that it is the answers that are given which increase the uneasiness among the people. The questions offer opportunities to Government to explain things; and if the answers are vague and given most grudgingly and in a fencing manner, they cannot satisfy the people. When for instance, any request is made for certain papers or some other information in connexion with the suicide of any détenu, and Government give a flat refusal, it does not certainly tend to dispel the uneasiness that exists independently of the questions. Fortunately for the official benches, the Indian Evidence Act has no application to our proceedings here. Otherwise, in these circumstances one might presume that when a person refuses to answer a question, or to produce any evidence called for, the answer or evidence if given would be unfavourable to him.

My Lord, if you are anxious to remove misconceptions from the mind of the people, you must make a radical change of the system now in vogue. Your Lordship was pleased to state at the last meeting of the Council that in future cases the papers would be placed before two judges for their opinion. Why not let us have a duly-constituted Committee that will inspire greater confidence of the people, to deal with all present and future cases, as suggested in the resolution now before us?

The Hon'ble BABU SURENDRA NATH RAY said :—

"I should like to say a few words with reference to clause 1 of the Resolution, viz., the clause as regards the detention of détenus.

Two or three letters were shown to me by the fathers of two of the détenus confined in cells. In the letters the boys complained of their lives in solitary cells and if I remember aright they said that their mind might be unhinged any moment that life had become unbearable. Some of the détenus have been kept confined in cells for months and months. What is the ordinary law on the subject of solitary confinement as laid down in the Indian Penal Code and which is only applicable to the most hardened criminals in the land. Under section 73 of the Indian Penal Code a man can in no case be kept in solitary confinement for more than three months and section 74 of the Penal Code limits the period of solitary confinement. The section lays down :—

'In executing a sentence of solitary confinement, such confinement shall in no case exceed 14 days at a time, with intervals between the periods of solitary confinement of not less duration than such periods, and when the imprisonment awarded shall exceed three months' solitary confinement shall not exceed seven days in any one month of the whole imprisonment awarded, with intervals between the periods of solitary confinement of not less duration than such periods'. So that in no case a criminal, whatever his punishment may be, can be kept in solitary confinement for more than three months and never more than 14 days at a time with intervals of at least 14 days. It is therefore, not surprising that some of the détenus have become mad or have committed suicide.

I think that steps should be taken by Government that the political prisoners, whatever their offences, may at least be treated in the same way as the worst criminals of the land are treated under the Indian Penal Code. I do not ask for a better treatment or for a better place of detention than that of ordinary criminals.

The Hon'ble RAI DEBENDER CHUNDER GHOSE BAHADUR said :—

"My Lord, I should like to say that the internments have had a very wholesome effect on the country. We are safe as regards our lives and property as a result of the internment policy, and I, therefore, congratulate Your Lordship's Government, and especially the Government which preceded Your Lordship's arrival in this country for the steps taken to intern a large number of suspected persons; at the same time I must own that the feeling in the country is that a large number amongst these interned persons are innocent; that feeling is growing, and a growing feeling like this leads to discontent, and it is not desirable nor right that a wise Government should allow such discontent to grow. If the mover of this resolution has urged that an Advisory Committee should be appointed on the lines as prevail in England I do not quite see the precise objection to this suggestion being adopted. True, there is here in such cases a machinery for coming to a conclusion as to whether some particular person who has been arrested is guilty or not, and whether he should be interned or not, but there is a great difference between the opinion of an executive officer who performs this function at present and the opinion of a person who has been trained in judicial habits of thought, and the longer, My Lord, we delay in forming an Advisory Committee, the longer this discontent will grow. I am not following exactly my friend the Hon'ble Rai Radha Charan Pal Bahadur in the personnel of the Committee; it is not exactly necessary that a practising barrister or a resident of the place whence the interned person comes, should form members of the Committee. There might be some advantage in that; I am not saying that unless you do so the country will remain discontented. If two experienced judicial officers with habits of thought which would commend themselves to the people at large are appointed, it does not matter if no practising barrister does not find a place on the Committee. At the present moment, besides the confessions to which reference has been made by Your Lordship on the last occasion, the majority of the persons, who have been interned, have been so placed on the basis of Police papers, and the opinion which the gentleman who has been detailed to do the business of examining these records, forms of the guilt or otherwise of the persons arrested. I quite believe that the Police of the present day is far superior and far better in their methods, and their hands are more pure than what used to be in this country years ago, but we cannot forget that their conduct does not come up to the mark which Police officers have maintained in England and whatever reliance you can place upon the Police in England, you cannot place that amount of reliance upon the Police in this country. Most people here are aware of the fact that some years ago Sir Andrew Fraser was travelling in the district of Midnapore in a carriage, and below his carriage some bombs exploded, and the Lieutenant-Governor narrowly escaped with his life. The Police were on the spot almost immediately and arrested some coolies working on the line as culprits. True to their instincts they secured the inevitable confessions from these coolies, and these persons were produced before the Magistrate, and then there was a committal to the Sessions, and the Sessions

Resolutions.Sir H. Wheeler.

Court convicted them; there was an appeal preferred by these coolies before the highest Court of the land and the highest Court of the land comprising two of the best Judges confirmed the conviction. Just a year after that, there was the Maniktola bomb case in which certain people of education were arrested and they confessed that the placing of the bombs in the Midnapore district, to destroy the life of the Lieutenant-Governor, was done by them and not by the coolies, who had nothing to do with it. What did the Government do? The Government released the coolies; and came to the conclusion that the whole Police case was concocted. The persons engaged in investigating that case were not constables or head-constables, but superior Police officers, and here you have an instance as to how the Police work in this country. I for myself would be very cautious in acting upon Police papers. They are often useful, and they are necessary in order to know what has been done in the matter of investigation, but one has to be cautious, and the fact being so, and the fact that our countrymen who compose the Police force are not in their conduct such that you can say that they will always do what is just and proper and refuse to do what is not so, I cannot give that certificate of perfect integrity to my countrymen the Police officers. Therefore I say that you have to see that innocent persons do not suffer, and you have to see that by keeping innocent people in durance, that you do not allow the volume of discontent to grow."

The Hon'ble SIR HENRY WHEELER said :—

"Sir, when I received notice of the resolution which has just been moved by the Hon'ble Rai Radha Charan Pal Bahadur, I had some doubts as to its scope, and taking it in sequence to that which has fallen through owing to the absence of the Hon'ble Babu Akhil Chandra Datta, I imagined that the Hon'ble Rai Bahadur was concerned principally with the methods of dealing with men once interned under the Defence of India Act, granting that restrictions under that Act were required. It is evident, however, from his speech that he has paid but cursory attention to that side of the question, and has dealt mainly upon the larger issues whether Government is justified in taking action at all against the persons whom it has restrained under this Act, and upon the precautions which it should adopt and the advice with which it should fortify itself before taking action. That being so, the resolution really falls into two parts; and I will endeavour to deal with the larger issue first, although, as I have said, I imagined when I saw the resolution that it was mainly concerned with the second.

The proposal of the Hon'ble Rai Bahadur, as I understand it, is that in these matters, Government should fortify itself with the advice of an Advisory Committee, and although this resolution is not so specific as that of the Hon'ble Babu Akhil Chandra Datta, I gather that the Hon'ble Mover would like to have a non-official majority on that Committee, while from the tenor of his speech and the arguments that he has adduced, I think I am right in saying that he desires that the non-official element on that Committee should predominate. Well, Sir, before criticising that proposal, may I again repeat—and it is inevitable that I should, to some extent, recapitulate some of the arguments of which this Council are already aware—that it has never been the wish of Government to neglect any reasonably practical means of testing the value of the evidence against persons to whom restrictions under the Defence Act are applied, and it is absolutely inaccurate to insinuate, as is not infrequently done in some quarters, that action is taken casually on the uncorroborated statements of what are usually called Police spies. The papers are, of course, examined by Police officers; that is inevitable, but we have in this province appointed a special executive officer for the examination of papers quite independently of their scrutiny by the members of Government; and this Council is also aware that papers come before a judicial officer before orders are finally passed on them. These are in themselves valuable checks against mistakes, but, as is known, His Excellency has already stated that we are prepared to go further; we are referring the whole matter of the conspiracy in Bengal, under the terms of reference already published, to a Committee upon which there will be judicial officers of the highest standing, and it almost makes one despair when we are told that a Committee of that composition may be expected recklessly to endorse any scheme which, I think one Hon'ble Member said, Government may have ready up their sleeve. Apart from this Committee, we also contemplate referring all future cases of internment for the advice of a judicial committee of two Judges, and the adoption of that procedure is only awaiting the reply to correspondence which is pending with the Government of India. There are the precautions which we have already adopted and are adopting in the hope of meeting the doubts which have been expressed with moderation and restraint by the Hon'ble Rai Debender Chunder Ghosh Bahadur (the fairness of whose speech I quite recognise), and which we know are felt by people who are concerned about the administration of this Act. In addition to these precautions, the cases of those who have been restrained under the Act are constantly coming under the review of Government, and as Your Excellency mentioned at the previous meeting of Council, during the three months, August to October, no less than 65 persons have either been released on assurances of good behaviour or have had the degree of restraint over them mitigated. In fact, since the first enforcement of restrictions under this Act, the total number of persons who have been released from orders originally passed is 132. I would emphasise that process, which is a continuing one, and which largely depends on the conduct of these young men once they are placed under restriction, while it is a process we intend to pursue. But the proposal in the resolution is that we should go further and should adopt a step in the administration of the Act which would materially infringe upon the responsibility of Government for its enforcement. That is a position which we cannot accept. It was not contemplated by the Act when it was passed in the Imperial Council, while the Local Government, as such, are entrusted with the administration of the Act; and it is not a function of which we can absolve ourselves, however distasteful the steps that we have to take may be to us. Apart from the many serious difficulties that there may be in bringing before a Committee of the kind which the Hon'ble Member contemplates, information and matters which have been given to us in confidence, there is another objection to the proposal, and that is that at a time of stress and war like the present, when the internal peace and tranquillity of the country must be maintained, it must rest with Government to take action towards that end on its own responsibility in accordance with the law of which the administration has been made over to it. We are fully aware of the non-official criticisms that have been directed against the Act and of which we have had expression to-night. We have done our best, as I have explained, to remove any grounds of suspicion for its misuse which trouble the minds of some Hon'ble Members, and we are anxious to carry public opinion with us in what we think right and necessary by giving the public as full a statement of the case as is practicable. This was done on several occasions in Lord Carmichael's time, and it has only recently been done by Your Excellency. With the approaching meeting of the Committee presided over by Mr. Justice Rowlatt, it cannot be fairly said that we have baulked enquiry; in fact we have invited it. But in so far as by the appointment of that Committee the whole matter is, so to speak, sub judice, I would ask Hon'ble Members whether they would not be better advised to wait for the results of the enquiry which is about to be undertaken, before raising points which cannot but create a certain amount of prejudice around the whole subject.

So much for the first part of the resolution, and although the Hon'ble Member has not dealt with the second at equal length, it stands as part of his recommendations, and I must allude to it.

His proposals under this head relate to the methods of restraint which are enforced over these young men. May I tell the Council what the procedure is that we now adopt? The number of persons at present under restraint is 793, of whom 189 are in home domicile and 584 distributed in various places away from their homes. Assuming that Government is satisfied that restrictive action is required, the first thing to do is to decide where the détenu should be located. If this course is considered safe, the lenient step is adopted of permitting him to remain in home domicile, that is, placing him under the supervision of his relatives. If that is not possible, he must be sent elsewhere. Lists of such possible places are in the possession of Government, and from them the responsible officer selects a locality which, having regard to the facts of the case, is most likely to be satisfactory in fulfilling one of the objects of the Act, namely, to keep the détenu away from the associations and surroundings which have led to his downfall. When he arrives at the place chosen he passes under the supervision of the District Magistrate and the Superintendent of Police, and it is the duty of the former to see whether the pecuniary circumstances of the youth require the grant of allowance. If after making enquiries into the facts he is satisfied that they are correct he is authorised to make a grant of an appropriate amount, and he merely reports the matter for confirmation by Government.

This explanation covers the first two heads touched upon in the resolution. The third concerns educational facilities. In order to give Hon'ble Members some idea of the special pecuniary allowances that are made, I may state that at present some 535 détenus and 68 families are in receipt of allowances, while the total amount so disbursed amounts to about Rs. 18,000 monthly. As regards educational facilities, it is possible that in the case of a boy who is domiciled in his home some sort of home tuition might be permissible, but that is not possible in the case of foreign domicile if it is a question of permitting the boy to attend an educational institution. If there is anything clearer than another in the literature of the revolutionary conspiracy, it is the importance attached by the organisers of it to the contamination of boys in schools. They have persistently directed their efforts towards that end, and their instructions by which they hope to attain that object are minute. The fact that a boy is proceeded against under this Act and is placed under restraint means that he has been contaminated, and in the interests of other innocent boys, who are happily in the majority and still attending school, it is not possible that a boy of this kind, at any rate during the period of his restraint, should be allowed to mix with others. It is a misfortune for him no doubt; but it is only a part of the penalty he is paying for his misguided action.

This explains briefly the practice relative to the locality of detention, allowances and education. At headquarters, we have a special officer deputed to do this work and nothing else, and the volume of the work involved can be judged by the fact that he is one of the most hard-worked officers in the Secretariat. That being the position, is the proposal of the resolution practicable? To it, I submit, there are two objections. My first objection is that which I have already mentioned in connection with the first part of the resolution, namely, that the administration of the Act rests upon the responsibility of Government, and it is one which we cannot consent to be delegated or impaired. The constitution of the Committee advocated by the Hon'ble Member is somewhat curious, and the proposal to entrust executive functions to a judicial officer is scarcely one which I should have anticipated as emanating from its present source, while personally I cannot appreciate the particular qualifications of a member of the Calcutta Bar to deal with these essentially local questions. But, apart from these details it is the point of principle, namely, the impairing of the responsibility of Government, to which I mainly take exception. I recognise that the Committee will comprise officials as well as non-officials, but from our point of view we have our accredited officers in the District Magistrates and Superintendents of Police, who are on the spot and best able to ascertain the facts, and I do not see why we should ignore their presence in these matters and place them before other officials in order that the latter may advise on questions for which they have no particular qualification, which are matters of local knowledge, and which are not immediately their concern.

My second objection is to the proposal that the Committee should deal with the details indicated. As those who have had experience of the working of our Legislative Councils are aware, there are two methods which are not infrequently adopted of frustrating action to which exception is taken. The first, if a measure is disliked, is to oppose it in toto. If that is not successful, the second is to propose a system of practical working which will bring the whole machine to a standstill. The present proposal is of the second kind. This point has been already taken by the Hon'ble Mr. Aminur Rahman, who realises that a Committee sitting in Calcutta will not be able to deal with questions affecting all parts of the province where these détenus are kept. If the Committee relies on the reports of local officers we are no better off than in dealing with these reports direct. If they trust the co-opted local members, they merely constitute as arbiter an unknown resident of the district on whose dictum in these matters we cannot be expected to rely. Moreover, in practice, looking to the mere volume of the work, it could not go through if it had to be referred to a Committee at every stage. Circumstances may arise which necessitate a modification of the original orders. These details may arise for decision at any moment. Is it seriously proposed that the Committee should sit in perpetual session or is it suggested that they should be convened on every occasion? The officer of Government who is at present entrusted with these particular functions is sitting daily at the Secretariat, and in no other way could he discharge these functions.

Another point to which I desire to draw attention is that these details of method do not merely concern the convenience of the person who has been dealt with under the Act. In order to decide where a man should be placed under restraint and what amount of restraint should be exercised, the officer passing the orders requires to be acquainted with what the charges against the man are, who his associates are, and in fact the whole relation of that man to the revolutionary movement; taking all these factors into consideration, he passes orders for restriction. It would be impossible to lay all these facts before a Committee without placing them in judgment upon the whole administration of the Act, which brings us back to the objections I have already taken to what I have described as the first part of the Hon'ble Member's resolution.

If these objections which I have urged are valid what do we gain by a proposal of this kind? It is made presumably in the interests of these détenus, but the answers given to questions asked about them, taken as a whole, show that they are already treated with consideration. Complaints there may be; it is inevitable that there should be, but in that connection I may mention one point for the consideration of the Council. Supposing it is proved that our contention is right, and that these boys who are being dealt with under the Act are members of a revolutionary conspiracy, is there any more obvious method for such a conspiracy to adopt than to promulgate constant complaints and rumours as to the treatment and martyrdom of the men to whom the Act has been applied? It is an obvious thing for any member of the conspiracy to do, and a curious instance of it came into our hands only the other day in the shape of a letter addressed to a relation of one of these boys. If I may read to the Council an extract from this, it will show clearly what I mean. It was written to the relation of a détenu to whom I will refer as A, and runs:—

‘Those of the détenus who do not plead their cause through the medium of newspapers do not get any concessions from Government and have no chance of being interned at home: “A” should, therefore, send in a petition every week. All these petitions are to be sent to the Superintendent of Police. If these petitions produce no good result the Additional Secretary, Government of Bengal, and the Deputy Inspector-General of Police, Intelligence Branch, are to be petitioned simultaneously in the same words.

“A” should send in a petition to the Superintendent of Police, saying that he had never been away from home and is, therefore, not accustomed to live in foreign climate; that he generally falls ill in that place; that he is getting worse day by day, which may lead to some serious illness endangering his life; that for these reasons it would be better if he is allowed home domicile; that as his father is a poor man the allowance should continue even in home domicile, though it may be a little curtailed; that in giving home domicile Government will keep him in good health and will not have to spend quite as much for his maintenance and will afford him facilities for nursing his sickly mother and brother. I have written all these to “A” in a clever way, and have asked him to keep you informed whenever he submits any petition regarding his illness, wants or complaints.’

I refer to this letter in order to show the possibility, the obvious possibility, of utilising the spread of rumours as one of the methods of defeating the administration of the Act. India is known as a country where rumours circulate and circulate widely, and I would ask Hon'ble Members not to accept as gospel truth everything which they hear in this connection. With reference to the remarks of the Hon'ble Babu Bhabendra Chandra Roy who, at a previous meeting, said ‘if I were to believe all the reports that are conveyed to us, I could unfold here a harrowing tale of misery and suffering,’ I would ask the Hon'ble Member if he is in possession of these harrowing tales and reports to take them to the accredited officers of Government to whom other people find no hesitation in going, and I can assure him that an enquiry will be made into them. My information is that the Hon'ble Member has neither been to Mr. Cumming nor to Mr. Stephenson and placed them in possession of these harrowing tales with which he seeks to make the flesh of the Council creep. If he will do so, our officers will enquire into his allegations just as they have enquired into matters which have been brought to their notice by questions and in the papers.

Some Hon'ble Members have made general comments on the policy of the Act, more particularly with reference to men who are detained under Regulation III of 1818, which do not come strictly within the terms of the resolution, and I have purposely confined myself to the proposals of the resolution, but I would submit that, for the reasons I have given, they should prove unacceptable to the Council."

Resolutions.Rai Radha Charan Pal Bahadur.

The Hon'ble RAI RADHA CHARAN PAL BAHADUR said :—

"My Lord, I have listened with great attention to the speech which has been delivered by the Hon'ble Sir Henry Wheeler. In the first place, if I have followed him aright, he has contended that from the very beginning there was opposition to the passing of this Act and then proposals are made to hamper the practical working of the Act. I do not understand whether he thereby means in all seriousness that I am the person who has been from the very beginning hampering the Government in the administration of the Act. If by simply sending in this resolution I have done that, then I must respectfully repudiate that charge. Sir, if sitting quiet, dumb in this Council and listening only to the explanations vouchsafed from the Government side, without making any suggestions, honestly offering assistance to Government by making these suggestions—if these attempts are interpreted as hampering the Government then I must say, Sir, that we must bid good-bye to all our aspirations for the association of my countrymen with the Government in the administration of the country. Sir, in my observations both to-day and at the budget debate, I have acknowledged that we have derived benefit by the internment of a number of persons, but, Sir, if we were to stop there, and if we did not tell Your Excellency that there is a deep and widespread feeling in this country, we should be failing in our duty. I know that Government are not trying to ignore that feeling, but I do know that there is a deep and widespread feeling that these cases are not properly investigated and are decided on the reports and ex-parte statements of Police officers. I do not agree with all that is said by a very large number of people. I do not agree with those who say that all the people that have been interned are innocent, and I do not agree, in spite of the high authority of Sir Henry Wheeler, that all the people that are interned are guilty. In order to reassure the public mind on the subject, and in order to strengthen the hands of Government some sober and moderate members of our community have submitted this motion for your consideration. I do not understand what is the practical difficulty and how the acceptance of this resolution will hamper the administration of the law. Sir Henry Wheeler has pointed out—if I have followed him aright—that I wanted a non-official majority on this Committee. I have never said that I wanted a non-official majority or minority, all I have suggested is that a practising lawyer who is capable of attesting evidence, should be associated with it. He may be an official or a non-official; he may be the Advocate-General or the Standing Counsel, or he may be an independent practitioner. Have you not nominated Mr. Provash Chunder Mitter, a member of the Committee, to be associated with Justice Rowlatt to inquire and investigate into the existence of a widespread conspiracy in this country? Is he not a practising lawyer? Does not the responsibility rest upon Government to show whether there is widespread conspiracy or not and to devise measures to combat it. Why have you then appointed the Committee to advise the Government in this matter? So, I think, My Lord, my resolution is a perfectly genuine one, intended honestly to help and strengthen the hands of Government. At the last budget debate I said there is no difference between the Government and the people except as to the method in which this Act is being administered. My countrymen are exactly of the same opinion and if it is stated that a single officer of Government or even two judges to whom the case will be referred, will give satisfaction, I must say, My Lord, that that will not be the case, because in this matter you must trust to a certain extent, my countrymen, and if you take a responsible member of my community to be associated with the two judges upon whom the Government must rely on, I think it would go a great way to reassure the public mind. Then, My Lord, as regards the co-opted member I will give one instance as an illustration. The Criminal Investigation Department makes a report on a certain case of a bhadralok; he comes and inquires of somebody in the locality as to what the character of this young man is, and he reports on that statement. If that person makes a statement which is adverse to the interests of the young man because he has got some grudge against him, the report goes gradually step by step to the officer who disposes of these cases. If you appoint a co-opted member, for instance the Hon'ble Raja Hrishikesh Laha, who lives close to my locality, in connection with a particular case or cases in that locality, then I believe the Government will be in a better position to know whether that person from whom the information was derived is actually a man upon whose word you can rely, I do not think there will be any difficulty in choosing co-opted members.

Resolutions.

Rai Radha Charan Pal Bahadur.

Sir Henry Wheeler stated that a large sum of money is spent for the maintenance of the families of détenus and on the détenus themselves. I have never complained that the Government are neglecting them, but what I state is that whatever allowance is made by Government is made on the recommendation of certain officers who may not be so well informed as a resident of the locality would be. It has been stated that transference of this power to an Advisory Committee will infringe upon the responsibility of Government. That argument, however, does not hold good, because you have yourselves appointed a Committee to investigate into this very matter. Your Excellency in that last speech has clearly stated that there is a widespread conspiracy in this country. and if you are convinced of it, why shirk the responsibility and appoint a Committee to advise upon the same matter. As it is too late I would only say if this resolution be not accepted in some form or other there will be great disappointment in this country and I hope that our motives and our actions will not be misinterpreted."

A division was then taken with the following result :—

RESOLUTIONS.LIST OF BUSINESS—ITEM No. 10.

The Hon'ble BABU AMBIKA CHARAN MAZUMDAR moved the following resolution :—

This Council recommends to the Governor in Council that—

- (1) the Bengal Government Municipal Department circulars No. 11M., dated the 24th February, 1916, and No. 2445M., dated the 25th September, 1916, which give an interpretation of the law that imposes restrictions on Municipal electorates, be either withdrawn or modified so as to remove such restrictions ; and
- (2) if this is not possible, section 15 of the Bengal Municipal Act, 1884, be amended so as to remove the restrictions in question and that the operation of the circulars referred to, be suspended pending such amendment.

He said :—

" My Lord, at a meeting of this Council held on the 5th March, 1917, I moved a resolution for the extension of the municipal corporations in this Presidency. I then pointed out that we had made very little progress in this direction as compared with other provinces. The slight increase in the number of municipalities in Bengal was mainly due to the splitting up of certain riparian municipalities near about Calcutta. It was also pointed out that out of a total of subdivisinal towns within this Presidency no less than 21 subdivisinal towns are without any municipality and therefore without any adequate provisions either for the conservancy or for the sanitation of those places. The real policy of the Government has been not to increase the number of municipalities, but gradually to absorb the subdivisinal towns inside rural areas by incorporating them with Union Committees. My Lord, that resolution was a retrograde step. To-day I stand to draw attention to another phase of the municipal election which aims at greatly emasculating and curtailing the present. My Lord, by narrow interpretations of the law as existing at Municipalities. One is a tax or rate on holding which is the proper municipal taxation, and the other is a tax on persons levied according to the means and circumstances of persons occupying holdings, and this is the prevailing tax in most of the municipalities in the interior of the country. It is practically the Municipal Act was taken in consideration of income-tax. In 1884, when the as to the qualification of voters, there was an agitation to a minimum taxation of property. The property qualification was reduced and section 15 which deals with that did not satisfy the public, who urged for an additional qualification. That did not satisfy the public, who and section 15 which deals with qualification of voters had added to it a sub-section, viz., sub-section (3), which gave this privilege to the educated community and in this sub-section laid down that graduates, under-graduates and licentiates of the law should also be entitled to vote. revenue agents should also be entitled to vote. licensed pleaders, mukhtars and tax for the holdings in which they reside and although they may not pay any else, and if they reside there and the tax may be paid by somebody would be entitled to vote by virtue of a portion of their holdings they the first circular which wanted to give educational qualifications. Now, the educated community was given this important privilege of 1916. That circular says that Government dated the 24th February. certain students have given votes at certain interpretations come to know that think it right that certain students in statu pupilarum and therefore they and it was held that students in statu pupilarum would mean given to section 15(3), vote. That in the first instance would mean given to section 15(3), and has also got a holding within a municipality and not be entitled to who has left off his study, and the other son has got two sons prosecuting his studies for the higher M. A. (if one son is a B. A. this circular it would come to this that the son possessed the B. A. is with an inferior degree would be entitled to vote the operation of category of students in statu pupilarum would be determined off his studies the circular goes on to state that the occupation of a person being in the section 15(3) should be confined to an exclusive occupation. Then of rights. I quite understand, my Lord, that mere occupation as ought not to be considered as occupation within the municipality as there is this difficulty:—Is the occupation of the son a stranger taxes within the municipality not to be considered as a stranger circular? I contend that occupation there does not mean who pays occupation or occupation as of right. Surely we are not to make a distinction between the bare physical occupation of a person and that of a son or grandson living with his parents and possessing a share in the holding. There may be also cases in which, although the owner, the son's occupation is also derived from some other right that be classed in the same category as the occupation of a student. My Lord, the circular goes on to say that where the student does his room his occupation is no occupation. My Lord, we have things from the West which we gratefully acknowledge, but we

Resolutions.

Babu Ambika Charan Mazumdar.

Resolutions.

Babu Ambica Charan Mazumdar.

learn that in this country a son should pay rent to his father for the room he occupies in the house. And what does 'exclusive occupation' mean? How can there be exclusive occupation in the strict sense of the term? A father has got two sons, one of whom is a mukhtar and the other a pleader. They can have no exclusive right to any particular rooms they occupy. The father, as the rightful owner, may some times allot some other rooms to them. So this interpretation based on a state of things which does not exist in this country at all is, I consider, most unfair, because in this country sons, grandsons, nephews and others live together in the same house under the direction of the pater familias. Although they may have separate rooms allotted to them, still it cannot be either exclusive possession or possession as of right. If the legislature of 1884 intended to give such a construction on the word 'occupation', then I think there would have been no sub-section (3) to section 15. And I submit, My Lord, to the fair judgment of this Council to consider that if this circular were to be enforced, whether sub-section (3) of section 15 would not be a nullity. Can it be suggested that under any conceivable circumstances a son cannot live in the house without paying rent to his father or without having exclusive possession of a room? I particularly take exception to the circular where it refers to students. The expression status pupilaris does not occur in the section and why should you interpolate it? It may be very different in the case of students living in hostels or messes who do not live for the whole term through and may not satisfy all the requirements of section 15, but what I object to is that graduates and under-graduates and all those persons who have been given the privilege of voting under section 15(3) should have exclusive occupation and pay something by way of rent in order to qualify themselves as voters. If the circular stands, then that section would go. In the face of this circular that section cannot stand. That is my first objection.

The second circular goes a step further. I am referring to circular No. 2445, dated the 25th September. That circular arose out of a peculiar circumstance. In the municipality of Comilla at the last general election two persons belonging to a joint family appeared at the polling station and each wanted to vote for a different candidate. The polling officer very properly refused to record the vote of either of them and referred the matter to the Magistrate who cancelled the election. I think he was perfectly right there. Then the case was referred to Government and this circular was issued which goes to extreme lengths in construing section 15 of the Municipal Act. It lays down broadly—I need not read it out as it is a lengthy one—that a joint family has no right to vote. It is said that as a joint family is not a corporate body, strictly speaking, under the law, no member of it would be entitled to vote, although they pay a requisite taxation jointly. It is also said that business firms or persons occupying a joint holding unless registered under the Company's Act have no corporate existence and as such are not entitled to vote. This is no doubt a plausible argument in favour of this contention, and I ought to draw the closest attention of the Council to this point. The word 'person' is not defined in the Municipal Act and we have to refer to the Bengal General Clauses Act for a definition of this term. In section 3 of the Bengal General Clauses Act it is said that 'person' includes any Company, any Association, or any body of individuals, whether incorporated or not. The General Clauses Act was passed in 1899 and the Bengal Municipal Act in 1884. In section 5 of the General Clauses Act there is a provision that this definition of 'person' shall apply to all enactments passed since the passing of the General Clauses Act, otherwise the word 'person' would include only a corporate body or association. But the Municipal Act being of 1884 the General Clauses Act cannot be invoked for the purpose of giving the wider definition to the word 'person.' But here I would ask the Council to consider one point. Whenever an Act is amended, it takes a new start whatever may be the nature of the amendment,

Resolutions.

Babu Ambika Charan Mazumdar.

and although the name may be of the old Act, it is still cited as an Act amended by such and such Acts. My contention is that when an Act is amended it takes a new lease of life from the date of the amendment, whatever the extent of the modification may be. The Bengal Municipal Act of 1884 was amended for the last time in 1900 for the purpose of meeting certain cases of the Darjeeling Municipality, and if my view be correct, then the definition of 'person' in clause 3 of the General Clauses Act ought also to apply to the Bengal Municipal Act and if it is so applied in that case the circular is distinctly ultra vires, because section 3 says it would refer to any body or Association, whether incorporated or not. Thus even though a joint family may not be strictly called a corporate body, still it is the union of a number of individuals with certain manners and customs, and whether they are incorporated or not they should be allowed under the law to vote. Similarly in the case of business firms there is no valid reason why they should be debarred from voting.

Now, My Lord, I will ask your attention to the effect of these two circulars. I have received several complaints from various quarters. I have received a letter from the Chairman of the Mymensingh Municipality, from the Secretary of the Naraingunge Mahajan Sabha, and from various other persons complaining that if these two circulars operate municipal elections would become a farce. I will not content myself by simply giving my opinion but I will cite a concrete case. I know of many such cases, but I think one will suffice. In a municipality consisting of 15,000 souls there are no more than 2,300 rate-payers, that is to say, 16 per cent. of the population pay any taxes. Out of these 2,300, only 918 or, in round numbers, 900 persons are voters. That would be 6 per cent. of the whole population. Therefore the situation is this: that out of a population of 15,000 only 900 persons, that is, 6 per cent. of the whole population, return the Commissioners. And if these two circulars are brought into operation, the number of voters in many of the municipalities would come below 5 per cent. of the whole population and in some below 4 per cent. Now contemplate the result of such an election. Out of every 100 persons only 4 persons will return the Commissioners! I doubt whether such an election would be worth the name. I hope and trust that these circulars will be either withdrawn or liberally construed.

There is another aspect of this question. Mufassal municipalities are efficient bodies who have been satisfactorily carrying on their work, particularly sanitation and conservancy works. Most of the municipalities have provided themselves with pure drinking water for their constituents and they attend regularly to the conservancy of the towns: They pay for primary education and do other useful things; but apart from those, in congested areas the municipalities have proved most efficient and useful bodies for the purpose of preserving the health and convenience of the people. The election in such municipalities ought to be more representative and the electorates ought to be enlarged. I do not think it would be politic of the Government to cut down the electorates and curb and curtail them so as to reduce to its minimum, the utility of these institutions, and I hope and trust that the question of the two circulars should not be lightly treated. The first circular introduces words which are not in the section and no one, not even a judge, can introduce words into a section which that section does not contain. The word 'student' is not there and why should you introduce it into the section? Such is also the case in regard to occupation of holdings. The word 'person' in the second circular also comes under section 3 and not section 5 of the General Clauses Act. The Bengal Municipal Act was last amended in 1900 and the General Clauses Act was passed in 1892, and therefore I think the definition in the latter Act applies to the case of the former.

I hope that this resolution will be accepted by the Government in the spirit in which it is offered. I do not mean to embarrass the Government or to tamper with its prestige. It is a pure question of honest interpretation; it is a simple proposition. When we are asking for reforms there are those who are reminding us that we must first improve the local self-governing institutions, and when we come to the local self-governing institutions, they are improved with vengeance by being curbed and emasculated. I submit that these circulars have proceeded from a retrograde spirit and they ought to be at once removed. But if the Government find themselves hopelessly in a position not to be able to withdraw the circulars after they have once passed out of their hands, if that be the position, then I say, let section 15 be amended. If Mahomet will not come to the mountain let the mountain go to Mahomet. If the circulars cannot be withdrawn, let the law be changed, which of course will be done in Council and not in the quiet recesses of the Secretariat. At least let these circulars be suspended, because the general election of many municipalities will shortly come up, and if they are to be enforced now, it will cause great prejudice to many of the municipal elections."

The Hon'ble RAI MAHENDRA CHANDRA MITRA BAHADUR said :—

"My Lord, I beg to support the resolution which has been so ably moved by my learned friend. There are two questions which deserve the consideration of the Council: firstly, as to the legality of the circulars, and, secondly, as to the expediency of giving a full operation to them. Referring to the legal view of the question it appears to me that the circulars have been conceived in a very illiberal spirit. The Council will note that so far as the law is concerned the residential clause is a most important one, but I cannot imagine how the sons who have a joint family house can be told that they are not in possession. The Council will kindly consider also that the possession of the father is also considered to be the possession of the sons. In a joint family there are two or three brothers and each brother has joint possession in the dwelling house, and can it be contended that one brother has exclusive possession in it? Under the Dayabhaga law each brother is considered as a co-sharer, and to my regret I learn that only one should represent the family as a voter because the joint family is not a corporate body. As the Chairman of a mufassal municipality, I have tried to explain to the brothers that only one of them should represent the family, but they could not and did not understand why each of them should not vote. There are difficulties in administering the law in that way, and it is very difficult to see how the law can be administered in the spirit in which the circulars have been issued.

Then, again, referring to the expediency of having the circulars in operation, I have to submit to Your Excellency that the educated portion of the community is excluded from voting. Why do I say this? Because a qualified voter is entitled to be elected as a Commissioner. Now if the educated portion of the community be excluded, naturally we will find that there is weakness in the strength of the Commissioners who are elected by the people. It is therefore necessary that a favourable interpretation should be given to the circulars. The election rules were enacted in 1896, and I will take this opportunity of bringing to Your Excellency's notice that these rules ought to be modified. They are antiquated rules, and at the end of every election we find that Chairmen are made defendants in Civil Courts for giving wrong interpretation to the rules. If you refer to any annotated edition of the Municipal Act, you will find that the High Court has to interpret almost every rule. It argues therefore that the rules are defective, and it is high time for Your Excellency's Government to consider whether these rules, which were drafted in 1896, should still be in operation to the fullest extent. I am aware of a circular which was issued by the Bengal Government on the authority of the Advocate-General, stating that writs of injunction should not be issued by Civil Courts withholding an election. Of course that circular was issued in 1897, and to my regret I submit that the Civil Courts did not pay any heed to the opinion of the Advocate-General, although it was a weighty one. There are various concrete cases which I can put before the Council showing the defective nature of the rules. These rules no doubt are enacted under the authority of section 15. To my mind section 15 ought to be modified along with the rules which are based upon the provisions of that section. I have submitted my views to Your Excellency because I feel the difficulty of interpreting the old rules which are in force now. Under altered circumstances the rules demand fresh consideration. I do not know whether I am justified in raising this point at a time when the area of discussion raised by my hon'ble friend is a limited one and thereby trespassing upon the time of the Council, but I do submit and submit again for the consideration of the Council and of Your Excellency that attention should be given to the humble suggestion which I have made just now. My Lord, I must say one word more, namely, that the Bengal Municipal Act ought to be amended in various ways. One who has read the law carefully will, perhaps, agree with me, that the Act itself has already become an antiquated one, although it was passed only in 1884. Your Excellency's Government have taken the trouble of re-drafting the Calcutta Municipal Act and my humble submission before this Council is that this Act may also be re-drafted."

The Hon'ble BABU SURENDRA NATH RAY said :—

"My Lord, I support the resolution of my hon'ble friend Babu Ambika Charan Mazumdar for the reasons given by him. I have been the Chairman of an important municipality for 20 years, and I beg to submit that the interpretation now put by the learned Advocate-General, a high law officer of the Crown, has taken us all by surprise. That has not been the accepted interpretation of these words for so long, that is, ever since the Act came into operation in 1884. Section 15 of the Act lays down that 'any person who immediately preceding such election has paid in respect of the rates an aggregate amount of not less than Rs. 3 would be entitled to vote.'

And then sub-section (iii) says :—

'being a graduate or licentiate of any University, or having passed the First Arts Examination of the Calcutta University or the corresponding standard of any other University, or holding a license, granted by any Government vernacular school, to practise medicine, or holding a certificate authorising him to practise as a pleader or as a mukhtar or as a revenue-agent—occupies a holding, or part of a holding, in respect of which there has been paid, during the year aforesaid, in respect of any rates, an aggregate amount of not less than three rupees, shall be entitled to vote at the election of Commissioners of such Municipality.

If the payment of Rs. 3 be the only condition to entitle a person to become a voter, then the other clause of the section, namely, that which lays down certain educational qualifications to entitle a person to become a voter, would be superfluous. That clause then has no meaning at all, because from the interpretation put by the Advocate-General it seems that only persons who pay rates and taxes to the extent of Rs. 3 are entitled to vote.

Then as regards the other circular about the right of voting by persons belonging to joint families, I think there has been a good deal of discussion on this question for a very long time. Under the old rules of the Calcutta Corporation, I believe, members of a joint family could nominate even an outsider to vote for them. I hear that the rule has subsequently been changed, and it is now only a member of the family whom the other members can nominate to vote on their behalf. In mufassal municipalities, so far as I am aware, the karta of a family used to vote. About eight years ago I had occasion to consult a District officer—I may name him, Mr. Bompas about this, and he advised us that if the members of a joint family paid Rs. 6 as rates and taxes, and if there were two brothers in the family, both the brothers were entitled to vote. That practice has been followed for the last eight or ten years in my municipality. As regards the right of graduates to vote, I think it is clear that mufassal municipalities are bound by the interpretation put by the law officer of the Crown and if the Government thinks that they cannot act against the circular, then it is necessary to amend the law on the subject. But I think it would not be necessary to amend the law; the election rules might be amended instead. And as regards the right of voting by the members of a joint family, the question is not very clear, and in this connection, I think, it would not only be necessary to amend the election rules, but also the law on the subject."

The Hon'ble BABU KISHORI MOHAN CHAUDHURI said :—

"My Lord, I need not do any more than give my whole-hearted support to the resolution. Sub-section (3), to my mind, was introduced so as to allow a large number of educated persons living in joint families to participate in the municipal elections. But the result of the circular will be to exclude these persons. When the Act was passed, the legislature of the time did not intend that a very narrow view should be taken of it. If any difficulty has arisen, then the law may be amended. I believe it will be amended soon and then the matter may be fully discussed. It should be the aim that the electorates should be more enlightened and more educated. Otherwise the municipal administration would be a farce. In that view, I think, the circulars should be suspended, and if there be any difficulty the amendment of the section should be taken in hand. With these words I support the resolution, and I hope it will be accepted by the Council."

The Hon'ble BABU MAHENDRA NATH RAY said :—

"My Lord, the question before the Council, I take it, is whether the two circulars referred to in the resolutions lay down or give a wrong interpretation of section 15 of the Bengal Municipal Act. If they do, then the request that they should be withdrawn would be a perfectly fair one. If they do not, then the Government, as an executive authority, are powerless in the matter. There is a further question raised in the second part of the resolution, namely, that if the circulars give a correct interpretation of the law, the law might be amended. The learned speakers who have preceded me are all lawyers and some of them, I understand, are Chairmen of mufassal municipalities. The opinion they have expressed to the effect that these circulars are based upon a wrong interpretation of the law is certainly entitled to weight, and I am not going to discuss that question here. So far as the first circular is concerned—the circular of February, 1916—the question as to whether the interpretation of the law contained in that circular is correct or not depends upon the proper meaning of the words 'occupies holding'. Whether it was contemplated when section 15 was enacted that this occupation need not be legal occupation, but includes physical occupation not based upon right, is perhaps a difficult question, and speaking for myself I thought that the opinion of the Advocate-General was correct. But whether the legislature meant that at the time when section 15 was enacted is a very different matter. With regard to the September circular, the question of the right interpretation of the law depends upon the word 'person'. The second circular, to my mind, causes very little difficulty in working the rules. My hon'ble friend, Babu Mahendra Nath Ray, intimated that Mr. Bompas had told him some time ago that there would be no difficulty in working out the rules under section 15 in the case of joint families under the Bengal school so as to cause no hardship whatever. The joint family under the Bengal school may not be a 'person' and the interpretation of the law as laid down in the September circular may be perfectly correct, but if a joint family consisted of, say, A, B and C, A may represent the joint family and there is nothing in the law, nothing in the circular, to prevent him from representing the joint family. All that the circular pointed out was the incorrectness of the theory that A, B and C constituting members of a body consisting of A, B and C must present themselves as a composite body and give their votes. I do not think any member can object to what the circular said on that point. And if A, B and C constitute the members of a joint family, it is perfectly open to them with the consent of the members of the family to make A to represent that family and there is, I say, nothing in the circular of September, 1916, nor in section 15 to prevent that being done. It has been worked in this way in some of the municipalities of which I have personal knowledge, but whether it has been worked correctly or not is another matter. In the municipality of Howrah, for instance—we need not go any farther—the rule which has been hitherto followed is this: Suppose a joint family consisted of A, B, C and D, and the whole family is liable to pay a rate of Rs. 18 quarterly. Each of these men, A, B, C and D, is registered in the demand register as an occupier or a holder and in the voters' list as a voter, and I say there is nothing in the circular of September, 1916, nor in section 15 to prevent this being done. I speak subject to correction of course. But we are now concerned with the legality or the propriety of this circular of September, 1916. That circular, however, so far as it says that a 'person' does not include a joint family may or may not be correct, but it does not work any mischief and therefore that circular need not be considered unless the law officers of the Crown are advised that it is based upon a wrong interpretation of the law. With regard to the first circular the law laid down—or rather the interpretation of the law in that circular—is perhaps correct, but it has worked mischief, and I am bound to point out that this matter requires serious consideration by the Government. It is time that gentlemen possessed of educational qualifications, such as are set out in section 15, should have the power of voting at municipal elections irrespective of their right of ownership or right as legal owners or occupiers of a holding within the municipality. There are lawyers, and if the lawyers are a very unpopular body I shall leave them out of account, but there are teachers and school masters and others who are a very useful body of men possessing educational qualifications—that I take it is the most important qualification—but who may not occupy a holding in the legal sense of the term;—whether these men, possessed of educational qualifications and residents within the limits of a municipality for a year as required under section 15, but not owners or occupiers of holding in the legal sense;—whether people of this description should be debarred from taking part at a municipal election is a very serious and important question. To my mind they ought not to be debarred. If they possessed the requisite residential qualifications they ought to have the right of voting, irrespective of any legal right of occupation of property. That, I am afraid, will need an amendment of the law, and so far as the proposal contained in the second part of my hon'ble friend's resolution is concerned, it has my full sympathy, but mainly in respect of the matter which I have just referred to, namely, the question as to whether persons possessed of adequate educational qualifications and satisfying the residential qualifications should or should not be permitted to take part at municipal elections irrespective of their right of ownership or legal occupation. I respectfully submit that they should be permitted.

Resolutions.Maulvi Abul Kasem ; Rai Radha Charan Pal Bahadur.

The Hon'ble MAULVI ABUL KASEM said :—

"My Lord, I beg to support the resolution which has been moved by the Hon'ble Babu Ambika Charan Mazumdar. Certainly the educated section of the community and educated boys should have the right to vote at municipal elections, because they are best qualified to exercise the franchise that has been granted to us. In the municipality of Burdwan, if these circulars are given effect to, one of our most useful Commissioners will not only cease to be such, but will also cease to be a voter because his father pays the rates and taxes and the son does not pay for his room nor has he the holding in his name. My Lord, I do not think it is necessary for me to add anything to what has been said by some of our distinguished lawyers to the interpretation put by the Advocate-General on the section. We have in this Council at the present moment a very high authority on law in the Hon'ble Member in charge of Local Self-Government. I think the Municipal Act should be amended so as to include all enlightened people in the list of voters.

My Lord, my object in rising to support the resolution has also been to draw Your Excellency's attention and also that of the House to the unfortunate remarks which fell from the lips of the Hon'ble Mover of the resolution—I mean his remarks about Mohamed and the mountain. That, my Lord, is a fiction invented by over-zealous Christian missionaries and has no foundation in fact. I would be wanting in my sense of duty if I did not draw Your Excellency's and the Hon'ble Mover's attention to it. And I pray that these words may be deleted from the proceedings of the meeting."

The Hon'ble RAI RADHA CHARAN PAL BAHADUR said :—

"My Lord, some reference has been made to the system followed in the Calcutta Municipality in connection with the circular issued on the authority of the opinion of the Advocate-General regarding the voting power of a joint family. I think the practice followed in the Calcutta Municipality is such a simple one that it can be followed without any disadvantage in other municipalities. In Calcutta a joint family consisting of three or four members is empowered to vote under the new rule sanctioned by Government about a year ago by nominating one of the members to vote on their behalf. But they must send their nominee to the Chairman of the Corporation by the 1st of January preceding an election. As regards associations of persons, companies and firms, the rule is that any one employed in the firm or a member of the firm can, by an authority previously sent to the Chairman, claim to have his name entered in the voters' list and can also vote in the municipal election. I do not know whether there is any such rule in connection with the mufassal municipalities. If there is none, then I think it should be introduced in the mufassal, as this rule was approved by the Calcutta Corporation as also by the Local Government. For these reasons, My Lord, I support the resolution of my hon'ble friend. Although I am not a resident of a mufassal municipality, I find from the section which has been shown to me that any one possessing certain educational qualifications is entitled to vote. I do not know whether it means that any person who is not a bona fide occupier of a holding is entitled to vote simply because he has passed an University examination. I do not also quite understand why there should be any difficulty in connection with the occupier of a holding who pays a certain amount of tax to the municipality. In Calcutta, My Lord, any owner or occupier of a building, whether educated or uneducated, who pays a certain amount of tax, is entitled to vote. According to section 15 of the Bengal Municipal Act, a literate person if he is also the occupier of a holding is entitled to vote. But I do not know whether the karta of a family as well as his son who has passed an examination are both entitled to vote. That is not the practice in Calcutta. But quite apart from educational qualifications, I think, my Lord, that the primary qualification should be that the voter should be an occupier of a holding in respect of which rates are paid. That should be the primary qualification. These are my views, My Lord, which I submit for the consideration of the Council."

Resolutions.Sir S. P. Sinha.

The Hon'ble SIR S. P. SINHA said :—

"My Lord, I feel even now somewhat doubtful as to whether the exact nature of the question at issue has been clearly explained to the Council. We have heard of two circulars which the Hon'ble Babu Ambika Charan Mazumdar would like to be withdrawn. The mover of the resolution goes further and says that if they be not withdrawn the law ought to be amended.

The first question therefore is—what are these circulars about and why they have been issued and why by the Government? I will just state, as simply as I can, the answer to these questions. We have all heard of the Municipal Act a section in which lays down the qualifications of persons entitled to vote at municipal elections. I will not trouble the Council by reading the section, because it is hardly the function of the Council to interpret the law, though it is its function to make it. That section lays down the qualification of voters. Under that section, a question was raised not long ago whether two classes of persons were entitled to vote, i.e., whether the language of that section included two classes of persons. The question having arisen the officers of Government, whose duty it is to make up the registers of voters, referred it to Government for advice, asking what the law meant and whether the law, as it existed then, included these two classes of persons or not,—the two classes of persons being, first, students living with their parents or in hostels or messes, and, secondly, members of a Hindu joint family. The Government could only do one thing on such a reference being made, namely, refer it to their highest legal advisers for their opinion on the meaning of the section, and this they did. They were advised that the section meant a particular thing; they put that in the circular and sent it to the officers who had asked for the advice. The officers naturally acted on that advice. But the fact that they did act upon it does not necessarily mean that it was correct. If it is wrong, it is open to anybody who is aggrieved to go to the Courts and say 'I have been wrongly excluded from voting; I ought to have been included'. The circular is nothing more than a communication by the Government that their law officer, the Advocate-General, is of opinion that the section means so and so. They cannot very well withdraw it until their law officer says that he was wrong. It does not really matter to anybody whether it is withdrawn or not, because it is open to anybody, who thinks that it is wrong, to go to the nearest Munsif's Court and say that the opinion of the Advocate-General is not worth the paper it is written upon, and the Court will thereupon decide as to whether the Advocate-General was right or whether he was wrong.

The Hon'ble Rai Mahendra Chandra Mitra Bahadur himself mentioned a case in which the Advocate-General's opinion was treated in that way by the Courts with regard to injunctions; so it is liable to be treated with regard to these two matters in the same way if they are wrong. There seems to be some difference in regard to the matter. The Hon'ble Babu Mahendra Nath Ray says that the Advocate-General was right in regard to both these matters. On the other hand, I find that four or five distinguished lawyers in this Council think that the Advocate-General was wrong. It is rather difficult to choose between these two views, and the only course open to Government—so long as the Advocate-General adheres to his opinion—is to say that is how they are advised. It is open to anybody to contest the opinion in the law courts. Therefore, so far as the circulars are concerned, I think it is hardly a matter upon which the Council can express an opinion as to the meaning of the section—which is for the law courts to decide. With regard to it, the Government must necessarily be guided by the opinion of its highest legal officers.

So far as the merits of the matter are concerned, I will deal immediately with them. It does seem somewhat anomalous that members of a joint Hindu family should not be entitled to vote. The Hon'ble Babu Mahendra Nath Ray, whose experience as Chairman of one of the largest municipalities—namely, Howrah—must carry weight, says that in practice it does not cause any difficulty. In Calcutta the rule is different, because the section is different. The section in the Calcutta Act expressly gives the right to vote to a member of a joint Hindu family. The section in the Bengal Act does not; and I think it right to say that when the next amendment of the Bengal Act takes place, this matter should receive careful consideration, because it is no use leaving it as a matter for interpretation. Although no practical inconvenience has been caused, as the Hon'ble Babu Mahendra Nath Ray has pointed out, it will probably be necessary to go into that question and put the law on the same footing as the law in Calcutta, in order that no question may arise in future.

Now as regards the second question of students living with parents or guardians or in hostels and messes, it is hardly right to say, as the Hon'ble Babu Ambika Charan Mazumdar has said, that the interpretation of the law as mentioned in the circular is due to any policy or any desire on the part of the Government to restrict the right of municipal voters. To start with that idea is not correct. It is not a matter of policy that the circular was issued, but merely in answer to a request as to what the law meant and after obtaining the advice of the law officers. It is not a question of policy; it is a question as to what the law as it stands means. We can only take it from the law officers until the courts pronounce upon it and say that the law officers were right or not? There is no question of policy involved in this matter at all.

As regards the section itself, it deals not only with educational qualifications, namely, the passing of a certain examination, but also certain property qualifications; it involves both. That is how it has been interpreted by the Advocate-General and, as the Hon'ble Babu Mahendra Nath Ray has remarked, he is probably right or it may be that he is wrong; but if it is intended or if it is desired that educational qualifications apart from any property qualifications, divorced altogether from any other qualification, should be sufficient to give every resident within the municipality the right to vote, well that ought to be made clear—again I say, when the law is next amended. Whether that ought to be so or not is a very large question; whether educational qualification irrespective of any other qualifications should or should not give the municipal vote, is a question upon which I, at any rate, have an open mind, and I have no doubt that when the Act is next amended, my friends who desire that such should be the rule would place all their arguments before us, and I can only promise that when the Act is next amended—and I think it must be amended very soon, having regard to the length of time that has elapsed since it was passed in 1884—both these matters will receive our careful and sympathetic consideration. But I venture to think that it is hardly the correct procedure to ask this Council to put a construction or interpretation upon the law, as it is not one of the functions of this Council."

The Hon'ble BABU AMBIKA CHARAN MAZUMDAR said :—

"My Lord, in rising to reply, I shall have to notice ~~some~~ several some of the points which have been raised in this debate. First of all, I shall take some of the points raised by my esteemed friend to the right (Hon'ble Babu

Resolutions.Sir S. P. Sinha ; Babu Ambika Charan Mazumdar.

Mahendra Nath Ray), who thinks that one of the circulars at least does not interfere with the rights of voters, that is to say, circular No. 2445M. The concluding portion of that circular will show that my hon'ble friend has reckoned without his host. After discussing the question of the joint family, it summarises thus : 'For the above reasons a joint family has no legal capacity to vote.' I fully agree with my hon'ble friend to the right that according to practice one of the circulars may not interfere with the right to vote. I know the practice in different mufassal municipalities has been somewhat different and the opinion of the Advocate-General may not interfere with this practice. We have not the law of Calcutta in the mufassal. I myself was associated with one of these municipalities for the last twenty years and I know what the practice was in the case of joint family. We used to call upon the members of a joint family to elect or nominate one of them to be entered in the voters' register. The register for taxes is one and voters' list is another ; so that there may be half a dozen names put together in the register for assessment, but at the time of election when we had to prepare the voters' list we used to put the name of one of them, as may be decided amongst the members of the joint family, as the qualified voter. But what the municipalities apprehend and complain of is that under the circular no such thing will be allowed, because it is said that a joint family has no legal capacity to vote ; so that it would be inadvisable to let it remain like this, as many would think that the whole family is disfranchised.

In the next place, the circular says that 'for the above reasons a body of persons who hold or carry on business jointly, not being an incorporated association, is not entitled to vote.' So, in those cases in which there is a partnership business and those businesses are often very large, any member of these may also be asked to exercise the right to vote in a municipality. I fully admit that every member of a family and every partner of business may not go to the polling station and be allowed to vote. I contend however that this circular, as it has been worded, is a serious obstacle in the way of voting by these bodies who sometimes pay the heaviest taxes.

My esteemed friend, the Hon'ble Sir S. P. Sinha, has said : 'Well, we do not debar you from voting ; we act upon the advice of our legal advisers.' Very well, My Lord, you can act on the advice of your legal advisers, but where is the guarantee that legal advice tendered by the Government may be ignored and that the municipalities are not bound to obey the interpretation given by Government and with whose advice they need not agree ? It may be that at their instance, the circular No. 2445M. was issued, but it does not show that any legal advice was taken in connection with it."

The Hon'ble SIR S. P. SINHA said :—

"Legal advice was taken on both these cases."

The Hon'ble BABU AMBIKA CHARAN MAZUMDAR said :—

"Well, My Lord, I did not know that, but it may be so ; but I submit that the advice of the Advocate-General ought not to have been of this elastic or dubious character. It is openly and broadly said that joint families are not entitled to vote and joint business firms unless registered have not the capacity to vote. The Government may fairly interpret this circular and say that they did not mean absolutely to debar these bodies from voting, but they free to elect one of their members to exercise the franchise. If Government were to say that, it will clear up the matter.

Then my hon'ble friend, Sir S. P. Sinha, says that we may go to the Civil Court. If that is so, My Lord, it is a very large order. For every blessed case the party will have to go to the Civil Court and run considerable expense. It is not a very easy matter and besides how many people would agree to fight it out. How many people will agree to fight with the Government? If that day ever comes, when people will risk everything for their political privileges then these laws, these circulars and these interpretations will be scattered to the winds. But we are still bound under the constitution of the day to obey Government circulars. Government's opinion carries considerable weight, and it is not possible for every one to go to the civil court to contest the validity of a circular in every possible case.

Resolutions.

Babu Ambika Charan Mazumdar.

Then, My Lord, with regard to the Circular letter No. 11M.—in statu popularis—both myself and my hon'ble friend Babu Mahendra Nath Ray have pointed out that under that interpretation given sub-section 3 of section 15 becomes a nullity. There is not a single case where it may be pointed out that it may be possible for any graduate, under-graduate or licentiate to vote, if that interpretation holds good. That was a special qualification in the case of mufassal municipalities which my hon'ble friend Rai Radha Charan Pal Bahadur cannot possibly understand, because in Calcutta, which is the centre of light and leading, of education and of enlightenment, the people were not under the necessity of having such a privilege. Mufassal is not what Calcutta is, and therefore in mufassal a special privilege was given by sub-section 3 that educational qualifications, irrespective of any property qualification, would entitle a person to vote, and therefore, the word 'occupation' should not have been so strictly construed as it has been done by this circular, for if that were the intention of Government to insist on exclusive occupation as of right it would not have at all embodied such a sub-section which can have no practical application. Then, My Lord, Your Excellency will observe that in every section it is said 'owner or occupier'; and the legislature of 1884 distinctly meant to bring in a distinction between rightful possession and possession of some different kind. I do not mean merely possession by sufferance. I may not draw out the distinction but I do feel that there is some distinction between the occupation of a son and that of a stranger in the house.

Then, My Lord, I have only one word to say with reference to the expression which fell from my friend, the Hon'ble Maulvi Abul Kasem. He is a graduate of the Calcutta University and a highly cultured gentleman. He should have never taken exception to my expression 'if Mahomet does not come to the mountain, the mountain must come to Mahomet'. That expression has got currency in the English language and is understood to mean that if a person who ought to yield does not yield, then the higher body will yield. I never meant any offence to my hon'ble friend and it was never my intention to hurt his feelings. I hope my hon'ble friend will excuse me if I have offended him. The expression is a common one and it is always understood by people in the sense I have used it.

In conclusion, I would only say one word. There is no knowing when the Municipal Act may come in for amendment. I have already said that the general election of a large number of municipal bodies will come on within this year, and this circular will seriously operate upon these elections. I have already said that the Government, if it does not mean to be altogether reactionary, might explain these circulars. I do not want Government to cancel them, if it is offensive to the dignity and position of the Advocate-General, but it might say that it does mean that in the case of joint families, they may elect some person—some one among them for the voters' list—and in the case of students in statu popularis I submit that that circular, at all events, ought to make it plain that it does not mean that this 'occupation' must mean an 'occupation as of right' or that the possession should be exclusive possession. If the circulars are not binding Government had no business to circulate them amongst these municipalities when Government circulate these opinions they thereby indirectly bind these bodies to follow these circulars. If its object is not to abrogate the right that has been given to educated men in the municipal, it ought not simply to issue these circulars and sit quiet and say that you can do whatever you like and go to the Civil Court or even to the High Court. In moving this resolution, I have approached the question in the spirit that the circulars may be so explained or modified as to give a due and proper interpretation to section 15. Of course if the Government will not do this. I hope hon'ble members, who have heard me, will consider whether from the spirit in which I have approached it, it ought not to have been readily accepted by Government."

Resolutions.

Rai Mahendra Chandra Mitra Bahadur.

LIST OF BUSINESS—ITEM No. 11.

The Hon'ble RAI MAHENDRA CHANDRA MITRA BAHADUR moved the following resolution :—

This Council recommends to the Governor in Council that a committee of officials and non-officials be appointed to investigate the heavy economic loss sustained this year by the jute cultivators in Bengal, and to devise ways and means to prevent distress among them.

He said :—

"My Lord, in moving this resolution I think it necessary to go into some detail about the jute industry of Bengal. It is an industry of which Bengal has a monopoly. In the early eighties experiments were made in jute culture in Egypt, and in the Dundee Trade Report of March 23rd, 1881, the following statement appeared :—Some samples of jute grown in Egypt are being sown here. Reports on quality are varied ; but considering it is a first attempt, on the whole satisfactory. But the project does not appear to have gone much further, no doubt on account of the cost of labour making the cost of production impossible. In Bengal they had suggested cotton bagging for coffee in place of jute ; but so far nothing practical has eventuated. In India itself jute has not been a success, excepting in the districts of Bengal. The history of the rapid development of the industry reads like a romance—jute cultivation to-day rivalling rice-cultivation in the Province. During the opening years of the nineteenth century the agricultural product jute was limited to supplying the wants of small handloom industry. The export of the raw material was unknown. The value of said jute exported in 1829 was approximately £500 ; in 1913 it was close on £20,000,000. In 1855, a beginning in spinning and weaving was made in Calcutta and the first mill was erected at Rishra on a piece of land at present occupied by the Wellington Mills. It produced an outturn of some eight to ten tons a day. At the present time there are some forty-six mills on the River Hooghly with a total of close on 40,000 looms, employing very nearly a quarter of a million Indian labourers, having a capital of over £13,000,000 (including debentures and reserves), and using three-quarters of a million tons of coal per annum. The outturn of the manufactured articles which was about 8 tons per day in 1885 is, in normal years, 3,000 tons per day, or nearly four times as much as Dundee produces. The following list of jute-spinning and weaving mills taken from Mr. McLeod's paper read before the Indian Section of the Royal Society of Arts is approximately correct and will show the importance of this great industry :—

Resolutions.Rai Mahendra Chandra Mitra Bahadur.

In 1874, Sir George Campbell, the then Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal, advocated the prohibition of the export of rice from Bengal during famine. When confronted with the argument that such prohibition might drive foreign purchasers to Burma for good he replied that he doubted very much if such effect would really be bad. 'Our Bengal Province', he said 'are so densely populated, and they produce so many valuable articles sought for in commerce, that the difficulty is not to use our land, but to find land for all that it is desired to grow without interfering with the food of the population. The demand for jute seems to go on increasing without limit'. The exports of raw jute, given in thousands of rupees, was in 1910-11 no less than 15,48,99. The next year saw a rise to 22,55,66. In 1912-13, we find 27,05,07. And the next year saw a swelling up to 30,82,64. As far gunny bags—1910-11 it was 8,56,40, and in 1914-15 12,59,44. An agricultural product which gives the people of the Province such an income deserves special care and attention. Not only does the industry bring the peasant 20 to 30 millions sterling annually, but it supports in addition something like a quarter of a million factory operatives and their dependants. It has created busy lives of human labour like Naraingunge where huge godowns, line river banks either side, tin-roofed, red-bricked, ugly with all modernity—tall chimneys towering behind them and huge cranes swinging on the landing stages—the river alive with craft and boats of every size anchored against the banks. That the Government has not been slow to recognise the importance of this industry will be evident from the endeavours of the Agricultural Department which are worthy of praise. The Department has been busy producing and distributing good jute seed. And it has rendered practical service by the investigation of what is known as "heart damage" in baled jute, a mysterious process of deterioration which causes an entire loss of tensile strength. Though the cry is that jute is displacing rice to a dangerous extent the people have not desisted from increasing the area under jute. Because when there is a struggle among the more valuable staples, the rice export is only valuable in so far as it gives us a surplus to fall back upon in times of scarcity; and because with the extension of railways it is neither easy nor advisable to check the increase of the area under jute and oilseeds and its encroachment upon rice land.

The war had dealt this industry a heavy blow—Germany and Austria-Hungary were two of our most important customers. The export of raw jute to these countries (in thousands of rupees) were as follows :—

		1910-11.	1911-12.	1912-13.
Germany • ...	3,61,24	5,08,59	5,73,06
Austria	90,66	1,32,55	1,65,04

In 1913-14, the figure for Germany was 6,74,84 and that for Austria-Hungary 1,97,91. Then the war broke out and there was a drop.

In 1914-15 Germany could take only 1,32,14 and Austria-Hungary not more than 50,86. But that was not all. The war dislocated trade and the difficulty about freight told heavily upon the export trade of India. That year the United Kingdom took only 6,74,30 worth of jute in place of 11,73,95 of the previous year and France not more than 85,66 in place of 3,06,76. The total export of raw jute fell from 30,82,64 to 12,91,02. Since then the export to the enemy countries has been stopped and increased difficulty of transport has diminished export to others. But the area under jute has not decreased proportionately. The total average in 1915-16 was 2,086,300 the normal area in Bengal being not more than 2,643,800. In 1916-17 instead of a decrease, there seems to have been a tendency towards increase. In Nadia the area was 67,200 against the normal 49,400. In Khulna it was 22,100 against a normal of 18,300. In

Resolutions.Rai Mahendra Chandra Mitra Bahadur.

Midnapore it was 12,100 against 10,400. Thus a large surplus is growing up which is a drag of the market and which is forcing down the price of jute. Here I would like to mention that with the growing demand of jute the cost of production has increased considerably. And I remember how at the Annual General Meeting of the Indian Jute Mills' Association (January 1915) the Chairman alluded to the danger due to a rise in the price. He discussed the proposal of levying an export tax on jute to supplant German and Austrian trade and said—'Whatever else the Germans may be they have already shown signs of chafing under the excessively high prices that have in recent years ruled for a commodity whose principal claim to popularity is its cheapness'. Not only has inferior land been brought under cultivation, but the rate of rent has gone up. Mr. Chaudhuri had about five years back estimated the cost of production at Rs. 3-8 a maund; but now it is probably over Rs. 4. Sir William Duke has pointed out how, with the extension of cultivation, hired labour was more and more being resorted to the price of such labour in Bengal now being pretty high. The rates in the neighbourhood of Dacca and Serajgunj had recently been as high as a rupee a day. Thus the price that the cultivator can now get for his jute barely comes the cost of production. But he cannot find customers for his entire production. This is a serious state of affairs. The tocsin of alarm was sounded long ago by organs of public opinion like the Basumati and Sanjibani. And recently Capital has given 'a timely warning' to Your Excellency's Government. I will quote an extract from Capital—'The jute crop for the present season will be far in excess of any possible demand, and it is of vital importance that the mills should consume every maund of jute possible. The annual jute mill consumption, when running full time, is from 55 to 60 lakhs of bales of 400 lbs. net each, etc., etc., etc. The mills began the new season (1st July) with an average stock equal to six months' short-time consumption. This represents about the maximum quantity for which they have godown accommodation in Calcutta and the mufassal. The forecast recently to hand estimates crop at 90 lakhs of bales, although private advices make it still larger, and if the mills by 1st July 1918 are in the same position as this year, i.e., with six months' stock, there will still be 45 lakhs of bales to be disposed of, less, quantity exported. It behoves the Bengal Government to take timely warning and to do everything in their power to prevent distress in Bengal among the cultivators. We need scarcely point out how much more serious the political unrest will become otherwise.'

My Lord, since I submitted the resolution my worst apprehensions have turned out true. Every morning we get disquieting news of looting in the mufassal bazars. I have heard a proclamation issued by Mr. F. A. Sachse, District Magistrate, Noakhali, in which to preclude the possibility of looting in the bazars, he has penalised the holding of hâts after 3 p.m. He has openly admitted that as long as the war continues prices will remain high and there is the chance of looting recurring in the bazars. And as it is impossible to station armed police in all bazars he orders, under section 144 of the Criminal Procedure Code, the closing of all bazars at 3 p.m. This, My Lord, is a serious state of affairs. And I am sure it is receiving that consideration from Your Excellency's Government which it demands. But I must say that though our police may be powerful enough to restore tranquillity in disturbed areas they will not be able to eradicate the possibility of a recurrence of disturbance as long as they have to deal with that dangerous element—a poor peasantry subject to hunger and exasperation. Not only should these poor peasants be relieved of their present distress; but steps should also be taken to induce them not to give up the cultivation of jute in despair. True who had reckoned on an earlier peace? But the war cannot be indefinitely prolonged. And when normal conditions return there will be the same increasing demand for jute and then the cultivators of Bengal will reap a golden harvest which will obliterate every scar.

My Lord, I will not pause to discuss remedial measures. Agricultural loans have, in times of distress, acted like April showers on the thirsty earth. The Co-operative Credit Societies are now trying to reduce and ultimately to remove agricultural indebtedness. Their sphere of usefulness may be extended. I am aware of the tender solicitude the Government has always evinced for the peasants. I recall, with pleasure, Lord Curzon's words about 'the real people of India:—'It is the Indian poor, the Indian peasant, the patient, humble silent millions, the 80 per cent. who live by agriculture, who know very little of policies, but who profit or suffer by their results, and whom men's eyes, even the eyes of their own countrymen, too often forget, to them I refer. He has been in the background of every policy for which I have been responsible, of every surplus of which I have assisted in the disposition. We see him not in the splendour or the opulence, nor even in the Squalor of great cities; he reads no newspapers and for, as a rule, he cannot read at all; he has no policies. But he is the bone and sinew of the country, by the sweat of his brow the soil is tilled, from his labour comes one-fourth of the national income, he should be the first and the final object of every Viceroy's regard.' I know the interest Your Excellency takes in these peasants 'the real people' of Bengal whom you have visited in their humble huts observing them in their hours of careless relaxation and enquiring after their needs. And I hope my proposal to device means to prevent distress among them will find favour with Your Excellency as also with my colleagues who are directly interested in them and whose greatest ambition it is to serve them with a view to ameliorate their condition.

The Hon'ble Mr. MACKENZIE said :—

"My Lord, my hon'ble friend, the mover of this resolution, has treated us to a history of the jute trade, I have listened to it with interest but most of it is quite irrelevant to the question before the Council. I notice he is very partial to Committees of Enquiry having proposals for no less than three such committees on the list of business for to-day. He has evidently much greater faith in the efficacy of such committees than I have. The impression I have formed is that most of them are a mere waste of time and I do not think the one he now suggests would prove to be any exception. It seems quite unnecessary to appoint a committee to inquire into causes which are obvious and, as the mover has himself shown, the reasons for the present dullness in the jute market are not far to seek. The whole of the Central European market is closed, freight for such markets as are still open is distinctly limited, while the local mills with the best intentions in the world are unable to deal with the balance of the crop for the very good reason that practically every square inch of the available warehouse accommodation is occupied.

The mover has drawn a harrowing picture of starving cultivators but it is quite incorrect, according to my information, to say that the heavy economic loss referred to in the resolution has been by any means general. In the Eastern districts, at all events, quite a considerable portion of the crop was disposed of early in the season at satisfactory prices and although later there may have been a decline it has been counterbalanced by a large yield per acre. In certain other districts however such as Northern Bengal, Rungpur, Rajshahi and the Daisee districts a combination of a poor crop and low prices has resulted in a certain amount of hardship.

The whole situation however has been greatly ameliorated by a bumper crop of rice and I do not think there is any reason to apprehend any widespread distress although you will hear all about it the moment the cultivator gets to know that a committee has been appointed to inquire into the matter.

Resolutions.

Babu Kishori Mohan Chaudhuri; Babu Brojendra Kishore Ray Chaudhuri; Mr. Provash Chunder Mitter.

I think it will be quite sufficient for the present if District Officers are instructed to carefully watch the position.

In this connection it might not be out of place to mention that Government are offering throughout the whole of the districts profitable employment in various Labour and Porter Corps for Mesopotamia and elsewhere and the fact that very few recruits are coming forward would hardly seem to indicate that the cultivators are in the condition described by the mover. At all events if they do not choose to avail of the opportunity of employment offered them it is difficult to see what more Government can do."

The Hon'ble BABU KISHORI MOHAN CHAUDHURI said :—

"My Lord, I think a Government inquiry is needed. There is no doubt that the jute market is dull. It is not possible to have a large export at present. The question is how the materials can be utilized. The jute growers did grow jute in the hope of getting better prices just after the conclusion of the war. The price of gunny-bags, which are used for carrying paddy and rice, has gone very high. What is the reason for this? Is it on account of the labour question or is there any difficulty for the manufacture of these gunny-bags in the jute mills? Jute itself is very cheap, but the price of gunny-bags is very high. There is a great demand for these bags no doubt. So, I think that an inquiry by the Government as suggested by the Hon'ble Mover may do some good, and in that view I support the resolution."

The Hon'ble BABU BROJENDRA KISHORE RAY CHAUDHURI said :—

"My Lord, as representative of the landholders of the Dacca Division, which is well known to be the chief jute growing part of the Province, I feel it my duty to support this resolution. As an eye witness I can well say that the distress of the jute growers has been such that the well wishers of the cultivators must immediately step forward and do all that is possible under the existing circumstances. I know how the Government are anxious to help the poor raiyats and I feel sure that in this instance their case will receive the unstinted support of this Council. With these few words, I beg to support this resolution."

The Hon'ble MR. PROVASH CHUNDER MITTER said :—

"My Lord, I desire to say a few words on this resolution, and I may say at the outset that my reasons are perhaps not the same as those of my hon'ble friend, Rai Mahendra Chandra Mitra Bahadur. The economic condition of the raiyats in Bengal are well known. They get their money by the sale of jute and by the sale of paddy. By this money they have to buy their dhooties and their salt which are imported into Bengal. On account of the war and to nobody's fault and on account of the difficulty of tonnage, the price of both these articles has gone up very high. It is but natural that the cash value of jute and of paddy has gone down. The principal market available here is the local jute mills; they manufacture only a certain quantity of jute, and therefore it is no use saying that they ought to buy more. These being the conditions of the market it follows that the price has gone down. On the other hand, the effect on the low price of jute and paddy means that the raiyats have less available cash to buy their necessities and the result is an economic difficulty in various parts of this Province. We already hear of the looting of hats and bazars in some of the outlying districts of Noakhali, Bakerganj and Rangpur, and I for one feel that unless Government look into the matter very carefully, perhaps further difficulties may have to be faced in future. I do not think that the best way to deal with the question will be by the appointment of a committee, as has been suggested by my hon'ble friend ; but I should like to impress upon Your Excellency's Government—and I have no doubt Your Excellency's government are already impressed with that fact—that the question requires consideration, and the only way that the question can be properly considered is by way of friendly co-operation between the only market available, viz., the local jute mills and the jute-growers. The other question is how to make it possible for the raiyats to buy their necessities for the lowest possible amount. The economic questions are so intermixed with one another that an inquiry seems desirable, but for the present that inquiry should be instituted by Government, taking such evidence formally and informally as the Government think fit."

Resolutions.Babu Ambika Charan Mazumdar ; Mr. Cumming.

The Hon'ble BABU AMBIKA CHARAN MAZUMDAR said :—

"My Lord, the question raised seems to be one of extreme difficulty ; it is a question of supply and demand. Bengal is able to put forth much more than either India or England can consume. It had a market outside the Empire and that market has been closed. I do not see how the Government can tackle a question like this directly. Of course, I fully support my friend's resolution that a committee of enquiry be appointed to investigate into the causes of the low prices of jute and the difficulties with which the cultivators are confronted ; but, My Lord, it seems to me that the difficulties of the raiyats are not simply owing to the fall in the price of jute, but also to a corresponding rise in other articles of food and use. I know it is the complaint of the jute-grower that he cannot purchase a pair of cloth for one maund of jute that he brings to the market, and the price of salt—the most ordinary article of consumption—has also gone up ; so that it seems to me that it is high time for Government in connection with this resolution to intervene for regulating the prices of various articles of food as well of use. Although no means can be devised for the consumption of more jute, still an enquiry might be made to show, through the Agricultural Department of Government, to the raiyats that it is not wise to grow as much jute as they had been growing before. More economical persons might also resort to the practice of burning excess articles and thereby keeping up the market. Whatever that may be, it seems to me that an enquiry ought to be held, if not actually to help the raising of the price of jute, at least for the purpose of regulating the quantity that might be produced in Bengal. To suit the exigencies of the situation, some steps might be taken to regulate the prices of other articles and thereby relieve to a large extent the difficulties of the jute-growers who are unable to tide over their difficulties with jute.

The Hon'ble MR. CUMMING said :—

Sir, the purport of the resolution is that a committee of officials and non-officials be appointed to investigate the heavy economic loss sustained this year by the jute cultivators in Bengal, and to devise ways and means to prevent distress among them.

The great importance of the jute industry needs no comment, and the Hon'ble Mover and other Hon'ble Members have pointed out how far it is bound up with the agriculture of Northern and Eastern Bengal. The reason for the present condition can be explained in one word, namely, the effect of the war ; and I do not think that a committee is required to find out that very prominent truth. Now the elucidation of economic problems is a very interesting and important matter and in connection with the jute cultivation and the jute industry within the last three years there have been most elaborate and detailed enquiries made by this Government ; in 1913-14 there was one; in 1914-15 there was one; last year, 1916, there was one; and there has been a continuous enquiry since the beginning of the present year up to the present moment. I do not think therefore that Members of Council or the Hon'ble Mover need be under any apprehension that the Government are not keeping a close attention to the situation. But the main issue in this resolution is whether there is such distress as to require State relief. It is known that State relief was given in 1914, when similar circumstances arose. I shall endeavour shortly to explain the circumstances in the present year in comparison with those in 1914. But I will say at once as regards this main issue—the question whether such distress exists as to require State relief, that it is clear that the existing machinery of Government should suffice to bring that to the notice of Government. I agree with one of the Hon'ble Members, who does not think that a committee of this kind would achieve any good, because the main point is already known to Government and all the economic data are already in the possession of Government. So far no officers have represented to Government that the condition is such as to require the special measures that were adopted in 1914. It is quite obvious that there has been a loss this year compared with what the cultivators might have got if they had a good market; but I have had personal experience in the matter of jute cultivation for over a quarter of a century and I can say that Eastern Bengal raiyats are fairly alive to the fluctuations of the jute market; they take the mishaps of a year with a good deal of philosophy and they are only too ready to redistribute their arrangements in subsequent years. I said that the present situation may be compared with that in 1914 when, it is true, Government did take measures. I shall put the comparison under a few heads and I shall be very brief under each.

First of all, in comparison with 1914, the increase in the area since last year is very much less than the increase in the area was in 1914 after 1913; that is a material point. In the next place, the average price per maund this year is 25 per cent. higher than it was in 1914. Then, this year the raiyats have had a fair warning. The fall came in 1914 with dramatic abruptness. This year the fall has been gradual and continuous since the month of January last. Further more, the raiyats have learnt wisdom. During the very prosperous years before 1913 the raiyats were becoming rather indolent and getting their work done by means of hired labour. In the present year they have put their shoulders to the wheel more, and have realised that they must do more work themselves and depend less upon hired labour. Another important matter is as regards the amount of crop that has been disposed of and brought into Calcutta. In the present year the proportion of the gross crop brought into Calcutta by the middle of the current month of December was about 26 per cent., whereas in 1914, the proportion of the crop of that year that had been brought into Calcutta was only 18 per cent.

I think, Sir, that if all these points are considered together it will be realised that economically the raiyats in Bengal who cultivate jute are better off this year than they were in 1914. But it does not follow that the matter does not require very careful consideration. Government have kept their eyes wide open for danger signals, and although they are not prepared to say that, on account of the factors that have been mentioned in the course of the debate, viz., the increase in the price of wearing materials and salt—which is of course due ultimately to the same difficulty of overseas tonnage, the position is dangerous, yet so far, in the areas in which jute is most grown, no clear indication has been given to Government that the raiyats require relief at the expense of the State. In fact, I may be pardoned for wondering why the Hon'ble Rai Mahendra Chandra Mitra Bahadur, representing the Burdwan Division in Western Bengal, should feel called upon to bring this resolution before the Council. His Division, I find, gives this year an outturn of about 70,000 maunds out of a total 2½ millions of maunds in the whole of Bengal. I do not, of course, lay any stress upon that. I again say that Government is keeping the situation well before them; they have been continually examining and re-examining the matter since the month of July last; and while there is always a possibility of adopting the measures of relief which were given in 1914, there is a possibility also of adopting the measures of relief such as those suggested by the Hon'ble Babu Ambika Charan Mazumdar. These are points however of which the Government are well aware; but I doubt very much whether a committee can give us much assistance. On these grounds that Government have the economic data in their possession and are giving very close attention to the situation, I trust the Hon'ble Member will see his way to withdraw the resolution.

The Hon'ble RAI MAHENDRA CHANDRA MITRA BAHADUR said:—

"My Lord, in putting this resolution before the Council, it was my object to appoint a committee to investigate into the causes of the economic loss sustained by the jute cultivators in Bengal. I put before the Council all the information I have obtained on the subject, and when I am assured that inquiries have already been made on the subject and Government are quite alert as regards the subject matter in discussion, I beg to withdraw the resolution I have brought forward."

The resolution was then, by leave of the President, withdrawn.

LIST OF BUSINESS—ITEM No. 12.

The Hon'ble RAI MAHENDRA CHANDRA MITRA BAHADUR moved the following resolution:—

This Council recommends to the Governor in Council that a committee be appointed consisting, amongst others, of the Commissioner of the Burdwan Division, the Collector of Hooghly, the District Magistrate of Howrah, the Subdivisional Officer of Uluberia and the Executive Engineer, Northern Embankment and Drainage Division, to examine the water courses in the villages of Gazipur and Sonamukhi in thana Amta, Kandarpapur or Hature, Jot Bireshwar, Latibpur and Khanpur in thana Bagnan, in the district of Howrah, where many thousands of acres of paddy fields are still under deep water, causing heavy damage to the winter rice crop, and also to devise means for draining out the water from these fields as early as possible, and to take such steps as may be necessary for the prevention of similar devastation in the future.

He said:—

"My Lord, I need not detain the Council long on this matter, as the resolution speaks for itself. On a previous occasion I asked a question about the sluice in the Damodar left embankment in mauza Gazipur. In reply I was told that there was only one vent, and its size was given as 2 feet by 4 feet 3 inches. It was used previously for purposes of irrigation when the lands were drained through other channels which have now silted up. The total cultivated area in the village of Sonamukhi was given as approximately 1,000 bighas and that in Gazipur as 1,500 bighas. It was admitted that the village of Sonamukhi is occasionally drained through this sluice. I need hardly tell Your Excellency that the existing arrangement of draining out rain water from paddy fields as referred to in the resolution is very unsatisfactory and calculated to cause heavy damage to the crop.

From the reply given by Mr. C. Addams-Williams, the Executive Engineer, Northern Drainage and Embankment Division, in his letter No. 1509, dated the 4th March 1908, to the Secretary, Hooghly and Howrah

Resolutions.

Rai Mahendra Chandra Mitra Bahadur.

District Association, I noticed that in July 1899, in September 1900, in September 1901 and in July 1905, several mauzas in the Amta Basin were all submerged in water and there were no crops. The average annual yield of crops in 1906 was about three-fourth but in 1907 it was only one-eighth.

Again, in reply to my question asked at the Council meeting of September last, regarding the annual outturn of winter rice during the last few years, I was told that during two years, the peasants got a quarter crop, during two more years an one-eighth crop and during three years they had none.

Your Excellency who takes a keen interest in the poor cultivators will now understand that the extent of injury sustained by the raiyats is beyond human belief.

The other day, Sir James Meston, while reviewing the work of the Agricultural Department of the United Provinces during the past year, did not conceal his conviction that 'in its days of prosperity the Government devoted far too small a share of its surplus revenues to the development of India's first and greatest industry,' and His Honour trusts that this error will not be repeated. The above remarks apply to Bengal as well.

To solve the economic problem that lies at the root of all reforms, we should go out into the real Bengal and must discuss the question from remote unofficial places with the children of the soil who suffer most from the floods. We should adopt the method of seeing and understanding the crying wants of the teeming millions whose interests are the crux of all problems. They live in lands full of promise and loyalty, but fuller still of the oppression of the mahajans and natural but preventible calamities.

The supply of water from different sources is so ample that "the crops are immune from failure due to drought," but on the other hand they very often suffer from floods causing ravages and devastations.

In 1873, Colonel Haig, Chief Engineer of Bengal, was deputed to make an engineering survey and he strongly recommended, among other things, the Amta scheme.

My friend, the Hon'ble Mr. O'Malley, has rightly observed in his valuable treatise, the Gazetteer of Howrah, from which I cannot help quoting the following paragraph :—

'The completion of the entire project for the drainage of the district by carrying out the Amta scheme proposed over 30 years ago appears desirable on many grounds. It would not only add hundreds of acres to the cultivated area and improve thousands of acres of low lands—an important consideration in a district which does not raise enough food for its consumption. It would also drain a water-logged locality in which malarial fever threatens to be endemic, owing to the stagnant water being the breeding ground of the malaria-bearing anopheles mosquito. In its present state, moreover, the waters flooding the Amta basin not only damage the Amta crops three or four years out of every five, but also threaten to swamp the western part of the Rajapur basin.'

In Bengal Government Resolution No. 875, dated the 3rd July 1906, it was observed that the Board of Revenue were 'disposed to agree with the Government that a standing committee for each district, including the Commissioner of the Division, the Superintending Engineer, the Collector of the district and the Executive Engineer might, with advantage, be constituted. Such a committee would bring the civil officers and professional officers into closer relation, and proposals started by the former or the latter would be discussed without the delay inevitable to correspondence.'

This was written with respect to Orissa, but 'the general principle that the Engineers and the Revenue Officers should work in conjunction applies everywhere.'

Resolutions.Mr. Cumming.

'It is also very desirable that the Engineer and Revenue Officers should discuss locally suggestions for minor irrigation schemes or for improvements in drainage, and that landholders interested should join in the discussion.'

It was resolved by Government and was therefore directed that 'standing committees shall be formed for all districts. The committees to be constituted as under :—

President	The Commissioner of the Division.
Vice-President and Secretary			The Collector of the district.
			The Superintending Engineer in whose Circle the district lies.
			The Executive Engineer in whose Division the district lies.
			The District Engineer.
Members			Such landholders or other gentlemen directly interested in any schemes as may be appointed by Government on the recommendation of the Collector and with the approval of the Commissioner.

The committees will consider questions relating to—

I.—Flood embankments—

- (a) New works, including as such sluices or escapes for existing embankments.
- (b) Alterations in the alignment of existing embankments, such as are caused by important retirements. This will include the discussion of the policy of holding a threatened bank by protective works in preference to the retirement of the embankment.
- (c) Proposals for raising the level of the crest of an embankment.
- (d) All questions in which there is any doubt as to the interpretation to be given to the provisions of the Embankment Act or of contracts for the maintenance of embankments.

II.—Any proposal which may be suggested for a minor irrigation work.

III.—Any scheme which may be proposed for improvement in drainage.

IV.—Any matter referred by Government for opinion.'

I, therefore, earnestly request Your Excellency that a committee be appointed to examine the condition of the locality and suggest means for the proper drainage of rain water from these fields as early as possible to prevent further distress among the cultivators."

The Hon'ble Mr. CUMMING said :—

"Sir, the Hon'ble Member has brought forward a resolution that a committee should be formed of certain members to examine a certain area in the south of the Howrah district in order to devise means for draining out water from that area. My answer to the hon'ble gentleman is that not only have means been devised for this particular area in question, but that the whole of the Amta basin has been the subject of examination, that a scheme, the estimate of the cost of which is nearly 10 lakhs of rupees, has been prepared, and that at the present moment it is simply a question of funds which blocks the way. I do not wish to burden the Council with too many details, but the exact position may be realised if I could mention one or two facts regarding this Amta basin drainage scheme. It was suggested in the press only about a month ago that no serious attempt had ever been made to tackle this problem. This is a most inaccurate and unfair statement. As long as forty years ago, Government prepared three drainage schemes for the Howrah district, viz., the Howrah scheme, the Rajapur scheme and the Amta scheme, and it was then contemplated that all would be carried out one after the other. The Howrah scheme was completed as long ago as 1884, the Rajapur scheme in 1890, but the Amta scheme has still not yet materialised; and the people of the Rajapur area have complained very bitterly—and also with a great measure of truth—that they are suffering because the Howrah scheme has not been completed. Now an improvement of this nature, not only in these six villages to which the Hon'ble Mover refers, but also in the whole of the basin, can be carried out under certain Acts. Under the Embankment Act the decision as to the improvement lies with Government, but the Act is unpalatable to the zamindars because there is no procedure for recovery from the tenants. Then, there is the Drainage Act, under which it is possible to recover, through the certificate procedure, from tenants. It is a very democratic Act under which Drainage Commissions are appointed; and theoretically there should be no difficulty if the people concerned are genuinely anxious to have the improvement effected; but the law lays down that at least the holders of half the land to be reclaimed should assent, in writing, to the adoption of the scheme. Now, no fewer than four times have the landlords rejected the scheme under the Drainage Act. In the past estimates were made which failed because they were too big; one estimate was as high as 12 lakhs of rupees. The estimate of a gentleman, whom we all recognise in Bengal to be a master in hydraulics, Mr. Addams-Williams, is, as I have stated, nearly 10 lakhs (Rs. 9,80,000). In January 1915, the leading landlord, at a meeting, plumped for the Drainage Act, but he was not supported by holders of half the land in the area in question; and far from making no serious attempt, Government, in absolute despair, said that they would take up the scheme under the Embankment Act. The proper procedure was carried through and in the middle of last year the case came up for orders; but the performance of the scheme has been held over owing to financial reasons. The Hon'ble Mover realises—and I hope all Hon'ble Members realise—that in any problem of this nature, there is, first, investigation of the facts; the next procedure is the enunciation of the problem; the third procedure is to find a solution for the problem; and the last stage of all is to apply the solution. Well, Sir, the first three of these procedures have already been carried out and number four only remains. That being so, I appeal to the Hon'ble Mover and ask him for what purpose would this committee sit. I therefore desire to oppose the resolution, as it stands, on the grounds, first, that it affects only a very small area and that in the next place, all information required has been carefully compiled by the Irrigation Department—that means that the solution of the problem has already been found; and that the only obstacle being money, this committee, however enthusiastic, would not effect any remedy as far as that difficulty was concerned. For these reasons, I desire to oppose the resolution; and to add that the scheme has already been approved by Government and is only awaiting funds."

Resolutions.Rai Mahendra Chandra Mitra Bahadur.

The Hon'ble RAI MAHENDRA CHANDRA MITRA BAHADUR said:—

My Lord, I have listened with great attention to the speech of the Hon'ble Member in charge and as I feel for the raiyats who have appealed to me for putting the resolution for the consideration of Your Excellency's Council, I came forward with a resolution like this. Year after year these raiyats are suffering much and when the question is that all matters in connection with the scheme have been inquired into, but that the work has not been taken up on financial grounds—what answer have I to give to it. I feel for the raiyats and I have come to Your Excellency for redress and when I find that the work cannot be taken up on financial grounds, I have nothing to say. Therefore, I think it advisable to withdraw the resolution."

The resolution was then, by leave of the President, withdrawn.

LIST OF BUSINESS—ITEM No. 13.

The Hon'ble Rai Mahendra Chandra Mitra Bahadur asked for leave to withdraw the following resolution which stood in his name :—

This Council recommends to the Governor in Council that a committee of officials and non-officials be appointed in each district to examine the condition of village roads in the districts of Howrah, Bankura, Birbhum and Midnapore, and to submit such recommendations to the Commissioner of the Burdwan Division as they may consider necessary for the improvement of those roads.

The resolution was, by leave of the President, withdrawn.

ADJOURNMENT OF COUNCIL.

The Council was then adjourned to Tuesday, the 22nd January, 1918, at 11 A.M., at Government House, Calcutta.

LIST OF BUSINESS—ITEM No. 2.

The following questions which had been starred were put and answered :—

By the Hon'ble RAI MAHENDRA CHANDRA MITRA BAHADUR :—

*1. (a) Is it a fact that the paddy-fields of mouzas Sonamukhi, Gazipore, Khanpore, Chaksadar, Jyot Bireswar, Latibpore, Khandarpore, Khardaha, Bhagabatipore and Udong in the Ulubaria subdivision of the Howrah district are still under water?

The Howrah flood.

(b) Are the Government aware that great damage is being done to the winter rice crop owing to water being still in the fields referred to above?

(c) Will the Government be pleased to state what steps are being taken by them for the speedy draining out of the water from these fields?

(d) Will the Government be pleased to state whether they are considering the desirability of giving agricultural loans to the raiyats affected by the water in the said area?

Answer by the Hon'ble MR. COWLEY :—

(a) Yes; to the extent of 1½ to 2 feet, as is usually the case at this time of the year.

(b) Yes; the crop has been damaged owing to the fact that water is still in the fields, but in this area the crop grown is generally broadcast paddy.

(c) Government are not taking steps to carry out any work for the speedy drainage of this area. The area, as the Hon'ble Member has already been informed, will be efficiently drained when effect is given to the Amta Drainage project.

(d) It has been ascertained that in September the Subdivisional Officer of Ulubaria offered agricultural loans in this area, and that the applications amounted to Rs. 292. This amount was advanced, and no further application has been received."

By the Hon'ble RAI MAHENDRA CHANDRA MITRA BAHADUR :—

*2. Are the Government considering the desirability of issuing instructions to the Subdivisional Officer of Ulubaria for the removal of all attas, i.e., bamboo apparatuses for catching fish, and other obstructions for the free passage of excess water from the Banspati Khal?

Canal obstructions in Ulubaria.

Answer by the Hon'ble MR. COWLEY :—

"The Banspati Khal has not been declared a public watercourse under the Drainage or Embankment Acts. Government are not therefore in a position to order obstructions in the khal to be removed."

By the Hon'ble RAI MAHENDRA CHANDRA MITRA BAHADUR :—

*3. Is it a fact that last year a large quantity of seed potatoes was sold to some merchant in Calcutta by the Agriculture Department and that the potatoes were sent at quarter parcel rate—a concession granted to the Department for bona fide cultivators taking potatoes for seed purposes?

Selling of seed potatoes.

Questions and Answers.

Answer by the Hon'ble MR. KERR :—

" The Eastern Bengal Railway allow quarter rates for potatoes sent on bona fide Government purposes. The Agricultural Department select seed potatoes in Darjeeling, and the potatoes which had been purchased in Darjeeling and rejected on selection as being unsuitable for seed were sent to Calcutta at quarter rates and sold there."

By the Hon'ble RAI MAHENDRA CHANDRA MITRA BAHADUR :—

Complaints regarding seed potatoes.

*4. (a) Is it a fact that several complaints have been made by cultivators about the inferior quality, ununiform size and high price of seed potatoes supplied by the Agriculture Department?

(b) If there is any truth in these complaints, will the Government be pleased to state who is responsible for this state of affairs?

Answer by the Hon'ble MR. KERR :—

" (a) Complaints have been made about the small size of seed potatoes and about the high price.

(b) Small potatoes germinate as well as large ones. The rise of price in 1917 as compared with 1916 was due to a short crop. In spite of these complaints, the demand for seed potatoes supplied by the Agricultural Department at the end of 1917 was considerably in excess of that of the previous year."

By the Hon'ble RAI MAHENDRA CHANDRA MITRA BAHADUR :—

Duties of a Deputy Director of Agriculture.

*5. Will the Government be pleased to state what are the duties of a Deputy Director of Agriculture in Bengal?

Answer by the Hon'ble MR. KERR :—

" The duties of a Deputy Director of Agriculture in Bengal are the supervision of experimental farms, the systematic study of the agricultural conditions and requirements of his circle, the demonstration of improved agricultural methods and of the use of manures, improved seed and suitable implements."

By the Hon'ble RAI MAHENDRA CHANDRA MITRA BAHADUR :—

Agricultural
work in Bengal.

*6. Will the Government be pleased to state what work has been done by the Department of Agriculture in Western Bengal during the last ten years, and the amount of money spent during the last five years by the Department in Western Bengal as compared with what was spent in Eastern Bengal during the same period?

Answer by the Hon'ble MR. KERR :—

" The Hon'ble Member is referred to the annual reports of the Department. The expenditure incurred in Western Bengal is not shown in the accounts of the Bengal Presidency separately from that incurred in Eastern Bengal."

Questions and Answers.

By the Hon'ble RAI MAHENDRA CHANDRA MITRA BAHADUR :—

*7. Will the Government be pleased to state what steps have been taken to improve the output of sugar in Bengal and to improve the conditions of the sugar industry in the province? Output of sug in Bengal.

Answer by the Hon'ble MR. DONALD :—

"The Hon'ble Member is referred to the reply given to a question asked by the Hon'ble Babu Bhabendra Chandra Ray at the meeting held on the 7th August, 1916, which gives the information up to that date.

In September 1916, Mr. Annett, the Agricultural Chemist, was deputed to special duty in the United Provinces in connection with the war, and his work on date-gur has unavoidably been held in abeyance.

The examination of a number of Bengal varieties of sugarcane in regard to the sucrose content of their juices is proceeding at the Dacca Farm, and sugarcane setts are distributed from the agricultural stations."

The answers to the following Unstarred Questions were laid on the table :—

By the Hon'ble KHAN SAHIB AMAN ALI :—

I. (a) Is it a fact that one-fourth of the Chemistry seats in the Chittagong College are reserved for Muhammadan students? Muhammadan students in Chittagong
College.

(b) If so, will the Government be pleased to state how many of these seats were allotted to Muhammadan students during the last three years?

Answer by the Hon'ble MR. O'MALLEY :—

"(a) Yes. The reservation has been made for the first time during the present session.

(b) The numbers of Muhammadans taking chemistry as a subject who have been admitted into the intermediate classes are—

1915-16	11
1916-17	13
1917-18	15 "

By the Hon'ble KHAN SAHIB AMAN ALI :—

II. (a) Is it a fact that the Chittagong College is able to accommodate another 15 to 20 students for Chemistry? Chemistry students in Chittagong
College.

(b) If so, are the Government considering the desirability of increasing the number of Chemistry seats in the College?

Answer by the Hon'ble MR. O'MALLEY :—

"(a) No.

(b) A scheme for increasing the accommodation of the intermediate chemistry classes has had to be kept in abeyance owing to financial stringency."

Questions and Answers.

By the Hon'ble KHAN SAHIB AMAN ALI :—

Boarding accommodation for Muhammadan students in Chittagong College.

III. (a) Will the Government be pleased to state the total number of students in the Chittagong College during the last three years as compared with the number of Muhammadan students?

(b) Has the attention of the Government been drawn to the need of the Muhammadan students of Chittagong College for an enlargement of their boarding accommodation?

(c) Will the Government be pleased to state the number of seats that have been provided for Hindu students and the number for Muhammadan students in the boarding-house attached to the College?

(d) Is it a fact that the Hindu students are accommodated in a two-storied pucca building, while the Muhammadan students are accommodated in an unprotected thatched house, which has no compound?

(e) Are the Government aware that this distinction has hurt the feelings of the Muhammadan students of that College?

Answer by the Hon'ble MR. O'MALLEY :—

" (a) The figures are—

Year.	Total.	Muhammadans.
1915	287	59
1916	304	83
1917	329	95

(b) Yes. The matter is now under the consideration of Government.

(c) 40 seats have been provided for Hindus and 18 for Muhammadans.

(d) The Hindu hostel is a two-storied pucca building, and the Muhammadan hostel is a kutchra house, which is reported to be in no way unsatisfactory. Neither hostel has a compound.

(e) No."

By the Hon'ble KHAN SAHIB AMAN ALI :—

Increase in the number of College students in Chittagong.

IV. (a) Is it a fact that a considerably larger number of students than formerly have passed the Matriculation Examination from Chittagong during the last few years?

(b) Is it a fact that the President of the governing body of the Chittagong College has made a representation to Government for the establishment of a second grade College at Chittagong, or for provision for additional seats and combination of subjects in the present College?

(c) What effect (if any) have the Government given or are they giving to the said representation?

Answer by the Hon'ble MR. O'MALLEY :—

" (a) Yes.

(b) No.

(c) In view of the reply to (b) this question does not arise."

By the Hon'ble KHAN SAHIB AMAN ALI :—

Teaching of Logic in Chittagong College.

V. (a) Is it a fact that the Government have sanctioned the teaching of Logic in the Chittagong College?

(b) If so, will the Government be pleased to state when effect will be given to that sanction?

Questions and Answers.

Answer by the Hon'ble MR. O'MALLEY :—

" (a) Yes.

(b) It is hoped to secure affiliation for the session of 1919-20."

By the Hon'ble KHAN SAHIB AMAN ALI :—

VI. (a) Has the attention of Government been drawn to the fact that the students of the Chittagong College are feeling the want of combination in Logic, Philosophy, Honours in English, and also the want of additional seats in Chemistry? Grievances of students in Chittagong College.

(b) If so, will the Government be pleased to state what scheme, if any, they have in contemplation to remove these wants and when the scheme is likely to be given effect to?

Answer by the Hon'ble MR. O'MALLEY :—

" (a) Government are aware that extended affiliation and additional seats in chemistry would improve the College. As stated in the reply to question No. 9, it is hoped to secure affiliation in logic for the session of 1919-20.

(b) A scheme for the construction of a separate building for the physics department and for alterations in the existing science building, so that it can be used for chemistry alone, has had to be kept in abeyance owing to financial stringency."

By the Hon'ble KHAN SAHIB AMAN ALI :—

VII. (a) Is it a fact that the Government of India have expressed a desire to convert successful High English schools into second grade Colleges? Conversion of High English Schools into Colleges.

(b) If so, will the Government be pleased to state what measures they are taking to give effect to the wishes of the Government of India?

Answer by the Hon'ble MR. O'MALLEY :—

" (a) and (b) The Government of Bengal have received no communication on the subject from the Government of India."

By the Hon'ble KHAN SAHIB AMAN ALI :—

VIII. (a) Are the Government aware that the University have sanctioned the seats noted below to the Government and the aided High English schools of this Province? Number of seats in schools.

1. Class	X	50
..	IX	50
2. Class	VIII	40
..	VII	40
..	VI	40
..	V	30
..	IV	30

Questions and Answers.

(b) Are the Government also aware that the Inspector of Schools, Chittagong, has curtailed 15 seats in each of the first 2 classes, 5 seats in each of the second 2 classes and 10 seats in each of the third 2 classes?

(c) Are the Government also aware that the effect of the Inspector's circular has been that some 60 Muhammadan boys have been removed from Moslem High English schools?

(d) Are the Government considering the desirability of withdrawing the circular in question?

Answer by the Hon'ble MR. O'MALLEY :—

"(a) The Hon'ble Member is referred to the reply given to clause (b) of question No. VII at the meeting of the Council held on 20th November, 1917.

(b) An extract from circular No. 16918-22, dated the 14th December, 1916, from the Inspector of Schools, Chittagong Division, to the Head Masters of Government high schools in that division is laid on the table.

(c) No.

(d) No."

An extract from Circular referred to in the answers by the Hon'ble Mr. O'Malley to question No. VIII (unstarred) (b) asked by the Hon'ble Khan Sahib Aman Ali at the Council meeting of the 22nd January, 1918.

No. 16918-22, dated Chittagong, the 14th December, 1916.

From—M. P. WEST, Esq., B.A., officiating Inspector of Schools, Chittagong Division,

To—The Head Masters of all Government High Schools in the Chittagong Division.

IT is a matter of teaching experience that efficient work cannot be done with classes of more than 30 boys. You will therefore please consider it an absolute rule that in Government Schools in this Division not more than 35 boys may be enrolled in any section of classes X or IX, VIII, VII, not more than 30 in classes VI, V, IV, III. Your promotions and admissions should be made accordingly.

By the Hon'ble KHAN SAHIB AMAN ALI :—

Free studentships for Muhammadan
students.

IX. (a) Is it a fact that the Government have reduced the grant of 8 per cent. of free studentships to Muhammadan students on the whole population of the school to 8 per cent. on the Muhammadan population of the school?

(b) If so, are the Government considering the desirability of restoring the former basis?

Answer by the Hon'ble MR. O'MALLEY :—

"(a) No.

(b) The Hon'ble Member is referred to rules 4 and 5 of the rules for the award of free studentships in Government and in Government-aided schools, of which a copy is laid on the table."

Questions and Answers.

Rules referred to in the answer by the Hon'ble Mr. O'MALLEY to question No. IX (unstarred) asked by the Hon'ble KHAN SAHIR AMAN ALI at the Council Meeting of the 22nd January, 1918, for the award of free-studentships in Government as well as in Government-aided schools.

1. (a) Free-studentships in Government schools under the control of managing committees are awarded by the committee.

(b) The Inspector and the Inspectress of Schools control the award of free-studentships in Government schools for boys (including mixed schools) and Government schools for girls, respectively, which are not under managing committees.

2. Teachers in Government schools drawing salaries not exceeding Rs. 50 a month are allowed the privilege of educating, in the school in which they are employed, one child free and one child at half the usual rate of fees. Head Masters or Head Mistresses may grant these concessions.

3. Government pensioners (other than menials) who have retired from service in the Department of Public Instruction, and whose pensions do not exceed Rs. 25 a month, may be allowed the same privileges as teachers in Government schools. The concessions may also be extended to the orphans of officers who died in the service of the department while in the receipt of pay not exceeding Rs. 50 a month; and also to the orphans of pensioners of the department (other than menials) who were drawing pensions not exceeding Rs. 25 a month.

4. In Government as well as in Government-aided schools the numbers of non-Muhammadan and Muhammadan free students will ordinarily be 5 per cent. of their respective enrolments excluding free places granted in terms of the two preceding rules as well as scholarship-holders who have been granted free tuition.

5. In view of the backwardness of the Moslem community Muhammadan pupils in Government as well as in Government-aided schools will be allowed additional free places (over and above those provided for in the preceding rule) up to a limit of a further 10 per cent. of their own enrolment.

6. No pupil shall be eligible for a free-studentship who is above the age-limits prescribed in the appendix on the 1st January of the year in which the award is made.

7. Boys above those age-limits, who have already been awarded free-studentships, may be allowed to enjoy these privileges so long as they fulfil the conditions laid down in rule 8.

8. Free-studentships are awarded on conditions of good conduct and satisfactory progress as determined by school examinations.

X. (a) Are the Government aware that the Cox's Bazar Subdivision in Chittagong, consisting of nearly two lakhs and fifty thousand of Muhammadans and Buddhists, is not provided with a high English school?

Proposed High English school for Cox's Bazar.

Questions and Answers.

(b) Is it a fact that the late Government of Eastern Bengal and Assam, in granting a provincialised middle English school for that place, promised to raise the status of the school to that of a high English school?

(c) If so, will the Government be pleased to state whether it is intended to establish a provincial high English school there?

(d) Will the Government be pleased to state whether, if the cost of the site and buildings for such a school are subscribed for locally, they would be disposed to take in hand the establishment of such a school?

Answer by the Hon'ble MR. O'MALLEY :—

" (a) Yes.

(b) No such promise is traceable.

(c) No.

(d) The establishment of Government high schools at subdivisional headquarters is not in accordance with the general policy of Government, and Government are therefore not prepared to give the undertaking suggested."

Alleged torture of a détenu by the police.

XVII. (a) With reference to the allegations of torture made against the police by détenu Nalini Kanta Ghosh, which was stated to have formed the subject of an inquiry in the answer to unstarred question No. XXXIX asked at a meeting of the Legislative Council held on the 3rd July, 1917, will the Government be pleased to state the result of the said inquiry?

(b) Will the Government be pleased to lay on the table a copy of the statement made by the said Nalini Kanta Ghosh, to the District Magistrate of Dacca, as also the medical report about him by the Civil Surgeon of Dacca and the Assistant Surgeon of Narayanganj?

(c) Is it a fact that there is an entry in a register kept at the Dacca Central Jail, indicating the marks of violence on the person of the said Nalini Kanta Ghosh at the time of his admission into the said jail? Will the Government be pleased to lay on the table any such entry or statement which may be contained in any of the jail records?

Answer by the Hon'ble MR. KERR :—

"Nalini Kanta Ghosh was arrested on the 5th August, 1916, and arrived at Calcutta in custody on the 11th August. On the 17th August he was sent to Allahabad to stand his trial. He was produced before a Magistrate there but made no complaint of ill-treatment in Calcutta, and there is no record of any injuries being found on him then. While at Allahabad he wrote two letters, one to his uncle and the other to his brother, in which he mentioned the fact that he had been kept at Calcutta for seven days and asked for arrangements to be made for his defence, but there was not the slightest hint of any ill-treatment at the hands of the police. On the 31st August he was sent to Narayanganj to stand his trial there, and was produced before the Subdivisional Officer on the 2nd September, when for the first time he complained of ill-treatment by the police in Calcutta between the 10th and 17th August. He was examined by the Civil Assistant Surgeon, who reported that there were a number of scratches, bruises and abrasions on his person, some of which he described as severe. Nalini Kanta Ghosh was transferred to the Dacca Jail and examined on the 18th September by the Civil Surgeon, who reported that there were some faint marks on his wrist, upper arm and back, the results of very superficial scratches; he described them all as slight.

On receipt of these reports an inquiry was made by Government, with the result that they considered it established that the allegations against the Calcutta police were false. Government do not consider it desirable to lay on the table the reports and statements regarding the case. The case is now nearly eighteen months old, while Nalini Kanta Ghosh has been an absconder for over a year."

Police
Administration
Report.

XVIII. (a) With reference to the statement made under section V of the Police Administration Report for 1916, to the effect that "a good deal of eloquence has lately been expended on the subject of increased expenditure on the Police," will the Government be pleased to state whether this has reference to certain discussions by non-official members in this Council in connection with the last Budget?

(b) If not, will the Government be pleased to explain the reference in the passage quoted above?

(c) If the answer to clause (a) be in the affirmative, will the Government be pleased to state—

(i) if it is usual for Heads of Departments to make such observations in regard to discussions in the Legislative Council; and

(ii) what rules, if any, written or unwritten, are there governing the action of Heads of Departments in this matter?

Questions and Answers.

Answer by the Hon'ble MR. KERR :—

"The remark was made by the author of the report on the basis of the published information available to him, from whatever sources it may have been derived. The unwritten rules governing the matter are those based on etiquette and good feeling, and in the present instance Government see no reason to suppose that they have been infringed."

XIX. (a) Will the Government be pleased to make a full statement of the facts and circumstances of a Civil suit which was instituted in the Munsiff's Court at Balurghat a few months ago by a private gentleman against Mr. Burton, Superintendent of Police, and in respect of which a decree has been passed? Civil suit against a Police Superintendent.

(b) Is it a fact that on appeal by Mr. Burton, the decision of the Munsiff of Balurghat has been upheld by the District Judge of Dinajpur? What findings were arrived at by the two Courts on the points at issue?

(c) Was any special application made by the defence to have the appeal heard by the District Judge? If so, what were the reasons for such an application?

(d) Is it a fact that the Government Pleader of Dinajpur was engaged in both the Courts to defend Mr. Burton at the cost of Government? If so, what total cost has been incurred by Government in the defence of the suit up to date?

Answer by the Hon'ble MR. KERR :—

"(a) and (b) The facts of the case and the findings of the two Courts are given in the judgment of the appellate Court, a copy of which is laid on the table.

(c) No. The Government pleader, on his own initiative and to suit his own convenience, verbally requested the District Judge not to transfer the appeal from his file.

(d) No. It was only in the lower Court that the Government pleader conducted the defence at the cost of Government; in the appellate Court Mr. Burton himself engaged him. The cost incurred by Government in the defence of the suit has amounted to Rs. 489-13-3."

HEADING OF DECISION OF APPEAL.

APPEAL NO. 36 OF 1917 M.

The 17th December, 1917.

Appeal from the decision of Babu S. C. Mukharji, Munsif of Balurghat dated 29th January, 1917.

Mr. L. H. Burton Appellant,

Versus.

Lalit Chandra Das Respondent.

For appellant Babu Jatindra M. Sen,

Government Pleader.

For respondent Babu Ramesh Chandra Neogy,

Government Pleader.

Judgment.

1. THE plaintiff-respondent Lalit Chandra Das sued Mr. Burton, Superintendent of Police, of Dinajpur, for Rs. 150 damages for wrongfully breaking down a barbed wire fence separating the Porsha thana compound from a plot of land on the north. Plaintiff says that he took settlement of this land in 1910 and put up the fence in 1911 to protect his crops from the cattle and horses of the thana officers and that on 17th February, 1915, Mr. Burton crossed his land at night on an elephant and finding his passage obstructed by the fence broke his way through it and next morning had the whole fence, 125 cubits long, destroyed.

Questions and Answers.

2. Defendant's case is that the plaintiff is only a benamidar for his brother Satis, who was Sub-Inspector of Porsha from 1908 to 1910 and who acquired some 300 bighas of land while he was there. He says that a cart tract over the plaint land has existed for over 30 years and has been continuously used by the public. The passage was first obstructed in May, 1913, but the fence was at once broken down by the officer in charge of the thana. A fence was put up again in September, 1914 and the police objected to it and Satis Babu promised to remove it but did not do so. On 17th February, 1915, Mr. Burton and his assistant Mr. Bell found their passage obstructed by the fence, and Mr. Bell took his elephant over it and next morning the defendant instructed the police to remove so much of the fence as was necessary to open the passage. A few posts were accordingly pulled up, but no damage was done to the wire. The defendant claims that what was done was justifiable as an assertion of the right of way and that in any case the total damage did not exceed Rs. 5.

3. The learned Munsif has decreed the suit in part estimating the damage at Rs. 45.

4. In appeal it is contended that the plaintiff must be only a benamidar for his brother Satis, because he had not enough money to buy the land, and because he and Satis contradict each other as to how the purchase came to be made, and because it is extremely unlikely that the plaintiff who lives at Bogra, would buy land in such a distant and out of the way place as Porsha. It is also pointed out that Satis Babu more than once paid the rent and did so without instructions from the plaintiff.

5. There are certainly grounds for suspecting that Satis Babu is the real owner, but the title deeds are in the plaintiff's name and there is evidence that it was the plaintiff who provided the money. It is obvious that Satis Babu must have advised and negotiated the purchase, but there is nothing incredible in the story that the money was paid by his brother who is a Munsif's Sheristadar. The inconveniences of holding land in so remote a place as Porsa would be felt by Satis Babu just as much as by the plaintiff, since Satis Babu was not permanent at Porsa. It appears from Satis Babu's own evidence and from that of plaintiff's witnesses 6 and 7 that Satis Babu has in fact acquired some land at Porsa on his own behalf and that that land is immediately north of the plaint land. But there is no evidence beyond some suspicious circumstances to show that the plaint land too belongs to him. The suit cannot be dismissed on mere suspicion of this kind.

6. I think the learned Munsif is wrong in doubting whether any path ever existed. Apart from the evidence of police officers there is the evidence of D. W. 2 a patwari, who several times used the path. And it is incredible that this dispute would ever have arisen unless there was a path there at some time or other.

7. The learned Munsif's own finding is that Mr. Burton lost his temper because the passage over the plaint land was unexpectedly found closed. Mr. Burton had four times inspected Porsa thana and had once spent the Christmas holidays there. If he expected to find the passage open it is obvious that he must have found it open on previous occasions. The learned Munsif apparently has so poor an opinion of the temper of an European officer that he credits the Superintendent of Police with having ordered the immediate demolition of the whole fence, not because it blocked a previously existing path, but simply because it happened to stand in his way. I know nothing about Mr. Burton, but I am not prepared to believe that any responsible officer of Government would commit wanton damage for such a childish reason. And I have no doubt that when Mr. Burton who must have known the way to the thana, crossed the plant land in the dark on an elephant, he did so because he had been that way before. Mr. Burton was Superintendent of Police in this district from February, 1913 to November, 1915, and he cannot have expected to find an open passage there if the fence has existed since 1911 as the plaintiff and his witnesses say.

8. The learned Munsif has believed the plaintiff's witness and disbelieved the defence witnesses on all points on very insufficient grounds in my opinion. I particularly disagree with his manner of rejecting the whole of the evidence of Sub-Inspector Raj Kumar Chakrabatti and calling him "a deliberate perjurer" on the mere ground that he said that he was once degraded for six months, when the Gazette showed that he was degraded for a year. The Gazette notification was never brought to the Sub-Inspector's notice and he had no opportunity of explaining it. It was apparently shown to the Munsif behind the back of the witness and without the knowledge of the defence pleader. There was no motive for a deliberate perjury on such a trivial point as whether the period of degradation was six months or a year and I have no doubt that the Sub-Inspector could have explained the matter if he had had a chance. In my opinion the Sub-Inspector's evidence read as a whole, is much more reliable than that of the plaintiff's principal witnesses who have certainly lied on several points. The plaintiff and his brother Satis contradict each other several times about the purchase of the land, and Satis Babu contradicts Sris Babu about the wholesale destruction of the fence. I have no hesitation in accepting the defence evidence that a cart track across the plaint land did exist and was in constant use up to September, 1914.

9. But I cannot accept the argument of the appellant's pleader that the mere existence of the path was a sufficient justification for breaking down the fence. The plaintiff prima facie had a right to fence his own land. And the defendant was not justified in breaking any portion of the fence unless he had a right of way over the land. The defence claims a right of way on the ground of user for over 20 years. But there are only two witnesses who speak of ancient user, namely, a dafadar and a cultivator, defendant witnesses 5 and 6. And they cannot be relied on because they contradict each other as to the description of the path of which they enjoyed the use. They both agreed in the first instance that it was a cart track 8 or 10 cubits wide, but in cross-examination the cultivator said that where the crops were standing the path was never more than 2½ cubits wide, while the dafadar said that 8 or 10 cubits were always left free of crops. The dafadar, moreover, has had no occasion to use the path for a longer period than 10 or 11 years, and it is not clear why the cultivator should have used the path at all. I hold that it is not proved that the path has been in existence for over 20 years.

10. I think, however, that it is highly probable that it has been in existence so long. For (though there is some evidence that the land was in cultivation before the purchase) the plaintiff particularly mentions that he purchased fallow land, and if the land was fallow when the thana was built 10 years ago, it is obvious that the thana officers and people visiting the thana would cross it rather than go round it. In view however of my finding that 20 years user is not established by the evidence I hold that the defendant has not proved that he had any right to break a passage through the fence. His plea of justification ought to have been supported by conclusive evidence of 20 years user.

11. The Easement Act (Act V of 1882) does not apply to Bengal, but I notice that by section 36 of that Act the owner of an easement cannot himself abate a wrongful obstruction of it. I apprehend, however, that he can do so in Bengal if he is prepared to prove that the easement exists.

12. The amount of damage done has undoubtedly been exaggerated by Sris Babu, who says that every bit of the fence was destroyed and who is contradicted by Satis Babu himself on that point. For Satis Babu found some post still standing. On the other hand the defence witnesses must have made too little of the damage done. They say that no wire at all was cut. But the Dafadar's evidence shows that the uprooted posts were carried away. And it stands to reason that the thana officers did not leave barbed wire lying on the ground to cut their legs and feet. So it looks as if one full length of the wires must have been removed. I do not know the usual length of a strand of barbed wire, but it can hardly be less than 50 feet. And if the wire was cut, I imagine that at least 50 feet of the fence must have been removed. The opening must, therefore, have been unnecessarily large. And the plaintiff has exaggerated it into a destruction of the whole fence in order to defeat the plea of justification. The old materials were used in re-erecting the fence so the actual damage to the plaintiff was probably only the cost of the labour. Some of the posts may, however, have had to be replaced as the fence was not put up again for six months. I think the learned Munsif's estimate of Rs. 45 as the amount of damage caused to the plaintiff may under the circumstances not be too large, though if the fence had been re-erected at once the defendant's estimate of Rs. 5 would probably been nearer the mark.

The result is that I affirm the decision of the lower Court and dismiss the appeal with costs.

R. GARLICK,

District Judge.

Proposed amendment of the Bengal
Settled Estates
Act.

XX. (a) With reference to the answer given on the 5th March, 1913, in the Bengal Legislative Council, to a question asked by the Hon'ble Maharajadhiraja Bahadur of Burdwan, regarding the amendment of the Bengal Settled Estates Act of 1904, will the Government be pleased to state the purport of the report submitted by the Committee referred to in the said answer and the amendments suggested by them?

(b) Has the attention of Government been drawn to a resolution adopted at the recent Conference of Bengal Zamindars regarding the desirability of having a legislative enactment to protect the estates of zamindars against partition and encumbrance?

(c) If so, will the Government be pleased to say whether they are considering the desirability of appointing a Committee to suggest the lines on which the Bengal Settled Estates Act may be amended so as to make it more popular?

Answer by the Hon'ble MR. KERR :—

" (a) The purport of the Committee's report is stated in the answer to the question referred to by the Hon'ble Member.

The amendments suggested were as follows :—

- (1) that the functions of the Local Government should be confined to the determination of the question whether the family of the applicant for settlement is of the necessary status, and that the subsequent proceedings should be conducted by a Civil Court selected for the purposes of each case by the Local Government or the Commissioner;
- (2) that the period of settlement should be extended to an additional generation;
- (3) that the powers of revocation by succeeding sons should be strictly limited;

Questions and Answers.

•(4) that the fee payable upon an application should be reduced to a nominal sum or abolished, and that the duty should be realized as a probate duty on each occasion on which a succession occurs; and

(5) that the financial condition of the estate should not be published.

(b) Yes.

(c) The subject of appointing a Committee is not at present under the consideration of Government. It appears from the resolution referred to in clause (b) of the question that the Conference of Bengal Zamindars intended to have the subject examined by a Committee of Zamindars before memorialising Government."

XXI. Will the Government be pleased to explain the system of supervision over village chaukidars which is stated to have been introduced by Mr. Whalley, Superintendent of Police, Jessore, with success? Supervision over vill. chaukidars

"The object of the system is to secure systematic and efficient patrols by chaukidars at the most dangerous periods of the night. A fixed number of chaukidars of each union parade at a different fixed point within the union on each night of the week. They do not arrive at the fixed point before 10 P.M. and must leave again for their homes between 3 and 4 A.M. looking up bad characters on the way. The points are fixed, preferably near the residence of a member of the panchayat or other responsible villager willing to supervise the arrangements and the chaukidars are selected so that as large a portion of the union as possible is covered. The chaukidars report vital statistics, facts regarding bad characters and anything else of importance, and the panchayat, villager or daffadar, who receives this information, despatches it to the president panchayat and to the thana officer. Similarly, any information and orders received from the thana are communicated to the chaukidars at the fixed point. The ordinary parades before the president panchayat and thana officer are abolished, excepting the quarterly pay parade.

The District Magistrate reports that public opinion welcomed the scheme and that the results are promising. The Range Deputy Inspector-General in inspecting the district also observed that crime had been checked owing to the greater vigilance enforced."

By the Hon'ble BABU BHABENDRA CHANDRA RAY :—

XXII. (a) Will the Government be pleased to state the number of new thanas which have been created in each district since 1912? Creation thanas.

(b) How far has the number of cognisable crimes been affected in each area since the creation of such new thanas?

Answer by the Hon'ble MR. KERR :—

"(a) A statement containing the information is laid on the table.

(b) The fluctuations of cognisable crime are governed by various causes and Government see no advantage in undertaking a troublesome compilation of figures which would compare the variations by one standard only, and to that extent would be merely misleading."

XXIII. (a) Will the Government be pleased to make a statement giving the names and ages of any political prisoners in Bengal who may have been kept under observation or treatment for mental derangement during the last two years, and the period of detention undergone by such prisoners?

(b) In which of these instances, if any, were the person or persons kept in solitary confinement, and for what periods were they so kept previous to such treatment or observation?

(c) How and where is each of these persons being treated now?

(d) Will the Government be pleased to make a similar statement with regard to any political prisoners who may have developed symptoms of tuberculosis?

Answer by the Hon'ble MR. KERR :—

" (a), (b) and (c) Besides Jyotish Chandra Ghosh, the particulars of whose case are given in answer to question No. LXIX, one other State prisoner was kept under observation for suspected mental derangement, but as the Medical Board reported that he was quite sane, it is not considered desirable to give his name or particulars regarding him. Another person who was made a State prisoner in August, 1916, and is stated to have suffered from his childhood from religious delusions, was reported to have developed suicidal tendencies in March, 1917. The medical officers reported that he should not be sent to an asylum. Another State prisoner was therefore placed with him in his cell and he was kept under observation. He was finally released to the care of his relatives on the 3rd September, 1917. It is not considered desirable to publish his name.

(d) No State prisoners have been reported to have developed tuberculosis."

By the Hon'ble BABU BHABENDRA CHANDRA RAY :—

XXIV. (a) Will the Government be pleased to make a statement with regard to Jyotish Chandra Ghosh, M.A., a political prisoner, noting the present condition of his health and his place of confinement?

(b) Is there any truth in the statement that he has become insane?

(c) Is it a fact that his relatives have not succeeded in getting an interview with him although several attempts have been made with this object?

Answer by the Hon'ble MR. KERR :—

" (a), (b) and (c) The Hon'ble Member is referred to the answer given to question No. LXIX."

By the Hon'ble RAI MAHENDRA CHANDRA MITRA BAHADUR :—

XXV. (a) Is it a fact that Munsiffs and Sub-Judges used to be transferred once during the Easter holidays and again during the Puja vacation?

(b) Will the Government be pleased to state whether this practice has been discontinued of late?

(c) Are the Government considering the desirability of making these transfers once a year, during the Christmas vacation?

Answer by the Hon'ble MR. KERR :—

" (a) From 1900 to 1916 a limited number of transfers took place each year at Easter as well as during the Puja vacation.

(b) In 1917 there were no general transfers at Easter, although, for special reasons, there were isolated transfers on various dates between Easter and the Puja vacation.

(c) No proposal to make transfers during the Christmas vacation only is under the consideration of Government or of the High Court on whose recommendation these transfers are made."

By the Hon'ble RAI MAHENDRA CHANDRA MITRA BAHADUR :—

XXVI. Will the Government be pleased to lay on the table a copy of the estimates for remodelling the Gazipore and Udong sluices in the left Damodar embankment in the Uluberia Subdivision of the Howrah district?

Answer by the Hon'ble MR. COWLEY :—

" The Hon'ble Member appears to be under some misapprehension. No estimate has been prepared for the remodelling of the Gazipore and Udong sluices in the left Damodar embankment."

Experimental Agricultural Farms in the Presidency and Burdwan Divisions.

XXVII. (a) Will the Government be pleased to give the names of experimental Agricultural Farms in the Presidency and Burdwan Divisions?

(b) Are the expenses of these farms borne by the Government?

Answer by the Hon'ble MR. KERR :—

"(a) There are no experimental Agricultural Farms in the Presidency Division: there are such farms at Chinsura and Burdwan in the Burdwan Division.

(b) The expenses of the Chinsura Farm are borne by Government, and those of the Burdwan by the Hon'ble the Maharajahdiraja Bahadur of Burdwan."

Estates under Court of Wards
in Dacca Division.

XXIX. (a) Will the Government be pleased to make a statement for the Dacca Division giving—

- (i) the names of proprietors whose estates have been taken charge of by the Court of Wards;
- (ii) the amount of debt on the date of assumption of charge by the Court of Wards; and
- (iii) such amount of principal as may have been repaid up to date?

(b) Are the Government in a position to state—

- (i) how much of such payment towards the principal has been made out of the revenues of the individual estates;
- (ii) how much thereof out of the sale-proceeds of movable and immovable properties; and
- (iii) how much out of the premia on permanent leases of immovable properties?

Answer by the Hon'ble MR. KERR :—

"(a) and (b) A statement is laid on the table."

The Munsiff's
Court in Tangail.

XXX. (a) Will the Government be pleased to make a statement showing the total number of suits of each kind instituted and disposed of in the Court of the Munsiff at Tangail in 1917?

(b) From what date has there been only one Munsiff posted at Tangail instead of three?

(c) What is the total number of his working days since his appointment at Tangail?

(d) What is the total number of suits of each kind disposed of by him during the period he has been working alone at Tangail?

Answer by the Hon'ble MR. KERR :—

" (a) The figures are as follows :—

Class of suit.	TOTAL NUMBER—
	Instituted.	Disposed of.
Small Cause Court suits	... 3,118	2,305
Money suits	... 2,136	2,236

The present
Munsiff of Tangail.

XXXI. (a) Is it a fact that the present Munsiff has, during this period had to work often till about 8 o'clock at night and sometimes even up to 10 P.M.?

(b) Are the Government aware of complaints that have been publicly expressed against the way cases are hurried through by the present Munsiff at Tangail?

Answer by the Hon'ble MR. KERR :—

" (a) It is presumed that the question relates to Babu Amrita Lal Mukharji, who is now officiating as Subordinate Judge at Mymensingh. It is reported that in the period of 14 months during which he served as Munsiff at Tangail, this officer sat on two occasions till after 9 P.M. and on 15 occasions till after 8 P.M.

(b) The District Judge reports that complaints were made on the subject both to him and to the High Court."

XXXII. (a) Is it a fact that only one out of eight Professors in the Oriental Department of the Sanskrit College is in the Provincial Educational Service, whereas in the English Department four out of seven Professors are in that Service? If so, how do the Government explain this difference? The Sanskrit College staff.

(b) What is the scale of pay and promotion of the Professors of the Sanskrit College in the Sanskrit and English Departments, respectively?

Answer by the Hon'ble MR. O'MALLEY :—

“(a) Excluding the Principal, there are three officers of the Provincial Educational Service on the tutorial staff of the English Department and one Provincial Educational Service officer on the tutorial staff of the Oriental Department. The English Department being an Arts College, three officers of the Provincial Educational Service, with suitable academic qualifications, have been appointed to the tutorial staff.

(b) In both Departments the present tutorial staff consists of officers of the Provincial Educational Service and Subordinate Educational Service, whose pay and promotion are regulated by the rules of those services.”

XXXV. Will the Government be pleased to state the reasons that led to the enhancement of fees payable by the students in the Sibpur Civil Engineering College from Rs. 10 to Rs. 15 monthly and in the Medical College from Rs. 96 to Rs. 125 annually? Enhancement of fees in Sibpur Engineering and Medical Colleges.

Questions and Answers.

Answer by the Hon'ble MR. O'MALLEY :—

" The Hon'ble Member presumably refers to the tuition fees payable for the intermediate course of the Engineer Department. These have not been enhanced. They continue to be Rs. 120 a year, but are payable in eight instalments of Rs. 15 instead of in twelve instalments of Rs. 10.

The fees at the Medical College were raised because the amount paid by each student was held to be an inadequate contribution towards the cost of his instruction. It may be noted that the previous rate of Rs. 96 did not include fees for the practical classes, while the fee of Rs. 125 is a consolidated one, including fees for practical classes. The net increase was only half the apparent increase."

(b) Have the Government received any applications from any private individuals for permission to manufacture salt?

(c) Will the Government be pleased to state what orders have been passed on such applications, if any?

(d) Is it a fact that one Abdul Barik Hai of Noakhali has applied to the authorities for permission to manufacture salt at Sandwip, Charbadu and Siddhidwip, stating that if a license in that behalf be granted to him, he will be in a position to sell salt at one anna a seer and further that he is ready to deposit Rs. 1,000 by way of duty in advance?

(e) Are the Government considering the desirability of moving the Government of India with a view to relaxing the present rules so as to enable any private individual to manufacture salt, duty free, sufficient for his private consumption?

Answer by the Hon'ble MR. DONALD :—

" (a) and (e) The Hon'ble Member is referred to the statement that will be made in the course of the debate on the Hon'ble Babu Surendra Nath Roy's resolution on the subject of the manufacture of salt.

(b) Yes.

(c) No final orders have yet been passed.

(d) Abdul Barik Hai made an application for permission to manufacture salt on an agreement that he should sell the salt at one anna per seer and pay duty to Government at the rate of Rs. 1,000 per annum in respect of the salt so manufactured. He did not offer to deposit Rs. 1,000 by way of duty in advance."

Allowances to Criminal Investigation Department officers.

XXXVII. (a) Will the Government be pleased to state the scale of allowances received by officers of the Intelligence and Special Branches of the Criminal Investigation Department of different grades?

(b) What proportion, if any, of the salaries of each grade do the respective allowances represent?

Questions and Answers.

Answer by the Hon'ble MR. KERR :—

" (a) The officers and men employed in the Intelligence Branch, Bengal, and the Special Branch, Calcutta, are in receipt of the following monthly local allowances :—

				Calcutta Police, Special Branch.	Bengal Police, Intelligence Branch.
				Rs.	Rs.
Superintendent	150
Assistant Commissioner	150

XXXVIII. (a) With reference to the rule laid down at page 71 of the Technical Rules and Instructions of the Settlement Department, 1916, in connection with commutation proceedings, to the effect that " a rent exceeding one-fifth of the value of the gross produce is ordinarily excessive, and the rent settled by commutation should not exceed such a value, except for special reasons, which must be fully recorded," will the Government be pleased to state the considerations that led to the determination of the maximum proportion referred to above? Commutation proceedings under the Bengal Tenancy Act.

(b) Is it a fact that section 40 of the Bengal Tenancy Act, 1885, contemplates that each individual case of commutation is to be determined according to its own facts and circumstances?

(c) Did the Government obtain legal opinion before issuing the instructions above referred to, with regard to the legality of laying down a uniform maximum rate for the different localities without regard to the circumstances of each case of commutation? If so, will the Government be pleased to state the purport of such legal opinion?

(d) Are the Government aware of the opinion that has been expressed that the maximum rate fixed is considered inadequate and unjust by the landlords?

Questions and Answers.

Answer by the Hon'ble MR. KERR :—

" (a) The proportion of one-fifth of the value of the gross produce was taken from clause 75 of the Bengal Tenancy Bill, 1883.

(b) Yes, and rule 7 of Chapter XI of the Technical Rules and Instructions prescribes the individual examination of each tenancy.

(c) No legal opinion was taken or required. The rules do not lay down an uniform maximum rate for different localities without regard to the circumstances of each case. The whole of the sub-paragraph from which the Hon'ble Member has taken an extract reads as follows :—

' The money rent should, according to circumstances, be ordinarily fixed at the average money rent payable by occupancy raiyats for lands of a similar description and with similar advantages in the vicinity, plus a suitable proportion of the difference between it and the average value of the rent received by the landlord. It should be remembered that a rent exceeding one-fifth of the value of the gross produce is ordinarily excessive, and the rent settled by commutation should not exceed such a value except for special reasons which must be fully recorded.'

(d) Government are aware that there are differences of opinion as to what is a fair rent on commutation."

Supply of fry by Fisheries
Department.

XXXIX. (a) Will the Government be pleased to state from what sources the Department of Fisheries obtains its supply of fry?

(b) Does the Department guarantee the purity of the fry supplied by it to private parties; or are the kinds of fry so supplied in any way different from those ordinarily obtained?

(c) At what rates on an average are the different kinds of fry purchased by the Department, and at what are they sold by it?

Answer by the Hon'ble MR. KERR :—

" (a) Nearly all the fry are obtained from the Damodar river.

" (b) The Department does not guarantee purity. The fry are superior to those ordinarily obtained, because they are examined generally by the Director of Fisheries and his staff with a view to the rejection of consignments which contain either predatory fish or the fry of fish other than carp. It is not possible in view of the large quantities dealt with that such examination should be complete, but it is believed that such examination as is possible has the effect of deterring the fisherman employed from wilfully collecting fry known to be impure, and that the result is that the fry supplied by the Department are much purer than those supplied by itinerant vendors.

(c) The Department sell the fry at the same rates at which they purchase it. The rates vary according to the season and the average rate is Rs. 2 per 1,000."

XLI. (a) Are the Government aware of the public protests against the existence of borrow-pits by the side of the extension of the Eastern Bengal Railway which crosses Russa Road and Tolly's Nala within the city of Calcutta and then goes towards Budge-Budge and the Kidderpore Docks? Borrow-pits in Calcutta and Suburbs.

(b) Has the attention of the Sanitary Commissioner of the Government ever been drawn to the danger to the sanitation of the town and country arising from the existence of these pits?

(c) Are the Government considering the desirability of taking early steps with a view to having these borrow-pits filled up and the tract through which the railway lines passes made sanitary and more healthy?

Answer by the Hon'ble MR. COWLEY :—

" The reply is in the negative. It is understood, however, that the attention of the Corporation has recently been drawn to the subject and that inquiries are being instituted with a view to improving the borrow-pits."

By the Hon'ble RAI DEBENDRA CHUNDER GHOSE BAHADUR :—

XLII. (a) Are the Government aware of the silted-up condition of Tolly's Nala in Calcutta, which has resulted in great inconvenience to the public? Condition of Tolly's Nala.

(b) Are the Government aware that the Calcutta Improvement Trust require earth for filling up insanitary tanks in Bhowanipore in connection with their scheme No. V, and that they are going to spend a sum of five lakhs and a half for obtaining the necessary earth by excavating a large lake in the Dhakuria side of the town of Calcutta?

(c) Will the Government be pleased to explain why they refused the application of the Calcutta Improvement Trust to take the necessary earth from Tolly's Nala?

Answer by the Hon'ble MR. COWLEY :—

" (a) Yes: the Hon'ble Member is referred to the answer given in this Council to the question asked by him at the meeting of the 3rd July, 1917.

(b) It is true that the Calcutta Improvement Trust intend to spend a large sum for acquiring land in order to obtain earth necessary for raising sites and filling up tanks; but this undertaking is not for scheme V alone, as the question implies, but for schemes IV and IV-A as well as scheme V and for other schemes to be executed in the future.

(c) Government have received no such application from the Calcutta Improvement Trust."

Rules referred to in the answer by the Hon'ble MR. O'MALLEY to question No. LIV (unstarred) asked by the Hon'ble Maulvi A. K. FAZL-UL-HAQ, at the Council meeting of the 22nd January 1918, for Managing Committees of Government high schools.

THE Managing Committee of a Government high school shall be composed of the following members:—

- (1) The District Magistrate (Subdivisional Officer when the school is not at a district headquarters), President.
- (2) The Head ^{Master}_{Mistress}, Vice-President and Secretary.
- (3) An elected representative of the teaching staff, other than the Head ^{Master}_{Mistress}.
- (4) & (5) Two non-official members representative of the parents and guardians of the school pupils.
- (6) (a) (Boys' schools)—An official other than an Educational Officer.
- (b) (Girls' schools)—An European lady.

The Principal, Presidency College, the Principal, Sanskrit College, the Principal of the Calcutta Madrassa, the Commissioner, Dacca Division, and the Lady Principal of the Bethune College shall take the place of the District Magistrate in the committees of the Hindu and Hare Schools, Calcutta, the Sanskrit Collegiate School, the Anglo-Persian Department of the Calcutta Madrassa, the Eden High School and the Bethune Collegiate School, respectively. References in these rules to the District Magistrate should be held to apply to these officers.

2. The representatives of the parents and guardians of the pupils shall be nominated by the Head ^{Master}_{Mistress}, subject to the approval of the District Magistrate. These nominations will be forwarded to the District Magistrate through the Subdivisional Officer if the school is not at district headquarters. The Magistrate will appoint the other members in consultation with the ^{Inspector}_{Inspectoress}. If the ^{Inspector}_{Inspectoress} disagrees with the Magistrate, ^{he}_{she} may refer the case for decision to the Director of Public Instruction through the Commissioner. The decision of the Director of Public Instruction shall be final.

3. The constitution of managing committees shall be published in the gazette by the Magistrate.

4. The members of a committee who are not appointed ex-officio, shall hold office for three years, but shall be eligible for reappointment at the end of that period. Members appointed during the 3-year period will ordinarily hold office till the end of that period.

5. The committee shall meet at least three times a year, viz., at the commencement of the session, after the summer vacation and after the puja vacation.

Questions and Answers.

6. Due notice of each meeting and of the business to be transacted shall be given by the Secretary.

7. Three members shall form a quorum.

8. The President shall have a casting vote.

9. Ordinarily no business other than that of which notice has been given shall be transacted. Should any other business be transacted, an opportunity should be given to the absent members, if any, of re-opening the subject at a subsequent meeting to be held within such period, not being less than a week, as the President may determine.

10. The Secretary shall record the proceedings of the committee in a proceedings book. The record of each meeting shall be confirmed at the subsequent meeting.

11. The committee shall be mainly an advisory body. The controlling officer of the school shall carefully consider all the recommendations of the committee and shall refer for decision to the Director through the Commissioner any matters upon which he disagrees with both the committee and the Commissioner. In particular the committee shall be consulted and its wishes respected as far as is consistent with the exigencies of the public service in all cases of the transfer of teachers.

12. The committee shall control the award of free studentships and the remission of fees on the basis of contributions from the Mohsin Fund.

13. The committee shall deal with all schemes of development, especially those involving additional expenditure, leaving to the Head ^{Master} the conduct, in accordance with the rules of the Education Department, of the current business of the school, such as the arrangement of classes, the settlement of routine, the annual examinations, the award of class promotions, the selection of candidates for the Matriculation Examination and all minor matters relating to school discipline and teaching. The Head ^{Master} shall bring important matters to the notice of the President, who will decide whether they should be brought before a meeting of the committee. In particular no pupil shall be rusticated or expelled except under an order of the committee. Hostel and conveyance arrangements should ordinarily be discussed by the committee.

14. The members of a committee are expected to take an active interest in the welfare of the school. Each member should visit the school at least three times a year. These visits shall be informal so as not to interfere with the working of the school. A visitors' book shall be kept in which members may record their opinions on the management of the school.

15. The annual report of the school shall be considered and approved by the committee before submission to the controlling officer of the school.

Expenditure on Muhammadan education.

LXIV. Will the Government be pleased to state the total expenditure on schemes solely in furtherance of Muhammadan education, since the outbreak of the war up to the 31st December, 1917?

Answer by the Hon'ble MR. O'MALLEY :—

"The total expenditure from 1st April, 1914, to 31st March, 1917, amounted to Rs. 11,87,294, excluding certain expenditure on maktabs and Koran schools, for which there are no separate accounts. Statistics of the expenditure from 1st April, 1914, to 4th August, 1914, and from 1st April, 1917, to 31st December, 1917, are not available."

Waiting-rooms for European passengers at Dacca.

LXVI. Will the Government be pleased to state the reasons which have led Government to construct first and second class waiting-rooms at Dacca railway station for European passengers only?

Answer by the Hon'ble MR. COWLEY :—

From the information received by Government it appears that no waiting-rooms have been specially constructed for European passengers only, at the Dacca railway station. The facts are as follows :—

There are two upper (i.e., 1st and 2nd) class waiting-rooms at Dacca. One of these forms part of the station building, and is reserved for first and second class passengers. The second, which is detached from the station building, bears a notice board inscribed '1st and 2nd class waiting-room—Europeans only.' This was not built as a waiting-room for Europeans, but was originally an office, and was subsequently converted into a waiting-room. The Railway authorities have now decided to reserve this room as a waiting-room for all 1st and 2nd class passengers and that in the station building as a waiting-room for 1st and 2nd class lady passengers."

LXVII. (a) Will the Government be pleased to state under what Act or Regulation Babu Jyotish Chandra Ghosh has been confined in jail? Case of Jyotish Chandra Ghosh.

(b) Was any formal charge brought against him before the orders were passed, and was he provided with a copy of the charge together with a statement of the evidence adduced against him?

(c) Was he given an opportunity to exculpate himself from the charge by rebutting the evidence, if any, adduced against him?

(d) Was the advice of a Judge or Judges taken before such orders were passed against him?

(f) Is it a fact that the District Magistrate of Hooghly expressed himself as satisfied with the conduct of Babu Jyotish Chandra Ghosh?

(g) Is it also a fact that the then District Magistrate of Hooghly testified to the innocence of Babu Jyotish Chandra Ghosh after he was arrested, and tried to convince the officer in charge of internments on this point?

Answer by the Hon'ble MR. KERR :—

" (a) Bengal Regulation III of 1818.

(b), (c) and (d) Jyotish Chandra Ghosh was examined on the charges against him and given an opportunity of explaining them; he wrote himself on the record of the examination that he did not wish to add anything to what he had said. He was not provided with a copy of the charge together with a statement of the evidence adduced against him. The case was placed before a Judge in the usual way.

(f) and (g) On learning of the arrest of Jyotish Chandra Ghosh the District Magistrate of Hooghly wrote to inquire the reasons and stated that he believed Jyotish had been straight for the past 20 months during which he had been acquainted with him. The District Magistrate was informed of the case against Jyotish Ghosh; it is not a fact that he testified to his innocence or tried to convince the officer in charge of internments on this point."

LXVIII. (a) Will the Government be pleased to state the date on which the orders of confinement in jail were passed against Babu Jyotish Chandra Ghosh? Case of Jyotish Chandra Ghosh.

(b) Will the Government be pleased to state the places at which and the periods for which he was successively kept in confinement from the date of his arrest till the date the orders of detention or confinement were passed on him?

(c) What were the successive places at which and the periods for which he was kept in confinement after such orders were passed?

Questions and Answers.

Answer by the Hon'ble MR. KERR :—

"(a), (b) and (c) Jyotish Chandra Ghosh was arrested and committed to the Hooghly Jail on 3rd January, 1917. He was transferred to the Presidency Jail on the 16th January. He was transferred as a State prisoner to the Rajshahi Jail on the 3rd February; from thence he was transferred to the Berhampore Jail on the 29th April, and to the Berhampore Lunatic Asylum on the 7th August, 1917."

Case of Jyotish
Chandra Ghosh.

LXIX. (a) Is it a fact that the health of Babu Jyotish Chandra Ghosh broke down within a few weeks after his arrest?

(b) If so, what were the causes of this sudden breakdown of his health?

(c) Is it a fact that Babu Jyotish Chandra Ghosh has been suffering from continued illness for the past few months and that his condition at one time was very critical?

(d) What has been the cause or causes and the nature of his continued illness?

(e) Is it a fact that Babu Jyotish Chandra Ghosh has developed symptoms of insanity?

(f) If so, will the Government be pleased to state when he first showed signs of insanity?

(g) Have the Government ascertained the causes of the development of such symptoms of insanity? If so, will the Government be pleased to state them?

(h) Will the Government be pleased to state the present condition of his health?

Answer by the Hon'ble MR. KERR :—

"(a), (b), (c), (d), (e), (f), (g) and (h) Shortly after his transfer to Rajshahi it was reported that Jyotish Chandra Ghosh showed signs of melancholia. He was kept under careful observation; on the 2nd April he was examined by Major Peebles, I.M.S., the Superintendent of the Berhampore Lunatic Asylum, who reported that in his opinion Jyotish Ghosh was malingering, but might possibly lapse into a state of real insanity. The State prisoner was therefore moved to the Berhampore Jail, so that he might continue under the closer observation of Major Peebles. On the 17th June he was examined by a Medical Board consisting of Colonel Deare and Major Peebles; the opinion of each of these officers was that he was feigning insanity, and they recommended that he should be moved to the Asylum where his case could be more scientifically investigated. After further observation Major Peebles reported on 26th September that in his opinion Jyotish Chandra Ghosh was feigning insanity, but there was a noticeable improvement in his bodily and mental condition since his transfer to the Asylum. The last report regarding the health of the State prisoner states that he is mentally the same but his physical condition is satisfactory."

Case of Nagendra Kumar
Guha Ray.

LXXVI. (a) Is it a fact that the hut provided for Babu Nagendra Kumar Guha at Kalchini is so low that a person has to bend down his head while entering it and that it has no window?

(b) Is it also a fact that the plinth of the hut is only half a cubit high, and that it is situated on marshy land?

(c) Is it also a fact that the détenu is not furnished with a bedstead but has to lie on a bamboo machan?

(d) Is it a fact that there is no latrine attached to the hut?

Answer by the Hon'ble MR. KERR :—

"(a), (b), (c) and (d) Nagendra Kumar Guha Ray is accommodated in a hut which had been previously used by another détenu without any complaints and is similar to those provided for other détenus in the district. The plinth is 18 inches high, as during the rains the surrounding land is sometimes flooded. The détenu complained that the bamboo posts at the door were low, necessitating bending the head on entrance, and that there were no windows; he was told that there is no objection to his making a window if he desires one. There is no latrine, as these are not usual in that part of the country. A bamboo machan has been furnished to him, as to the other détenus in the district."

LXXVII. (a) Is it a fact that Babu Nagendra Kumar Guha Ray submitted a petition in July last to the Additional Secretary, Political Department, in which he asked that he might be informed of the reason of his removal and the information and report, if any, upon which the order of transfer was based, and further prayed that he might be given an opportunity to explain, and to disprove the allegations which were made against him?

Case of Nagendra
Kumar Guha
Ray.

(b) What were the orders passed on the said petition?

(c) Is it a fact that the said détenu submitted a memorial, dated the 25th December, 1916, to the Additional Secretary, Political Department, through the Superintendent of Police, Noakhali, in which he complained that he had not been given any idea as to the allegations or charges made against him and that no explanation was asked for from him in any form whatsoever?

(d) Was any charge formulated against the said détenu after the aforementioned memorial was submitted?

(e) If so, was he given any opportunity to meet and answer the same?

Answer by the Hon'ble MR. KERR :—

“(a) Yes.

(b) A reply to the détenu's petition was sent to him on the 6th August; no definite reference was made in the reply to the portion of the petition referred to as the transfer was not made in consequence of any fresh report or allegations.

(c), (d) and (e) The détenu submitted a memorial, dated the 25th December, 1916, in which he asked to be produced before a Judicial officer on the ground that, except for his examination by an Assistant Superintendent of Police, he had had no opportunity of disproving the charges. It was ascertained that all the charges were communicated to him by the Police officer, and the recorded statement of the détenu shows that he was in fact aware of the charges. No further charges, therefore, were put to him.”

LXXVIII. (a) Is it a fact that Babu Nagendra Kumar Guha Ray complained in a petition that his allowance of Rs. 20 was insufficient, but his prayer for increment has been refused?

Case of Nagendra
Kumar Guha
Ray.

(b) Are the Government aware that living is very dear in Kalchini?

(c) Is it a fact that his prayer that he may be allowed to subscribe to the daily and weekly newspapers has been refused by the Superintendent of Police?

(d) Is it a fact that he complained about this matter also in his petition of July last to the Additional Secretary, but that he has not yet been given permission to subscribe to any daily or weekly newspaper?

Answer by the Hon'ble MR. KERR :—

(a) The détenu complained in his petition of 16th July that the allowance of Rs. 20 was insufficient; in reply he was informed that any representation which he had to make about the increase of allowance should be made to the Deputy Commissioner of Jalpaiguri.

Questions and Answers.

(b) Government are informed that Kalchini is not a specially expensive place.

(c) and (d) An order to this effect was given by the District authorities; they have since been informed that ordinarily there is no objection to a détenu receiving newspapers, subject to the usual censorship as in the case of correspondence."

(i) his character was very good;

(ii) he had been a very useful member of society, and

(iii) he had been doing many works of public utility?

(b) Is it also a fact that the Divisional Commissioner, Mr. K. C. De, certified that he was convinced—

(i) that the détenu was not an anarchist, and

(ii) that he was not inimically disposed towards the British Government?

Answer by the Hon'ble MR. KERR :—

"(a) and (b) Yes, but from the information in the possession of Government they were not satisfied that these testimonials had been given on a correct appreciation of the whole facts."

The Hon'ble MR. CUMMING moved that the Bengal Tenancy (Amendment) Bill, 1917, as amended by the Council on the 18th December, 1917, be taken into consideration.

He said :—

"Sir, the motion which stands in my name is a purely formal one ; but it is required in view of the circumstances under which the discussion of the Bengal Tenancy (Amendment) Bill was postponed at the last meeting of the Council. I desire formally to move that the Bengal Tenancy (Amendment) Bill, 1917, as amended by the Council of the 18th December, 1917, be taken into consideration."

The Hon'ble Babu Brajendra Kishor Ray Chaudhuri, with the leave of the President, withdrew the following motion which stood in his name, and which was by way of amendment to the Hon'ble Mr. Cumming's motion :—

That the Bengal Tenancy (Amendment) Bill, 1917, as amended by the Council on the 18th December 1917, be recommitted to the Select Committee for further consideration.

LIST OF BUSINESS—ITEM No. 5.

The Hon'ble KUMAR SHIB SHEKHARESWAR RAY moved by way of amendment to the Hon'ble Mr. Cumming's motion that the Bengal Tenancy (Amendment) Bill, 1917, as amended by the Council on the 18th December, 1917, be recommitted to the Select Committee, with instructions to make such additions and alterations in sections 49H and 49J as will safeguard the interests of the landholder as well as of the tenant, without making any unnecessary encroachments on the vested rights of either of them.

He said :—

"Sir, it is neither in a spirit of opposition to the Bill nor with any intention of casting a reflection on the members of the Select Committee that I have moved this motion. In fact I was the first man in the Council who welcomed the measure when it was first introduced here and no one is more grateful to the Select Committee than I for the honourable compromise that it effected in the Bill between the extreme Civil Service views and the honour of the Bengal zamindars. But, as a member of this Council, I have certain duties to perform, and what I consider to be the chief amongst them, is this, that, to the best of my ability, I should faithfully interpret the public to the Government as well as the Government to the public. The Bill in question undoubtedly proposes serious interferences with the rights enjoyed by the landlords as well as by their aboriginal tenants, and naturally there is a strong feeling against the Bill amongst the interested people. But the very noble and humane motive that the legislature has in view, namely, of saving the thriftless but simple aboriginals from falling an easy and helpless prey to ill-intentioned neighbours, usurious money-lenders and unscrupulous zamindars, has also made it imperative that some of the rights so long enjoyed by the zamindars and by the aboriginals themselves should be curtailed to a certain extent, and so, whenever this curtailment of their rights has been found necessary, I have given my whole-hearted support and tried my best, by my utterances in this Council and elsewhere, to allay the antagonistic feeling that I found to exist against this measure. But, again, there are certainly some provisions in this Bill which really make unnecessary encroachments on our rights and regarding which there exists a bitter feeling of opposition which I can hardly ignore and so shall be failing in my duty as a councillor if I do not bring this fact to the notice of my brother councillors who are assembled here to-day to advise the Government on the subject of the Bill. I here beg to refer to sections 49H and 49J of the Bill. From the very day that the Bill was introduced in the Council strong objections have been taken to them by different speakers; they were severely criticised, both by officials and non-officials, when the Bill was circulated for opinions and when it was in the Select Committee, there was presumably a great tussle over these sections, inasmuch as they were practically recast, and even then neither to the satisfaction of the official nor of the non-official members of the Committee as will be seen from the amendments to these sections subsequently moved by the Hon'ble Mr. Cumming and also from the attitude of the non-official members of the Committee when divisions were taken in this Council, on the private amendments to these sections. Again, when the Bill was taken into consideration on the 18th December last, of the total number of 15 sections and 37 amendments no fewer than 16 amendments referred to the two sections 49H and 49J, and of the total of eight divisions taken, six were taken on the amendments on these two sections. This description of the situation created by these two sections speaks for itself. Sections 49H and 49J deal with highly technical subjects; it will be taxing the patience of the non-zamindar members too much if I were to go into details to show the unnecessary character of the many encroachments made on our rights by these two sections. But in order to convince my esteemed colleagues let me take one instance from each of the two sections. Section 49H empowers the Collector to eject a dishonest transferee from a holding and to settle the same with the transferor or his heir but fixes no time-limit within which the settlement is to be effected nor makes any provision for making good the loss to be suffered by the landlord during the period the land is unoccupied. It is to be borne in mind that the landlord is not in the least responsible for the fraudulent transfer of the land. Now is it right or fair to make the landlord suffer for no fault of his own? I will now show that this interference with a zamindar's right of enjoyment of the full value of his property is not at all necessitated by the objects that the legislature has in view in introducing this Bill. I have already alluded to these objects. For this purpose alienation of lands by an aboriginal without the Collector's approval has been prohibited. In spite of this if an aboriginal sells his land fraudulently, the Collector is empowered to eject the transferee. This provision is undoubtedly necessary to scare away dishonest purchasers, but the subsequent provision that the land is to be restored to the transferor takes away all the frightfulness from the former provision because as registration of transfer deeds without the Collector's sanction is prohibited, these transfers will be generally verbal affairs and the deed will not be a deed of transfer but that of a simple loan for which the person of the aboriginal will be liable and which the de facto purchaser will keep as security with which to threaten him, should he refuse to allow the purchaser to enjoy the land after it has been restored. The net result of this peculiar provision will be that it will considerably lessen the price of the land on account of the risk involved and will in addition mean pecuniary loss to the innocent landlord for the period intervening between the ejection and the subsequent restoration. The best method to attain the desired end would have been to hand over the land to the landlord immediately after the ejection, with a proviso that the same should be settled with an aboriginal, or failing an aboriginal, with the Collector's approval, with other people. In this way the fraudulent transfers would be effectively stopped as the landlord being interested in the matter would also help the Collector to detect such transfers. Now let me take up section 49J and give an instance of unnecessary interference with our rights sanctioned by it. There is a provision in this section which interferes with the liberty of action of the zamindar in the matter of resettlement of a holding abandoned or surrendered by an aboriginal and makes it incumbent on the zamindar to obtain the Collector's approval before exercising his rights; in defence of this encroachment on our rights it has been said by the member in charge of the Bill, on a previous occasion, that unless this is done the aboriginals through collusive or forced abandonments would be left at the mercy of unscrupulous zamindars. But I ask again, is it right or fair to punish all zamindars for the crime of a few? I will now show that this interference with our rights is absolutely unnecessary for the purpose which we have in view and not only that I will further show that this provision by its implied insinuation casts a most unwarranted reflection on the character of the Bengal zamindars.

The Bengal Tenancy (Amendment) Bill, 1917.Kumar Shib Shekhareswar Ray.

In the first place the aboriginal could be easily saved from unscrupulous zamindars by empowering the Collector, in the event of a collusive surrender, to enter upon the land and settle it in any way he deems proper; and also by attaching a heavy penalty to the settlement of such a holding by the landlord. This procedure would at once put a check on an unscrupulous zamindar from adopting unfair means to dispossess his aboriginal tenants and at the same time would not interfere with the time-honoured privilege of a zamindar of unimpeachable character of exercising his rights freely in respect of really abandoned holdings. Let me tell the Council that a very great bitterness is felt by respectable zamindars by this attempt to take away this privilege from them and forcing them along with dishonest zamindars to dance attendance at the Collectorate with its unscrupulous amlas whenever there would be an occasion to settle an abandoned holding.

The bitterness that is felt by us will be better understood if I here give an analogy: The lowest police officer is empowered, by the Criminal Procedure Code, to enter into the house of the highest in the land and search his innermost apartments, if the said officer has reason to believe that stolen articles are kept there. But we do not grudge him his extraordinary power because we know that so long as we are not receivers of stolen articles, our home is our castle and the police can never enter it. But in order to prevent the possibility of any stolen article being conveyed to our house, if the law of the land provided to station constables at our door with instructions to search every man or woman or every box or bundle that went into our house, I ask the soberest gentleman present here if he would put up with this insult to his honour for a single moment without feeling bitter at the monstrosity of the legislation. Sir, encroaching upon one's rights even for a good cause is an unpleasant task in itself, and it can be easily imagined how difficult and dangerous the situation becomes when one is called upon to give up rights for which not the least justification can be vouchsafed. Sir, we are now passing through troubled times and already there is too much bitterness in the country to combat with. Why then add another bitterness to that already existing when the objects of the present Bill can be secured equally well by the use of a little tact and judgment? I have already indicated the lines on which we can work, but I am sure that if the ten heads of the members of the Select Committee are put together it will be quite an easy affair for it to devise means which will serve our purpose without unnecessarily interfering with vested rights and thus creating a feeling of bitterness where no such thing exists at present. I, therefore, appeal, to the Council to recommit these two offending sections to the Select Committee with instructions to make necessary additions and alterations in them. I also appeal to the member in charge, with all the earnestness that I command, to accept my motion. I am not asking for anything unreasonable. There can be no harm if these two sections are referred back to the Select Committee. On the other hand, it will reassure the public that the matter has been considered in all its aspects before being enacted into a law of the land.

Sir, I am not a trained lawyer who could put his arguments with legal deftness, nor am I a gifted orator who could move the Council with his choice rhetoric, and to add to my difficulties, the subject-matter of my motion is highly technical. I know not what chances of success I stand if my motion is opposed by the Government. I, therefore, once more appeal to the member in charge of the Bill for a sympathetic reconsideration of the whole matter."

The Hon'ble Mr. CUMMING said :—

" Sir, I cannot congratulate the Hon'ble Member on the attitude which he has thought fit to adopt in connection with this legislation. I gather from his amendment that his view is that sufficient safeguards have not been given to protect the vested interests of the landlords and tenants ; but from his speech it is a fair inference that it was directed almost entirely to the interests of landlords ; and I am the more surprised, because, at the present moment, one would have imagined that a representative of the landlords' interests in this Council would not be anxious to emphasize that there was a cleavage of interests between them and the tenantry of this Province. Indeed, the Bengal Landholders' Association adopted a very different attitude by submitting a minimum of adverse comment on this Bill. When the Bill was introduced, they said that the Bill initiated a principle which was recognized as early as 1793, and they approved generally of the provisions of the Bill. The only provision of the Bill to which they took exception at that time has since been altered in the course of the proceedings of the Select Committee. The legislation is, I maintain, Sir, beneficent legislation ; and at this stage I am not prepared to accede to any change or to any further delay which may have the effect either of minimizing the good results of the legislation or of making the execution of its provisions impracticable. I may say at once to the Hon'ble Member, with reference to this amendment, that he cannot possibly expect that the Select Committee will reconsider questions of principle that have already been decided by the Council as a whole.

At the risk of burdening the Council, I should like to recapitulate as shortly as I can, first, the facts regarding the initiation of this legislation, and secondly, the action taken since its introduction. First of all, regarding the initiation of this legislation, the condition of the Santhals and similar aboriginal tribes on the borderland of the Santhal Parganas has been a matter of grave consideration for no less than 45 years. Their grievances were examined by the Magistrate of Birbhum in 1872 ; and the discontent of that period led to the passing of the Magna Charta of the Santhal Parganas,— Regulation III of 1872 for the Santhal Parganas. There was a special inquiry in 1883 by a Deputy Collector, who, by his personal influence, was able to bring about a temporary adjustment ; and again in 1908, the present Director of Land Records, Mr. McAlpin, made a detailed inquiry from Birbhum down to Balasore. He made certain recommendations, which, for certain reasons, did not crystallize in legislation till 1914. In that year, a draft Bill was circulated throughout the Province, and in 1916, a revised draft Bill was submitted to the Government of India ; in the spring of last year, the Government of India assented to the proposed legislation, and the result is the Bill before the Council. I do not think, Sir, that the Government have been over hasty in initiating this legislation, or that it can be said that the terms of the Bill have not been prepared very carefully.

The next point under this head which I should like to mention is in order to correct a misapprehension on the Hon'ble Member's part. The Bill is not directed against landlords as such ; for I see that all through his speech the Hon'ble Member seems to indicate this. The purpose of the Bill is primarily to prevent the transfer of lands to money-lenders and to maintain the communal system of the aboriginal tribes as far as possible. Of course, if the Hon'ble Member is not prepared to accept this principle, then we are poles apart. But I think that the Council, as a whole, accepted the principle that it is desirable to maintain the communal system as far as possible. The evils were very patent, as Mr. McAlpin's inquiry revealed ; and it was shown that it was the money-lender and not the landlord, except in a very few cases.

who was to blame. In fact it was shown that the Santhals under existing circumstances were losing their lands and becoming simply serfs, and that 50 per cent. of the Civil Court decrees were ex parte. Indeed, the landlords of the areas in question rather prefer Santhal tenants, and the Santhals themselves have an innate feeling of loyalty to hereditary landlords. The root idea of the Bill is the prohibition of the alienation of land. As I have previously explained in this Council, this is not a new idea ; it has been adopted in the Santhal Parganas Regulation, in the Chota Nagpur Tenancy Bill, in the Central Provinces Tenancy Act and in the Punjab Alienation of Land Act. The Santhals in the west of Bengal know their own weaknesses of thriftlessness and intemperance. They are aware that in the neighbouring districts their tribes have received protection, and they asked to be protected against themselves. I may say under this head that all the opinions of persons, whether official or non-official, who have a personal knowledge of the tract, is overwhelming in favour of such prohibition of alienation.

As to the second head,—what we have done since the Bill was introduced,—let me recapitulate shortly the facts. It should be remembered in passing that the Select Committee submitted an unanimous report. One of the main changes was that the castes and tribes of aboriginals to which the Act may be applied have now been specified. The original draft Bill was indefinite on this point. Then again in the case of settlement by landlords of lands from which transferees have been ejected, it is not now necessary to have in all cases the approval of the Collector. The landlord is allowed to make settlement of such land provided that he settle it himself with an aboriginal. Similarly, in the case of surrender and abandonment, to which so much attention was drawn in the course of the debate, it is not now necessary in all cases that the landlord should have the approval of the Collector for resettlement. The power of interference by the Collector has been removed in cases in which the landlord settles the land with an aboriginal. Next, provision for the transfer of a decree to the Collector was omitted, and the execution of decrees has been left to the Civil Courts."

The Hon'ble KUMAR SHIB SHIKHARESWAR RAY said :—

"Is the Hon'ble Member in order in referring to these matters?"

The PRESIDENT said :—

"I think that the Hon'ble Member in charge is quite in order."

The Hon'ble MR. CUMMING, continuing, said :—

"I have been recapitulating the facts. The provision for the transfer of a decree has been omitted, and the execution of decrees is now left to the Civil Court ; and, further, the prohibition against suits to set aside the order of the Collector has been modified to this extent that suits on the ground of fraud and want of jurisdiction are now permitted. Finally, in the case of surrender or abandonment, the Collector may only withhold his assent to a settlement made by a landlord when he is satisfied that the surrender or abandonment is collusive. These are, I submit to the Council, no small changes and indicate that a reasonable attempt has been made to meet the various objections that were raised during the circulation of the Bill. For these two main reasons that the Bill is the result of long consideration, and that all reasonable objections have been met, I desire to resist this amendment of referring the Bill again to a Select Committee. There is, however, a further reason which I may mention at this stage, and that is a new one since we last met. In December last, I said that I was not prepared to say that it was imperatively urgent that the legislation should be passed at that meeting, but I do say now that there should be no further delay in the passing of the Bill. In the Bankura district the stage will shortly be reached at which the preliminary record-of-rights will be prepared, and I maintain that it is desirable that the Santhals of that area should have the benefit of this legislation before that stage is reached.

In conclusion, Sir, with reference to this amendment. I should like to quote some remarks of a general character. They are applicable to the case not only of the Santhals but also of the other aboriginals whose cases have been mentioned in the schedule. The remarks are those of one who was once in charge of this Province. The question is whether it is wise for a civilized Government to counteract the unfortunate effects of the inroad of civilization. On this point, Sir William Duke once said that he was fully convinced of the necessity of protecting aboriginal and semi-aboriginal tribes against unrestricted alienation of their holdings. He said that he knew that many, who freely admitted the incapacity of such people to maintain themselves against others who were more sophisticated and instructed in legal processes, insisted that it was the inevitable result of the march of progress that such backward races should go down, and that if they continued to exist at all they should do so as hewers of wood and drawers of water. Sir William Duke has recorded that this view was unjust and cruel and founded on arbitrary ideas of what constituted progress. He said that the communal system of most aboriginal tribes did not regard land as a saleable commodity and that this system was not founded upon the Contract Act. We have, he said, forced upon them a civil polity which was not their own; and it was unfair to say that if it ruined them it was their own lookout.

Sir, I wish to identify myself with these remarks made by one whose opinion should carry weight in this Council. I desire to oppose this amendment."

The Hon'ble the MAHARAJADHIRAJA BAHADUR of Burdwan said :—

"Sir, I am sorry to have to oppose Kumar Shib Shekhareswar in his moving this amendment. He has paid in opening his speech a compliment, which he thinks to be a compliment, to the members of the Select Committee for their work in connection with amending the Bill. When one looks at the agenda paper and finds the number of amendments proposed by the Kumar himself one really wonders what are the objectionable features in these two sections for which he wants this Bill to be recommitted to the Select Committee, for I find that he has got one solitary amendment for clause 49H. Then, again, he has said in his opening remarks that the members of the Select Committee—by this he undoubtedly means the non-official members of the Select Committee—came to an honourable compromise regarding this Bill. If according to him they came to an honourable compromise, I do not see what good those members in the Select Committee are going to do by the recommitment of this Bill to them. But, if he does not really mean that, he probably means a censure on the work of the Select Committee, which, of course, as a member of that body I am not prepared to take lying down. Then again, if one looks at the original intention of this Bill one finds that it really arose not only from what the Director of Land Records, Mr. McAlpin, reported, but also what the Commissioner of my division reported regarding the Santhals in the districts, particularly of Birbhum, Bankura and Midnapore. I have not been able to ascertain as yet the number of my Santhali tenants in Bankura as my Superintendent has been away, nor am I certain of the Midnapore Santhals in my estate, but in Birbhum district I have a big mahal where there is a large number of Santhals and my khas mahal Dewan, to whom I wrote, writes as follows: 'It appears from the tahsil records of lat Hukumapur (Birbhum) that in 1818 B.S., 1,820 bighas of land were in the occupation of these aboriginal tribes. In 1823; B.S., 2,110 bighas of land are in their occupation. Thus the land in their occupation is increasing. It appears from the register of mutation of names that within the last ten years only 8 bighas of land have been transferred and that from one Santhal to another of the same tribe by sale. From the khas entry register it appears that about 30 bighas of land have during the last 10 years been purchased khas by the execution of rent decrees'. From this, Sir, it will appear that at least there are some zamindars who do not grudge the Santhali having lands in his own khas mahal zamindari. In fact I know of zamindars in these parts who welcome them as being good tenants. I, therefore, think that for those zamindars at least the defence that the Kumar has made does not apply, because they can defend themselves and their good understanding between themselves and their aboriginal tenants. Regarding the other tracts I am not, of course, in a position to say anything, but I am not only sorry but in fact unhappy in the way the Hon'ble Kumar has tried to defend the rights of zamindars in his fighting speech, according to his light. I cannot help thinking that at the present moment more than at any other time it is essential for the zamindars not only to show that spirit of friendliness and co-operation towards their tenants, but it is also, I think, not fair to the other zamindars to try and make out that the zamindars in their desire to protect their rights—and I am more zealous about protecting their rights than anybody else, for I have a right to be—are trying—which unfortunately is the impression that has been created in my mind at any rate by the Kumar's attitude—to wrest from the hands of the Government those rights and privileges, in such a way as would be misconstrued or would give the impression that the zamindars are anxious more to safeguard their rights than to extend protection to their own tenants. That would indeed be a most unfortunate impression to be created in the Council, especially at a time when the zamindars are on their trial. For these reasons I am sorry I am unable to accept the amendment moved by the Hon'ble Kumar."

The Hon'ble MAULVI ABUL KAREM said :—

"Sir, I rise to oppose the amendment moved by the Hon'ble Kumar and I associate myself with the remarks that fell from the Hon'ble Maharajadhiraja Bahadur of Burdwan. We have waited too long for legislation on this question and the zamindar's interests were represented on the Select Committee by the foremost zamindar in the land. And I cannot myself conceive what rights or vested interests of the zamindars have been violated by this Bill. The Bill is intended primarily to protect the Santhals and other aboriginals against themselves. The Bill was not drafted at the instance of an official but because the people themselves wanted it, and in protecting the Santhals and other aboriginals from themselves some restrictions had to be put on the rights of the zamindars because otherwise the intentions of the Bill will be frustrated because the zamindars would sometimes interfere and make the provisions of the Bill absolutely useless. The Bill, moreover, has been before the public for a long time and every zamindari association in the Province and those interested had an opportunity of submitting their opinions to Government and to this Council and all these opinions were considered. I believe that at the last meeting of the Council the Bill was not passed on a technical ground, but, as stated by the Hon'ble Mr. Cumming, the time has come when this Bill should become the law of the land. With these few words I oppose the amendment."

The Hon'ble MR. BOMPAS said :—

"Sir, sitting on this Council as a nominated official I owe Government a silent vote and I think I owe it nothing more. If I take part in the debate I am free to express my own feelings. My principal feeling at the sight of this amendment is one of dismay, and I devoutly hope that this Council will not sanction this extremely novel procedure of starting the discussion of a Bill all over again after it has reached the very last stage. This Bill has been through the ordinary course of legislation in this Council. There was an opportunity of discussing the principles of the Bill when it was committed to the Select Committee and it was dealt with by the Select Committee. The Select Committee presented an unanimous report and a day was devoted to the discussion of amendments. The Hon'ble Kumar had a full opportunity then of asking this Council to amend the Bill in any form that he desired. Then at the last moment when it was on the verge of being passed into law, by availing himself of a rule which has not been brought into use before I believe an Hon'ble Member is enabled to start the proceedings de novo. To-day we have a number of fresh amendments on the agenda and I understand that there is nothing in the rules to prevent this operation being repeated ad infinitum. If this is to happen on the discussion of a small Bill of 12 clauses I tremble to think what will happen when legislation of real importance and magnitude is under consideration. Speaking for myself I should very much dread the results if this Council gave its sanction to this innovation. Although the Hon'ble Member has not given us any very clear indication of the precise amendment which he desires to be carried and although his motion is that the Select Committee is to make such additions and alterations in sections 49H and 49J as will safeguard the interest of the landholder as well as of the tenant, without making any unnecessary encroachments on the vested rights of either of them, the Hon'ble Mr. Cumming has said that the speech dealt only with the rights of zamindars. And on this I may say that if any member had any fear that this is a piece of grandmotherly legislation to protect the Santhals against themselves and against their wishes I may mention one fact which I think will throw a light on that. As has been mentioned there was special legislation in force in the Santhal Parganas on the lines of this Bill to protect the interest of the aborigines. When I was Deputy Commissioner of that district there was in my office a petition sent in by a large number of villagers in the adjoining district of Birbhum. I think there were about 40 Santhals who joined together and sent in that petition direct. They hoped that they might be given the benefit of the legislation which protects the rights of aboriginals and which was in force in the Santhal Parganas. They said in that petition—give us that law and we will undertake all the corresponding duties as they do in the Santhal Parganas. They have to maintain their village roads free of cost and they are liable to certain other forms of public works. These Santhals earnestly petitioned that they might be allowed the burden on their shoulders in order that they might receive the protection as early as possible of this kind of legislation. I do not think, however, that we need worry about the encroachment on the vested interests of the raiyats.

There is one other point to which I may refer. I think the Hon'ble Kumar is entirely mistaken in treating this Bill as if it were an attack on unscrupulous landlords. There is no question of anything of that nature. As long as the law permits an aboriginal the right of transfer to one of another race there is no reason whatever why the landlord should take any interest in the matter or interfere, but if a law is introduced which forbids such transfers there is no reason to suppose that the landlords or the agents of landlords will take any active interest in interfering with a law which does not benefit or interest them in any way. It will, therefore, be idle to trust to action on the part of a man who has no possible interest in enforcing the law and we are not dealing with unscrupulous landlords. Any one who knows the administration of zamindaries, knows that in the great majority of zamindaries these matters have to be entrusted to Nawabs and tahsil officers. We have not a set of resident landlords devoting themselves to the detailed management of their estates. There is no question of anything in the nature of an attack on unscrupulous landlords. As has already been said this is a question of protecting the raiyat against himself and not against his landlord."

The HON'BLE KUMAR SHIB SHEKHARESWAR RAY said :—

Sir, I am not surprised at the attitude taken up by the Hon'ble the Maharajadhiraja Bahadur—he has to keep up the family tradition. With regard to my Hon'ble friend Maulvi Abul Kasem's remarks, I am quite at one with him when he says that we should give up certain of our rights but only those that are necessary. Why should the Government in the name of protecting Santhal tenants unnecessarily encroach upon our rights. Let them encroach upon those rights which are necessary, in that I agree with him, but I do not understand why he opposed my motion. With reference to the remarks of the Hon'ble Maharajadhiraja Bahadur of Burdwan that I have got only one motion in regard to clause 49H I may say that in fact I sent notice of five motions and I do not know why they were thought out of order and were rejected, so there is now only one motion against my name on the agenda paper.

With regard to the Hon'ble Mr. Cumming's reply to my observations, he does not say anything about which I have not already dealt with in my previous speeches, but there are two things which I should like to refer to now. He has spoken of the opinion expressed by the Bengal Landholders' Association. We should not try to hoodwink the Council, we all know that when the opinion was asked for, Mr. B. Chakravarti, the life and soul of the Association, was busy with Home Rule affairs, and he probably could not give time to the consideration of this question. Otherwise the opinion would have been on the lines of that of other Zamindari Associations.

(Cries of "Order, order.")

With reference to the legal aspect of the question whether it can be referred back to the Select Committee, that is a legal matter and it is for the Advocate-General to decide. Besides this there is nothing further to add to what I have already said in this Council. I prayed for justice and fairness and it is my keen disappointment to realize that I prayed in vain. However, I have one consolation in that the official reply has hopelessly failed to prove that I stand not on firm grounds of fairness and justice, and this fact sends a ray of hope to my disappointed soul and thus encouraged I stand before the Council for its verdict on my humble, and I think not unreasonable, prayer.

AMENDMENT No. I.

The Hon'ble Mr. CUMMING moved that for the figures "1917", in clause 1, the figures "1918" be substituted.

He said :—

"Sir, we now proceed to the consideration of the various amendments tabled for to-day's meeting. Personally I desire to express an apology to Hon'ble Members of the Council for the fact that in connection with this Bill they should have to give another day's consideration to what is after all a minor piece of legislation. The first motion which stands in my name has become necessary in view of the delay which has occurred in the passing of this Bill."

The motion was put and agreed to.

AMENDMENT No. II.

Hon'ble MAULVI A. K. FAZL-UL HAQ moved that the words and brackets "Maghs (Bakarganj district)" in line 12 of sub-section (2) of section 49A be omitted.

He said :—

"Sir, I regret I have to be guilty of the offence of taking advantage of this occasion to move this amendment with reference to clause 49A on which so many amendments had been proposed on the last occasion. I confess that these words did not seem to me of such importance personally speaking, but I have received several letters from several influential people of my district of Bakarganj who have suggested to me that these words should be omitted, and they have given very weighty reasons for saying so. I may mention that these Maghs are really Burmese settlers who have come over to the Sunderbans portion of the Bakarganj district and have settled down there as ordinary cultivators. As far as I am aware there is hardly anything to distinguish these people from the ordinary Bengali peasants and I do not see how, except by doing violence to the language itself, these people can at all be considered to be of a class which is ordinarily meant by the term aborigines. I admit that it is very difficult to define the word 'aborigines' and I think that it is for this reason that the Hon'ble Member in charge of the Bill has preferred not to attempt any definition, but to leave the term to be defined by a description. And considering the matter even from that point of view, I do not think that there are sufficient reasons why these Maghs should be included in the term and given the benefit of this legislation. So far as they are concerned, their interests can be sufficiently safeguarded when the Bengal Tenancy Act comes to be amended as a larger measure, and for the present, therefore, I do not see any reason why this legislation should be extended to them. I would not have moved this amendment had it not been for the fact that so far as I am aware these Maghs are not exactly in the same helpless condition in which Santhals and other aborigines admittedly are in certain parts of Bengal. The Maghs are very shrewd cultivators; in some cases they are much shrewder, more business-like and more careful of their interests than the Muhammadan cultivators who live in that part of the district. Unless, therefore, there are strong reasons why these Maghs should be taken out of the ordinary category of Bengali cultivators, I submit that no case had been made out for including these people in this special piece of legislation. I think, Sir, that unless such a case is made out, it is very undesirable that legislation of this character should be made too comprehensive. As a matter of fact, this legislation should be extended to include only the cases of those who would otherwise be helpless and powerless to protect themselves. I would deprecate any policy which would make this Bill something like what we have read of the old man in the sea in the Arabian Nights who once got up on a man's shoulder and then on the neck and head and in a minute he was all over the body. And this Bill commencing with certain aborigines is now extending its hands all over Bengal and even into the peaceful district of Bakarganj. And if this process is allowed to go on, I do not know how far it will go. I submit, therefore, that so far as the Maghs are concerned, they should be left to themselves to be dealt with when the Bengal Tenancy Act is to be amended later on. If, however, any special case can be made out against them I shall certainly be the last person to oppose their inclusion in the term. But as at present advised, and in view of all the communications I have received from my district, there is a strong feeling that the provisions of this Bill should not be extended to these people. With these few words I commend my amendment to the acceptance of the Council."

The Bengal Tenancy (Amendment) Bill 1917.

• Maulvi A. K. Fazl-ul Haq; Mr. Cumming.

The Hon'ble MR CUMMING said :—

"Sir, the Hon'ble Member desires that Maghs should be excluded from this schedule, on the ground that they are practically ordinary Bengali cultivators. It is true, he says, that he took no exception to the inclusion on a previous occasion, but in view of certain representations that have been made to him, he now desires their exclusion. The reason for their inclusion in the schedule, which, I may remark in passing, is only a description of aboriginals, is that the Collector of Bakarganj described them in the following terms: He said that, as a race, they are improvident, that unlike the Bengalis they live together in a communal system, and that it is only by legislation of the kind proposed in this Bill that it is possible to save the Maghs from the results of their own thriftlessness. If this be the fact, Sir, I say that there is very little difference, if any, between them and other aboriginals to protect whom we desire to pass this legislation. It is true that Maghs have come over from the Burma border and have settled in Bakarganj, but they are still looked upon as semi-aboriginal. In the colonization area in Bakarganj district, a separate tract has been set aside for them for the double purpose of protecting them and of keeping them apart from the influence of the surrounding people in that district. I frankly admit that their case is not so strong as that of some other aboriginals, but still I think that their case is sufficiently strong to justify inclusion in the schedule. It is to be noted that under sub-clause (2) of clause 49A, no action is to be taken until Government have notified that the provisions of this Act will apply to one or other of the tribes mentioned in the schedule. I do not think that at the present moment the Hon'ble Member has sufficient justification for asking for their exclusion from the schedule."

AMENDMENT No. III.

The Hon'ble BABU BHABENDRA CHANDRA RAY moved that the following be inserted after sub-section (2) of section 49A, namely :—

"(2a) No notification under sub-section (2) shall come into operation in any district or local area until six months after the publication of such notification."

"(2b) Any landlord affected by any such notification may, within six months of its publication, object thereto before the Collector on the following grounds, namely :—

(i) that the education and material condition of the aboriginal castes or tribes specified in the notification are not of a lower standard than the education and material condition of the general body of non-aboriginal peasants inhabiting the said district or local area or neighbouring areas ; or

(ii) that a large proportion of the aboriginal castes or tribes specified in the notification is of a nomadic character."

"(2c) If an objection is preferred by any landlord on any of the grounds mentioned in sub-section (2b), the Collector shall hold an inquiry thereinto in the presence of such landlord or his duly authorized agent, and shall give his decision with regard thereto in writing."

"(2d) An appeal shall lie to the Commissioner from any such decision of the Collector ; and every order by the Commissioner on appeal shall be subject to revision and modification by the Local Government."

He said :—

"Sir, at the last meeting of the Council when I objected to the passing of the Bill into law, I was charged by the Hon'ble Mr. Cumming with having taken an 'unfair advantage' of a particular rule of business. I did not know that in raising the objection under rule 47, I could lay myself open to such a charge. If to avail ourselves of such little rights as we possess under duly promulgated legislative rules be unfair in the official eye, I wonder how to characterize gratuitous attempts to supplement the rules of business with so-called notes which lay down maxims like copy-books telling us what is right or wrong for members to do.

Sir, I do not mind the personal nature of the attack which the Hon'ble Member in charge thought fit to launch against me at the last meeting.

I am, moreover, prepared to concede a monopoly of fairness to the Hon'ble Member in charge if

The Hon'ble MR. DONALD said :—

"Is the Hon'ble Member in order ?"

The PRESIDENT said :—

"No, he is not in order."

The Hon'ble BABU BHABENDRA CHANDRA RAY continuing said :—

"Sir, the Bill immediately takes effect in the case of the Santhals of the districts of Birbhum, Bankura and Midnapore who number 3 lakhs 32 thousand odd. But in its potential scope, this measure affects three lakhs more of Santhals in other districts, besides over 9 lakhs of people represented by the 18 aboriginal classes mentioned in section 49A, sub-section (2). Thus the potential scope of the Bill is about four times its immediate scope, so far as numbers go. I am perfectly aware that it is not the intention of the authorities to extend the provisions of the Bill to these classes all at once, or without any inquiry into the circumstances of each particular case. From all that we have heard and read about this matter, it appears to me that the authorities have for a few years been looking out for some such protective legislation for the Santhals, and that the idea of making it embrace other aboriginal classes is an after-thought. We know that some regular inquiry was made with regard to the Santhals, particularly of these districts, but no such investigation was ever undertaken in the other cases. Mr. McAlpin, the author of the Bill, has no doubt favoured us with an expression of his views after the Bill was referred to the Select Committee, in course of which he enumerates these classes of aboriginals as deserving to be brought within the prospective scope of the Bill. With due deference to the Director of Land Records, it must be said that we have a right to expect a thorough inquiry in the first instance, and an explanation from the Select Committee justifying the insertion of those names.

Sir, to put the matter briefly, we have to depend mainly on the testimony of Mr. McAlpin as to the necessity of investing Government with the power of extending this measure of doubtful wisdom to about 12 lakhs of people. And in giving a blank cheque to the executive with regard to 12 lakhs of aboriginals, what safeguards are we providing against any indiscriminate and unwise exercise of this extraordinary power? I propose in this amendment that the landlord should be given a chance of showing that in any particular case the circumstances do not justify the extension of the provisions of this Bill. Sir, I think I am right in saying that the intention of the legislature is to afford protection to the aboriginal against himself, not because he is an aboriginal, but because he is most backward and thriftless. And before any protection is extended to him, it should be made clear that he is actually worse off than the generality of the peasants of the non-aboriginal classes of the neighbourhood who cannot in any circumstances be brought under the operation of any such legislation. Sir, this represents the minimum that is due to the landlord in consideration of the great sacrifice he is being called upon to make in the name of humanity. And I hope the Hon'ble Mr. Cumming will see his way to accept this amendment on behalf of Government."

The Hon'ble Mr. CUMMING said :—

"Sir, the principle of previous publication has been adopted, as most Hon'ble Members are aware, in section 190 of the Bengal Tenancy Act. It is also used in connection with many other Acts, but I think that the case of the present Bill is somewhat different. It was urged by the Eastern Bengal Landholders' Association when submitting their opinion; and undoubtedly that view had weight when there was no distinct definition of aboriginals in the Bill as then drafted, but as Government have now declared explicitly who in their view will be considered aboriginals and when a full description has been provided in this schedule, the argument, it seems to me, has nearly lost all its force. Indeed, the inclusion of any particular tribe in this schedule is a warning that it is possible in the future that Government may deal with that tribe in the way in which it is proposed to deal with the Santhals. There is, moreover, an objection of form. The Hon'ble Member has drafted the amendment with the intention of making a prior inquiry obligatory, but there is no provision for giving effect to the decision of the Collector or Commissioner as the case may be. Then again there is an objection in principle, because in a matter of this kind, I do not think it is correct that Government should delegate their power to their officers; the decision should remain with themselves. The Select Committee had some discussion on the point, but it was not considered necessary, in view of the form in which the schedule has been prepared, that there should be a prior publication. For these reasons, Sir, I suggest that the amendment of the Hon'ble Member should not be accepted by the Council."

The Hon'ble BABU BROJENDRA KISHOR RAY CHAUDHURI moved that the following be added at the end of section 49A, namely :—

“(5) The provisions of this Chapter shall not apply to Jhum cultivators.”

He said :—

“Sir, in this connection I beg to state that certain sections of the aboriginal classes in the Eastern districts are known as Jhum cultivators. They are described by the Sub-Deputy Collector of Mymensingh thus : ‘They generally clear the jungle, cultivate the virgin soil for two or three years and then shift to other jungles.’ Speaking from my personal knowledge I can say that they do not generally pay any rent to the landlords for the first few years, and as soon as rent is about to be assessed on their fields, they move away to other quarters. In these circumstances, Sir, I submit that it will not be wise or fair either to lay down that once a Jhum horde have touched upon a land and left it for fresh field according to their wont, the landlord must have nothing more to do with it, than to wait for the arrival of another batch of wandering tenants. Again, as regards the interests of the Jhumias themselves, the Sub-Deputy Collector of Mymensingh rightly observes that : 'the Bill, as it stands, would do more harm than good to the Garo cultivators by making it difficult for them to make a profit by transferring their holdings to the more settled cultivators.' According to the present legislation the Jhumias, after they have cleared the jungles, must wait—nobody knows how long—for aboriginal purchasers to turn up, or they must desert their fields without gaining any return for their labour. I, therefore, urge that the Jhum cultivators should not be brought within the scope of the Bill."

The Bengal Tenancy (Amendment) Bill, 1917.

• Babu Brojendra Kishor Roy Chaudhuri ; Mr. Cumming.

The Hon'ble Mr. CUMMING said :—

"I quite appreciate the remarks of the Hon'ble Member ; but it is obvious that if a Garo has no settled holding of any kind he would, under no circumstances, come under the provisions of this Bill ; while, on the other hand, if he has a settled holding, I ask the Hon'ble Member—why should the Bill not apply? Apparently, he bases his argument upon the opinion of the Sub-Deputy Collector of Mymensingh, who said that it would do harm to the Garos if they were subjected to such legislation. That opinion, however, is not supported by the Sub-Deputy Collector's superiors whom I have consulted. I recommend, therefore, that the amendment be not accepted."

The motion was put and lost.

AMENDMENT No. V.

The Hon'ble BABU BRAJENDRA KISHOR RAY CHAUDHURI moved that the following be added at the end of section 49A., namely :—

"(5) the provisions of the Chapter shall not apply to such raiyats and under-raiyats as have not been in continuous possession of their holdings for at least three years previous to the publication of a notification under sub-section (2)".

He said :—

"Sir, the main purpose of the Bill, as stated by Mr. Beatson Bell was to secure the aboriginals against losing their 'ancestral lands.' The clear intention of the Bill is, therefore, to protect those who are enjoying lands for a long period. I have fixed the period for three years as the maximum only to bring out the latent intention of the authorities."

The Hon'ble Mr. CUMMING said :—

"I understand the Hon'ble Member wishes to help the Government by causing the latent views underlying this section to be clearly expressed ; but I think he has overlooked one very salient fact, and that is that by an introduction of a provision of this nature the administration of the Act would be rendered more difficult. It would be always possible to plead want of jurisdiction under section 49N and raise a question as to whether any particular holding had or had not been in possession of the particular raiyat for the term of three years. Besides, I suggest one possibility to the Hon'ble Member. The term is three years previous to the notification which it is proposed to issue. Suppose for example a notification was issued in the year 1920 and a case came up for decision in the year 1927 or 1930. According to the terms of this clause, the aboriginal will have to prove possession not simply for 3 years but for 10 or 13 years, and so the evil would increase. I do not base my chief objection on this which is a minor point. My main objection is that this proposal will only lead to difficulties. I say that this is a case of beneficent legislation, and I object to any further amendments which may be introduced to the impediment of the objects which the Bill has in view."

The motion was put and lost.

AMENDMENT No. VI.

The Hon'ble BABU BRAJENDRA KISHOR RAY CHAUDHURI, with the leave of the President, withdrew the following motion which stood in his name :—

If amendment No. V be not carried, the Hon'ble Babu Brajendra Kishor Ray Chaudhuri to move that the following be added at the end of section 49A, namely :—

"(5) the provisions of this Chapter shall not apply to such raiyats and under-raiyats as have not been in continuous possession of their holdings for at least three years from the date of settlement of such holdings."

AMENDMENT No. VII.

The Hon'ble KUMAR SHIB SHEKHARESWAR RAY moved that the words "who is a settled raiyat of the village within which such land is situated" be inserted after the word "aboriginal", in line 9 of clause (b) of sub-section (2) of section 49H.

He said :—

"Sir, this is the sole survivor of about half a dozen amendments that I sent to the Secretary and I do not know what fate awaits it in the Council. Clause 49H gives unlimited power to the Collector to settle the land with any person he likes and on any terms he deems proper. I do not think it will be improper for a zamindar to object to an undesirable tenant, a stranger forced upon him about whom there will be no guarantee whether he will be able to pay rent regularly. That is why I move that the tenant may be a settled raiyat of the village. In this case, at least there will be this much guarantee that the person is known to the zamindar and is not a total stranger and moreover he has also a stake in the village and also I think some sort of preferential claim. Therefore, I hope, the Hon'ble Member in charge of the Bill will find his way to accept this amendment."

The Hon'ble MR. CUMMING said :—

"Sir, at the risk of being tedious, may I shortly inform the Council what the procedure really is? The Hon'ble Member has attacked a portion of that procedure which is at the very far end of it. If a holding is transferred in contravention of the terms of this Bill, the Collector may eject the transferee and may restore the land to an aboriginal holder, and, failing such person, he may declare that the right of settlement is vested in the landlord. The landlord has then one year in which to make a settlement, and it is not till after this period that the provision to which the Hon'ble Member takes objection comes in. According to the terms of the section, the Collector may settle the land on behalf of the landlord on such terms as he thinks fit; and if he is unable to make such settlement, he will then give up the right of settlement, and an unrestricted right of settlement will then vest in the landlord. I, therefore, put it to the Council that the Collector will only take action after the landlord has had one year to get a tenant to his liking. What then is the object of adding any further complication regarding the discretion of the Collector which is to be exercised after the landlord has failed? The obligation of choosing a settled raiyat will only have the effect of creating a dispute; and it is such disputes and such complications which I wish to avoid. Moreover, the very terms of the amendment seem to me to be irrelevant, in that the important thing is not whether the tenant is a settled raiyat or not, but whether he is an aboriginal. Therefore, I would ask the Council to reject this amendment on the main ground that the Collector's discretion need not be restricted, especially when the landlord who is most interested has had one whole year during which he can select a tenant to his own liking."

The motion being put, a division was taken with the following result :—

The Hon'ble Babu Brojendra Kishor Ray Chaudhuri, with the leave of the President, withdrew following motion which stood in his name :—

The Hon'ble BABU BROJENDRA KISHOR RAY CHAUDHURI to move that after section 49-O the following be added, namely :—

"49P. Nothing in this Chapter shall affect the right of a landlord to receive any customary fee from a transferee of land according to the rate prevailing for the time being in the locality where such land is situated, and no transfer shall be valid without the payment of such fee."

LIST OF BUSINESS—ITEM No. 8.

The Hon'ble MR. CUMMING moved that the Bengal Tenancy (Amendment) Bill, 1917, as amended by the Council on the 18th December, 1917, and as settled by the Council on the 22nd January, 1918, be passed.

He said :—

"I have already made remarks of a general nature regarding the character of this legislation; and it would be trespassing on the forbearance of the Council if I were to make any further remarks at this stage. I can only repeat that this beneficent legislation is in the interests of the persons for whom it is being enacted and at their own request. It is not an attack upon landlords; such restraints as have been put upon the action of landlords are such as landlords who themselves hold lands in the Santhal country are agreeable to accept. I think, therefore, that the Council need have no misgivings that legislation of this nature, whether as regards Santhals or as regards aboriginals of the description mentioned in the schedule to whom the Act may hereafter be applied, will do any harm; nay, on the contrary, it will do a great deal of good."

The motion was put and agreed to.

THE BENGAL (ALIENS) DISQUALIFICATION BILL, 1918.LIST OF BUSINESS—ITEMS Nos. 9 and 10.

The Hon'ble MR. O'MALLEY moved for leave to introduce a Bill to disqualify certain persons from voting at elections of, or being elected or nominated as members of, or holding office in, local bodies in Bengal.

He said :—

"Sir, I beg to move for leave to introduce a Bill disqualifying certain persons from voting at elections of, or being elected or nominated as members of, or holding office in, local bodies in Bengal.

The Bill is brief and self-contained, and it requires but little explanation. Under the Municipal and Local Self-Government Acts in force in Bengal there is at present nothing to prevent aliens either from voting at elections for local bodies, such as District Boards, Local Boards, Union Committees and Municipal Boards, or from sitting as members of these bodies, or from holding responsible executive office under them. It is considered undesirable that aliens should have these privileges, and I believe measures have already been taken elsewhere to disqualify them. In Bengal three Acts are affected, viz., the Bengal Municipal Act, the Calcutta Municipal Act and the Bengal Local Self-Government Act; and instead of amending these Acts it has been thought preferable to take the simpler course of having a direct and self-contained measure.

The Bengal (Aliens) Disqualification Bill, 1918.Mr. O'Malley.The Serampore College Bill, 1918.Mr. O'Malley.

The Bill provides for the disqualification of every person who is not a British subject or a subject of any State in India; the latter expression does not include the subjects of foreign European States in India. Aliens are not to be eligible to vote at elections for local bodies and are to be debarred from obtaining seats by means of election. As membership can be obtained not only by election but also by nomination, the latter method of admission to membership is also blocked by the Bill. As the responsible offices of Chairman, Deputy Chairman and Vice-Chairman need not always be held by members of the Boards, they have also been brought within the scope of the Bill; and it is provided that as soon as the Act comes into force aliens are to be deprived of their membership or of their offices if they happen to be members or to hold any of these offices at the time.

The general provisions of the Bill, which apply to all aliens, are subject to the important proviso at the end of the Bill which allows the Government of Bengal, with the approval of the Government of India, to make an exception in the case of any aliens or class of aliens. The reason for this proviso is that it is considered that the Armenians should not be deprived of the privileges which they at present possess. As long ago as 1688 an undertaking was given in a Charter granted to an Armenian merchant, Logee Phanoos Calander, by the Governor and Company of Merchants of London trading to the East Indies, that 'the Arnenian nation shall be capable of all civil offices and preferments in the same manner as if they were Englishmen born.' This undertaking has hitherto been observed and it is intended to observe it. It is true that a considerable number of the Armenians, resident in Bengal, were born in British India, and are, consequently, British subjects, and the question of disfranchisement would not therefore arise in their case. It would, however, arise in the case of those who were born outside British India, unless they are excluded from the scope of the Bill. We feel that if they were deprived of their existing rights Government would lay itself open to a charge of breach of faith with a community of people who have proved themselves loyal and useful citizens, and some of whom have played a leading part in municipal life. It is therefore intended that all Armenians should continue to enjoy their existing civic rights; and the Government of India have already given an assurance that they are prepared to exclude Armenians from the restrictions which the Bill imposes.

With these words I move for leave to introduce the Bill."

The motion was put and agreed to.

The Hon'ble Mr. O'Malley moved that the said Bill be referred to a Select Committee consisting of the Hon'ble Sir S. P. Sinha, the Hon'ble Mr. Payne, the Hon'ble Mr. Panton, the Hon'ble Mr. Mackenzie, the Hon'ble Dr. Abdulla-al-Mamun Suhrawardy, the Hon'ble Rai Mahendra Chandra Mitra Bahadur, the Hon'ble Babu Surendra Nath Ray and the mover, with instructions to circulate their report in time for its consideration at the February meeting of the Council.

The motion was put and agreed to.

THE SERAMPORE COLLEGE BILL, 1918.LIST OF BUSINESS—ITEM NO. 11.

The Hon'ble Mr. O'MALLEY moved for leave to introduce a Bill to supplement, and in certain matters to supersede, the Royal Charter of Incorporation and the Statutes and Regulations of the Serampore College.

The Serampore College Bill, 1918.Mr. O'Malley.

He said :—

" Sir, If the Hon'ble Members will refer to the schedules of the Bill they will see that the Charter dates back to 1827 and the Statutes and Regulations to 1833. I trust that the Members of the Council will bear with me if I give a brief historical resumé in order to explain the circumstances which have led up to this Bill.

The Serampore College was founded a century ago by the little band of Baptist Missionaries known as the Serampore Missionaries. Serampore was then Danish territory and was known officially as Fridericksnagore. The College was incorporated in 1827 by a Royal Charter granted by the King of Denmark, which gave it the powers of a University for conferring degrees. If Hon'ble Members will refer to the translation of the Charter—the original is in Danish,—which is printed as Schedule I of the Bill, they will see that the object of the College was to 'promote piety and learning particularly among the Indian Christian population of India.' It authorized the College to confer degrees on the students that testify their proficiency in Science, and it provided for the making and establishment of Statutes and Regulations. The Statutes and Regulations, of which a copy is printed as Schedule II of the Bill, were drawn up in 1833. They laid down, in accordance with the terms of the Charter, that the Council of the College was to consist of a Master or President and at least two, but not more than four, members. They also laid down that,—'learning and piety being peculiar to no denomination of Christians',—one of the members might belong to any denomination other than that of the Baptists.

In 1846 Serampore was transferred to the British by a treaty of purchase which recognized the Charter, for it provided that the rights and immunities which it granted to the College should not be interfered with but continue in force in the same way as if they had been obtained by a Charter from the British Government subject to the general law of India. I must pass briefly over the vicissitudes of the College during the next half century. In 1856 it was placed by the Council at the disposal of the Baptist Missionary Society for use in its educational work, both secular and theological, and next year it was affiliated to the newly found University of Calcutta.

In 1900 a movement was set on foot for the reorganization of the College on the lines laid down by its original founders. The objects contemplated were to provide facilities for theological study in conjunction with a liberal course of general education; to secure that the scientific study of Christian theology and biblical literature after a sound preliminary course in literature, philosophy and science should receive academic recognition similar to that accorded in Western countries; and to utilize the College Charter for the granting of theological degrees to students of all churches. In course of time it became evident that the denominational limitations that the original founders inserted, would prove a serious obstacle to the realization of these ideals. Eventually the College Council came to the conclusion that powers should be obtained by legislation to enlarge its membership so as to allow inter-denominational co-operation in the government of the College and moved Government to undertake legislation.

The Bill I have the honour to introduce has been drafted in order to give effect to the wishes of the College authorities. Briefly, they desire to confer degrees in theology upon the students of the College under the powers granted by the Royal Danish Charter, and they are anxious to place the constitution on a wider inter-denominational foundation. The Bill consequently provides for an alteration in the constitution, the Council being enlarged to a maximum of fifteen members in addition to the Master, while one-third only of the members must belong to the Baptist denomination. There is to be a faculty which shall be responsible to the Council for the internal management of the College and a strictly inter-denominational Senate, which will frame the courses of studies and control the examinations.

The Serampore College Bill, 1918.Mr. O'Malley.Resolutions.Babu Kishori Mohan Chaudhuri.

As regards the power to confer degrees, the College authorities are empowered by the Charter to grant degrees to the students who are proficient in science; and according to the ordinary meaning of the word they are in a position to grant degrees in non-theological subjects. I understand that they intend to grant only theological degrees, but it has been thought advisable to subject their power of conferring degrees in other subjects to safeguards similar to those prescribed by the Universities Act. Accordingly it is provided in clause 13, that if at any time the Council of the College shall intend to grant non-theological degrees, such degrees shall be confined to students of the College, and that before it grants such degrees it shall satisfy the Government as to the adequacy of the establishment and the equipment of the College, the academic standard to be maintained and the financial provision made therefor.

I should explain that Government feel that the undertaking given in 1845 to maintain the rights and immunities of the College implied at least a moral obligation on the part of Government not to amend the Charter in this way without the consent of the College authorities. They were accordingly consulted about this provision, and it has been inserted in the Bill with their consent. I should further explain the use in clause 13 of the words 'Government as defined in section 2(b) of the Indian Universities Act, 1904, in relation to the Calcutta University.' That section says 'the expression "the Government" means in relation to the University of Calcutta the Governor-General in Council.' The Government of India will, therefore, have to be satisfied under the Universities Act as it now stands. It may, however, be in the recollection of Hon'ble Members that in the Convocation speech which His Excellency the Viceroy delivered last year he foreshadowed the possibility of a transfer of the control of the Calcutta University from the Government of India to the Bengal Government. He remarked:—

'It has been frequently urged that the time has come for the Government of Bengal to take the place of the Government of India and the Governor to take the place of the Viceroy in the constitution of the University. Since I assumed office I have been very conscious of the grave inconvenience of the distance which separates the University from its Chancellor and the Government of India. It is impossible for us to have that close and intimate knowledge of your affairs which only residence on the spot can give. But I do not think that the moment when we are setting up this Commission, whose recommendations we shall have to consider, is the moment for such a change. As soon as the Commission has reported and action has been taken on its report, that will be the moment when the Governor and the Government of Bengal may well take over charge.'

The words to which I have referred have, therefore, been used in the Bill so that if at any time hereafter the control of the Calcutta University is transferred to the Bengal Government and section 2(b) of the Indian Universities Act is amended to legalize the change, there will be no necessity to amend clause 13 and the functions assigned to Government in the matter of non-theological degrees will ipso facto devolve on the Government of Bengal."

The motion was put and agreed to.

RESOLUTIONS.

(Under the rules for the discussion of matters of general public interest).

LIST OF BUSINESS—ITEM NO. 12.

The Hon'ble BABU KISHORI MOHAN CHAUDHURI moved the following resolution:—

"This Council recommends to the Governor, in Council that the last batch of students of the Belgachia Medical School admitted in the year 1913, and those who failed for the first time in one or two subjects in the Faculty Examination held in November, 1916, be granted an opportunity to appear at the Licentiate Examination of the State Medical Faculty of Bengal as has been previously allowed in the case of other students".

He said :—

"Sir, the question was submitted to Government and it was discussed in the public press and I have had an opportunity of seeing the Government views in reply to a representation made in the columns of the Bengalee. When the State Faculty Examination was arranged for there was a notification that the provisional examination would be held for two years up to May 1916 and thereafter no examination for private students would be held. At the time this was done the case of the students who were admitted in 1913 for a four years' course was not considered. At the time it was open to the school authorities to dismiss and close those classes or to warn the students about it but nothing was done. Apparently there was an impression in the minds of the students as also the school authorities that when their case arises in 1917 it will be favourably considered and they continued with their studies under that impression. But subsequently when they submitted a petition for an examination to be held in 1917 it was not considered in their favour.

Sir, I need not, I think, make any very lengthy speech. The case of these students for whom I plead is sufficiently strong by itself to appeal to the good sense of Hon'ble Members.

I confess my utter inability to make out why it is that the Government have so long been persistent in their refusal to give these students an opportunity for registering themselves. I need not, I think, dwell at length upon the disadvantages of non-registration which, I am perfectly sure, every Hon'ble Member present here is well aware of. I might only say that the disadvantages are many and I really do not see why these poor students should suffer from any such disadvantages while equally qualified candidates were given the opportunity of qualifying themselves for registration.

I may briefly state the history of the unfortunate position so as to make it clear to this Council that the Government are labouring under an entirely wrong impression throughout on the question 'who is at fault?' And this wrong impression I have no doubt is at the root of the whole situation. The Bengal Medical Act was passed in the year 1914 by this Council. About the time when the Bengal Medical Act was passed negotiations were going on between the Government and the Belgachia Medical College authorities for converting that College into a first grade University College, as a result of which admission into the old college and school departments was stopped for the first time in 1914. But the existing classes started in 1912 and 1913 were not discontinued, which at least shows that everyone in the College, I mean the College authorities and the students, were under the impression that the already admitted students would be given opportunities of qualifying themselves for registration under the Act of 1914. And this view obtains support from a letter of Dr. R. G. Kar, the Secretary of the College, to the Secretary to the Government of Bengal. I need only refer to a part of the letter which is as follows :—

'(2) These students were given to understand that they will be allowed to pass out as their predecessors and the school was debarred from admitting any new students under agreement with the Government of Bengal with effect from June, 1914.'

(Letter dated the 2nd October, 1916.)

Thus it is that these students are not to blame. The recent Government reply to the representation of the Indian Association which says that these students are themselves to blame thus proceeds upon a wrong hypothesis. In the course of the reply (published in the Bengalee, dated the 23rd December, 1917) the Government remark: 'The hardships from which the students referred to are alleged to be suffering are the result of the failure of these students to adapt themselves to conditions which were set out very clearly and in ample time to allow them to follow a course of study qualifying them to appear at the examinations of State Medical Faculty under its ordinary rules.' But may I ask, Sir, how could these students, after a year's course in the school, adapt themselves to the conditions set out except by the discontinuation of further studies in that Department? If so, why were not the students given timely information and warning or the classes discontinued?

It is of course true that the State Medical Faculty immediately after its creation notified that examinations under its transitory provisions will be held up to May 1916. But could it not be imagined by these students, if they knew of the notification at all, that this notification was only provisional and when the transitory provisions existed and were applied to some of the students that were already admitted before 1914 for a study of four years' course, this concession would also be extended to them when it would be pointed out to the authorities that the notification made did not cover their case and it was not possible for them to appear at the Final Examination held in 1916? Sir, it is only natural to imagine so. When they see that students admitted in 1912 are getting a chance it is impossible, Sir, I say it is impossible for them to imagine that they would not be given a chance. The fact, that this notification did not cover their case, they might have thought, was accidental by reason of a mistake or was only provisional. Surely, Sir, it is bad logic to say otherwise. To meet this it has been said that this concession—I mean the transitory provisions—was meant only for existing practitioners and not for students who had not passed out of the College. If that is so, how is it that some of the students were allowed to take advantage of these transitory provisions? Is it by mistake? The case, therefore, comes to this that some are allowed while others are not. And why this distinction? I find no suitable explanation. Besides, why was the concession subsequently extended up to November, 1916? I do not really understand why? One is, however, apt to think that this extension was made not to give the practitioners another chance, but only to meet the case of the students, because the existing practitioners had already got some chances.

Sir, one is naturally inclined to ask the question—how does the Government suffer if these students are given a chance to qualify themselves? I am unable, my Lord, I confess, to answer this question. Is there any question of official prestige or anything of that sort in this question? I think there cannot be any. Why then this persistent refusal on the part of the Government? Sir, I appeal to you to remedy this grievance. The matter may be said to be petty, because the case of not more than 100 young boys is involved. But when you look at the matter for the future life of these 100 unfortunate students the matter certainly is very serious. By your refusal you take away some rights from some young persons, who will just begin their life, possibly for no fault of theirs. When it does not injure the Government in any way, on the other hand it gives certain people the rights to which they are reasonably entitled, surely, Sir, it is not proper for the authorities to refuse their prayer simply because a discretion is vested in them. I will say Sir, that to refuse these students will be an arbitrary and not reasonable exercise of discretion.

The Belgachia Medical Institution has been thoroughly investigated into by the Government and is admitted to be a well-staffed, well-equipped and well-managed institution. I may be permitted to observe that in the year 1898 the Government of Bengal appointed a Commission, with Colonel R. C. Sanders as President, to enquire into the standard of admission, curriculum and equipment. The Commission came to the conclusion that their standard of admission etc., are the same as that of the Campbell Medical School and may be affiliated with a limited number of students. Besides the Government of India have by a recent notification in the India Gazette, dated the 12th January 1918 (Home Department No. 202-C), empowered the Belgachia Medical College to grant certificates up to 1918. The notification is quoted below :—

Resolutions.Babu Kishori Mohan Chaudhuri; Dr. Nilratan Sarkar.

‘In exercise the Governor-General in Council is pleased to authorize the Institution now known as the Calcutta Medical School and College of Physicians and Surgeons of Bengal, situated in Belgachia (Calcutta), to grant certificates of attendance and proficiency to such students as shall have passed the fourth year examination of the said Institution prior to the 16th March, 1918, subject to the following conditions’

That shows that the Government of India are also satisfied that students passed out of the Belgachia Medical College are fit to practise the Western medical science under the Indian Medical Act of 1916. I do not understand how it can still be said that the very same students who are thought fit by the Government of India are not fit persons to be registered under the provisions of the Bengal Medical Act, 1914. And, Sir, does it not create an anomaly between the workings of the two Acts, the Indian Medical Act of 1916 and the Bengal Medical Act of 1914? I regret very much, Sir, that these students are even now, that is, after the notification by the Government of India, refused registration.

Lastly, Sir, I may be permitted to refer in this connection to what happened in England when the Medical Act was passed there in 1858. The General Council were empowered to dispense by special orders with any provision of the Act in favour of persons who were already practising in the United Kingdom and also in favour of medical students who had commenced their professional studies before the passing of the Act. That is, Sir, what should be. Further, what was done by the Calcutta University when in 1911 the L. M. S. examination was abolished? In order to afford every chance to its unsuccessful L. M. S. students the University allowed the plucked candidates to appear at five chances till November 1913. That is the reason why I plead all the more strongly on behalf of the 1912 batch who got only one chance. In justice they ought to be allowed more chances. It is inexplicable, further, why the Bengal State Medical Faculty, did not consider the case of these students when they made the transitory provision. Is it because they were unaware of them? I do not think so. Or perhaps it was a mistake! If so, it is time that the mistake should be rectified.”

The Hon'ble DR. NILRATAN SARKAR said :—

“Sir, here is a case of real hardship. Here, as in Great Britain, before the passing of a Medical Act, there had been practising members as well as students engaged in studies. According to the Medical Act of Great Britain provisions were made for declaring practising members as qualified for registration, that is to say, members that had been previously practising. By the same Act also the students who had been engaged in medical studies had certain facilities for appearing at the examination and in the case of their passing such examination they were declared as holding registrable qualifications. Here we had our students and we had our passed students. I am speaking for Belgachia School which is, I suppose, the school mentioned in the resolution. As regards our passed students who were practising members and many of whom were also in some service—at the instance of the Hon'ble Mr. Norman McLeod an assurance was given to them by Sir William Duke in connection with the discussion on the Medical Act that the passed students of this school would have an opportunity of going in for an examination that would be instituted by the examining body that was to be formed for examining the students. Subsequently the State Medical Faculty was instituted and the State Medical Faculty ruled or a rule was made by the Government in connection with the institution of the State Medical Faculty to the effect that for two years passed students of such medical schools as Belgachia would be permitted to present themselves at examinations to be held by the State Medical Faculty, and if they passed they would be considered as holding the medical qualification for the purpose of the Registration Act. So far it was all right, but then the Belgachia Medical School was admitting students up to the year 1913, and the Government knew it and the Government knew that when the Medical Act was passed many of the students would not have obtained maturity as pupils at that time and that some of them must take a little time after the passing of that Act in order to attain maturity. Unfortunately no provision was made for such students. In fact two years ended by May 1916, that is the two years for which the State Medical Faculty was authorised to examine the passed students of the vernacular medical schools or indigenous non-official medical schools that ended by May 1916, but by that time many of our students did not complete their course in the school and the result was that many of them have been stuck. Subsequently another chance was given and that was in November 1916 and then also many of our students did not finish their studies and the hospital attendance, etc. The result is that many of them had no chance whatever to go in for the examination of the State Medical Faculty. However, I am only concerned with pointing out the inconsistency of the Government assurance on the one hand and the orders subsequently passed. What I am interested in is this : Here is a fairly good number of deserving young men who are in a way practically declared as quacks for no fault of their own. Of course they may have a school certificate, at least some of them have, but a school certificate is of very little use to a medical practitioner, particularly after the passing of the Medical Degrees Act. Under the circumstances if the Government kindly extend the transitory regulation to another year or two, giving one or two chances to these students, I think that would be helping a deserving class of young men. As regards lowering the standard of which we are all afraid and in which we are all interested, I think there is no fear of that, for the examination will maintain the same standard as in the past and nobody shall be declared registrable or as holding a registrable qualification before he passes an examination. The question is only one of giving one or two chances to students who have regularly attended their classes and regularly done their duty in the hospitals and prepared in every other way for the examination with the hope that they in their turn should have a chance of going in for the examination. But unfortunately they find now that there is no chance for them. In these circumstances I support the resolution which has been moved."

Resolutions.Dr. Nilratan Sarkar ; Babu Akhil Chandra Datta ; Mr. Donald.

The Hon'ble BABU AKHIL CHANDRA DATTA said :—

"Sir, I have great pleasure in supporting this resolution, and in doing so I do not propose to make any lengthy speech. I would only say this that a very strong case has been made out by both the speakers who preceded me, especially the views of my Hon'ble friend Dr. Sarkar are entitled to great consideration, and I therefore hope that the resolution will be acceptable to the Members of the Council."

The Hon'ble MR. DONALD said :—

"Sir, the Hon'ble Members who have supported this resolution have made some reference to the recent legislation contained in the Bengal Medical Act, 1914, and the Indian Medical Degrees Act, 1916, but they have not quite considered the bearing of these Acts on the question now before us. The policy underlying these two Acts cannot be left out of consideration. The resolution now before us should be judged by its compliance with that policy, and if it does not satisfy that test it is not justified by the mere fact that it extends to certain students who have previously failed, or to others who have not yet presented themselves, the favour of appearing either for a second or first time at the examinations of the State Medical Faculty. It is always easy to make concessions, but they must be justified by the general policy which is in view. It is always easy to say of any rule that it works hardly in a particular case and might be relaxed, but the purpose of the rule should not be frustrated. The whole basis of the two Acts I have mentioned was that, to secure the supply of properly qualified medical men, certain conditions had to be fulfilled, and it is inexpedient to allow men to call themselves qualified when the necessary conditions of qualification are absent.

Resolutions.Mr. Donald.

As the Council is aware, the Bengal Medical Act, 1914, created a machinery for the registration of practitioners who had satisfied certain standards. By this Act unregistered men were not prevented from practising, but their status was in certain respects made inferior to that of those who were on the registers. Subsequent to that Act, under regulations of the 2nd March, 1915, a body was created, known as the State Medical Faculty with authority to hold examinations for its Licentiatehip and Membership. These examinations are registrable qualifications under the Bengal Medical Act of 1914. Subsequently the Indian Medical Degrees Act of 1916 was passed. This Act prohibited the use of unauthorised degrees. It also restricted the right of conferring anything in the nature of degrees declaring that the recipient was qualified to practise western medical science to certain scheduled bodies only. These were bodies which were regarded as capable of giving an efficient medical training, and among them was the State Medical Faculty in Bengal. In addition, therefore, to the advantages of registration, this Act rendered it still more expedient that men who desired to practise western medicine should undergo a proper preliminary training, and that indeed was the intention. I do not wish to recapitulate the history of what may be termed the unrecognised medical schools in Bengal, but the legislation to which I have referred rested on the contention—which was accepted by the Legislature—that the instruction imparted in them was inadequate and that men who had not submitted to better tuition were not properly qualified. This is a most important point which affects the whole of the present resolution.

While the Bengal Medical Act and the creation of the State Medical Faculty were under discussion, however, attention was drawn to the position of men who were actually practising medicine, but who had not fulfilled the conditions of training which would enable them to secure a registrable qualification. The matter was referred to in the course of the debate in this Council on the Medical Bill of 1914. The consideration of the case of such practitioners led to the issue of what is known as the transitory provision in the regulations of the State Medical Faculty. I will read an extract from a letter of this Government, which explains the position. It is as follows :—

There is in Bengal a considerable number of medical practitioners who have not been trained in the Government schools or college and they are, therefore, debarred from any possibility of registration, inasmuch as only the Government college and schools have been recognised in the schedule and, though others may be recognised in the future, the recognition will not apply to those who have already passed out. * * * There was a very strong feeling that it was a hardship to condemn * passed students * * * to be classed with quacks without giving them some opportunity of proving they were worthy of a higher place * * *. The passing of a Bill like the Registration Act must eventually work some hardship in individual cases, and it is usual to mitigate that hardship as far as possible by exemptions of class and individuals. • • Should the State Faculty, therefore, be established His Excellency in Council proposes to provide that, while ordinarily it shall examine students only from colleges and schools approved by the Medical Registration Council, it shall be open to the Local Government in individual cases, after consideration of the training and antecedents of the candidate, to grant a certificate of eligibility for the examination.'

This recommendation was accepted by the Government of India with the remark—and this was based on the suggestion from this Government—that 'this system of certificates should not, however, be continued' beyond the first two years of the Faculty coming into existence.' Before, therefore, I explain further the transitory clause I would emphasise that compliance with this resolution does not rest within the competence of the Bengal Government. If it was decided to act in accordance with it all that could be done would be to recommend that course to the Government of India and, as I shall presently show, that authority has definitely declined already to permit a relaxation of the rules.

It may be convenient to read the transitory provision as it ultimately appeared :—

'Any person who has undergone a full course of training in any medical college or school and has obtained a certificate to that effect from the head of such college or school may, at the discretion of the Governor in Council, be granted a certificate enabling him to appear at the Final Examination for the Licentiate'ship within two years from the constitution of the Faculty; and on his appearing at such examination and satisfying the Examiners, he shall be deemed eligible for election as a Licentiate of the Faculty.'

It will be seen that, as directed by the Government of India, this definitely prescribed a two years' term for the continuance of the special system. The reason of this time-limit was, firstly, that it was not expedient that this intermediate concession should be of indefinite duration, thus delaying the inauguration of the state of affairs which was deemed to be necessary in the interests of medical efficiency. Secondly, assuming the existence of actual practitioners whose medical qualifications were in reality satisfactory, despite the course of training by which they had arrived at them, it was thought that two years was sufficient for such a man to rub up his knowledge for the purpose of examination. This was the scope of the concession as originally contemplated, but the Bengal Government, in its wish to minimise individual hardships, made a slight extension in its terms. They allowed any one to compete under this clause who passed out of an unrecognised school prior to the 16th March, 1916, which was the date of passing of the Indian Medical Degrees Act. This privilege did, in fact, meet the case of those students who, at the time of the issue of the regulations, were at a fairly advanced stage of their studies and who might have found difficulty in restarting them elsewhere. Those who were then junior had ample opportunity of knowing what their precise position was, and if they did not desire to accept the disabilities entailed by continuing their training in these schools, of making other arrangements for their training.

However, in pursuance of their same wish to leave no reasonable ground of complaint, the Bengal Government took yet another step. Under the rules of the Faculty examinations were held twice yearly, in May and November, and the first examination was not held till May, 1915, although the Faculty was constituted on the 11th August, 1914. This meant that the term of two years from the latter date would not have included the fourth examination of November, 1916. It was thought, however, that a reasonable interpretation of a two years' period was four examinations, and the regulations were modified, with the assent of the Government of India, so as to include this examination of November, 1916. In making this fact known by communiqué and by direct communication to the schools it was explicitly said that this was the last examination under the transitory clause which would be held. There is no excuse, therefore, for any one to say that they did not know where they stood, while, as I have endeavoured to show, every effort was made to meet cases in which hardship might possibly be alleged.

However, despite these measures Government still continued to be pressed to do more and prior to to-day's debate eight representations have been submitted on the subject, namely :—

I. From the National Medical College, dated the 28th January, 1916, asking for an extended term of five years (in all) for the transitory provision.

II. From the National Medical Register of Coorg, dated the 2nd May, 1916, asking for a two years' extension of the transitory period, i.e., making four years in all.

III. From the Belgachia students of 1913, dated the 14th September, 1916, asking for leave to appear at the Faculty examinations.

IV. From the Belgachia students of 1912 and 1913, dated the 10th February, 1917, asking for leave to appear at the Faculty examinations.

V. From the Belgachia students, dated the 26th March, 1917, asking for leave to appear at the Faculty examinations.

VI. From those who failed in one or two subjects at the last examination, dated the 29th May, 1917, asking for leave to appear once again. *

VII. From Dr. M. N. Banerjee, dated the 4th September, 1917, asking for two more chances to those who passed out of Belgachia before March, 1916.

VIII. From the Indian Association, dated the 19th October, 1917, asking that all passed students of the unrecognised schools should be given at least one more chance.

IX. From the students of the Belgachia Medical School, dated the 17th January, 1918, asking for the acceptance of this resolution.

To none of these the Local Government saw their way to accede, beyond the extension over the examination of November, 1916, to which I have already referred, while the fourth and sixth memorials were rejected by the Government of India.

This then is the position, and we now have the matter raised for the ninth time by the present resolution. To its acceptance I would urge the following objections.

In the first place the whole case for the Bengal Medical Act and the Indian Medical Degrees Act (which, I would repeat, has been accepted by two Legislatures) rests on the fact that the medical training of the unrecognised schools was utterly bad. These schools were treated with much patience; every effort was made to induce them to reform themselves, and it was not until these failed that resort was had to legislation. As regards Belgachia the school has, I must admit, since sought to attain a higher standard and I may mention that in so doing Government has given it liberal assistance, with the help of which we wish it all success in its future career. But even in that school there was delay in taking steps to reform. The rest declined practically to do anything. It is not reasonable, therefore, that we should now be asked especially to provide for those students who were content to continue in circumstances of which they could easily have foreseen the consequences. If the training of these schools was bad, then in allowing their students to compete at the Faculty examinations, we are merely facilitating the registration of ill-equipped practitioners. We have already made concessions, and in 1916 we said we could do no more. I submit that we have treated these men fairly, and we merely deprecate the value of the Licentiate'ship if we allow improperly trained men to take it. It is not a full answer to say that a man who can pass the examination must be competent ; if examinations are the sole test, the whole case for insistence upon efficient preliminary tuition (whether it be in medicine or anything else) disappears.

Resolutions.

Mr. Donald ; Babu Kishori Mohan Chaudhuri.

Secondly, as regards those who were in practice at the time of the Act, I have shown why a two years' term was adopted, how it was extended in order to give to it that full effect that it might be argued was meant, and how at that stage there was intended to be finality. For revising that decision no adequate cause has, I submit, been shown.

Thirdly, in matters of this kind there must be definite regulations, and probably no regulation has ever been framed under which it is not possible to argue a hard case. But that consequence does not justify the relaxation of rules to an extent which would practically nullify the object for which they were promulgated.

Fourthly, if we grant further concessions, where are we to stop? The facts regarding previous representations which I have given to the Council show that there is no unanimity as to the remedy. If we benefit the 1913 students then why not those of 1912? If we help the Belgachia men then why not those of the other unrecognised schools? I had a letter yesterday from Dr. Mullick and he raised this question. If the Belgachia students of 1913 were admitted to this examination, why should the students of his school not be admitted? And again if we give one more chance, then why not two, and so on? The path of concession is a slippery path.

For these reasons I cannot recommend the acceptance of the resolution even if its fulfilment lay within our power, which it does not. It must be remembered that there is nothing in these restrictions which prevents an unqualified man from practising ; the object of this legislation has been merely to define the status of those who are accounted to be duly qualified and to prevent the assumption by those who are not fully trained of titles, etc., which might lead to the presumption that they were."

The Hon'ble BABU KISHORI MOHUN CHAUDHURI said :—

"Sir, I have submitted all that I have got to say and everything has been very clearly explained by my Hon'ble friend Dr. Sarkar. I really cannot understand the position of Government and from where the difficulty comes. I was referring to the Belgachia School which has been acknowledged after an inquiry and also by a Government notification to be a fit institution to grant certificates. The pass students who would be qualified under the provision of the Medical Degrees Act, 1916, will be considered as quacks under the Bengal Medical Act, 1914. As to the training, they have got sufficient training to undergo any examination under the provisions of the State Medical Faculty and a certificate granted by the school authorities should be quite sufficient. They do not claim that without an examination they should be registered. They are fully prepared to sit for another examination. Just as a concession was made to the L. M. S. students of the Medical College a similar concession may be made for the students admitted in 1913 and who through no fault of their own are debarred from practising as registered medical practitioners. As far as I can see, there is no valid reason why Government should refuse this concession to them. I have been told that the final decision rests with the Government of India. That may be so. My proposal is that a representation be submitted to the Government of India setting forth the present situation. The recommendation of the school authorities may also be submitted to them. That is all I have got to say, and I hope the Council will support my resolution."

LIST OF BUSINESS—ITEM No. 13.

The PRESIDENT said :—

The resolution which is now going to be moved consists of three parts, and I am going to put them separately to the Council; but if the Hon'ble Member desires he can deal with the whole resolution in his opening speech.

The Hon'ble BABU KISHORI MOHAN CHAUDHURI then moved the following resolution :—

This Council recommends to the Governor in Council that—

- (i) early steps be taken to impart suitable instruction in improved methods of agriculture, and that demonstration farms be established in different centres in this Presidency;
- (ii) arrangements be made for teaching and giving practical training in elementary agriculture in primary schools with special reference to local needs; and
- (iii) a committee be formed of official and non-official members and experts to frame rules and regulations for agricultural education in all its branches and allied subjects.

Resolutions.Babu Kishori Mohan Ray Chaudhuri ; Mr. Cumming.

He said :—

"Sir, the question of agricultural education involved in my resolution has now been taken up in right earnest by the Calcutta University. That it is not only desirable but it is necessary to take steps to promote the teaching of agriculture is, I can take it, an admitted fact. It is really the 'bread' question of the day. We want rapid spread of education but such education is necessary as will enable us to earn our livelihood independent of Government service. We must learn how to stand on our own legs. Bengal consists mainly of an agricultural population and the need for this branch of education is felt alike by the Government and the people. There was a Conference at Simla as to the means of spreading agricultural education and we hear conclusions were arrived at, but we do not know of anything that has been done as yet in this direction. I think it cannot be postponed any longer. Now that the University has drawn up a scheme for diploma, license and degree examinations in agriculture, it is urgently necessary that a thorough and practicable scheme well suited to the requirements of the province should be drawn up for the primary as well as secondary schools. The Agricultural Department has not been able to do much in this behalf. The reason is that it has not been able to create an interest for the general public. Whatever is done in the 'experimental' farms is not communicated and demonstrated to the agricultural class. Moreover, the costly experiments carried on in the experimental farms cannot benefit the people. Regular arrangements for theoretical education in agriculture supplemented by practical training in 'demonstration' farms are urgently necessary.

The scheme prepared by the University aims, it seems to me, at the establishment of a separate college. If it is not possible at present to have it, some of the colleges—e.g., the Dacca and Rajshahi Colleges—can be selected for affiliation in agricultural studies and additional arrangements may be made for proper training at moderate cost. The scheme, in my opinion, should be prepared in such a way as may enable the University to grant diploma or license on the result of the Intermediate Course and the Degree examination may be completed in two years like other Degree examinations. However, this is a suggestion only and it is for the University to consider the details. I propose that Government should accept the principle. A Committee should be formed for the preparation of a scheme with the help of the experts and in co-operation with the University, for agricultural training in the lower stages. My idea is that in the 'primary' schools agricultural education should be compulsory. But as there may be differences of opinion on that point I suggest that the proposed committee may be directed to consider the question. In the secondary stage it may be optional so that those who like to take up agriculture in their College education may take advantage of this optional branch. The real difficulty is in the practical training. As I have already submitted, 'demonstration' farms should be largely arranged for so that the pupils may get the practical training there at least for a term. These are things, however, for detail which should be dealt with by the Committee. All I want is that Government will be pleased to take up the matter and do the needful in furtherance of this movement, which has also been recognised by the Simla Conference and the Calcutta University.

The demonstration farms as soon as self-supporting may be made over to the local Committees."

The Hon'ble Mr. Cumming said:—

"Sir, it certainly requires no words of mine to commend the improvement of agriculture in a country in which the chief industry is agriculture. The Hon'ble Member desires that Government should institute instruction in agriculture in colleges, in middle schools, and in primary schools. I shall deal with these in turn as the occasion arises; but, probably, the more convenient way of dealing with the resolution is to take the heads as they stand in the agenda.

First of all, regarding the imparting of suitable instruction in improved methods of agriculture and the establishment of demonstration farms in different centres in this Presidency, I may say at once that Government accept that part of the resolution. But, I should like the Hon'ble Member to realise, that the extent and nature of improvement in the methods of agriculture is only one of the many problems which lie before the Government in the Agricultural Department. It should also be realised that farms which are called demonstration farms are also experimental farms to a large extent for the purpose of investigation and research. At present we have six such farms in this Presidency, and it is in contemplation to proceed further, so that in due course there will be a small farm at the headquarters of each district.

Turning now to the second portion, as regards the teaching and the giving of practical training in elementary agriculture in primary schools with special reference to local needs, I fear that though the Hon'ble Member has referred to the literature on the subject, he is not fully acquainted with the conclusions to which the various Conferences have come. As regards his proposition that elementary agriculture as such should be taught in primary schools, the opinion which the advisers of Government have deliberately formed is that all attempts to teach agriculture as such in primary schools should be abandoned. This was one of the resolutions of the Conference on Agricultural Education held at Pusa in February 1916. The terms of that resolution were as follows : The Conference considered that all attempts to teach agriculture in primary schools should be definitely abandoned, and they desired to reaffirm a resolution of the Board of Agriculture passed at Coimbatore in the year 1913. The resolution passed at Coimbatore in 1913, was that the Board of Agriculture considered that the question of a sympathetic co-operation between the educational and agricultural departments in adapting rural education to rural needs was one of great importance. In other words, what they considered important was not the teaching of agriculture to the sons of agriculturists, but that in giving primary education to the sons of agriculturists, regard should be had to their environment and that the curriculum should be such as would appeal to the eyes and minds of agriculturists. During the proceedings of a later Conference held at Simla in June 1917, the Conference passed a resolution in the following terms :—

'The Conference also strongly insist on the desirability of adapting primary education in rural areas more closely to rural needs. Whilst agreeing that no attempt should be made in primary schools to teach agriculture or horticulture as such, the following suggestions are made towards the solution of this problem.'

Then follows a number of recommendations, with which I shall not trouble the Council; but the purport of them all is that instruction in primary schools should be such that boys brought up in a rural atmosphere will appreciate. So, sir, regarding the second part of the Hon'ble Member's resolution, I fear that this Government cannot accept it. The proposal has been definitely rejected by two All-India Conferences and the Government of Bengal have in their turn also definitely endorsed the same decision. When the matter last came up for consideration, it was held by the Bengal Government that the attempt to teach agriculture in primary schools should be definitely abandoned; that it was useless to repeat the arguments which had been used against the system, but that there was a decided advantage in making a definite declaration that the attempt was impracticable. I do not wish, however, that the Hon'ble Mover should infer from this that Government are in any want of sympathy with the interest that he has at heart. The obvious difficulty lies in the provision of suitable teachers. One of the most competent men in India to express an opinion on that point has stated that it is absurd to expect a boy to acquire any scientific knowledge worthy of the name in two years' time; and unless, he said, the teachers were fully trained any method of instruction was absolutely useless. The Hon'ble Member himself knows what class of primary teachers we have at present in our primary schools.

I now turn to the last sub-head of the Hon'ble Member's resolution that a Committee be formed of officials and non-officials to frame rules for agricultural education in all its branches. Undoubtedly, the subject is one which will always repay further investigation and further discussion; but at the present moment, we have to look back upon what has been said by the All-India Conferences which were convened for the very same object, namely, to lay down principles for agricultural education. One of these Conferences was held at Pusa in February 1916, the second was held at Simla in June 1917, and the third has just been held under the auspices of the Board of Agriculture at Poona, the record of the proceedings of which has not yet been forwarded to this Government. One of the points on which we hope to get further instruction from the proceedings of the Poona Conference is the question of the framing of a syllabus for agricultural middle schools, and until we receive that, we are not in a position to proceed any further in this matter. The question which the Government of Bombay have raised is that instruction should be given to the sons of agriculturists who after a period at the school should go back to their land. It has been suggested that similar schools should be established in Bengal, but so far there has been no local demand for any school of this description. On the other hand, the question of the provision of a short course of training in scientific agriculture for the sons of landlords, not of agriculturists, was raised in 1916. The proposal received a lukewarm support from the Landholders' Associations who were consulted, and, as the Eastern Bengal Landholders' Association were not prepared to guarantee even the small number of ten students to attend classes at Dacca for three months, the proposal was dropped. I need hardly repeat that Government have every sympathy with the motives which inspired the Hon'ble Member to bring forward his resolution; but I am not prepared to accept it as a whole. The acceptance of the first part has already been mentioned; the second portion is contrary to the universal opinion of experts, both agricultural and educational; and as regards the third part, I would ask the Hon'ble Member to be good enough to accept the assurance of the Government that the consideration of the question is in hand. But before I resume my seat, I would repeat to the Council, as regards the whole question of agricultural education with reference to the actual agriculturists, the wise words of the present Agricultural Adviser to the Government of India. He submitted an excellent memorandum to the Conference that was held on the subject of Agricultural Education at Simla in 1917, and therein he made the following remarks:—

'For the great illiterate mass of the population, it will probably be necessary for many years to come to rely on demonstration. As education and co-operation spread there will be a higher standard of instruction on which it will be possible to super-impose the various forms of agricultural education which have been introduced in other countries. But it is doubtful whether India should disregard the general experience of these countries and attempt to give an agricultural education otherwise than on the basis of a sound general education. For the present, perhaps, the wisest policy seems to be, by improved agriculture and co-operation, to raise the general standard of education. When that object has been achieved, it will be easy to add anything that may be required in the way of specialized training.'

The Hon'ble BABU KISHORI MOHUN CHAUDHURI said:—

"Sir, I am grateful to Government for the acceptance of the principle set forth in the first part of my resolution. As regards the second part, that is to say whether in primary schools agriculture should be taught or not. I am aware that there is good deal of difference of opinion on the point; but I think that, as I have already said, we ought to create interest in the minds of the general public in agriculture—by general public I mean the agricultural class. Bengal consists mainly of agricultural population. Every gentleman in Bengal, at least in Northern and Eastern parts of Bengal, has got some land, and if a small farm, or even 100 bighas of land, could be properly managed and the suitability of the soil, manure, selection of seeds, drought-resisting methods and all such things can be taught properly, not only the wealthy agriculturists but also the middle class gentry would be much benefited. If any such thing is to be done it should be done from the primary pathshalas. The question may, however, be investigated.

My third suggestion is that a committee of official and non-official members with experts may be formed and a further investigation may be made as to how to make this branch of study interesting to the rising generation, and whether any good result can be achieved by imparting education in elementary schools. If this is not done, then how is it proposed to instruct the sons of agriculturists in the improved method of agriculture? In Rajshahi, Murshidabad and Malda there is an arrangement of teaching sericulture through the help of overseers who have recently been appointed by the Agricultural Department but practically they have not been able to do much. My idea is that if anything is to be done some interest should be created at first and then, in the second place, it should be proved to the agriculturists and persons interested in agriculture that it can be made paying and this should be demonstrated. There are some experimental farms in Bengal. We have one in Rajshahi and I have some experience of the methods of work there. In these farms experiments are carried on, but the result is not communicated to the agricultural class and the method followed is also very costly. So when I suggested the formation of a committee my idea was that although there was some difference of opinion on the question it may be fully investigated and carefully inquired into whether or not good results can be expected by introducing agricultural primers in primary schools. Of course so far as secondary education is concerned the study of agriculture may be optional. There is some difficulty in obtaining teachers. My idea is that small farms on demonstration lines should be opened where boys having some theoretical knowledge in primary schools may go and see for themselves how it can be made paying, and if they realise that by following the improved method they can gain more a large number of people will be benefited. It is in that view that I suggested that an investigation be made by a committee composed of officials, non-officials and experts. Of course the question was dealt with in small conferences but I am not sure whether experts well acquainted with the method of agriculture or the system in which it is carried on were represented in these conferences. It is therefore that I suggest that Government should be kind enough to make further investigation with the help of a special committee consisting of non-official members also.

As regards the second branch of my resolution I am not very particular if there is an opinion of competent authorities that agriculture should not be taught in primary schools; but, as I have submitted, I do not know how, if it is not done through the school, the instruction can possibly be given or made interesting. It would be very well no doubt for the landholding class to come forward to learn agriculture, arboriculture and horticulture and such other things. It is very profitable, and if they can be properly taught, it will not only be interesting, but will also prove to be a means of livelihood to a great number of people. If I get an assurance from Government to this effect, I will be fully satisfied. The question has been taken up by the University and this is the time when something should be done by Government. Whatever is done by the University can be supplemented by imparting agricultural education in schools and in that way the University scheme may be made fairly successful.

Resolutions.

Babu Kishori Mohun Chaudhuri ; The President ; Babu Surendra Nath Ray.

This aspect of the question should also be considered. I hope Government will see their way to accept the suggestion that as soon as possible a committee may be formed and in co-operation with the University a regular scheme be framed for investigating this question."

The PRESIDENT said :—

" Does the Hon'ble Member withdraw the second and third parts of his resolution ?"

Hon'ble Babu KISHORI MOHUN CHAUDHURI said :—

" As for the second part I shall withdraw it if I get an assurance from Government."

The PRESIDENT said :—

" The Hon'ble Member had the Hon'ble Mr. Cumming's assurance on that point."

Clause (i) of the resolution was then put and agreed to and the Hon'ble Member then, by leave of the President, withdrew the second and third clauses of the resolution.

List of Business—Item No. 14.

The following resolution stood in the name of the Hon'ble Babu KISHORI MOHUN CHAUDHURI :—

This Council recommends to the Governor in Council that steps be taken to place the services of Mr. S. Milligan, Officiating Director of Agriculture, Bengal, permanently at the disposal of the Government of Bengal and that he be confirmed in that appointment.

He said :—

" Sir, as regards this resolution, I see there is a good deal of difference of opinion and in view of that I pray that I may be permitted to withdraw it." The resolution was then by leave of the President withdrawn.

List of Business—Items Nos. 15 and 16.

The Hon'ble BABU SURENDRA NATH RAY moved the following resolution :—

This Council recommends to the Governor in Council that the Government of Bengal do move the Government of India—

- (1) to take steps for the encouragement of the manufacture of salt in Bengal ; and
- (2) to allow the salt manufactured by people for their own consumption to be free from duty.

He said :—

" The question of the manufacture of salt has come prominently before the public on account of the great increase of price of this essential article of diet and in consequence to the large number of looting of hats and bazars which have taken place in some of the districts of this Presidency within the last two months and are taking place even now. It appears that from the 27th November 1917 to 8th January 1918 reports have reached of 49 hat-looting cases. How is it that the people of this Presidency who are naturally of a peace-loving and law-abiding nature have taken to plundering? These acts show that the masses of the people, who are generally very poor, have been greatly affected by the high price of salt now prevailing in the market and are unable to buy salt at the increased price. They have taken recourse to what I may call abnormal acts to meet with an abnormal state of things. In opening the trial of a batch of prisoners before the Special Tribunal at Rungpur, the Public Prosecutor said the other day, ' the loot was of cloth and salt only, and was due to the high prices of these things.' We find in the report on the Administration of the Salt Department in Bengal during the year 1916-17 that increase in the number of offences against salt laws was due to the high price of salt. In the Administration Report for 1915-16 we find that 'the high prices of salt have led to a recrudescence of offences against the salt laws in the Presidency.' We do not certainly minimise the offences of those who have taken part in this unlawful method of acquiring the article but we pity them. I have collected certain figures to show the price of salt from the year 1906 up to the present time. From the year 1906 to 1913 the price varied from Re. 1-7-6 to Re. 1-12 per maund. In 1914 before the war it was Re. 1-7-6, in 1915 Rs. 2-6, in 1916 Rs. 2-15, in the beginning of 1917 Rs. 2-15, in April Rs. 3, in September 1917 it was Rs. 3-11, in October it was Rs. 4-6, in the beginning of December 1917 it was Rs. 6-4, on the 16th December 1917 it was Rs. 4-15 and on the 13th January it was Rs. 4 per maund. It will thus be seen that the price of salt rose to more than four times its price and is even now sold for nearly three times the price in normal times.

That the war is responsible to a great extent for the rise in the price of salt no one can gainsay. Profiteers are also taking advantage of the present situation. But they have done so and have succeeded in doing so because they know that people are powerless, they cannot manufacture their salt and have to depend perforce upon the imported article. "The result has been that the people have taken recourse to unlawful acts. They see that having salt in their own country which they could manufacture and use they cannot utilise the same on account of Governmental restrictions. They have to depend upon Cheshire, Liverpool and Germany, places 10,000 miles distant, for an article of indispensable diet whereas they know that the article is to be found at their very door. They know that for generations salt used to be manufactured in the country and that they have been unjustly deprived of that to which they believe they have a just right. It is not for a luxury they are craving for, but, as I have said, an indispensable food. No wonder there is discontent among the masses and discontent has most unfortunately manifested itself in these illegal acts.

At the present time Bengal obtains its entire salt by importation. The East India Company under Clive and Hastings introduced a system which was gradually matured and which survived till 1862. It provided for the control of the manufacture and sale of salt at the agency to the Company's servants. The people of Bengal always manufactured their own salt. In the Sunderbans, in Contai, in the Diamond Harbour Subdivision of the District of 24-Parganas, in Noakhali and Chittagong and also in Bakerganj, salt used to be manufactured in large quantities, at least, the people had not to depend upon imported salt for their daily consumption. Let me quote a few passages from a Government publication, 'The District Gazetteer of Bengal' (the volume about Midnapore), edited by the Hon'ble Mr. O'Malley in support of my statement, if any support were needed: 'The manufacture of salt was until nearly half a century ago a Government monopoly. Both under Muhammadan and English rule large areas in Hijili were kept under direct management by Government so as to afford fuel and facilities for the manufacture of salt. The Jalpai or salt lands which being exposed to the overflowing of tides were strongly impregnated with saline particles, and were subdivided into khalaris or working places. Mr. Grant's report on the revenue of Bengal, dated April 1786, states that each khalaria on an average yielded 233 maunds of salt, requiring the labour of seven malangis or salt manufacturers, who by an easy process of filtration and by boiling the brine with firewood collected from the neighbouring jungle completed their operations between November and June before the setting in of the rains. The savings from these six months' wages enabled the salt workers to retire to their homes for the remainder of the season to cultivate their arable (madhuri) lands, which they held either rent-free, or under favourable terms, under the denomination of Chakran or service lands..... The nominal cost price of the salt was Rs. 60 for every hundred maunds. Mr. J. Grant, in his report of 1786 estimated the quantity of salt annually manufactured in Hijili at 850,000 maunds.

In the year 1781 the East India Company established a salt department, and deprived the zemindars of the right to manufacture salt on their estates..... This monopoly continued in the hands of Government till about 1861, when the State relinquished the manufacture, leaving it to private parties, subject to the payment of a salt duty.'

The manufacture of salt has been discontinued in Bengal since 1898 and is now forbidden. We are now told that the Bengal coast is unsuitable for the local manufacture of salt, by reason of the dampness of the climate and the large amount of fresh water discharged into the Bay of Bengal by the Ganges and the Brahmaputra. Much fresh water has no doubt flowed from the hoary-headed Himalayas since the manufacture of salt was stopped but we cannot bring ourselves to believe that the water of the Bay of Bengal has lost its saline character and that it is no use trying to extract the salt from it. In the memorandum, dated the 5th April 1917, submitted by this Government on the production of salt in Bengal in answer to a question in the Imperial Council we find the following:—'The question of the revival of the manufacture of salt from time to time has been brought to the attention of this Government. It was last considered in the year 1908, when the Lieutenant-Governor of that time came to the conclusion that it would be useless to attempt to revive the industry that had at one time existed in the Province.' We find in that memorandum that the re-establishment of the industry on a permanent basis in Bengal could not be looked on as full of promise and that this Government saw no necessity for re-establishing the salt industry in Bengal in order to provide for the requirements of India. Circumstances have changed since the memorandum was submitted by this Government to the Government of India in April 1917. We do not want this Government to revive the industry in order to provide for the requirements of India. We require salt for the people of this province and this province only. In answer to a question at the last Council meeting we were told that the possibilities of the manufacture of salt on the Chittagong side of the Bay of Bengal had been brought to the notice of Government. Suitable brine was said to be obtainable at Cox's Bazar and to the south but difficulty existed in the task of easy communications to that area, while labour might not be readily available. We were also told that Government had ascertained that there was no immediate fear of any shortage of imported salt. The Government know full well whether there is shortage of salt in the Province or not, but we think that the situation is serious and that Government ought to grapple the question in a way the gravity of the situation demands. It is necessary that immediate steps should be taken to remedy the existing state of things from whatever cause or causes it might have arisen.

About a year ago, when there was a strike among the butchers of the Calcutta Municipal Market and there was apprehension of shortage of meat in the town for the European residents, what did the Corporation of Calcutta do? The energetic Deputy Chairman of the Corporation went to Dinapore and brought meat from that place by special train regardless of expenditure and probably without waiting for the sanction of the Commissioners of the Corporation, so that the European residents may not go without meat for however short a time. Why have the Government of India taken so much interest in regulating the rent of houses in Simla and have gone to the length of passing the Simla House Act? In the interests of how many people one is tempted to ask? The rise in the price of salt has affected a very large number of people and they are in distress. That is more the reason why Government should take immediate steps to relieve them. It is also said that the salt manufactured in the country would not be able to compete with the imported article. That may not be the case if salt is manufactured by Government agency, but it would be otherwise if the people were allowed to manufacture their own salt. Let me quote a passage from the Fourth Report of the House of Commons, 1853, in support of my contention: 'The present price of the Government manufactured salt in Bengal is very much raised to the consumer in the market by the necessary want of economy, not to say extravagances, connected with the Government system of manufacture and by those many speculations and extortions and corruptions which are inevitable in such a system, and carried on with such instruments. It has seemed almost certain under those circumstances to persons informed upon the subject, that if the Government were to withdraw, and if there were no duty imposed and the whole were left perfectly free, the native manufacturers in Bengal would forthwith completely and entirely undersell the imported salt, and there would not be a grain of salt imported into Bengal.' Mr. Frederick Halliday (afterwards Sir Frederick Halliday) who was Secretary to the Government of India in the Home Department in the early fifties of the last century and who was shortly afterwards appointed Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal gave it as his opinion that if Government monopoly was withdrawn and the people of India were allowed to manufacture their own salt, imported salt would have no chance in India.

The Government need not consider the question whether the manufacture of salt will be profitable to the people or not, all we ask for is that if the people want to manufacture it, all restrictions for doing so ought to be removed.

The decline in the manufacture of the salt in Bengal formed the subject of a memorial to Government by the British Indian Association so far back as the year 1882. The memorialists said: 'The manufacture of indigenous salt is practically dying out in Bengal simply because the home grown salt in consequence of the heavy charges thrown upon it by Government, cannot compete with imported salt. In the case of home made salt the cost of excise establishment, preventive establishment and warehouse establishment amounts to about Rs. 25 per hundred maunds, charges from which foreign salt is free. If this burden on excise salt is remitted, the Committee feel persuaded that it will have a fair chance in the market and the competition thus fostered will eventually lower the price of foreign salt.'

The next serious drawback against the indigenous manufacture of salt in Bengal is the fixed warehouse establishment of Rs. 51 per maund. In Bengal, there is home manufacture of salt in the district of 24-Parganas and as the outturn here is small and the sales slow, this item of charge necessarily bears hard upon the manufacturers.'

I have been informed by a respectable gentleman of Chittagong that the people of that place could very well manufacture and sell salt at two or three pice per seer, and that if the present restraint were discontinued they could compete with the imported article. He informed me that Chittagong, Noakhali and Sonedwip are places which are pre-eminently fitted for the manufacture of salt. About three weeks ago we read in the papers that the people of Noakhali had petitioned to the Magistrate of the district to allow them to manufacture salt and that the Magistrate had forwarded their petition to the Government. We know that Government are fully alive to the gravity of the situation, but so far we do not know what steps the Government have taken to reduce the hardships of the poor people.

It is well known how bounty fed sugar of Germany competed with the sugar manufactured in this country, we know how even now Japan has been subsidising her manufacturers by bounties so that they may compete with those of foreign countries. We do not in the case of salt ask for any bounty from Government. All we say is that the Government may be pleased to remove all restrictions to its manufacture including where possible the duty on salt. Of late we have heard much about the development of industries of the country and the members of the Industrial Commission are making tour all round the country. We would respectfully ask Government to let a beginning be made to revive an industry which has been put a stop to by their orders, an industry the necessity of which is admitted on all hands. Let Government remove all restrictions to the manufacture of salt in Bengal so that it might be one of the cheapest articles for the people to obtain.

I would now say a few words with reference to the second part of my resolution, viz., that about making salt free from duty to consumers of salt. It is necessary to impress upon the Government the necessity of making the salt duty free especially at the present time. This Government will no doubt have to recommend to the Government of India to make the salt manufactured for the people of this country for their own consumption duty free. I do not want remission for the entire population of Bengal. That would be considered as a large order though that would be a step in the right direction. From the days of Adam Smith downwards political economists have condemned all taxation upon articles of necessary consumption. Professor Fawcett said that salt should be as free as the air we breathe and the water we drink. I need hardly say that salt to the generality of the people of Bengal, who are mostly agriculturists, is more than what potato is to an Irishman, or meat and tea combined to an Englishman or a Scotchman. In several cases rice and a little salt form the only meal of an agriculturist. Government probably have not failed to observe that the reduction of salt duty has invariably resulted in the larger consumption of salt. It is not only a necessary article of human diet but people put down the deterioration in our cattle at the present time because salt is not given to them.

The duty on salt was reduced from Rs. 2 per maund in 1903 to Re. 1-8 in 1905 and Re. 1 in 1907. It was, however, enhanced to Re. 1-4 per maund in 1917. It is admitted by every one that the duty on salt is largely paid by the poorer classes—it falls upon the poorer consumers. To satisfy some faddists (Messrs. Pease & Co.), crores and crores of Indian revenue have been sacrificed in the shape of opium revenue. Why should not Government take a bold step and in the interest of the teeming millions, in the interest of humanity abolish the duty on salt altogether? My present resolution is only to allow salt which is manufactured by the people for their own use to be free from duty. It may be that there will be not only illicit manufacture but illicit sale of salt by people, and in consequence there would be some loss of revenue to Government. What if it were so? Government must be prepared to make a little sacrifice of revenue. It is the poor people who will mostly be benefited. Government must be prepared to incur some losses at the present juncture. The salt duty question in India has been justly characterised by the late Mr. Gokhale as the poor man's question, for it is the poorer many and not the richer few who eat more salt when it is cheap and less when it is dear. It may be that Government have been taking some steps to remedy the grievances of the poor people, but it is necessary that wide publicity should be given to all that the Government has done up to this time and if it is the intention of Government to do more it must be done quickly. Prompt action on the part of the Government will go a great way to bring about the normal state of things in the country.

In my opinion this important question which has given rise to the looting in the hats can at once be solved and all looting stopped as soon as it is notified to the people that for purposes of domestic consumption only they can manufacture their own salt and this, in my opinion, should be done without delay.

The Hon'ble RAI DEBENDER CHUNDER GHOSE BAHADUR moved by way of amendment that the resolution of the Hon'ble Babu Surendra Nath Ray do take the following form—

“This Council recommends to the Governor in Council that the Government of Bengal do move the Government of India to allow free manufacture of salt in Bengal during the period of the war and for two years following the close of hostilities."

Resolutions.Rai Debender Chunder Ghose Bahadur.

He said

"Sir, speaking for myself I am very thankful to the Hon'ble Babu Surendra Nath Ray for the facts and figures which he has been able to put before the Council this afternoon. The amendment which I propose to his resolution is not simply of form, though it no doubt follows his line but it goes further. My Hon'ble friend would limit the use of the manufacture of salt but would not limit the time for which the salt would be duty-free. He does not say how long the salt manufactured by the people would remain free from duty but he says that this salt will have to be used by the manufacturers and the manufacturers alone and is not to be given away to other people by way of sale or gift. As the Council knows salt can only be manufactured in the sea-boards. You cannot manufacture it in the district of Rangpur or Bogra of which we hear so much in connection with the looting of shops and hats. However, the result of the acceptance by the Government of India on the recommendation of this Government of my friend's proposal would be that the raiyats of the Sunderbans or those residing in that part of the country, and people residing in the sea-boards of Chittagong and Noakhali and Midnapore would alone have the benefit of the proclamation if the Government are pleased to notify that they would be able to manufacture salt for their own use and free of duty. That will not touch the root of the discontent. We have not heard much of the looting of salt in the Sundarbans. I do not think that if my friend's proposal or that of mine is accepted it will touch the interest of the British trade. The reason why this question has come before the Council is that there has been acts of lawlessness all over the province by poor people who suffer from the want of salt but are too poor to buy or pay the present price of salt. I do not mean to say that if you make the manufacture of salt duty-free without any condition as to whether they use it for their own consumption or they sell it to others all the population of Bengal will be benefited by it and that they will not have anything to do with the imported article. That certainly will not be the result if you make the manufacture of salt duty-free without imposing any condition that the manufactured salt is to be consumed by the producer. My proposal runs thus: That we may be allowed free manufacture of salt in Bengal during the period of the war and for two years following the close of hostilities. As I have said salt can only be manufactured in the sea-boards of Bengal so far as this province is concerned and that salt, judging from past experience, is dirty and unrefined and is not so good as the salt we get from Europe and Africa and not even so good as the rocksalt of the Punjab. But the fact of the Government passing an Ordinance to the effect that the salt produced by manufacturers in Bengal will be duty-free will be hailed with delight by the people of this province. It will not only have a moral effect but an economic effect also, for the price of the imported salt will be lowered, and from both the moral and the economical points of view it will have a gratifying effect. At the present moment, as I understand, the duty is Rs. 125 for 100 maunds, and the agents of the people who send out salt to this country are charging Rs. 240 per 100 maunds. Add to that the duty of Rs. 125, the price which is to be paid in Calcutta is Rs. 365, and the retail trader who buys a 100 maunds for that sum in Calcutta for taking the same to the mufassal has to incur certain charges for carrying it. So he cannot sell it in the mufassal at anything less than Rs. 400, and that accounts for the high price which the poor man in the mufassal has to pay for this article. If the poor man is told you are free to manufacture salt, you will not have to pay any duty though it may be that every poor man will not be able to avail himself of such a gracious proclamation, yet it will drive away from his mind the feeling which he nourishes against Government for not being able to manufacture salt at home and in having to pay an exorbitant price for salt imported from other countries. If you issue a proclamation of this kind the poor man will certainly be more attached to the Government than what he is now. I put it in this way and I am not going to say that you deprive yourself of the revenue which you derive from salt duty. As I gather you get more than a crore of rupees by imposing salt duty in Bengal and if you allow people in the sea-boards to manufacture salt you will probably lose a few lakhs of rupees and the amount of your revenue will be little less. You will still be getting salt from other countries and you will probably be receiving almost the same revenue as the quantity of imported salt will not be reduced to a very large extent. As I have said the country-made salt being unrefined and dirty, the genteel folk will not go in for it, and it is only the poor man who would buy such salt. Therefore I think it is sound policy if you make it duty free. I am aware of what other people have said that salt ought to be as free as air and one would be glad to see that it is so. But all that I say now is make it duty free during the period of the war and also for two years following the close of hostilities as the country is not likely to resume its normal stage as soon as the war is finished. After normal conditions of tonnage are restored you will have salt as now from other countries. Salt comes, I believe, free of charge as ballast, so that not only the exporter but the importer too can afford to sell it at a considerably less price than he could have if he had to pay freight charges. I am not an idealist and I do not say you should suffer a loss and take off the salt duty for all time. I am quite sure that in course of time if you give facilities, say within a quarter of century, this country will be able to produce salt as good as we get from Cheshire but that requires time. You cannot have it done within three or four years. I submit my proposal is a modest one and hope the Council will accept it."

Resolutions.Rai Debender Chunder Ghose Bahadur ; Maulvi Abul Kasem.

The Hon'ble MAULVI ABUL KASEM said :—

"Sir, I beg to support the resolution moved by my Hon'ble friend Babu Surendra Nath Ray, and in doing so I do not think that much argument is needed to convince this Council or the Government of the necessity of taking some steps to meet the present difficulties.

The Hon'ble Rai Debender Chunder Ghose Bahadur has said that this question has been brought in this Council because of the hat looting cases in Eastern Bengal. I think, however, that the feeling was very keen for some time past long before the hat looting cases took place, owing to the fact that the price of salt had gone so high that a large number of my countrymen in this Presidency were deprived of that very necessary article of food. Certainly, the hat looting cases have accentuated this feeling and I trust that Government will see their way to accept the resolution as it stands, or the first part of it and for the second part the amendment may be accepted. So far as I am concerned, I would prefer that arrangement. In any case, salt should be very cheap to a large number of people in this country, and whether in doing so, the State loses some portion of the revenue or not, is a question which cannot be considered at the present moment. It has been said that all on a sudden peace-loving people have turned into rioters and have committed loots in open markets; and this fact is a sufficient ground for taking some steps. In these days the poor cultivators of jute find that their commodities are not saleable in the market; on the other hand, the articles they want, cloth and salt, are sold at a very high price. Those who have been to some of these places where hats have been looted, have told us that those cultivators who had brought back their bags of rice and their packages of jute threw them into the market and looted salt and cloth shops. Therefore, it is apparent that the situation is very grave and the Government, I hope, will take necessary steps to alleviate the misery and suffering of the poor and will be pleased to accept this resolution."

Resolutions.Babu Akhil Chandra Datta.

The Hon'ble BABU AKHIL CHANDRA DATTA said :—

"The history of salt industry in Bengal is the old but melancholy story of an important industry which we had but which has been extinguished. The abnormal rise in the price of salt and the manifold evils which have come in its train can however be no longer treated with indifference. The question has been raised whether an attempt should be made to revive the manufacture of salt in Bengal. The proposal—or rather the suggestion—emanated from the Government of India. What however is the attitude of the Government of Bengal? It is a matter of profound regret and disappointment that they have declared themselves opposed to it. They are not for reviving the industry. I propose to examine their grounds of objection here.

Now the most important objection is that salt could not be manufactured in Bengal except at a price which could be far higher than that at which it is imported or is manufactured elsewhere in India. This leads us to the question what would be the average price of salt if it were manufactured under existing circumstances? When the Government of Bengal expressed its considered opinion in reply to a suggestion of the Government of India, we had a right to expect that the opinion was based upon facts and figures ascertained upon due inquiry. But we have been seriously told in this Council chamber the other day that no calculations have been made by the Government as to the cost of manufacture and that even approximate figures could not be given. How could it possibly be said that the price would be far higher without knowing or ascertaining what that price would be? Was conclusion on a momentous question like this arrived at in such an irresponsible manner? Was it not their duty—duty to themselves, duty to the Government of India and duty to the people of the province—before submitting their report to calculate and ascertain as accurately as possible the cost of manufacture? How could they rush headlong into a conclusion without doing so much as to calculate the cost of manufacture? Are we to take it that the memorandum of the 5th April 1917 was based upon the intuitive knowledge of the official or officials who had the privilege of preparing it? The cost of manufacture here may be comparatively higher but do not the import duty and the cost of transit over thousands of miles from Liverpool and other places outweigh the higher cost of local manufacture?

Another ground of objection is that brine of good quality is not available. This position was challenged in an interpellation in which the Government was asked to state whether any inquiry was made as to the suitability of brine of Bengal. We were told in reply in the last meeting of the Council, 'suitable brine is said to be obtainable at Cox's Bazar and to the south.' So here is another point in which a sweeping observation was made without any reference to the actual state of things. Another difficulty suggested is that labour may not be readily available. This difficulty is as imaginary as the others already considered. India may be deficient in capital but it is preposterous to say that there is paucity of labour here.

All this naturally gave rise to a suspicion that the memorandum of the 5th April 1917 was submitted without any inquiry at all. But we did not like to condemn the Government unheard and on mere suspicion like the hundreds of youngmen whose liberty has been taken away under the Defence of India Act. And accordingly my Hon'ble friend Babu Brojendra Kishore Ray Chaudhuri gave the Government an opportunity to state whether any special inquiry had been made before the said memorandum was prepared. The reply only justified our suspicion, for we have been told that no special inquiry was necessary. So the memorandum was prepared without any inquiry. This explains the most unsatisfactory character of the facts stated and the conclusions deduced in the said memorandum. The situation has in all conscience been very grave. The feeling in the country is that revival of the salt industry in Bengal will tend to reduce the price of salt. Was it not, therefore, only fair and proper, sir, to institute a careful inquiry before summarily rejecting the proposal? Not only was there no inquiry made before the preparation of the memorandum, but our earnest prayers made since then for a proper inquiry have been treated with supreme contempt. On the 18th December last the prayer was formulated in the shape of an interpellation which ran as follows: 'Are the Government considering the desirability of directing an inquiry into how far the manufacture of salt in Bengal may tend to reduce the prices in the local salt markets?' The answer was in the negative. Verily, my Lord, the people have right to cry, 'Strike but hear.' An attitude of such absolute defiance to the wishes and feelings and vital interests of the people can be taken up by the Government only in a country where it is not responsible to the people. The attitude would have been absolutely different if our ministers had to depend upon popular votes for continuance in power. Our suggestions in the Council are received with such scant courtesy that when my friend Babu Brojendra Kishore Ray Chaudhuri asked in the last meeting of the Council, whether the Government were considering the desirability of making an inquiry as to the particular facilities for the manufacture of salt on the Chittagong side, no reply was vouchsafed to the question. The Hon'ble Mr. Donald did not condescend to give any answer to that question at all. Such is our vaunted right of interpellation. This is not an isolated instance. This is the ordinary fate of our interpellations. Sometimes they are rejected on grounds very difficult to appreciate, sometimes they are not answered even if admitted, and if they are answered, the answers typically illustrate the magnificent power of words in concealing thoughts.

All the objections urged in the said memorandum apply admittedly to a scheme for manufacture on a large scale. The question of manufacture on a small scale for home consumption or for satisfying the local needs has not been at all considered. Even the memorandum does not go so far as to state, or to suggest that manufacture on a small scale is hampered by paucity of brine and fuel. Not to speak of the pre-British days, even in the early sixties of the last century a large quantity of salt used to be manufactured in the seaboard areas in Sitakunda, Kumuria, Kattoly, Alishahar, Bandar, Mathubari, Chakaria, Cox Bazar, in the islands of Kutubdia and Maheskhali in Chittagong district also in Hatia, Sandwip and other neighbouring places.

The descendants of the manufacturers of salt, who are still known as Moulangis, on the Chittagong side, have not yet forgotten the old indigenous methods of making salt. Though the Government do not allow manufacture in the lawful way, the contraband salt is still being manufactured on a scale which cannot be considered negligible. The following are the indigenous methods used in making salt in Chittagong:—

1. The scraping of the earth of the sea-beach, mixing it with water, filtering the solution and then boiling. This process yields, I am told, in the month of March and April half a seer of salt from one seer of earth.

2. The Nuna plants growing wild near about the seashore are kept immersed for a number of days in sea water and then taken out, dried in the sun and then burnt. The ashes are mixed with water and then by percolation and boiling the salt is obtained. In this case, the yield is, I am told, about half the quantity of the ashes.

3. The boiling of the seawater. But this process is less profitable than the above mentioned two.

It is not disputed that the manufacture of salt in Bengal was profitable before. Now the question is why it has now become unprofitable? Has not the operation of the Salt Acts of 1864 and 1882 contributed to this increased cost of manufacture? At all events, is not the fiscal system introduced by the said Acts one of the chief contributory causes? Salt is a primary necessary of life and should be as free as the air we breathe and the water we drink. But the Government wanted to raise a large revenue on salt and inaugurated a system of excise which sounded the death-knell of the industry in Bengal. Why was duty imposed indiscriminately on salt both imported from abroad and manufactured at home? Why no discrimination was made between salt manufactured on a large scale for commercial purposes and salt prepared by poor people for their home consumption? To raise the cost of manufacture by a system of excise and then to condemn it as expensive is to give the dog a bad name only to hang it. Abolish the duty and the people will certainly find it profitable to prepare salt for their home consumption. This is not a matter for speculation. Have we not had as many as 451 cases of offences committed against the Salt Act of 1882 in 1916-17? Have we not had in 1916-17 as many as 328 cases in which persons preparing salt were hauled up in the criminal Courts? Have we not had conviction in as many as 284 cases in one single year? Have not our people contributed in 1916-17 Rs. 1,656-4 to the public exchequer in the shape of fines for preparation of salt? Are not offences against the salt laws steadily on the increase? There is certainly a grim humour in the observation which we find in the Administration Report of 1916-17 that the number of cases detected in the 24-Parganas would probably have been much larger had not the preventive work been seriously hampered by the absence of the departmental launches and boats during the earlier part of the year. What is the moral loudly proclaimed by the record of prosecutions for manufacturing salt against the provisions of the salt laws? Need I point out that the people do find it cheaper to manufacture salt for their own consumption than to purchase it in the bazar. The very fact that such a large number of people who are otherwise law-abiding and docile do prepare salt even at the risk of criminal prosecution, goes conclusively to show that they do so because they find it cheaper. Instead of helping and encouraging them the Government have got a large establishment maintained at the rate-payers' cost only to persecute and to prosecute them. Now imagine the position of a poor man in Cox's Bazar. He is too poor to purchase salt at the bazar, but vast repositories of salt lie before him and behind him and beside him. But such is the Tariff wall built up by the Government between him and those repositories that he cannot get at them lawfully. But necessity knows no law and if under the pressure of necessity the poor man stretches his hand to seize the salt, the salt daroga at once stands up like the frankenskin of old and manages to lodge him into a place where he has neither to purchase nor manufacture salt for his own consumption, but where he has salt provided for him at the cost of the Government. Like the ancient mariner of Coleridge, he has salt water, salt water everywhere but not a drop for making salt.

Resolutions.Babu Akhil Chandra Datta.

Let us however consider another aspect of the matter. The salt water and the salt earth are lying there in vast quantity unused and unutilised without serving any purpose whatsoever. The poor people can draw any quantity of sea water and scrape out any amount of earth from the sea-beach as they like and commit any kind of waste with impunity. But as soon as an attempt is made to turn them to their use, down comes the Damocles sword over their head. It is said that manufacture is prohibited because in some cases the people manage to escape the duty. The position is, therefore, this, as the salt water and salt earth do not yield a full revenue to the Government, why let them remain absolutely unused? In other words, why should it be of any use to the people if it is of no use to the Government? The Government might of course think like this. So far as we are concerned they are not, as a matter of fact, yielding any revenue; why then deprive the people of the Nature's bounty? But that is a line of argument which never commends itself to the Government.

The salt problem is not merely an economic one. It has another very important aspect. The history of salt duty in this country has shown beyond doubt that the consumption varies inversely with the rise of price. The consumption is not even 10 lbs. per head, whereas according to medical opinion 20 lbs. per head is the minimum necessary for healthful existence. So the result of rise in price will inevitably be disastrous to the health of the people. I do not know whether the prospect of the health of millions of our people being undermined in this way at all appeals to the Government. I do not know whether the overwhelming importance of this aspect of the question has ever received that anxious consideration which the rulers of the country are in all conscience bound to bestow on it.

But the problem is not merely economical and hygeological, but has of late become political to boot. The abnormal rise in price has driven the people to desperation and the result is the looting of hâts. The rioters are of course the worst enemies of the society and the State and they must be hunted down. But is that all that we have got to do? Is the prosecution of the looters all that the situation demands? Appetite for food is the most primary and imperative of all our impulses and no sane man should expect that hunger-stricken people starving with their children will contemplate ever the vices of theft and will refrain from touching food which they find in abundance in a neighbour's house. The same thing is more or less true with respect to salt. I am not here to justify or extenuate the looting of hâts. But this I do say that the responsibility is not all theirs. It has to be apportioned between the looters and those who have created the situation for them. Who, after all, are ultimately responsible for this state of things? I do not know what the orthodox official view is, but this I know that while the rising price of salt is pressing heavily on our people, the Government revenue on salt is steadily on the increase. In 1916-17 the net revenue was Rs. 30,70,723, which was greater than that of the previous year by Rs. 10,20,738, i.e., 8·4 per cent.

So the adversity of the people is quite synchronous with the prosperity of the Government. Such is the irony of fate that the sufferings of the people go on simultaneously with surpluses in the public exchequer. What wonder then that with this growing revenue the Government should maintain a department for the detection of offences against salt law and should be in a position to give fat fees to the advocates prosecuting the hât-looters before the special tribunals.

The Commissioner of Excise and Salt, in submitting his report of the year 1916-17, observes with remarkable accuracy that 'the report deals with the preventive operations in the saliferous districts of the Presidency and with the importation and issue of salt under the control of the Customs authorities.' That is all the vaunted administration of the Salt Department in a Province which was in pre-British days self-contained regarding the supply of salt.

In 1888 Lord Cross, the then Secretary of State for India, said : 'The policy enunciated by the Government in 1877 was to give to the people throughout India the means of obtaining unlimited supply of salt at a very cheap rate.'

Two years later, Sir John Gorst, on his speech on the Indian Budget in the House of Commons, remarked : 'The tax on salt was no doubt a tax which ought to be removed and would be removed as soon as it would be financially possible to do so.' Lord Morley's (then Mr. Morley's) pronouncement on salt tax in 1906 encouraged the hope that the time was not distant when the tax might be done away with altogether. After all this declaration, is it too much to expect that the salt manufacture by poor people for home consumption will be made free from duty?

One word to the non-official European benches. The salt duty in India is essentially a poor man's question, for they eat more salt when it is cheap and less when it is dear. It has recently been said with a good deal of insistence and vehemence that the educated classes do not represent the masses of the country and they are the special trust of the Anglo-Indian community"—[Here the bell rang as the Hon'ble Member had exceeded his time limit and the Hon'ble Member resumed his seat.]

The Hon'ble MR. CARTER said :—

"I wish to oppose the resolution which has been brought forward by the Hon'ble Babu Surendra Nath Ray, under headings (i) and (ii) and the amendment by the Hon'ble Rai Debender Chunder Ghose Bahadur.

I would like to say first of all that I have been connected with salt, and my firm has been connected with the salt trade for a great number of years, and therefore I can speak with a certain amount of knowledge and confidence.

Owing to the formation of the littoral of Bengal, consisting as it does of vast mud flats caused by the great flood of fresh water from the Ganges delta, the influence of which is felt many miles at sea, it is well known to the salt trade that it is impossible to manufacture salt on a commercial scale, as is done in the Madras and Bombay Presidencies.

Salt can be manufactured in certain places in limited quantities only, but the process is very laborious owing to the weakness of the brine. Salt manufacture was carried on in Orissa when it was attached to Bengal for a great number of years. I believe that the British Government took over the manufacture of salt in 1804. Previous to that date it was in the hands of Rajas and other zemindars. The last Salt Factories in Orissa were closed in March 1902 as it was found that the climate was not suitable owing to the severe thunderstorms which visited that Province, and also the opening of the East Coast Railway afforded facilities for the import of Ganjam salt into Orissa and allowed of salt being sent down from Calcutta; and although the price of Government salt in Orissa was reduced to $\frac{1}{2}$ anna a maund, there was found to be no sale for it owing to its poorness of quality. In the report on the 'Bengal Salt Trade' for 1901-02, it is stated that the further manufacture of salt was considered by Government during the year, and finally held to be impracticable.

I need hardly say that at the present time it seems to me to be folly for Government to waste money in an attempt to revive an industry which could not live against imports from the Red Sea and those parts of the Provinces of India where salt can be manufactured to advantage.

The second resolution put forward by the Hon'ble Babu Surendra Nath Ray is to allow the salt manufactured by people for their own consumption to be free from duty. It is repeatedly put forward that the salt tax bears hardly on the masses; but as the consumption per head is estimated to be 12 lbs. per annum, the duty on which at its present rate of Re. 1-4 per maund amounts to 3 annas per head per annum only, it can hardly be considered excessive, particularly as this is the only tax which millions pay towards the revenue. It would be obviously unfair to allow a favoured few to manufacture salt for their own consumption free of a tax which the other millions of India have to pay.

There has been considerable agitation lately against the high price of salt ruling in Bengal. The price of Red Sea salt at the present moment can be taken roughly at Rs. 239 per 100 maunds plus the tax of Rs. 125 per 100 maunds equals Rs. 364.

For very many years the duty was at the rate of Rs. 250 per 100 maunds and taking the price of salt at that time at an average of Rs. 60, the price works out at Rs. 310 per 100 maunds, or a difference of Rs. 54 per 100 maunds, which means that the consumer now has to pay 1 anna 3 pies per maund per annum more than he did fifteen years ago, and this in spite of the vast increase in the cost of production and freight.

For the above reasons I wish to oppose the resolution."

Resolutions.Mr. Provash Chunder Mitter.

The Hon'ble MR. PROVASH CHUNDER MITTER said :—

"Sir, the resolution is divisible into two parts and then there is an amendment to it proposed by the Hon'ble Rai Debender Chunder Ghose Bahadur. I am very strongly in favour of clause (i) of the resolution moved by my friend, the Hon'ble Babu Surendra Nath Ray, but I am sorry to oppose the second part of the resolution and the amendment of the Hon'ble Rai Debender Chunder Ghose Bahadur.

As regards the consumption of salt in Bengal certain figures may be helpful. The total consumption of salt in Bengal is about 70 lakhs of maunds. and out of this, 24 lakhs are imported from Great Britain—I am speaking from the statistics as published in the latest Government Reports—the remaining 46 lakhs of maunds are imported from Masoa, Spain and Port Said—the last mentioned place being mainly the distributing centre of Red Sea salt. Therefore, so far as any question of conflict of the interests of Great Britain and the interests of India are concerned, that is only with regard to the 24 lakhs of maunds; there is no such conflict with regard to the 46 lakhs of maunds of salt. Now, as regards the 24 lakhs, we may remember that salt is imported in bulk as ballast in ships and practically free from freight. So long as such conditions prevailed as enabled salt to be imported practically freight-free, there was not perhaps much difficulty; but under the present state of difficulties of tonnage conditions have changed and perhaps even some time after the hostilities are over, we may not have the same facilities of tonnage as we had in pre-war days. In the meantime, the question has become very acute for the people of the country, as also for the Government and for all classes who are interested in the well-being of the people and the Government.

Now, Sir, it has been said that Bengal is not suitable for the manufacture of salt, and for that reason it has been suggested that it is not right that Government should risk its money for the manufacture of salt. I agree, for the sake of argument, that there may be much in favour of such statements. After all the Government must be guided by the advice of its experts. But, Sir, is that any reason why permission should not be granted to private manufacturers to manufacture salt? It is their own look-out whether the climate of Bengal is good enough to carry on salt manufactories at a profit, and if that is so, is there any justification for preventing private manufacturers from manufacturing salt? Well, there is no doubt that the climate of Bengal is damp, and that salt can be better manufactured in a dry climate. There is no doubt also that the sea-board of Bengal is more or less intersected by big rivers. But these difficulties have all along existed, and in spite of them, Bengal used to manufacture her own salt. If that be so, and if the Government does not feel justified in starting salt manufactories of its own, the least the Government could do, in order to remove the impression which exists and which is doing as much mischief to the Government as to the people, is to let the people, who wish to try the experiment, to do so for themselves. If they burn their fingers and find out to their own cost that they cannot manufacture salt in competition with foreign salt, then Government will have everything to gain and nothing to lose by according such permission. It is no good preaching about the difficulties of salt manufacture. The best thing is to let the people try and learn for themselves—for there is no school like the school of experience. Therefore, with regard to clause (i) of my Hon'ble friend's resolution, my suggestions are that private firms or private individuals be allowed to manufacture salt. Of course, they must pay the necessary duty and perhaps some amount of license fee. So far as I have been able to investigate into this matter, I do think that under present conditions the Government will be able to manufacture salt profitably; but that is a matter which I would leave to Government and to its expert advisers.

Resolutions.Mr. Provash Chunder Mitter ; Maulvi A. K. Fazl-ul-Haq.

As regards the second portion of the resolution, I am sorry I have to oppose it, and I oppose it on three grounds. First of all, if the people are allowed to manufacture salt for their own consumption it will lead to a good deal of friction between the subordinate officials of the Salt Department and local people and the benefit, perhaps, will be a questionable one. It will be difficult for the superior officers of the Salt Department and the Government to remedy acts of oppression, real or fancied. My second point is this: How will the loss of revenue be compensated for? It is no good saying that Government will bear a loss of revenue; but there is such a thing as the Budget with which most of my friends are familiar. Even if it means a loss of revenue of two lakhs, how is that loss going to be met? From what other department is the curtailment to be made? Now, the third reason is that it is perfectly well known that the population of the seaboard of Bengal is very small; out of a total of 45 millions, perhaps at the highest, the population of the seaboard of Bengal is not more than quarter of a million. If you let these people to manufacture salt for their own use, you benefit a few; but you leave the door open for illicit manufacture. Therefore, both on grounds of loss of revenue and on grounds of differential treatment, I am opposed to the second branch of my friend's resolution.

As regards the amendment of the Hon'ble Rai Debender Chunder Ghosh Bahadur, I am sorry that, after giving it my best consideration, I have to oppose it. My first reason is that free manufacture of salt in Bengal will not be of any the slightest benefit to the consumer. Taking the total consumption of salt in Bengal to be 70 lakhs of maunds, if you allow free manufacture from to-morrow not only duty free but with a subsidy of say one pice to the maund, even then, I take it, during the next three or four years they will not be able to manufacture say more than 8 or 10 lakhs of maunds. If that be so, will the manufacturers be selling at a price lower than the market price of salt? Well, my answer is an emphatic 'no'. Who then will benefit by this manufacture? The consumers will not be benefited but the manufacturers will benefit to the detriment of the revenue to the State. The second reason why I oppose that amendment is that although my Hon'ble friend has suggested free manufacture of salt in Bengal, what about the competition with the rest of India? There are no high tariff walls round Bengal. Supposing that 8 or 10 lakhs of maunds of salt are manufactured in Bengal, the market price of salt being subject to the market conditions of the whole of India, the manufacture of salt free of duty will not benefit the consumer because the manufacturer will sell at the prevailing market rate.

The third ground is what I have already dealt with, namely, the question of loss of revenue. That being the position, I submit—and submit with some amount of confidence—that Government will be pleased to consider the matter very carefully and should, at any rate, allow private manufacturers a chance to realise whether the theory of Government experts is correct or not. If that chance is not given in these days when every act of Government is looked upon with suspicion and when there are people who see fit to ascribe all sorts of motives to acts of Government, where no such motives really exist, the Government will be doing a highly impolitic thing. It will enable mischievous people to carry on an agitation by ascribing improper motives to Government."

The Hon'ble MAULVI A. K. FAZL-UL-HAQ said :—

"Sir, much of what I wanted to say has already been referred to by the previous speakers and I do not think I need repeat what they have said. I belong to one of the most important districts which is on the sea and I have got a right to say something on the questions that have been raised by the resolution and the proposed amendment. My own idea is that the best thing to do would be to make the salt duty free for all people and for all time. That would be the ideal state of things and I want to go much further than the

Resolutions.Maulvi A. K. Fazl-ul-Haq; Khan Sahib Aman Ali; Mr. Donald.

Hon'ble Babu Surendra Nath Ray and the mover of the amendment, the Hon'ble Rai Debender Chunder Ghose Bahadur. The question that has been raised is not due to the consideration of a state of things brought about by the war, but it is a very large economical question which has been engaging the attention of public men in India for several years. I think that in order to arrive at a satisfactory solution, Government must be prepared to make any sacrifice that will be necessary. My Hon'ble friend Mr. Provash Chunder Mitter has referred to the difficulties with which we would be faced were we to ask Government to make a sacrifice in the revenue, and he has put the question to the Hon'ble Babu Surendra Nath Ray as to what he is going to suggest to Government in order to make up for the loss of revenue which would result in making salt duty free at least for some years. It may be that if that course is adopted there will be a deficit of a few lakhs of rupees, and if any suggestion were needed, I would suggest that the deficit can be made up by reducing the expenditure on one department and abolishing at least two departments. I need not specify what departments I mean. Most of the Hon'ble Members will be able to guess to what departments I am referring. Surely the way in which a question like this is to be met is by considering the comparative importance of either refusing relief to the people not by adopting the course suggested, or by granting the reasonable prayer of the people at the cost of a little sacrifice. If the advantage that is gained counterbalances the small deficit in the revenue, I for one would earnestly request Government to take the course which offers a satisfactory solution of a very knotty problem which has been engaging the attention not of the educated few but in this case at least of the mass of people. It is always said, whenever any of these economical problems are discussed in public platforms, that it is the professional agitator, and he and he alone who makes any complaint. But so far as this matter is concerned, the question affects the people who have taken up not merely arguments but cudgels and lathis in order to make others understand how they feel over this matter. I think, Sir, the situation is serious and I earnestly support the resolution of my Hon'ble friend Babu Surendra Nath Ray."

The Hon'ble KHAN SAHIB AMAN ALI said :—

"Sir, I come from Chittagong and my home is very near the sea which is full of salt water and the people in my part of the country used to manufacture salt before. They know how to manufacture salt and some of them have told me that if they are allowed to manufacture it, they will be able to sell salt at one anna per seer. If an opportunity is given to them, they will be greatly benefited thereby. With these words I support the resolution."

The Hon'ble MR. DONALD said :—

"Sir, the Hon'ble Members who have spoken on these resolutions have not, I think, fully appreciated the conditions which led to the high prices that prevailed a short time ago and to the loot of bazars and hâts. Before proceeding to deal with the actual issue raised in the Hon'ble Member's resolution, it will be convenient if I give the Council a brief account of the situation as regards salt, the circumstances which led to the large increase in price a short time ago, and the present position.

I do not know how far Hon'ble Members have studied the quarterly reports published on the state of the salt market which give statistics of imports, clearances and stocks, but a perusal of the last report, issued on the 30th November, 1917, for the quarter ending the 30th September last, would have shown that on the latter date the stocks were considerably lower than they had been at the close of the previous quarter. The fall was temporary, but although there was no fear that ample stocks would be forthcoming, an idea that there might be a shortage seemed to have seized the minds of certain merchants in Calcutta, and the demand was so considerable that prices rose rapidly from the middle of October, culminating in a very high figure on the 26th November. It is to this speculation that the high retail prices that prevailed throughout the Province, and led in part to the loots in hâts and bazars, are due. As to stocks there was a feared shortage in Chittagong, but Government took very early measures to meet the situation. Difficulties of tonnage to this port had affected the position and it became necessary to send salt from Calcutta to replenish the stocks there. This probably accounted in part for the anticipations of a shortage in Calcutta. However, the former position has again been restored, the fall that occurred has been made good, and the stocks on the 31st December were over the figure of the 30th June. Large shipments are expected in the coming months. An ample supply is already assured to cover the requirements of Bengal and the neighbouring Provinces, which are dependent on Bengal for their supplies, and Government are making further arrangements which will ensure that these supplies are maintained, both at Calcutta and at Chittagong. I have alluded to the rise in price that followed on an anticipation of shortage in November last, and it will interest the Council if I mention what actually happened.

Resolutions.Mr. Donald.

On the 3rd November the price of salt in the import market was Rs. 302. It rose to Rs. 321 by the 8th November, to Rs. 431 on the 19th, Rs. 451 on the 20th, and eventually reached Rs. 501 on the 26th of that month. It went up no further but dropped on the 1st December to Rs. 350. It has since then gradually fallen and at the present time is Rs. 240. I might also mention that while imported salt was sold at Rs. 350 on the 1st December and thereafter no business was done till the 17th December, when small quantities were sold at Rs. 300, yet on the 6th December Madras salt was offered at Rs. 200 and could find no purchasers.

The Hon'ble Member has quoted the wholesale prices per maund of imported salt. But he is not quite accurate in his figures. The highest price was reached in the last week of November, and was as much as Rs. 6-7. On the 1st December it fell to under Rs. 6, and at the present day it is Rs. 3-14. The retail price in Calcutta of imported salt rose to three annas, but is now two annas per seer. In the mofussil it averages a little over this figure. Both these rates—wholesale and retail—followed the sale price in the import market, and it was almost solely due to the speculation in Calcutta that the prices rose in the mufassal and led to the looting of hâts and bazars. Government made enquiries as to how far profiteering was prevalent in the mufassal, and the reports are practically unanimous that the Calcutta wholesale dealer was responsible and that there was no speculation amongst the retailers.

The present price of imported salt is now more in accord with conditions arising out of increased freight charges. As this price is very high for the poorer classes of consumer the remedy of local manufacture is put forward. Reference has been made to the memorandum published in the proceedings of the Imperial Legislative Council as regards the possibilities of local manufacture in Bengal. This memorandum was prepared by this Government with the assistance of officers who had full knowledge of the subject, but as all Hon'ble Members may not have seen it I shall briefly explain the position.

There are three possible methods of salt manufacture :—

First, Panga under which salt is educed by process of boiling from brine which has been obtained by filtration from salt earth.

Secondly, the Karkatch system under which salt is obtained from brine by means of solar evaporation, the brine being sea water or brackish water such as that found in the Chilka Lake.

There is also the Vacuum process, which need not be considered here, as it involves the establishment of a huge plant.

Prior to 1863 the Bengal Government carried on a system of direct manufacture, both by the panga and karkatch methods. But the system had to be abandoned owing to the competition of Liverpool salt which undersold it. In 1865 manufacture was resumed under private enterprise under both methods, the karkatch system being confined to the neighbourhood of the Chilka Lake. In the beginning of the eighties salt from Ganjam came into competition, and soon after this it became apparent that manufacture according to the panga method could not be carried on with due regard to the interest of the revenue. Production by this method is costly, cheap fuel is an essential necessity, and with the clearance of jungles and the cultivation of jungle sites, the facilities for manufacture rapidly disappeared. It soon became evident from the high cost of production that it was not possible to carry on panga manufacture at a legitimate profit without recourse to illicit practices, and it was therefore finally decided in 1887 to prohibit in future manufacture according to this method. Panga manufacture is still more impossible to-day. There are no longer extensive saline deposits as in the olden days to which the Hon'ble Member refers when vast swamps were reserved for the industry by landlords. I shall presently refer to this in connection with certain applications for manufacture that have been received.

Manufacture according to the karkatch method was continued at the Chilka Lake, but this had eventually to give way to Ganjam salt. The climatic conditions of Ganjam were far more favourable to salt manufacture and better and cheaper salt could be produced in that area. As the Hon'ble Mr. Carter has already mentioned, the opening of the East Coast Railway brought the two into competition and eventually it was found unprofitable to continue the manufacture at Chilka. A similar fate befell three factories which had been opened by Government in Orissa; nowhere north of this has the karkatch system been continued. The question of resuming manufacture has been considered on more than one occasion, but on all the grounds mentioned it was held to be impracticable. Conditions in Bengal are even worse than they were at the Chilka Lake. The Chilka Lake itself was even below the density of ordinary sea water. But the sea water at the north of the Bay is largely charged with silt, while it is weak in brine owing to the large influx of fresh water from the numerous rivers. The climatic conditions too are unfavourable—the thunderstorms in March and April would repeatedly retard production and also destroy salt in the process of manufacture.

These are difficulties, but notwithstanding them, Government are prepared to give favourable consideration to any scheme which may be put forward for the manufacture of salt under conditions which will ensure the necessary supervision and safeguard the revenue. The Hon'ble Babu S. N. Ray refers to a statement that the people of Chittagong could very well manufacture and sell salt at 2 or 3 pice per seer, and, if the present restraint were discontinued, could compete with the imported salt. Other members have also commented on the possibilities of manufacture in Chittagong. Now we have had applications for permission to manufacture salt in Chittagong. In the beginning of December Government received applications to manufacture locally from certain merchants in Chittagong. One of them stated that he had resources enough to manufacture salt on a large scale. The Excise Commissioner was recalled from tour and sent down to Chittagong to see the applicants, find out exactly what they proposed to do, and assist them in working out their proposals. Mr. Moberly found that the applicants had very vague ideas as to how they wished to proceed; they had worked out inadequate proposals and not even made any preliminary enquiries as to whether the venture, which was to be on a permanent footing, would be profitable or otherwise. One of the applicants intended to collect salt earth, but he had never seen the soils on which he intended to operate and their extent. The advice and assistance of the Salt Department were placed at their disposal and in the light of the information given they have been considering whether they would proceed. We are still awaiting their decision.

Resolutions.Mr. Donald.

Their difficulty may be realised when I read the following extracts from a report, received only yesterday, from the Superintendent of Salt in Chittagong, who was instructed to assist them. I may mention that the Superintendent of Salt, Chittagong, placed his launch at the disposal of the petitioners, and the best saline soils in the district were visited by them. The Superintendent had also shown them the saline survey registers of the district (prepared roughly about ten years ago) and pointed out to them the vast changes (in the disappearance of salinity from many areas) which had occurred in recent years. The entries in the registers themselves gave no hope of areas large enough for that purpose. This is what the report says:—

'We found the vast plain, on which he (the applicant) relied, was overgrown with grass. Residents said a little saline would effloresce in Choit if the rain held off. Small patches of saline sand were pointed out at the margin of the sea, too small to deserve mention. It was admitted that this sand did not yield even 10 per cent. of its weight of salt when filtered. He was convinced that the site was worthless.'

This is rather different from the 50 per cent. quoted by the Hon'ble Babu Akhil Chandra Datta.

'Again on the 29th December, I accompanied two of the applicants to Kutubdia Island and on the 30th to the sea-face of Khankhanabad and showed them what soils there were. The western shore of Kutubdia Island has a belt of saline sand on the margin of the sea about 5 yards wide and extending the full length of the island at intervals. The sand gets its salinity from the spring tides—not from sub-soil brine. A square yard of this sand was collected by them. They admitted that it did not yield even 10 per cent. of its weight of salt. I pointed out to them that this sand could only be scraped about twice a month for about three days at a time. They then proceeded to inspect the saline soils mentioned in the survey registers as lying along the Pilotkata Khal. These were found to have lost their salinity. No fuel was found anywhere in situ.'

The next day the soils near Khankhanabad were inspected. These were also patches of saline sand, very poor in quantity. The applicants at once saw that the locality was hopeless for their purpose and expressed a wish to examine the soils at Gohira during the neap tides on 7th January before coming to a decision.'

'On the 7th January 1918 I accompanied one of the applicants and inspected the coast between the mouth of the rivers Karnafuli and Sanko, a distance of about 8 miles. An almost continuous belt of saline sand averaging 5 yards in width was found to contain very extensive scrapings, but the only area containing salt earth was a small patch near Gobadia village on the Karnafuli left bank which we visited on our return. The applicant took samples of both the sand and of the earth and promised to let me have his decision on the 15th instant positively, but I have received no communication from him till now.'

'The deposits of salt earth, which would afford a perennial source of the raw material required for manufacture, are almost entirely absent. Along the extensive coast line is found a narrow stretch of what may be termed saliferous sand. The spring tides impregnate patches of sand of slightly lower level than the margin of the sea with salt. The quantity of salt in this thin cake of sand may be roughly stated to be about 10 per cent. of its weight.'

These extracts show that Chittagong seems hardly so pre-eminently fitted for the manufacture of salt as the Hon'ble Member's informant would submit, and that panga manufacture on the old lines is out of the question. But, as I have said, if the applicants will put forward a workable scheme, Government will consider it favourably.

The Hon'ble mover would go further. He asks that we should allow the salt manufactured by the people for their own consumption from duty. I am afraid we cannot agree to this. It must be remembered that salt is one of the items of taxation, and so long as it is a dutiable article, it is impossible to relieve any particular section of the community to the exclusion of the others. Manufacture for local consumption will be possible only in certain localities—those bordering on the sea—but if the people in these places are not required to pay the salt tax, why, as the Hon'ble Rai Debender Chunder Ghose Bahadur has remarked, should those in, say, Northern Bengal not be exempted, and why not the peoples of Bombay, Madras and the Punjab, in which provinces there is a considerable production of salt? As long as the salt tax subsists as an item of taxation, preferential treatment cannot be accorded to any particular province or locality. And again general freedom to manufacture is open to the objection that the concession would certainly be abused—illicit practices would soon prevail—illicit manufacture for sale, illicit sales and the like. Government cannot, on these grounds, agree to any proposal to permit manufacture duty free. In one direction, however, a slight relaxation of the existing instructions has been made. Under old orders Magistrates were enjoined to exercise discretion in the prosecution of poor persons for first offences in the manufacture of salt for domestic consumption. Government have gone a little further and some time ago directions were issued to the salt preventive establishment to ignore for the time being manufacture on a small scale for personal and domestic consumption only. But we cannot, for the reasons I have mentioned, agree to the adoption of a general policy on the lines suggested.

Government will then, as I have said, give favourable consideration to any workable proposals to manufacture salt that may be submitted, and are assisting would be manufacturers in working out their proposals. It is impossible for us, however, to accept the policy outlined in the resolution in the second part of the amendment. We have gone some way already to meet the case of the very few. Government are in the closest touch with the situation and they are doing all in their power to prevent the recurrence of conditions which led to the looting that has taken place. The position is to-day, as the Hon'ble Member himself has shown, far better than it was two months ago: prices have dropped, salt stocks are better and ample supplies are assured, and I may add that Government are giving serious consideration to the question of regulating prices and other measures for preventing speculative operations. In the light of these observations, the Hon'ble Members will probably be willing to withdraw the resolution and the amendment. But I would again repeat that we cannot accept a proposal that would allow general manufacture of salt without payment of duty."

The Hon'ble BABU SURENDRA NATH RAY said:—

"Sir, in fact what I had to say in reply to the Hon'ble Mr. Carter's speech has been said by my Hon'ble friend Mr. Provash Chunder Mitter, who has told you why Government ought to encourage the manufacture of salt—that is the first part of my resolution—but whether the manufacture of salt will be profitable to the people or not is no concern of Government. What the Government ought to do and what I also said in my opening speech is, let not Government interfere with the private parties manufacturing their own salt. On the other hand, it is the duty of Government at a juncture like this to encourage the manufacture of salt. We want salt for our own use; we do not want to make salt for profiteering. Sir, the Hon'ble Mr. Carter has said that salt duty is the only tax which the millions of people of India pay to the Imperial Exchequer. That has been the argument not only of Mr. Carter to-day in this Council but that also was the argument of officials in the Imperial Council when this question was discussed in the year 1905 and again in the year 1907. They said that it is the only tax which the millions of people of India pay and that they pay no other taxes. I can only say this that the millions of the people of India pay the land tax and the land tax in India is a very large amount of Government revenue. Every agriculturist has

Resolutions.

*Mr. Donald; Babu Surendra Nath Ray; Dr. Deba Prasad Sarbadhikari;
The President.*

to pay for the land he tills to the landlord whether the landlord be zamindar or the Government, so that it is not a fact that the salt tax is the only tax which is paid by the millions of India. My Hon'ble friend Mr. Provash Chunder Mitter has asked how the loss of revenue was to be recouped. At a critical time like this Government must be prepared to make some sacrifice, and as a matter of fact my resolution is a very modest one. It is only this, that to those who will manufacture salt for their own use, it may be duty-free. The loss to Government won't come up to a very large amount after all. Both the Hon'ble Mr. Carter and Mr. Donald said that the conditions have changed and that there is now much fresh water in the mouth of the Bay of Bengal and that we do not find patches of earth full of saline water now. All I can say is that it is news to me that within the last 30 or 40 years the water of the Bay of Bengal has lost its saline character. At one time salt used to be manufactured in very large quantities in Hiji in Midnapore. I have quoted a passage from Mr. O'Malley's book which shows that in the year 1776 Mr. Grant reported that 850,000 maunds of salt used to be manufactured in that subdivision of the Midnapore district alone, but we hear now that channels have been cut and there is much fresh water there. I really cannot understand why we cannot manufacture salt now so as to make it profitable and paying to the poor people. I am very much thankful and the country will feel thankful to the Hon'ble Mr. Donald for the statement that he has made in this Council that Government has already been trying to assist one gentleman of Chittagong who is going to manufacture salt."

The Hon'ble MR. DONALD said :—

"Three or four gentlemen."

The Hon'ble BABU SURENDRA NATH RAY continued—

"This, I say, is a move in the right direction. It is necessary that Government should give publicity and a wider publicity to all that Government intend to do in this matter. I also understand from what the Hon'ble Mr. Donald said that there has been some order by Government not to prosecute those who will manufacture salt for their own domestic use. That is exactly what I wanted, that poor people may be allowed to manufacture salt for their own use and that they may not be prosecuted for it. I did not want anything more. My resolution does not go so far as my Hon'ble friend Rai Debender Chunder Ghose Bahadur's. I want to say that this is a time when Government ought to do all that they possibly can to help the poor people and to give publicity to all their intentions with reference to them. I should like to make one request, and that is that Government should give as wide a publicity as they can to the order that Government will not prosecute those who will manufacture salt for their own use. We are very much thankful to Government for their statement to-day in Council."

The Hon'ble DR. DEBA PRASAD SARBADHIKARI said :—

"Sir, will not the resolution be divided into two parts? There are really two resolutions."

The Hon'ble BABU SURENDRA NATH RAY said :—

"I will ask that the two parts of the resolution may be put separately."

The PRESIDENT said :—

"Yes, it can be done under rule 22."

List of Business—Item No. 17.

The Hon'ble RAI MAHENDRA CHANDRA MITRA BAHADUR moved the following resolution :—

This Council recommends to the Governor in Council that arrangements be made for the cash sale of publications of the Government of Bengal at the Secretariat Book Depôt, Calcutta.

He said :—

" Sir, I do not wish to burden the Council with too many details, as the resolution speaks for itself. The exact position may be realized, if I could mention one or two facts in this connection.

Formerly all Government publications were available at the Bengal Secretariat Book Depôt. The customer had to go to the depôt and apply for the book he wanted. A chit was given to him with which he had to go to another office at the other end of the same building to deposit money there and bring a receipt, on production of which the book was delivered to him. This, of course, meant a little delay, but the remedy has been worse than the disease. Now, in most cases, the agents for the sale of Government publications do not care to replenish their stock, with the result that the intending purchaser has, in the first instance, to go to the depôt to inspect the book and then to come to one of the agents to book his order. The depôt people naturally feel chary to allow inspection, as since 1914, they have stopped the cash sale of books to customers direct, having appointed several agents in Calcutta, allowing them a commission of 33½ per cent. on the sale-price of books. When the agent has not got the book in stock, he generally accepts the price and writes out an order on the printed form of his firm and hands over the same to the customer who has again to run to the depôt and take delivery of the book there, on behalf of the agent. It is true, in some cases, the agents send their own messenger to the book depôt to get the books, but this they hardly care to do in cases where the value of the books ordered is small. The inconvenience of the customers may be better imagined than described. In the office of the Superintendent of India Government Publications, Hastings Street, Calcutta, books are sold direct to the customers on payment of the price without any delay. Inspection of books is freely allowed there. This system, if followed by the Government of Bengal, would result in the removal of an inconvenience from which purchasers of publications of this Government suffer at present. I, therefore, hope that my resolution may be accepted by the Council."

Resolutions.Rai Debender Chunder Ghose Bahadur; Mr. Donald.

The Hon'ble RAI DEBENDER CHUNDER GHOSE BAHADUR said :—

"Sir, I am somewhat surprised that such a trivial matter should be brought before this Council by my Hon'ble friend. My Hon'ble friend complains of the present system by which one is obliged to get his book supplied as regards Government publications from one of the booksellers of the town and he considers that it is more convenient to get these things from the Bengal Secretariat Book Depôt. I happen to be a resident of Calcutta while my Hon'ble friend comes from Hooghly. Probably he does not mind the inconvenience which a messenger from Hooghly is put to in getting a book from the Secretariat Book Depôt under the conditions of former days. Speaking for myself I think the present system under which Messrs. Thacker, Spink & Co., Newman & Co. and Cambray & Co. are permitted to sell these publications is most convenient to the public. Besides they are very obliging in serving their customers, more than a Government office is expected to be. You have only to send a letter to one of these shops and you get your book as soon as possible. Probably they will send it by post to Hooghly. If you write to them for a book on inspection they will send it to you and if you do not like to buy it you can return it. I, therefore, oppose the resolution."

The Hon'ble MR. DONALD said :—

"Sir, the present arrangement was the result of action taken on a complaint made some years ago that to pay for a book purchased in the Book Depôt one had to go to the other end of Writers' Buildings. That complaint was considered and the arrangement which now exists was adopted. It is not however a satisfactory arrangement and as the Hon'ble mover has said the remedy is almost worse than the disease. We are prepared again to make arrangements for sale at the Book Depôt and Government will accept the Hon'ble Member's resolution."

The motion was put and agreed to.

*Resolutions.Adjournment.List of Business—Item No. 18.

The following resolution stood in the name of the Hon'ble RAI MAHENDRA CHANDRA MITRA BAHADUR :—

This Council recommends to the Governor in Council that steps be taken to remodel the sluice in the Damodar left embankment on the western border of mauza Gazipore in thana Amta, in the district of Howrah, by widening the size of the existing narrow vent and lowering the floor of the said sluice with a view to draining out the stagnant rain-water from the paddy fields and preventing any further damage to the winter rice crop of mauzas Sonamukhi and Gazipore.

He said :—

"Sir, may I ask for the postponement of this resolution for discussion at the next meeting? The reason is that it is already late and consequently if this view is acceptable to you, Sir, I request you to postpone it."

The resolution was then, by leave of the President, postponed till the next meeting of the Council.

List of Business—Item No. 19.

The following resolution stood in the name of the Hon'ble Mr. IRWIN :—

This Council recommends to the Governor in Council that—

- (i) the teaching of Hygiene and Sanitation by duly qualified teachers be made compulsory in all State aided schools, both for boys and girls, in the Province ;
- (ii) these subjects be included as compulsory subjects for the University Matriculation Examination ; and
- (iii) provision for the above be made in the next Budget.

He said :—

"Sir, the resolution which stands in my name is, I know, considered of very great importance to the people of this country by many members of this Council and it is quite evident that at the present hour and in the present state of the House it is hopeless to expect a good debate upon it. I would, therefore, request your permission to postpone it until the next Council meeting."

The resolution was then, by leave of the President, postponed till the next meeting of the Council.

● Adjournment.

The Council was then adjourned to Tuesday, the 19th February, 1918, at 11 A.M., at Government House, Calcutta.

LIST OF BUSINESS—ITEM No. 1.

STARRED QUESTION.

By the Hon'ble RAI MAHENDRA CHANDRA MITRA BAHADUR :—

*1. (a) Are the Government aware of the fact that the Governor of Bombay in Council has decided to create a Controllership of prices and has appointed the Hon'ble Mr. P. R. Cadell, C.I.E., to the post? Controller of prices for Bengal.

(b) Are the Government considering the desirability of appointing a Controller of prices in this Province at an early date?

Answer by the Hon'ble MR. DONALD :—

“(a) Yes.

(b) Government are not as yet convinced of the need of such an appointment in Bengal at the moment, but will be guided by the development of the situation.”

By the Hon'ble RAI MAHENDRA CHANDRA MITRA BAHADUR :—

* 2. (a) Are the Government aware of the fact that the Commissioner in Sind has appointed a committee with the Collector of Karachi as Chairman to investigate the question of the rise in house-rents in Karachi? Increased house-rent in Calcutta.

(b) Are the Government considering the desirability of appointing a committee of officials and non-officials to inquire how far rents of existing buildings in Calcutta have been increased, and also to report whether action is necessary to control such increases?

Answer by the Hon'ble MR. DONALD :—

“(a) Government have no information on the subject, though they are aware that the question has been mooted as regards Bombay.

(b) Government are already in possession of information on the subject. Statistics of house rents were collected by the Prices Enquiry Committee from 1890 to 1912. These have been brought up to date with the assistance of local authorities, both official and non-official, and the variation during the war has been below 10 per cent. As at present advised, Government doubt whether a case for control has been established.”

By the Hon'ble RAI MAHENDRA CHANDRA MITRA BAHADUR :—

* 3. (a) Are the Government aware of the fact that in 1840 it was decided that Government were liable for keeping up the river bunds of pargana Mangalghat and that the Collector was ordered to refund Rs. 10,952 which had been levied from the zamindars on this account with interest at 6 per cent. ? River bunds of pargana Mangalghat.

(b) Is it a fact that a marked improvement was observable by 1845, and that no fewer than 89 masonry sluices had been constructed in lieu of the cuts formerly made by the raiyats?

Answer by the Hon'ble MR. COWLEY :—

“(a) and (b) The Hon'ble Member is referring to a period of more than sixty years ago. If he will furnish Government with the material on the basis of which he has framed the question, Government will be prepared to examine the matter.”

Questions and Answers.

By the Hon'ble RAI MAHENDRA CHANDRA MITRA BAHADUR :—

Burdwan floods.

*4. Will the Government be pleased to state the amount of money actually spent up to January, 1918, out of the grant of Rs. 2½ lakhs as provided in this year's Budget, for mitigating the effects of floods in the Burdwan Division, and the details of the works done during the months of December and January last?

Answer by the Hon'ble MR. COWLEY :—

"The detailed value of the works done on the sanctioned projects for mitigating the effects of floods in the Burdwan Division up to the 30th January, 1918, has been Rs. 72,319, of which sum Rs. 57,996 have actually been expended in cash.

The works done during the months of December and January last have been on the following projects :—

- (i) The construction of a retired line in the first mile of the Buxi Khal left embankment and the improvement of the abandoned embankment.
- (ii) The improvement of the Gesapati Khal.
- (iii) The construction of a retired line on the Ajai embankments at Gaurangapur and Damoodarpur.
- (iv) The raising of the Ajai embankments.
- (v) The raising of the Damoodar embankments."

By the Hon'ble RAI MAHENDRA CHANDRA MITRA BAHADUR :—

Price of text books.

*5. (a) Are the Government aware that text books for the fifth and other lower classes of high English schools, published by Messrs. Macmillan & Co., and printed a year ago in Calcutta and Bombay, are being sold at an enhanced rate of 25 per cent. above the price marked on the covers of these books?

(b) Will the Government be pleased to lay on the table a copy of the Government order, if any, on the subject of selling text books at an increased price?

Answer by the Hon'ble MR. O'MALLEY :—

"(a) Orders have been issued by the Department of Public Instruction to the Secretaries of the Text Book Committees at Calcutta and Dacca to allow a reasonable increase in the prices of text books on the approved lists on account of the rise in the price of paper and printing material. The Secretary of the Dacca Text Book Committee has issued a circular fixing a maximum increase of 25 per cent. in the price of text books for Eastern Bengal. No general order of this kind has been issued for Western Bengal, but certain cases have been considered and permission to raise the prices granted.

(b) There is no such Government order."

By the Hon'ble RAI MAHENDRA CHANDRA MITRA BAHADUR :—

*6. (a) Is it a fact that Dr. Bankim Chandra Ganguli, attached to the Pilgrim Hospital, Kharagpore, Bengal-Nagpur Railway, has instituted a suit in the Sadar Subdivisional Magistrate's Court, Midnapore, against the Station Master of Kharagpore and one Mr. Hunter, a guard of the Howrah-Puri passenger train?

Case against certain railway officers.

Questions and Answers.

(b) Will the Government be pleased to state whether this case has been finally decided?

(c) If so, will the Government be pleased to lay on the table a copy of the full history of the case, together with the judgment of the trying Magistrate?

Answer by the Hon'ble Mr. KERR :—

"(a) Dr. Bankim Chandra Ganguli filed a complaint on the 15th January alleging that he had been assaulted by the persons named in the question and by another person, name unknown.

(b) The Subdivisional Officer summoned the persons named in the question for the 1st February. On that date the complainant filed a petition, stating that the case had been compromised and that he did not wish to proceed with it. The Subdivisional Officer thereupon discharged the accused.

(c) A copy of the statement made by the complainant on the 15th January and of the order sheet of the case is laid on the table."

Copy of order sheet and statement referred to in the answer by the HON'BLE MR. KERR to Question No. 6 (starred) asked by the HON'BLE RAI MAHENDRA CHANDRA MITRA BAHADUR at the Council Meeting of the 19th February, 1918.

ORDER SHEET FOR MAGISTRATES' RECORDS.

DISTRICT MIDNAPORE.

IN THE COURT OF BABU J. N. ROY, SUBDIVISIONAL MAGISTRATE, MIDNAPORE.

No. 170 of 1918.

Bankim Chandra Gangopadhyia versus Mr. Guild and Mr. Hunter.

Serial No. of order.	Date.	Order.	Signature.
1	15th January, 1918	Summons Mr. Guild and Mr. Hunter under sections 352 and 504, Indian Penal Code, for the 1st February, 1918.	J. Banarji.
	1st February, 1918	Accused absent. Complainant withdraws his case. Accused discharged under section 253, Criminal Procedure Code. Enter true under sections 352 and 504, Indian Penal Code.	J. N. Roy.

BANKIM CHANDRA GANGULI, of Kharagpore (on solemn affirmation) states:—I complain against (1) Station Master of Kharagpore, Mr. Geilt, (2) Guard Mr. Hunter, and (3) one unknown European passenger whose name I do not know. Yesterday at about mid-day, I was going to Jakpur by 9-down Puri passenger train. I had third class ticket No. 7745, dated the 14th January, 1918, with me and I got into a third class compartment. There was a European passenger in the compartment who readily ordered me to get out of that compartment. I told him that I would go only a few miles and that there could not be any objection to my travelling in that compartment. The European passenger still persisted in asking me to get out of the compartment. Then I told him that if he objected to my presence he could go to some other compartments reserved for Europeans. Then he said that the compartment in which he was sitting was reserved for Europeans. I told him that there was no label or anything stating that the compartment was reserved for Europeans. Then he told me to ask the Station Master. I told him to ask Station Master. Then he brought the Station Master and the Guard along with him. They ordered me readily to get out of the compartment, using insulting language. When I told them that there was no label, they told me that their order was sufficient. Then they directed the ticket-collector to attach a label (Europeans) to the compartment. The label "Europeans" was then attached. Then the Station Master and the Guard entered into the compartment. The Station Master and the Guard again used insulting language, saying that I deserved to be treated like cats and dogs. Then they pulled me out of the compartment and I could not travel by that train. Then I informed the matter to the Government Railway Police and I was directed to complain here. I am a Sub-Assistant Surgeon at Kharagpore under Government. The Guard placed his hand on me under the Station Master's orders when he pulled me out of the compartment. The European passenger also got into the train from Kharagpore. I was going to Jakpur to see a patient.

By the Hon'ble RAI MAHENDRA CHANDRA MITRA BHADUR :—

*7. (a) Will the Government be pleased to state the reason why two rustic women, both of whom are named Sindhubala, one a resident of village Sabajpore and other an inhabitant of Bihar, within the jurisdiction of thana Indas, in the district of Bankura, were arrested by the Superintendent of Police, Bankura?

(b) Will the Government be pleased to state the age and the condition of health at the time of arrest, and also the time of arrest, of these women?

(c) Is it a fact that one of the women in question was pregnant?

(d) Is it a fact that Sindhubala had to take her child, aged 18 months, with her on her way to the thana and other places and was put to all sorts of inconvenience?

(e) Will the Government be pleased to state the name, full address and occupation of the husbands of these women?

Answer by the Hon'ble MR. KERR :—

"The Hon'ble Member is referred to the communiqué issued by the Government on the subject"

By the Hon'ble BABU SURENDRA NATH RAY :—

*8. (a) Is it a fact that there has been of late a decrease in the number of pupils in the Hastings House School?

(b) If so, to what is this decrease due?

(c) Have the Government received any complaint that the school has not been efficiently managed of late?

Answer by the Hon'ble MR. O'MALLEY :—

"(a) No. The number now on the rolls is the same as in February, 1917.

(c) Government have not received any formal complaint."

Questions and Answers.

By the Hon'ble BABU SURENDRA NATH RAY :—

*9. (a) Will the Government be pleased to state the number of covenanted members of the Indian Civil Service who were in charge of subdivisions in the Bengal Presidency in January, 1914, and in January, 1918?

Members of the Indian Civil Service in charge of subdivisions.

(b) What was the total amount of monthly salary paid to them in 1914 and in 1918?

(c) What was the total amount paid as salary to Subdivisional Officers in January, 1914, and in January 1918?

Answer by the Hon'ble MR. KERR :—

" (a) January 1914—18.
January 1918—7.

(b) January 1914—Rs. 12,183-5-4.
January 1918—Rs. 5,366-10-8.

(c) January 1914—Rs. 34,983-5-4.
January 1918—Rs. 37,116-10-8.

Since 1914, 13 new subdivisional charges have been created, twelve being Sadar subdivisions. The pay drawn in January 1918 by the officers holding charge of the 71 subdivisions which were in existence in January 1914 amounted to Rs. 31,750."

By the Hon'ble BABU SURENDRA NATH RAY :—

*10. (a) Will the Government be pleased to state the number of Assistant Magistrates and Joint Magistrates actually working as such in January, 1914, and the number in January, 1918?

Joint Magistrates and Assistant Magistrates.

(b) What was the total amount paid as salary to them in January, 1914, and to those who were filling their posts in January, 1918?

Answer by the Hon'ble MR. KERR :—

" (a) January 1914—47.
January 1918—14.

(b) Of the 47 officers, who were employed in January 1914, 17 were Assistant Magistrates of less than two years' service who were under training. Their pay amounted to Rs. 7,150. Only six officers of this class were employed in January 1918. Their pay amounted to Rs. 2,700. In January 1914, 18 Joint and Assistant Magistrates were employed as Subdivisional Officers. Their pay amounted to Rs. 12,183-5-4. The pay drawn by the officers holding charge of the same 18 subdivisions in January 1918 was Rs. 9,450. Twelve officers were employed in January 1914 as Joint and Assistant Magistrates at district headquarters. Their pay amounted to Rs. 9,500. In January 1918, only one Joint Magistrate was employed at district headquarters. His pay was Rs. 766-10-8. The pay drawn by the senior Deputy Magistrates in the other eleven districts in which Joint Magistrates were employed in 1914 was Rs. 6,800."

By the Hon'ble BABU SURENDRA NATH RAY :—

*11. (a) Will the Government be pleased to state the number of Assistant Superintendents of Police in January, 1914, and the number of such officers in January, 1918?

Assistant Superintendents of Police.

(b) What was the amount spent on their salary in January, 1914, and in January, 1918?

Questions and Answers.

(c) If the number of such officers was less in 1918, will the Government be pleased to state by whom their places are now filled up?

(d) What was the total amount paid to those who were filling the places of Assistant Superintendents of Police in January, 1918?

Answer by the Hon'ble MR. KERR :—

" (a) January 1914—26.
January 1918—9.

(b) January 1914—Rs. 10 600
January 1918—Rs. 4,300.

(c) By officiating Deputy Superintendents of Police

(d) Rs. 4,250.

" These figures include only officers actually employed as Assistant Superintendents, and do not include officers on leave or deputation or officiating in higher appointments."

By the Hon'ble BABU SURENDRA NATH RAY :—

*12. (a) Will the Government be pleased to state the number of constables in the Calcutta Police and in the Bengal Police?

(b) What is the number of Bengalis serving as constables either in the Calcutta Police or in the Bengal Police?

(c) Have the Government ever tried to enlist more Bengalis as constables?

(d) If so, with what result?

(e) If not, why not?

Answer by the Hon'ble MR. KERR :—

" (a) In the Calcutta Police, 3,734; in the Bengal Police, 17,648.

(b) Sixty-seven in the Calcutta Police, and 6,945 in the Bengal Police.

(c) Yes.

(d) Recruiting parties have been sent out into Bengal districts by the Calcutta Police, on various occasions, but have met with little success. Only 18 men were recruited last year, and 18 of these absconded within a month of being posted to the Police Training School.

In the Bengal Police special efforts have been made during the last few years to obtain Bengali constables, and a fair measure of success has been achieved, though the Inspector-General would be glad to recruit many more men of this class. The number enlisted during the last three years is as follows :—

1915	1,125
1916	1,215
1917	1,608

The Hon'ble Member is referred to paragraph 8 of the Police Administration Report for the year 1916 and to paragraph 4 of the Government Resolution thereon, where this subject was discussed.

(e) Does not arise."

Questions and Answers.

By the Hon'ble BABU SURENDRA NATH RAY :—

*13. (a) Are the Government aware that the removal of the Bengal Secretariat Press to Gopalnagore Road in Chetla will seriously inconvenience 99 per cent. of the employes who live with their families in Northern Calcutta and in the Howrah and Hooghly districts? Proposed removal of the Secretariat Press.

(b) Are the Government considering the desirability of selecting a more suitable site for the proposed new Press building?

(c) Have the Government considered the advisability of postponing the new building project for the Bengal Secretariat Press, which is likely to cost the public about 10 lakhs of rupees initially, till financial conditions improve?

Answer by the Hon'ble MR. DONALD :—

“(a) It is true that a certain amount of inconvenience will be caused to employes living in the north of Calcutta and in the districts named by the transfer of the Press.

(b) The site selected is considered to be the most suitable that can be found.

(c) The construction of a new press at the present time has been forced on Government owing to the insanitary conditions under which the employes work in the present building, and should not be postponed.”

By the Hon'ble BABU SURENDRA NATH RAY :—

*14. (a) Is it a fact that recently a committee was appointed to inquire into the necessity of erecting a new building for the Press? New building for the Secretariat Press.

(b) If so, has the committee submitted any report?

(c) If the answer is in the affirmative, will the Government be pleased to lay the report of the committee on the table?

Answer by the Hon'ble MR. DONALD :—

“(a), (b) and (c) A committee has been appointed, not for the purpose of inquiring into the necessity of erecting a new building for the press, but to advise Government as to the details of construction. The report of this committee has not yet been received.”

By the Hon'ble BABU SURENDRA NATH RAY :—

*15. (a) Will the Government be pleased to state—

(i) whether the quantity of work now turned out by the Press has increased or decreased as compared with the figures for 1907, and

Quantity of work in the Secretariat Press

Questions and Answers.

- (ii) if there has been a decrease, why the entire Press cannot be accommodated in the present block of Writers' Buildings as before, and why there has been increased expenditure?

Answer by the Hon'ble MR. DONALD :—

“ The quantity of work turned out by the Press is now practically double that of 1907.”

Deputy Superintendents of the Secretariat
Press.

- *16. (a) Will the Government be pleased to state what are the qualifications of the present Deputy Superintendents of the Bengal Secretariat Press, and what special experience they had before being appointed as Deputy Superintendents in that Press?

(b) Will the Government be pleased to state why at least one of the posts of the Deputy Superintendents cannot be filled by an Indian recruited from the staff of the Press?

Answer by the Hon'ble MR. DONALD :—

“(a) The senior Deputy Superintendent, Mr. Battersby, is a trained printer by profession. Mr. Johnstone was a reader who was promoted to be Deputy Superintendent many years ago. Mr. Shea was originally a reader, but for several years held the appointment of manager of the Darjeeling press: he was transferred as a Deputy Superintendent to the Secretariat Press in 1916.

(b) There is no employé in the Press staff suitable for the post of Deputy Superintendent.”

By the Hon'ble BABU SURENDRA NATH RAY :—

Controller of Printing and the Secretariat
Press.

- *17. (a) Will the Government be pleased to state why the Bengal Secretariat Press is not under the Controller of Printing and Stationery?

(b) Is it a fact that the Government have to rely entirely on the Superintendent for expert advice?

(c) Are the Government considering the advisability of obtaining the advice of the Controller about new schemes and new expenditure?

Answer by the Hon'ble MR. DONALD :—

“(a), (b) and (c) The Bengal Secretariat Press is not under the Controller of Printing and Stationery because it is a provincial press. The Controller is an officer of the Imperial Government and exercises no executive control over provincial presses. He inspects presses under Local Governments and advises them in matters connected with printing and stationery. His advice is freely sought on matters connected with the Bengal Secretariat Press, and Government do not rely on the Superintendent only for expert advice. The Controller is a member of the Committee referred to in the answer to question No. 14.”

Questions and Answers.

By the Hon'ble BABU SURENDRA NATH RAY :—

*18. Will the Government be pleased to state the total amount of expenditure on all kinds of new machinery for the Bengal Secretariat Press during the last five years, and also the amount of saving effected and realised owing to the use of these machines? Expenditure on new machinery for the Press.

Answer by the Hon'ble MR. DONALD :—

“ Rupees 86,069 have been spent during the past five years on new machinery. It is impossible to say what savings have been effected by the use of the new machinery, but the volume of printing and binding done since its introduction could not have been turned out without it.”

By the Hon'ble RAI DEBENDER CHUNDER GHOSE BAHADUR :—

*19. (a) Are the Government aware that Mr. Barrow, the Officiating Principal of the Presidency College, has ruled that non-attendance of a student, on a single day, from the College class, on an exercise day, would debar him from appearance at the University Examination from the College? Presidency College students and University Examination.

(b) Was there any such rule in the history of this College from the time of Principal Sutcliffe downwards?

(c) Are the Government considering the desirability of instructing the Director of Public Instruction to consider the reasonableness or otherwise of this rule?

Answer by the Hon'ble MR. O'MALLEY :—

“ (a) Government are informed that no such rule has been made.

(b) Government are not aware of any such rule.

(c) This question does not arise.”

By the Hon'ble BABU BHABENDRA CHANDRA RAY :—

I. (a) With reference to the suggestion made by Captain Gail regarding the subsidising by District Boards of medical practitioners in rural areas for treating the poor free, will the Government be pleased to state how many District Boards have so far experimented in this direction, in what localities and with what results? Subsidising of medical practitioners by District Boards.

(b) What are the terms that were offered to medical practitioners in this behalf?

Answer by the Hon'ble MR. O'MALLEY :—

“ (a) and (b) A statement is laid on the table.”

Questions and Answers.

Statement referred to in the answers by the Hon'ble MR. O'MALLEY to question No. 1 (unstarred) asked by the Hon'ble BABU BHABENDRA CHANDRA RAY at the Council Meeting of the 19th February 1918, showing the number of District Boards which have undertaken a scheme of subsidizing medical practitioners in rural areas on condition that they treat the poor free of charge.

Name of district Board.	Locality.	Result of experiment.	Terms offered to medical practitioners.
1. Jessore ...	Basundia and Bagdabilla in Sadar Subdivision Moham-madpur and Chandra in the Magura Sub-division.	The scheme was instituted on 1st December 1917 and is still in an experimental stage. It is, therefore, premature to make any definite pronouncement about the results.	The subsidized doctor is required (1) to stick to the post for three years; (2) to inspect all schools within a radius of three miles from his centre once a month and to treat school boys suffering from acute and chronic malaria free; to keep a register of all such visits and all such cases and to produce it for inspection whenever required by the Subdivisional Officer or any member of the Board; to give lantern-slide demonstrations in the schools whenever asked to do so by the Board, the Board supplying all the apparatus; (3) to keep a register of all other cases treated by him in private practice and to produce it for inspection whenever required by the Subdivisional Officer or a member of the Board; (4) to provide his own medicines excepting quinine, of which he will be supplied with a regulated amount free of cost by the District Board; and (5) to distribute the quinine supplied by the District Board free of cost. Subject to conditions (2) and (5) he is free to fix his own scale of charges for attendance and medicine, provided that it is reasonable. So long as his work is satisfactory he gets a monthly subsidy of Rs. 35 for three years from the date of his appointment.
2. Mymensingh	Badla ...	The experiment proved a failure; the doctor left the place after a few months for want of practice.
3. Rangpur ...	Haragacha and Barati.	An experiment was tried with un-qualified practitioners and was then discontinued under the orders of the Surgeon-General.	Terms not stated.
4. Malda ...	Ariadanga ...	The experiment was tried with an unqualified medical practitioner and was discontinued after about two years as his work was unsatisfactory.	A subsidy of Rs. 25 per mensem was given and a grant of Rs. 150 for the purchase of medicines on condition that he treated poor patients every day for 3 hours free of charge.
5. Pabna ...	Ratanganj, Sohagpur and Jorepukhuria.	The experiment proved a failure at Ratanganj, there being a general complaint that the doctor did not observe the condition on which he was appointed. The doctor at Sohagpur worked satisfactorily, but the post was abolished as a charitable dispensary was established there. It is reported that the scheme has been successful at Jorepukhuria.	A monthly subsidy of Rs. 30, besides a free supply of quinine to a certain quantity, is given on condition that the doctors treat the poor free of cost.

NOTE.—The District Boards of Jalpaiguri and Rajshahi resolved in 1915 to try the experiment in two and one localities, respectively, but could not do so as qualified medical practitioners were not available.

Visits to political prisoners.

II. (a) Will the Government be pleased to make a statement giving the names of those District Magistrates or other officers who have been appointed visitors of political prisoners under Bengal Regulation III of 1818, the dates of their respective appointments as such visitors and the places thereof,

Questions and Answers.

together with the number of visits paid by each visitor to each individual political prisoner and the dates of such visits?

(b) Have the visitors made any reports to Government or any suggestions to the jail authorities relating to the health, comfort and general well-being of the political prisoners?

(c) If so, will the Government be pleased to state the purport of each of such reports and any action taken thereon?

Answer by the Hon'ble MR. KERR :—

“(a), (b) and (c) The District Magistrates in whose districts State prisoners have been confined have been appointed visitors by the Government of India for those prisoners under clause 4 of Regulation III of 1818. They visit the State prisoners at least once a month and submit reports each month through the Local Government to the Government of India. Government does not consider that any public interest would be served by compiling the statement desired or by publishing the purport of the reports submitted, which in any case could not be done without the sanction of the Government of India.”

III. (a) Are the non-official Chairmen of District Boards entitled to travelling allowances?

Travelling allowance of non-official Chairmen of District Boards.

(b) If so, under what provisions and at what rates?

Answer by the Hon'ble MR. O'MALLEY :—

“(a) Yes

(b) A copy of Circular No. 361-65 L.S.-G., dated the 13th February, 1918, is laid on the table.”

Copy of Circular referred to in the Answer by the Hon'ble MR. O'MALLEY to Question No. III (unstarred) asked by the Hon'ble BABU BHABENDRA CHANDRA RAY at the Council Meeting of the 19th February, 1918.

Circular No. 361-65 L. S.-G., dated Calcutta, the 13th February, 1918.

From—L. S. S. O'MALLEY, Esq., I.C.S., Secretary to the Government of Bengal, General Department,

To—All Commissioners of Divisions.

WITH reference to this Department's Circular No. 21 L. S.-G., dated the 10th July 1915, on the subject of the payment of travelling allowance to Chairmen, Vice-Chairmen and members of District and Local Boards, I am directed to say that Chairmen of District Boards, who are not Government officers, will be entitled to draw travelling allowance at the same rates as are admissible under the Civil Service Regulations in the case of Government officers, of the first class for all journeys performed for the purposes of the Local Self-Government Act.

No. 457 L. S.-G.

Copy forwarded to the Accountant-General, Bengal (through Financial Department) for information.

lections for Khulna
Local Boards.

IV. (a) Is it a fact that certain elections for the Khulna Local Boards, fixed for the 21st January last, have failed?

(b) If so, will the Government be pleased to state the reasons therefor, and the steps that are going to be taken in the matter?

Answer by the Hon'ble MR. O'MALLEY :—

"(a) and (b) It is reported that the election for the Sadar Local Board failed because the presiding officer fell ill before he had recorded all the votes of the voters present. A fresh election will be held."

Certain remarks in the Police Administration
Report.

V. (a) With reference to the answer to my unstarred question No. XVIII at the last meeting of the Council, will the Government be pleased to indicate the nature of the "published information" on the basis of which the remark was made in the report on Police Administration?

(b) Are the proceedings of the Bengal Legislative Council included among the "published information" referred to in the said answer?

(c) With reference to the "unwritten rules governing the matter," stated in the said answer to be "based on etiquette and good feeling," is the dignity of the Legislative Council of any consideration in the interpretation of the said rules?

(d) Are the Government considering the desirability of issuing a circular to the Heads of Departments prohibiting them from making observations of the nature referred to in the said question, in regard to any discussions in the Legislative Council?

Answer by the Hon'ble MR. KERR :—

"(a) and (b) The Inspector-General of Police states that, in writing the passage referred to, he was thinking not solely, or even mainly, of the discussions which took place in this Council during the last budget debate, but rather of the articles which appeared in the newspapers commenting on the Council discussions.

(c) Certainly, but Government do not consider that there was anything in the Inspector-General's remark calculated to impair the dignity of this Council. The passage appeared in the section of the report relating to finance, and the exact words used were: 'A good deal of eloquence has lately been expended on the subject of increased expenditure on the police, but if an efficient and contented force is desired it must be paid for. A high degree of efficiency can hardly be expected from an underpaid, undermanned and badly-housed force, deficient both in clothing and equipment. A considerably larger expenditure will have to be faced before the urgent needs of the department can be satisfied.'

(d) Government do not consider it necessary to take any action of this nature."

Treatment of under-trial
prisoners.

VI. (a) Are the Government aware of the general impression that the treatment accorded to under-trial prisoners in Bengal is not generally in accordance with the provisions of the jail rules?

Questions and Answers.

(b) Will the Government be pleased to state whether they are considering the desirability of making an inquiry into this matter with the help of a Committee of officials and non-officials?

Answer by the Hon'ble MR. KERR :—

“(a) and (b) The reply is in the negative.”

By the Hon'ble BABU BHABENDRA CHANDRA RAY :—

VII. How far has the Boy-Scout movement been introduced in educational institutions in Bengal, and what steps are the Government taking for a spread of the movement in schools under Government control? Boy-Scout movement in Bengal.

Answer by the Hon'ble MR. O'MALLEY :—

“So far as Government are aware the movement has been introduced in 12 schools. No direct action is being taken by Government to spread the movement in Government schools but the question of aiding the movement in so far as troops of Indian boy-scouts are concerned, by the formation of a central organization, has been under consideration for some time. In the view of Government such an organization should be a non-official body; and with the entire approval of Government the Hon'ble the Maharajadhiraja of Burdwan has been engaged in forming a governing body to guide and control the movement among Indian boys. It is understood that a small committee is at present engaged in drawing up a scheme for submission to the governing body.”

VIII. (a) When is the Bengal Village Self-Government Bill likely to be introduced in Council? Bengal Village Self-Government Bill.

(b) Are the Government considering the desirability of publishing the draft Bill for criticism and opinion before introducing it?

Answer by the Hon'ble MR. O'MALLEY :—

“(a) The Bill has been submitted to the Secretary of State and it is proposed to introduce it in Council on 4th April, 1918, if no orders to the contrary are received from the Secretary of State before that date.

(b) No. The Bill will be published for criticism and opinion after introduction.”

By the Hon'ble BABU BHABENDRA CHANDRA RAY :—

IX. (a) Will the Government be pleased to state whether it is proposed to place the papers of all the cases of internment before the Committee presided over by Mr. Justice Rowlatt, or will only selected cases be submitted for their consideration? Rowlatt Committee and the internment cases.

(b) Are the Government considering the desirability of informing the individual détenus and political prisoners about the functions of the said Committee, and of allowing them—should any of them desire it—an opportunity of defending themselves personally, or to explain the circumstances in which any confession or other statements may have been obtained from them, before the said committee of inquiry?

Questions and Answers.

Answer by the Hon'ble MR. KERR :—

"All the papers in the possession of Government have been placed at the disposal of the Committee presided over by Mr. Justice Rowlatt. The terms of reference to this Committee have been published, and, as interpreted by the Committee, do not cover inquiry into individual cases."

Union
Committees

X. Will the Government be pleased to state the duties, powers and obligations of the District Boards, the Local Boards, the District Magistrates, the Subdivisional Officers and the Circle Officers, respectively, in the matter of initiating, guiding and controlling Union Committees formed under the Bengal Local Self-Government Act?

Answer by the Hon'ble MR. O'MALLEY :—

"The Hon'ble Member is referred to clause (d) of the reply given to the question No. 23, asked by the Hon'ble Mr. P. C. Mitter at the meeting of the Council held on the 20th November, 1917. The relations of the District Boards, Local Boards and District Magistrates towards Union Committees are regulated by sections 41 A, 44, 58, 104, 105, 106, 107, 110, 114, 115, 116, 117, 118, 118 A, 118 C, 119, 120, 121, 122, 124, 126, 130, 133 and 134 of the Local Self-Government Act (B.C., III of 1885) and by rules 2, 5, 6 and 9 of the rules under section 138 (a) of the Act issued with notification, dated the 15th December, 1885, rules 77 A and 88 of the rules under section 138 (b), (c), (d), (e), (f), (h), (i), (q), (s) and (t) of the Act issued with notification, dated the 11th February, 1886, and notification No. 1220 L.S.-G., dated the 3rd July, 1917, rules 62, 64, 65 and 66 under section 138 (q) of the Act issued with notification No. 1550 Edn., dated the 18th December, 1917, rules 2, 3, 4 and 5 under section 138 (q.1) and (t) of the Act issued with notification No. 2055 L.S.-G., dated the 20th November, 1917, rules 101, 102, 106 and 109 under section 138 (i) and (t) of the Act issued with notifications No. 2009 T.—M., dated the 9th November, 1901, and No. 1225 L.S.-G., dated the 27th May, 1915. Apprentices in Railway workshops.

XI. (a) How many workshops are there, in connection with the Railways in Bengal, where apprentices are admitted for training?

(b) Will the Government be pleased to make a statement for each of the last five years showing the number of literate European, Anglo-Indian and Indian apprentices, respectively, at each of such workshops?

(c) What is the minimum requisite qualifications for being admitted as a literate apprentice, in the case of—

(i) Europeans or Anglo-Indians; and

(ii) Indians, and for what nature of employment are they, respectively, trained?

(d) Are they in the enjoyment of any stipends or allowances? If so, what is the scale thereof in the case of Europeans, Anglo-Indians and Indians, respectively?

Questions and Answers.

Answer by the Hon'ble MR. COWLEY :—

(a) There are five workshops in connection with the railways in Bengal, viz. :—

Kanchrapara—Eastern Bengal Railway.

Jamalpur } East Indian Railway.
Lillooah }

Kharagpur—Bengal-Nagpur Railway.

Pahartoli—Assam-Bengal Railway.

(b) The following statement shows the number of literate European, Anglo-Indian and Indian apprentices under training at the above workshops during the last five years :—

Questions and Answers.

(c) (i) In the case of Europeans and Anglo-Indians, the minimum qualification required is generally Standard VI of the European School Code, but for the Pahartoli Workshop Standard V is the minimum and for Lillooah Standard VII.

The workshops at Kanchrapara, Jamalpur, Lillooah and Kharagpur further require candidates to submit to a special competitive examination in English, Mathematics, general knowledge and freehand drawing and admissions to apprenticeship are made from the most successful candidates at this examination.

(ii) In the case of Indians, the minimum qualification required is education in English for admission to the shops at Jamalpur. For Kharagpur Middle Vernacular Standard is required. At Lillooah, completion of Matriculation course is necessary, while for admission to the Kanchrapara Shops pass in Matriculation class is required. At Lillooah Indian candidates are further required to submit to the special examination prescribed for Europeans and Anglo-Indians referred to in the answer to question 54 (c) (i).

The majority of the apprentices in workshops, both European and Indian, are trained as Foreman Mechanics.

(d) The following table shows the monthly remuneration paid to apprentices in the Railway workshops :—

XIII. (a) With reference to the extract from a note by Messrs. Walsh and Heaton, which was laid on the table in reply to my unstarred question No. L of the 18th December, 1917, will the Government be pleased to state what action has been taken in regard to each of the nine proposals to which the attention of Government was drawn by Messrs. Walsh and Heaton therein? Dacca School of Engineering.

(b) Will the Government be pleased to state the reason why proposals Nos. 1 and 2 in particular, namely—

“ (i) to separate the school from the Dacca College and to style the Headmaster ‘Principal,’ and

(ii) to constitute a governing body with functions similar to that of the Sibpur College,” have not been given effect to?

Answer to the Hon'ble MR. O'MALLEY :—

“ (a) and (b) The following statement shows the proposals and the action taken on each seriatim :—

- (1) Separation of the school from the Dacca College and change of the title of Head Master to Principal.—It was decided that no action should be taken on this proposal pending the decision of the question of removing the school to a new site.
- (2) Constitution of a governing body similar to that of the Sibpur College.—Action was postponed pending orders on the first proposal.
- (3) The fixing of a consolidated grant to be administered by the proposed governing body.—This proposal could not be dealt with apart from the first and second proposals.
- (4) Strengthening and re-arrangement of the teaching staff.—Some additions have been made to the staff.

Questions and Answers.

- (5) The case of the Head Clerk.—This recommendation was not accepted by the Joint Technical Examination Board, but the Head Clerk has been promoted to class VIII of the Subordinate Educational Service.
- (6) The reduction of the number of reduced freeships at Sibpur and the creation of four stipends.—This proposal was not accepted by the Board; but proposals for the transfer of 8 reduced free-ships from Sibpur to Dacca and for their conversion into stipends are under consideration.
- (7) Arrangements for the instruction of students in practical surveying under canvas.—This has been sanctioned.
- (8) and (9) Furniture, drawing boards, cement-testing machines and minor items of equipment.—It has not been thought necessary to pass orders as the Head Master has power to make such purchases except when the value of separate items is over Rs. 500, and it rests with him to move in the matter."

Method of examining fry.

XIV. With reference to the answer to clause (b) of my unstarred question regarding the Department of Fisheries, at the last meeting of the Council, will the Government be pleased to state whether the process of examination of the fry is scientific in its character, and how many officers are employed in the said work?

Answer by the Hon'ble MR. KERR:—

"As the Hon'ble Member has no doubt understood from the reply to which he refers, it is not the case that each fish is subjected to microscopic examination. In so far as the fry are examined by officers who are experienced in distinguishing one kind of fry from another the examination is scientific, but, as previously stated, it is not claimed that the examination is complete and the Department does not guarantee purity. Fry are examined by three officers."

Officers under the Court of Wards.

XV. (a) Will the Government be pleased to state whether there is any rule, or practice, for the compulsory retirement of officers employed under the Court of Wards on the ground of age?

(b) If so, what is the maximum age for service in this behalf?

(c) Will the Government be pleased to make a statement giving the names and the respective ages of all officers serving under the Court of Wards and drawing Rs. 100 and above as monthly salary, who have attained the age of 55 years?

Answer by the Hon'ble MR. KERR:—

"(a) and (b) There is no rule on the subject. The practice is to retain the services of officers as long as they are efficient.

.(c) A statement is laid on the table."

XVI. Will the Government be pleased to lay on the table the Government of Bengal's letter No. 26 T.—S.R., dated the 24th May, 1915, which is referred to in the latest report on the income-tax administration as having ruled that “ the premium taken by a landlord for granting settlement of waste or abandoned land with a tenant is exempt from income-tax, but fees levied for recognition of a transfer of agricultural land from one tenant to another are liable to income-tax ”?

An Income-tax question.

Answer by the Hon'ble MR. DONALD :—

“ A copy of the letter referred to is laid on the table.”

Questions and Answers.

Copy of letter referred to in the answer by the Hon'ble MR. DONALD to question No. XVI (unstarred) asked by the Hon'ble BABU BROJENDRA KISHOR RAY CHAUDHURI at the Council Meeting of the 19th February, 1918.

No. 26T.—S. R., dated Darjeeling, the 24th May, 1915.

From—THE HON'BLE MR. J. DONALD, I.C.S., Offg. Secretary to the Government of Bengal, Financial Department.

To—The Commissioner of the Dacca Division.

I am directed to acknowledge the receipt of your letter No. 2077 R., dated the 17th April, 1915, to the address of the Board of Revenue, in which you inquire whether income derived by a landlord from nazar realised in connection with land used for agricultural purposes is liable to be assessed to income-tax. The two classes of nazar to which you refer are (1) premium taken by a landlord for the grant of settlement of waste or abandoned land with a tenant, and (2) fees levied for the recognition of a transfer of land from one tenant to another.

2. In reply, I am to say that the Superintendent and Remembrancer of Legal Affairs, who was consulted on the question, has recorded the following opinion, in which Government agree :—

- (a) The first kind of nazar is similar to sulami taken on the creation of a patni or other tenure, and on the authority of the previous ruling contained in note 9 to section 5 of Act II of 1886 (page 8, Income-tax Manual) income-tax cannot be assessed on it.
- (b) The second kind of nazar is a payment made to the landlord in consideration of his recognizing a particular person as his tenant. Such payments are not rent or revenue derived from land and are not income derived from agriculture. Therefore this kind of nazar is liable to income-tax.

Dhaleswari
Steamer Service.

XVII. (a) Is it a fact that the Dhaleswari Steamer Service has been either partly or wholly discontinued?

(b) If so, from what date and in what circumstances?

(c) What are the present conditions of communication between Dacca City and the westernmost parts of the district, particularly the Manikganj subdivision?

(d) How many miles from Dacca City is the subdivisional town of Manikganj, and how many hours' journey by boat at present?

(e) What progress, if any, has been made with regard to the proposal for a motor service between Manikganj and Aricha?

Answer by the Hon'ble MR. COWLEY :—

" (a) and (b) Yes, owing to the shallowness of the river the Dhaleswari Steamer Service is curtailed each year during the dry season. This season the service was suspended beyond Sabhar on the 27th December, 1917.

(c) During the rains traffic between Dacca City and the western part of the district, including the Manikganj subdivision, is generally by water. During the dry season what little traffic there is, is generally carried by the Padma Steamer Service. The road from Dacca City to the western part of the district is embanked and bridged as far as Mirpur. Thence to Fulbaria, where the Dhaleswari river is crossed by ferry, the road is embanked and most of the khals bridged. From the west bank of the Dhaleswari river to Baira there is no embanked or bridged road, and three miles of the track between Joymantop and Singair have been cut away by the river Dhaleswari. Arrangements are being made for a temporary diversion over these three miles. From Baira to Bentha the road is embanked and temporary bamboo bridges are constructed over khals during the rains. From Bentha to Manikganj and on to Aricha Ghat the road is embanked and bridged and in fairly good order. Aricha Ghat on the east side of the Padma is almost opposite the present site of Goalundo Ghat.

Questions and Answers.

(d) Manikganj is 30 miles by road from Dacca City. During the rains the journey by boat takes about 40 hours, but boats cannot at the present season get nearer than Joymantop, as the khal from the Dhalleswari river to Manikganj station is dry.

XVIII. (a) With reference to the answer to my unstarred question No. LIII of the 18th December, 1917, will the Government be pleased to state the reason for granting stipends at a much lower scale to the 5th year boys and artisans of the Dacca School of Engineering than those granted to the 5th year boys and artisans of the Apprentice Department of the Civil Engineering College at Sibpur? Dacca School of Engineering.

(b) With reference to the answer to clause (d) of my unstarred question No. XLIX of the 18th December, 1917, will the Government be pleased to explain why the Assistant Headmaster of the Dacca School of Engineering is not given the allowance which is granted to Assistant Headmasters of Government High Schools?

Answer by the Hon'ble MR. O'MALLEY :—

"(a) The scale of stipends for the artisans at Sibpur and Dacca respectively was fixed in accordance with the proposals of the head of each institution. The present scale of stipends for the 5th year Overseer students of the Dacca School of Engineering was fixed many years ago, and, so far as can be ascertained, no increase has since been proposed by the Head Master.

(b) The Assistant Head Master of the Dacca School of Engineering is not eligible for the allowance, because that school is not a high school."

XIX. (a) With reference to the answer to clause (b) of my unstarred question No. XLVIII of the 18th December, 1917, regarding the status of the Dacca School of Engineering, will the Government be pleased to explain for what purposes the said school is treated as a college, and for what particular purpose as a school?

(b) Will the Government be pleased to state the reasons why the teachers of the Calcutta Commercial Institute are designated as Lecturers and are thus beyond the operation of Circular No. ¹¹⁴_{FP-30A-11}, whereas the teachers of the Dacca School of Engineering are not so privileged?

(c) Are the qualifications of the teachers of the latter institution of an inferior standard generally, or are their duties of a less responsible or important character, in comparison with those of the teachers of the Calcutta Commercial Institution?

(d) If not, what are the reasons for this differential treatment?

Questions and Answers.

Answer by the Hon'ble MR. O'MALLEY :—

"(a) The age and qualifications of the students approximate to those of college students and the Head Master is treated as if he were the Principal of an Engineering College in certain correspondence, e.g., in connexion with the examinations of the Joint Technical Examination Board. On the other hand, the institution has, as its name implies, the status of a school and not of a college, the officer in charge being a Head Master and not a Principal, and it is under the general supervision of the Principal of the Dacca College.

"(b) The teachers of the Government Commercial Institute, Calcutta, are designated Lecturers because the Institute has the status of a College. The teachers of the Dacca School of Engineering are not so designated because their status is that of teachers in a school.

"(c) The question presumably refers to the qualifications of officers other than the Principals. Of the 5 subordinate teachers of the Institute, 2 hold the Master's degree and 3 the Bachelor's. Of the 5 subordinate teachers (excluding the foremen) of the School of Engineering, 3 hold the Bachelor's degree and 2 are under-graduates. The work of a school is generally regarded as of a less responsible character than that of a College.

"(d) This question does not arise."

XX. Will the Government be pleased to state the nature and scope of the inquiry to be made by Mr. S. N. Banerjee, Executive Engineer, in connection with the waterways in the Dacca Division?

Answer by the Hon'ble MR. COWLEY :—

"The officer in question is employed on an investigation into the drainage conditions of the area lying between the Dhaleswari and the Padma rivers. The object of the investigation is to consider whether and in what way it is possible to improve the sanitation of the area between these rivers or to improve navigation facilities in the Dhaleswari, Buriganga and the numerous khals to the south of them. He has also been instructed to report on the general condition of the Dholai khal and the possibility of its re-excavation and maintenance as a navigable channel."

Cost of prisoners' diet.

XXI. Will the Government be pleased to make a statement showing the average cost per head of the daily diet supplied to (a) European and Anglo-Indian prisoners; (b) Indian prisoners; and (c) prisoners belonging to other Asiatic races, respectively, classified in each case under the following heads :—

(i) under-trial prisoners;

(ii) convicts; and

(iii) prisoners in hospital?

Answer by the Hon'ble MR. KERR :—

"The average cost per head per diem is as follows :—

			Under trial.		Convicts.		Sick in hospital.
			A.	P.	A.	P.	Rs.	A. P.
European prisoners	3	5	5	1	1	11 0
Indian prisoners	1	6	2	1	0	6 11

Questions and Answers.

Persons whose habits and manner of living more nearly approximate to those of Europeans than to those of ordinary Indians are given the same diet as Europeans. The number of prisoners belonging to other Asiatic races is small, and separate statistics regarding the cost of their diet are not available."

(b) If so, will the Government be pleased to make a statement in regard to the circumstances of each such case?

Answer by the Hon'ble MR. KERR :—

"(a) and (b) No such case has been reported by the police, but the attention of Government has been called to paragraphs in the Pabna Bogra Hitai-shi of the 6th February and in the Bangurasi of the 9th February, alleging that two cases have occurred in the Ulubaria subdivision. (e) With reference to the "lack of easy communication" referred to in the said answer, have the Government ascertained how such communication can be improved, if necessary?

Questions and Answers.

(f) Will the Government be pleased to state whether they are considering the desirability of forwarding a supplementary memorandum to the Government of India embodying the results of a thorough inquiry into the possibilities of the manufacture of salt on the Chittagong side of the Bay of Bengal?

Answer by the Hon'ble MR. DONALD :—

" The memorandum in question was prepared in connection with the examination of the possibility of reviving the manufacture of salt in Bengal, in particular, by the adoption of processes, including the vacuum process, similar to those followed in the United Kingdom. Specific suggestions were not then made or enquired into as regards the Chittagong side of the Bay, but in the end of October, 1917, in forwarding a suggestion from the Collector of Chittagong that the question of manufacture in Noakhali and Chittagong might be considered, the Commissioner of Salt discussed the possibilities of manufacture on the Chittagong coast. While this was under consideration applications for permission to manufacture were received, with reference to which the question is now being determined. The expert staff are assisting persons desirous of manufacturing salt, and if any one desires to manufacture from sea water he will be advised as to the suitability of the brine. Government do not propose sending any supplementary memorandum to the Government of India until the need of so doing arises. As regards communications to the south of Chittagong, a detailed survey of a proposed railway from Chittagong towards Burma has recently been sanctioned, and its construction would improve the main line of communications in this area."

No. 303.

Hooghly, the 23rd September, 1854.

T.

THE BOARD OF REVENUE,

Fort William.

GENTLEMEN,

In reply to various orders received from you since March of last year regarding the proposed abandonment of the embankments between the Damodar and Rupnarain rivers, I have at length the honour to submit the following report, and regret my inability to lay before you one more satisfactory.

2. The main objects of the enquiry instituted under your orders by Deputy Collector Babu Jadav Chandra Chatterji were first to ascertain the feelings of the landholders regarding the abandonment of the bunds, and second to obtain some idea of the extent of the benefit on the one hand, and of the injury on the other likely to arise from that measure.

3. I now submit in original the papers below noted—and from the Offg. Collector's report, para. 4, it appears that all the landholders attended either personally or by their attorney before the Deputy Collector and gave in the required papers regarding the existing state of the country and their motives of acquiescence or otherwise in the proposition; and that the Deputy Collector personally visited every village to examine its present state; settled its boundaries in the presence of the Gomastas, Mandals and Raiyats; measured and assessed the lands; ascertained the quantities of cultivated and waste; and noted those likely to be inundated and those parts which the floods will not reach; and finally compared the papers supplied to him by the landholders and their agents with the result of his own observations. This enquiry occupied him six months and 24 days and has been a most laborious work which he seems to have executed with much assiduity and ability.

4. Mr. Bidwell, Offg. Commissioner, supplied to the Deputy Collector in January last the form given in the margin (shown below), in which he was to abstract all the information he could collect. This he has done in appendix A, Nos. 1-2-3, and a few particulars may at once be mentioned by me.

Name of Pargana.	Name of Mouzah.	Name of Zamindar and Putnedar.	EXISTING STATE OF THE MOUZAHS WHICH WOULD BE EXPOSED TO INUNDA- TION BY REMOVAL OF THE PUNDS.				Mufassal Jamah of the Mouzah.	Extent to which it would be affected by the inundation.	What portion of the Mouzah would probably be improved by alluvion.	REMARKS.
			LAND.			Crops grown.	What extent of land would not be liable to injury by the inundation.	What extent would be liable to injury.		NOTE.—The sentiments of each samindar and putnedar to be recorded separately and distinctly in this column.
			Cultivated.	Waste.	Jungle.

5. Of 285 landholders whose opinion the Deputy Collector has recorded 110 are for and 175 against the project in view and I believe it will be found that of those favourable to it the consent of the majority is only conditional upon, or rather, given under the supposition of, the Government indemnifying them for all possible losses.

6. The amount of land surveyed by the Deputy Collector is as follows:—

	P.	K.	CH.	G.
Cultivated	407,184	3	13	4
Waste	47,830	9	4	14
Jungle	2,075	18	12	0
Total area	457,090	11	13	18

of which the estimated mufassal jama amounts to Rs. 937,125-12-3, the probable loss from expected inundation is estimated at Rs. 85,241-14-1 and the probable gain upon lands to be improved by alluvion Rs. 26,169-14-11.

7. The details of these estimates, shewing the probable loss and gain of each village and of each landholder are shown in appendices 1-2-3 and 4 respectively.

8. The Deputy Collector speaks of the villages on the banks of the rivers as generally good and fertile owing to the deposits left by the floods: some lands yielding goods crops of mulberry at a rental of 6 to 10 rupees per bigha; others pulse, vegetables, etc., at 3 to 5 rupees and the yet lower sandy lands producing cucumbers and melons at a rental of 2 to 3 rupees. These high rates are rarely obtainable within the embankments and render it difficult to account for the objections raised to the proposal by the landholders and he very justly observes that great caution will be required in estimating the extent of the injury which cannot be fairly judged of within 2 or 3 years and no rash engagements or provisions should be made. He inclines to the opinion that the injury will be far less and the gain far more than is now expected. This opinion the Offg. Collector warmly supports as agreeing with the impression made on his mind during his inspection of the country in March last and it entirely agrees with my own views of the subject formed years ago.

9. Both officers agree in the necessity of an enactment empowering the executive officers to level all lands public or private which may interfere with the scheme and this with special reference to para. 9 of your letter of the 1st March 1853, No. 96, in which you remarked that "the country on the right bank of the Damodar is in some parts covered with a network of embankments erected by individual proprietors." Upon this point I wrote in paras. 16 and 17 of my report of the 24th ultimo No. 248 and the subject has already engaged your attention and been provided for in your Draft Act.

10. I find that the local enquiries of both officers have led them to the conclusion that some safety valve for the surplus water of the Damodar is urgently needed.

Questions and Answers.

11. In para. 13 of my letter just above cited I mentioned having learned that it is the opinion of many intelligent natives that the inundations of the Damodar used not to be in olden times nearly so bad as they are now and that their increased ravages are attributed to the gradual filling up of sundry old water-courses which used to relieve the river stream—that opinion is now supported by the judgment of both these officers.

12. The Deputy Collector, having carefully viewed the existing nalas, proposes a canal 64 miles long and 60 feet broad. The excavated earth to be formed into a bund on each side 60 feet from the edge of the canal, this giving to the floods a waterway of 180 feet wide. He would commence the canal at Sumbutteegola or Senetteegola above Burdwan and carry it down along the green dotted line in his map to Pansoollee. Of this work 54 miles would be new, but facilitated by the natural water-courses and 10 miles would be the Rora Khal already existing in Hirapur but requiring enlargement. The expense of the work itself which must be calculated by Engineers would doubtless be enormous and the cost of 3,840 bighas of land required for it would also be great.

13. The Officiating Collector modifies this proposal by one for a canal from Rajbulhat to Marokhana, marked red in the map—which though much shorter and consequently far less expensive would, he thinks, be equally effectual—but it could be so only or mainly to its own extent—it would not equally benefit the country nearer Burdwan.

14. Another proposal of the Officiating Collector is to reopen the old bed of the Damodar from Salimabad, on the north of the Hooghly district now known as the Kana Nadi—to the Hooghly river at Tribeni. This is the plan, which what I have casually heard on the subject, leads me to think most desirable; and it would—apart from the relief of inundation—be a very great blessing to the internal commerce of these districts by affording a safe and easy passage to the Presidency marts.

15. The Officiating Collector mentions having seen repairs going on in the canal between Kolaberia and Musreka and says it would be very advantageous to carry on the work to Koilaghat, and I may here observe that a proposition regarding the enlargement of the Bakshee khal in the Howrah district has been before the Government and may tend to the relief of the Damodar.

16. I have reserved for this opportunity the transmission to your Board of a letter of the 26th June last, No. 182, from the Officiating Collector of Burdwan reporting with reference to your letter of the 25th April last, No. 81, the number of houses and huts between the old and retired embankments in his district. He mentions a great discrepancy between the statements prepared by Mr. Collector Ward and Lt. De Bourbel

* Because he is intimately acquainted with the Government bunds and would know what to include and what to omit which Mr. Ward did not know.

both having been to the spot but that of Lt. De Bourbel is more likely to be correct* and he explains that in some instances Mr. Ward, giving the name of one village only, included the habitations comprised in several.

17. Lt. De Bourbel reports the total number of houses and huts to be 620 and of inhabitants 26,485 but the Offg. Collector, Mr. Young, thought that the population might safely be estimated at 46,026 according to the following abstract:—

Residence.	Supposed by Lt. De Bourbel to contain—		By Mr. Young—
134 Pukka houses	@	5	@ 15	2,010
3,807 Large huts	@	5	@ 8	30,456
291 Small huts	@	3	@ 6	1,746
1,969 Mat huts	@	3	@ 6	11,814
6,201		26,485		46,026

18. In reviewing the whole subject I cannot but admit that very considerable injury will be caused by giving up the embankments, that great expense must be borne by the State, in paying for such portions of that injury as may be found fairly chargeable to it; and that excessive annoyance will arise in the investigation of the claims that will be made and for the instant investigation of which a thoroughly efficient establishment must be maintained as the Revenue officer will be utterly unable to undertake the work and delay will be ruinous. Indeed I think that a legislative enactment will be required to enforce the bringing forward of claims for compensation within six months at farthest of the date of injury; as if this be not done, no means of estimating the damage on the spot will be available and after the lapse of years claims may be brought forward which it will be equally impossible to refute and inexpedient to pay.

19. I have never regretted so much as now the absence of a thoroughly good survey of this part of the country. Had the revenue survey been completed the data afforded by it might be compared by the survey officers year by year with the state of the country after each inundation and a satisfactory estimate of the profit and loss obtained.

Questions and Answers.

20. But though so much may be said against the scheme and so great difficulties are evidently to be encountered, I still hope it may be undertaken in the belief that, if it be so, with due precaution it will in the end prove immensely beneficial and I would thus state both sides of the case.

First.—The Deputy Collector estimates the loss at Rs. 85,241-14-1 and the gain at Rs. 26,169-14-11, showing a deficit of Rs. 59,071-15-2, but the Maharaja of Burdwan alone pays Rs. 57,324-12-10 per annum on account of embankments which need no longer be kept up and thus the estimated loss payable by Government will be very nearly covered.

Second.—Though the embankment officers may be otherwise employed, a large establishment will still be required for some years to report upon the state of the country after each rainy season and the sum paid by the Maharaja for embankments will be swallowed up by payments for injuries sustained, but this will cease after a few years, whilst the payment of the Maharaja, if the Government reimburse the losses, giving them (the Maharaja and his patanidars) all the gain, must be perpetual—although the bund originally maintained by it may be done away. If there be any doubt on the subject, it must be met by a new law, which will but support the side of Justice, for the Government may fairly say to the Raja:

“It is true that you engaged to pay Rs. 57,324-12-10 annually for the specific purpose of keeping up by Government officers the embankments you were formerly obliged to keep up yourself. The arrangement was made for your benefit and not for ours, but long experience has now shown that the embankments never have given and never can give the desired security. It is believed that their abandonment will place you eventually in a far better position than that in which you now are. The State will bear all the loss—you will reap all the gain, paying neither more nor less than hitherto.”

Third.—I have said above that the want of a revenue survey is to be deplored, but Lt. Dicken's note of the 28th November 1853 shows that the Executive Officers have most elaborate calculations of the varying levels of the whole country affected and from those calculations, the officers in the D.P.W. already intimately acquainted with the country and assisted by Revenue Officers with the aid of the statements now submitted by the Deputy Collector may obtain each season a very close approximation to the amount of loss and gain that has occurred. Provided always, as I have said above, that a law be passed requiring all claims for loss to be preferred within six or even three months.

Fourth.—It is greatly to be lamented that injury to the houses or crops or lands of the people cannot altogether be avoided and may be very great. But I firmly believe it will be far less than has been contemplated and it is to be remembered that this scheme will not expose what has hitherto been safe or only in very few instances. I have always regarded the protection of the bunds as next to nominal. Trusting to them, houses have been built and crops sown and cattle penned and human beings located where they would not have been but for the bund: the bund has burst and all under its shadow have been swept away. Whereas in places naturally exposed and not artificially protected the same amount of inundation does no harm, but good. The people know that they must expect it—their houses are therefore built and their cattle kept on high spots out of its reach and the low lands are planted only with dry weather crops or with rice which will rise with the water. When the existing bunds are demolished the people thereby affected will become equally cautious, and my firm belief is that for every bigha of land permanently injured at least two will be permanently improved.

21. Since I wrote the above, I have received back from the Officiating Collector the enclosures Nos. 1 to 8 in a greatly improved form. They were so confused as to be almost unintelligible, but I trust that the additions and alterations which have been made in accordance with my suggestions have rendered them so much more plain and easy of reference that they will be found really valuable and may obtain for the Deputy Collector the credit he appears to me to deserve.

I have, etc.,

Commissioner.

(c) Are the Government aware of the hardship to which the local public are put owing to the obstruction of natural waterways between Serajganj and Dilposar on the Sara-Serajganj Railway?

(d) Are the Government contemplating any action in this matter before the next rains set in?

Answer by the Hon'ble MR. COWLEY :—

" (a) Investigation has shown that a 20 feet span culvert is necessary near Jhaul Bazar.

(b) Yes.

(c) Government are aware that waterways and headways, amply sufficient for the country boat traffic of this part of the country and for adequate and efficient drainage of the areas affected by the railway embankment, are of vital importance to the welfare of the inhabitants and efficient sanitation. On investigation, Government are of opinion that to secure the above conditions, an increase of headway under the Ichamati River Bridge under three small culverts, Nos. 28, 32 and 37, and the construction of a 20 feet culvert near Jhaul Bazar is necessary and have accordingly recommended these improvements to the Railway Board.

XXXIII. (a) Will the Government be pleased to state the reasons which led the Government to appoint Special Tribunals under the Defence of India (Criminal Law Amendment) Act, 1915, to try the recent hât-looting cases?

(b) Are the Government aware that the trial of these cases of crime by Special Tribunals and the consequent curtailment of the right of appeal have given rise to a good deal of indignation and resentment amongst the public?

(c) Are the Government contemplating the abolition of the Special Tribunal Courts and the trial of these cases by the ordinary criminal courts?

Questions and Answers.

Answer by the Hon'ble MR. KERR :—

“(a) The reason was the necessity of checking recent outbreaks of lawlessness by bringing the offenders to speedy trial and of avoiding congestion of business in the ordinary courts.

(b) Government have seen criticisms in some quarters of the appointment of these tribunals, but they are not prepared to accept as correct the general inference suggested by the question.

XXXVI. (a) Is it a fact that the Government have received applications from certain persons for permission to manufacture salt? Manufacture of salt by private persons.

(b) If so, will the Government be pleased to state the names of the applicants and the places where they propose to manufacture salt?

(c) What orders, if any, have been passed on such applications?

(d) Will the Government be pleased to lay on the table copies of such applications?

(e) Have any orders been passed on the application of Abdul Barik Hai of Noakhali referred to in unstarred question No. XXXVI by the Hon'ble Babu Brojendra Kishor Ray Chaudhuri at the meeting of the Council of the 22nd January last?

Questions and Answers.

Answer by the Hon'ble MR. DONALD :—

“ (a) Yes.

(b) Applications were received by Government from the following gentlemen for permission to manufacture salt in the districts mentioned against their names :—

(1) Babus Surendra Chandra Ghosal and Digendra Chandra Ghosal—Chittagong.

(2) Babu Mohendra Chandra Ghosal.—Chittagong.

(3) Abdul Barik Haji, of Huddakhali.—Noakhali.

It is understood that the Collector of Chittagong has also received other applications which are under his consideration.

(c) The applications received by Government were of rather a vague character, and the applicants were therefore requested to further examine their proposals in consultation with the expert staff, and then to state whether they still desired to proceed. As no definite reply has yet been received, no orders have been passed on the applications, with the exception of that of Abdul Barik Haji.

(d) Copies of the applications received by Government are placed on the table.

(e) The Commissioner of Chittagong rejected the application.”

Copies of applications referred to in the answer by the Hon'ble MR. DONALD to question No. XXXVI, asked by the Hon'ble BARU AKHIL CHANDRA DATTA at the Council meeting of the 19th February, 1918.

TO THE COLLECTOR,

Chittagong.

The humble petition of Surendra Chandra Ghosal and Digendra Chandra Ghosal, sons of Nanda Kumar Ghosal, merchants, Station Road, Chittagong

MOST RESPECTFULLY SHEWETH :—

1. That your humble petitioners are importers of Spanish, Aden and Port Said salt in Chittagong.

2. That owing to the want of tonnage occasioned by the war, your humble petitioners are feeling great difficulty in obtaining supply from the above-said places.

3. That the price of salt has abnormally increased owing to the above-said reason and there is likelihood of further increase.

4. That the price has gone up so high at present that it is necessary in the interests of the public that local manufacture of salt should be allowed at once.

5. That your petitioners have resources enough to manufacture salt at Chittagong on a large scale.

6. That your petitioners are willing to abide by all terms and conditions that may be imposed by your honour for the manufacture of salt in Chittagong.

It is, therefore, humbly prayed that your honour will be pleased to grant the petitioners license to manufacture salt in Chittagong on reasonable terms, and for this your petitioners shall ever pray.

SURENDRA CHANDRA GHOSAL.
DIGENDRA CHANDRA GHOSAL.

CHITTAGONG,
The 30th November, 1917.

Questions and Answers.

• Dated Chittagong, the 6th December, 1917.

From—Mohendra Chandra Ghosal and Ramkamal Ramballay Shaha,
To—The Collector of the Chittagong Division.

We beg to bring to your kind notice that our firm is a very respectable and long-standing one in this district and has been dealing in salt for 60 years last, and has a very extensive business in this line, not only in this district, but also all over East Bengal and Assam. We have so long been importing salt directly from Europe and supplying the markets till the last year. But owing to the dangers and difficulties created by the war and want of vessels and means of transport, it has now become almost impracticable to import salt from European ports and even from Aden, so that the price of salt has now been excessively raised and the public have been greatly affected thereby. It is thus feared that in no very distance of time it will be well-nigh impossible to obtain any supply and meet the demands of the markets.

Under the above circumstances we are desirous of manufacturing salt in Chittagong, which, being a sea-port town, is advantageous for the purpose and is sure to yield any quantity of salt from the sea-water. We may bring to your kind notice that salt was extensively manufactured in Chittagong for a very long time under Government management, and it was about 1858 that the manufacture was discontinued.

We, therefore, beg to request the favour of your kindly recommending the Local Government to grant us license to manufacture salt in Chittagong, for which we are ready to pay the requisite fees and other charges and abide by the rules that may be framed by Government, and to procure us the said license prayed for to enable us to commence the work as soon as possible, so that the price of salt may be reduced by which the public may be extremely benefited, and for this act of kindness we shall be ever grateful.

Translation of the petition of Abdul Barik Haji.

I, Abdul Barik Haji, son of late Aminuddin Miaji, of Huddakhali, police-station Sandip, beg most respectfully to state that the inordinate rise in the price of salt prevents the inhabitants of Sandip from buying that article. I humbly submit that I can agree to sell salt at Sandip, Char Badu and Char Siddhi at one anna per seer for ten years and to pay Government duty at the rate of Rs. 1,000 per annum. I, therefore, pray that I may be granted permission to manufacture and sell salt at Sandip, Char Badu, Char Siddhi and other places on an agreement for ten years and to pay Government an annual duty of Rs. 1,000.

XXXVII. (a) Will the Government be pleased to state whether they have issued any circular or order to the excise authorities asking them not to prosecute people for the manufacture of salt for domestic consumption? Circular regarding salt manufacture.

(b) If so, when was that circular or order issued?

(c) Will the Government be pleased to lay the same on the table?

Answer by the Hon'ble MR. DONALD :—

“(a) It is correct that instructions were issued to the Salt Department that, pending further orders, the manufacture of salt on a small scale and primarily for personal and domestic consumption might be ignored.

(b) On the 11th December, 1917.

(c) The purport of the orders is cited above; the letter itself was confidential and addressed to the Commissioner of Excise and Salt, and Government do not propose to lay it on the table.”

A case under section 110 of the Criminal Procedure Code

XXXVIII. (a) Has the attention of the Government been drawn to a case under section 110 of the Code of Criminal Procedure decided by Mr. A. T. Mukharji, Fifth Presidency Magistrate of Calcutta, against one Parameswar and twenty-six other carters?

(b) What was the total number of witnesses examined in that case both for the Crown and for the defence?

(c) Is it a fact that the above-named Magistrate was specially deputed for the trial of this case, and that the case dragged on for one year and five months? If not, how long did the trial last?

(d) Is it a fact that all the accused have been acquitted?

(e) Is it a fact that the Magistrate came to the finding—"I unhesitatingly consider that the accused are not the kind of men to be dealt with under section 110 of the Code of Criminal Procedure?"

(f) What is the total amount of the cost incurred by the Government for the prosecution of this case? Is it a fact that over Rs. 40,000 has been spent by the Government in this case?

(g) How much was spent on account of fees paid to the lawyers for conducting the prosecution and how much for procuring the attendance and evidence of the witnesses for the Crown?

(h) Have the Government instituted any inquiry as to whether there were any justifiable grounds for starting the prosecution?

(i) If not, are the Government considering the desirability of making such inquiry?

(j) Are the Government considering the desirability of taking such steps as may be considered necessary to prevent such prosecutions in future?

(k) Is there any rule or circular fixing the maximum cost which may be incurred by the Government in this class of case?

(l) If not, are the Government considering the desirability of laying down a rule fixing such maximum?

Answer by the Hon'ble MR. KERR :—

"(a) Yes.

(b) Three hundred and sixty-two for the prosecution and five hundred for the defence.

(c) Some of the accused appeared before the Chief Presidency Magistrate on August 8th, 1916, and the others on various dates in August and September. The case was made over to Babu Ashutosh Mukharji on September 25th. The hearing was finished on November 13th, 1917, and judgment was passed on January 21st, 1918.

(d) All the accused have been discharged.

(e) The Magistrate said :—"I unhesitatingly come to the conclusion that these accused are not the men who should be dealt with under sections 110 and 118, Criminal Procedure Code."

(f) and (g) A sum of Rs. 14,000 was spent on Vakils' fees and Rs. 973 on preparing the brief. Particulars regarding the other expenses incurred in the case are not at present available.

(h), (i) and (j) The Commissioner of Police is being asked for a report on the case, and the matter will be further considered when his reply is received.

(k) No.

(l) The circumstances of different cases may vary so greatly that it is not apparent how any such general maximum could suitably be imposed."

Administration
of the Arms Act.

XLII. (a) Will the Government be pleased to state whether they have received any communication or instruction from the Government of India to give effect to the declaration of His Excellency the Viceroy that all racial disabilities in connection with the administration of the Arms Act will be removed?

(b) If so, will the Government be pleased to state what these instructions are, and to lay the same on the table?

(c) Has there been, after the aforementioned declaration of His Excellency the Viceroy, any correspondence between the Government of Bengal and the Government of India on the subject of the removal of the disabilities and restrictions which now apply to the Indians in the matter of arms?

Answer by the Hon'ble MR. KERR :—

"The views of the Government of Bengal on this question were submitted to the Government of India before His Excellency the Viceroy referred to the matter in his speech in the Imperial Legislative Council on the 5th September, 1917. Since that date no further communication has been received from the Government of India on the subject. Government are not prepared to lay the correspondence on the table."

Kristopur
Canal and the Jotra Gachi
bhil.

XLIII. (a) Is it a fact that "Jatra Gachi" bhil, about 5 miles east of Calcutta, used to yield a good paddy crop a few years ago?

(b) Is there any truth in the statement that the excavation of the Kristopur canal by the Government has almost completely destroyed the fertility of a large number of villages surrounding the bhil and has proved a source of immense loss to the cultivators?

(c) What income has the canal yielded to the Government during each of the last five years?

(d) With what object in view was the canal excavated by Government?

(e) Is it a fact that the water level of the canal is lower than that of the bhil and that the accumulated waters consequently find no way of egress?

(f) What immediate steps, if any, are in the contemplation of the Government to solve the problem?

Answer by the Hon'ble MR. COWLEY :—

"The Hon'ble Member is referred to the Press communiqué issued from the Irrigation Department on the 30th of November, 1917. A copy of the communiqué is placed on the table.

(a) It is not a fact.

(b) There is no truth in the statement.

(c) Accounts are kept for the whole system of canals in the vicinity of Calcutta, and, as no separate accounts are kept for the Kristopur canal, the information is not available.

Questions and Answers.

(d) The Kristopur canal was excavated to afford a direct connection between the Circular canal system, consisting of the still-water canals between Chitpur and Dhappa locks, with the Bhangore khal system which was a still-water canal between Bamonghatta and Kulti locks. The canal was also constructed to provide an alternate easy route for the boat traffic to and from eastern districts in place of the Bidyadhari river route which was silting up.

(e) It is not a fact that the water level of the canal is lower than the bed level of the bhil. The canal water is maintained at a normal level of 6 feet above mean sea level. The lowest land level in the bhil is about 3 feet above mean sea level. The ordinary paddy land in the bhil is about 5 feet above mean sea level. It is not a fact that the accumulated water finds no way of egress from the bhil. The water in the bhil is drained through regulators or sluices into the canal, which, in its turn, is drained by sluices constructed at Thakurdari on the Paran Chaprasi's khal and by the sluices on the Harwa Gong at Kulti. To permit of final drainage at harvest time, the water level in the canal is lowered to 3 feet above mean sea level.

(f) In view of the statements made in the previous answers, the question does not arise."

Press Communiqué of the 30th November, 1917, regarding the drainage of the Ghooni and Jatragachi Bheels in the 24-Parganas referred to in the answer by the Hon'ble Mr. COWLEY to question No. XLIII (unstarred) asked by the Hon'ble BABU AKHIL CHANDRA DATTA at the Council meeting of the 19th February, 1918.

The attention of the Government has been drawn to an article in the issue of the Amrita Bazar Partika, dated the 23rd November 1917, headed "Why Responsible Government is wanted" which made certain statements about the drainage of the Ghooni and Jatragachi Bheels in the 24-Parganas. The statements made were :—

"(1) That previous to the construction of the Kristopur Canal, the bheels drained easily through two natural channels and that the whole area of the bheel yielded a luxuriant paddy crops.

(2) That as a result of the construction of the Kristopur Canal this bheel tract has been rendered useless as the free flow of water has been stopped by this Canal.

(3) That the Canal has been constructed by Government to derive an income of about a lakh of rupees per year and the Government was not justified in creating this new source of income without making provision for free passage of accumulated water.

(4) That the Executive Engineer, Circular and Eastern Canals Division, in his letter No. 5465 of the 18th September 1914, suggested that works for the improvement of drainage of these bheel areas should be paid for by the parties benefited, but the article raised the question whether they should pay for this or the Government which is reaping a splendid income from the Canal."

These allegations contain certain misstatements. In the first place it is not a fact that the Kristopur Canal was constructed without making adequate provision for draining the areas intercepted by this Canal. This area in the Jatragachi Bheel was water-logged before the Canal was constructed. The arrangement is that all the drainage water of intercepted areas including the bheels in question is received through sluices into the canal which in its turn is drained by sluices constructed at Thakurdari on the Paran Chaprasi's Khal; the drainage is also effected by sluices on the Harwa Gong at Kulti.

Questions and Answers.

The level at which the Canal water is maintained is 6 feet above mean sea level. The level in the bheel in March 1906, previous to the construction of the Canal, was however 3 feet higher. The drainage of the bheels has therefore been improved since the construction of the Canal, and this was stated in the first portion of the same letter, addressed by the Executive Engineer to the Collector of the district, to which the writer of the article appears to have had access. The bheels were in 1906 under water to a much higher level than now; and as that water was saline, a larger area was then unfit for cultivation.

It is also not a fact that the Canal provides an extra income of one lakh of rupees per year. On the contrary, the income of Government is less now than it was before the Canal was constructed. The prime object of the Canal was not to secure increased revenue, but to provide an alternative easy route for the boat traffic to and from Eastern Districts in place of the Bidyadhari River route which was silting up.

Mr. Burton's case.

XLIV. (a) With reference to the damage suit brought by Babu Lalit Chandra Das against Mr. Burton, Superintendent of Police, in the Munsiff's Court at Balurghat, is it true that before instituting the suit, Lalit Babu wired to the District Magistrate of Dinajpur and the Commissioner of the Rajshahi Division praying for relief but neither of these officers took any notice of his complaint?

(b) What action, if any, are the Government taking against Mr. Burton after the concurrent finding of two courts.

Answer by the Hon'ble MR. KERR :—

"(a) Babu Lalit Chandra Das telegraphed to the District Magistrate of Dinajpur on the 22nd February and to the Commissioner on the 27th February, 1915, complaining of the damage and asking for an inquiry. The Commissioner asked the Magistrate for a report, which was received on the 17th March. As the notice of the civil suit had been served on the 15th March, it was decided, on legal advice, to await the suit.

(b) Government do not propose to take any action."

Mr. Burton and a sub-Inspector.

XLV. (a) Is it true that Satish Chandra Das, brother of the said Lalit Chandra Das, who was a sub-inspector of police in the Dinajpur district, was degraded to a head constable and was reported for dismissal by Mr. Burton after the institution of the damage suit referred to in question LI?

(b) Is it true that the Deputy Inspector-General of Police of the Rajshahi Range, after inquiry, recorded his finding that the sub-inspector, Satish Chandra Das, was unnecessarily harassed and persecuted, and reinstated him with full pay in his former grade?

(c) Is it true that the inquiry made by the Deputy Inspector-General of Police has satisfied the Government that Mr. Burton has harassed and persecuted sub-inspector Satish Chandra Das, in consequence of the damage suit brought by his brother against Mr. Burton?

(d) Have the Government taken any step to express their disapprobation of the conduct of Mr. Burton in this connection?

(e) If so, what has been the step taken? If not, what action, if any, are the Government taking?

Questions and Answers.

Answer by the Hon'ble MR. KERR :—

" (a) and (b) Proceedings were drawn up in July, 1914, by Mr. Burton against sub-inspector Satish Chandra Das in respect of certain irregularities in the investigation of a case which the sub-inspector had reported as non-cognizable, but which was sent up under the orders of the Magistrate and ended in conviction. There was great delay in completing the proceedings against the sub-inspector, owing to the fact that both he and other officers concerned had been transferred, from the district. In February, 1915, Mr. Burton visited Porsha thana for the purpose of enquiring into certain other matters relating to the conduct of the sub-inspector, while in charge of the police-station. The breaking down of the fence which had been erected by the sub-inspector's brother outside the thana took place on the 18th February. On the 4th March, Mr. Burton recorded an order finding the sub-inspector guilty of the charges in respect of which the proceedings had been drawn up, and recommending his discharge from the force on the ground of general untrustworthiness and dishonesty in acquiring land within his jurisdiction in the name of his brother. These proceedings were submitted to the Deputy Inspector-General on the same day. The Deputy Inspector-General returned the papers to Mr. Burton, directing him to quote specific instances of conduct on the part of the sub-inspector which could be reasonably considered as dishonest. On the 10th May, Mr. Burton passed final orders in the case relating to the proceedings which had been drawn up in July, 1914, directing that the sub-inspector should be degraded to the rank of head constable for one year. On the 11th May, he submitted a report on the general charges, in which he asked the Deputy Inspector-General to deal with the matter himself, as any order passed by Mr. Burton might be looked upon as a biased finding. After further enquiries, the Deputy Inspector-General, Mr. Kemp, in October, 1915, submitted a report to the Inspector-General of Police, recommending the dismissal of the sub-inspector. The Inspector-General of Police thereupon directed Mr. Hutchinson, who had meanwhile succeeded Mr. Kemp as Deputy Inspector-General, to enquire further into the matter. Mr. Hutchinson found no ground for proceeding further with the case, recorded his opinion that the sub-inspector had been most unnecessarily harassed and directed that he should be reinstated in his original grade with effect from the date of his degradation.

(c) There is no reason to conclude that Mr. Burton's action was due to the damage suit brought by the sub-inspector's brother. The original proceeding on which the sub-inspector was degraded were started in July, 1914, seven months before the incident which gave rise to the damage suit and Mr. Burton's finding was recorded on the 4th March 1915, twelve days before the notice of the suit was served on him. Moreover, Mr. Burton's inquiries into the alleged improper acquisition of land by the sub-inspector were initiated in February, 1915, and after the institution of the suit, Mr. Burton requested the Deputy Inspector-General to deal with the matter himself.

(d) and (e) Government have expressed their disapproval of the manner in which the original proceedings were handled by Mr. Burton."

XLVI. (a) Is it a fact that détenu Phanindra Nath Sett was arrested on the 1st July, 1916, and placed in a solitary cell at Dullunda House from the 2nd July to the 12th July, 1916?

The case of a détenu.

(b) Is it a fact that he was thereafter kept in a solitary cell in the Presidency Jail for a long time?

(c) Is it a fact that during all this time several police officers induced him by threat and otherwise to admit what they alleged had already been proved by some alleged revolutionaries, but that he did not do so?

Questions and Answers.

(d) Is it a fact that after about a month's detention in a solitary cell in the Presidency Jail, a police officer came there one day and proposed to take him to the Kyd Street police-station?

(e) Is it a fact that both he and the jail authorities objected to his being taken out of the jail as he had not yet had his evening meal?

(f) Is it a fact that in spite of this objection he was taken to the Kyd Street police-station where he was beaten mercilessly?

(g) Is it true that besides the assault committed on him nothing more was done or said in the Kyd Street police-station?

(h) Is it true that after one hour's stay in the solitary cell in the said police-station he was again brought to the Presidency Jail and had to go without a meal that night?

(i) Is it a fact that early next morning he was again taken out of the jail to some police office where he was subjected to all sorts of abuses and indignity at the hands of several police officers?

(j) Is it a fact that he repeatedly requested them to formulate their charges against him in writing on a sheet on which he could write down his answers, but that this was not done?

(k) Is it true that when his statements were on that occasion taken down by a police officer, he asked him to read out what had been written, but this was not done and his signature was not taken?

(l) Is it true that he was again taken to the Presidency Jail at 11-30 A.M. when the morning meal had been served out and that he got nothing to eat till 4 P.M.

(m) Is it a fact that he had to go without food for a period of 27 hours?

(n) When was he removed from the Presidency Jail? In what place or places was he kept, till the 2nd February, 1917?

(o) Will the Government be pleased to state whether they are considering the desirability of formulating charges against Phanindra Nath Sett in writing and of taking such statements from him as he may choose to make in answer thereto?

Answer by the Hon'ble MR. KERR :—

"Phanindra Nath Sett was arrested on the 1st July, 1916, under section 54, Criminal Procedure Code, and kept in police custody until the 12th July, 1916. He was then discharged and arrested under Rule 12 A of the Defence of India Rules and committed to custody in the Presidency Jail until the 9th August, when orders were passed interning him at Dullanda House. On the 18th November, 1916, he was transferred to Ahmadpur in the Birbhum district. On the 29th January, 1917, he was transferred to his father's house in Calcutta, where he is still domiciled. During the time he was at the Presidency Jail he was on one occasion taken out for examination but no statement was recorded; there is no foundation for the allegation that he was kept without food. Although the charges were communicated to Phanindra Nath Sett and his explanation taken, no written charges were formulated as this was not then the custom; orders have been given that this shall be done now.

Although the détenu and his relatives have been in constant communication with the officers of Government, and the détenu has been in home domicile in Calcutta, no complaint or suggestion has ever been made till now to any officer of Government that Phanindra Nath Sett was threatened, beaten mercilessly or subjected to all sorts of abuses and indignity at the hands of police officers. After a lapse of some 18 months the man has made allegations of ill-treatment and an inquiry into them will now be held."

XLVII. (a) With reference to the statements made under section V of the Police Administration Report of 1916 to the effect that "A good deal of eloquence has lately been expended on the subject of increased expenditure on the Police," will the Government be pleased to state whether they are in a position to repudiate the suggestion that the statement has reference to certain discussions by non-official members in this Council in connection with the last Budget?

Certain statements in the Police Administration Report.

(b) Will the Government be pleased to state whether before answering the unstarred question No. XVIII at the last meeting of the Council, they inquired of the author of the Report whether the suggestion made in that question was true in point of fact?

(c) Are the Government aware that the statement quoted above has embittered the feelings of the non-official members?

(d) Will the Government be pleased to consider the desirability of issuing instructions to Heads of Departments not to make any disparaging remarks in Administration Reports about discussions in this Council?

Answer by the Hon'ble MR. KERR :—

"(a) Government have nothing to add to the reply which was given to the question put by the Hon'ble Babu Bhabendra Chandra Ray on this subject at the last meeting of the Council.

(b) It is a matter of common knowledge that the expenditure on the police during recent years has been widely discussed. No such specific inquiry was, therefore, deemed to be necessary.

(c) Government have observed that certain members of this Council have taken umbrage at the remark, but they can see nothing in it justifying such strong feeling as is implied in the question.

(d) Government do not consider it necessary to issue any such instructions."

Proposed subdivision for Tippera.

XLIX. (a) Is it a fact that a new subdivision will shortly be started in the district of Tippera?

(b) If so, when and where?

(c) Will the Government be pleased to state the reasons which have led them to start a new subdivision during the financial stress caused by the war?

(d) Will the Government be pleased to state what the probable initial cost would be for starting the proposed subdivision? Has any estimate of such costs been made? If so, will the Government be pleased to lay the same on the table?

(e) Will the Government be pleased to state what additional annual expenditure the new subdivision will place on the public funds?

(f) If no final decision has as yet been arrived at, will the Government be pleased to state whether they have considered the advisability of postponing this heavy expenditure during the pendency of the war in view of the declared policy of the Government on the subject of new expenditure?

Answer by the Hon'ble MR. KERR :—

"(a) (b) and (c) Proposals for the creation of a new subdivision in the district of Tippera are at present under consideration. A memorandum inviting public opinion on the scheme will shortly be published. The object of the scheme is to relieve the Sadar and Brahmanbaria subdivisions which are unduly onerous charges. It is impossible to say at present when the scheme will be carried out.

(d) and (e) Estimates of the cost are being drawn up but are incomplete.

(f) The financial position will be carefully considered before the date for giving effect to any scheme is decided."

Manufacture of salt in Bengal.

L. (a) Will the Government be pleased to state the different indigenous methods of preparing salt in Bengal, and the cost at which salt can be manufactured per hundred maunds according to each of those methods?

* Questions and Answers.

(b) Will the Government be pleased to name the different places in Bengal where salt can be manufactured, and to what extent?

(c) Are the Government considering the desirability of causing a survey to be made of all the salt-producing tracts in Bengal and of ascertaining the total quantity of salt which can be manufactured in Bengal?

Answer by the Hon'ble MR. DONALD :—

" (a) There are two indigenous methods of salt manufacture :—

First, panga, under which salt is reduced by boiling brine which has been obtained by filtration from salt earth.

Secondly, the karkatch system, under which salt is obtained from brine by means of solar evaporation.

The cost at which salt can be manufactured by either of these methods would depend on varying factors turning largely on the locality chosen, e.g., the cost of working sites, fuel (in the case of panga salt), labour, supervision, and the productivity of the area selected. No theoretical answer seems, therefore, to be practicable on this point.

(b) Subject to such regulations regarding supervision, etc., as may be prescribed, the manufacture of salt would be possible in any place in Bengal where the necessary plant is established and the materials for production are assembled. The extent of manufacture would be governed by the capacity of the plant and the quantity of materials for production. It is impossible to give a more definite answer.

(c) The Salt Department in each saliferous district already maintains survey registers of saline tracts. As regards the suggestion that Government should take action to ascertain the total quantity of salt that can be manufactured in Bengal, it is not understood what particular purpose so vague an inquiry is intended to serve."

Unregistered practitioners.

(b) Are the Government considering the desirability of extending the period of grace and giving them another chance of appearing at the said examination?

Answer by the Hon'ble MR. DONALD :—

(ii) to state what are the intentions of Government regarding the site of the district headquarters in case the erosion cannot be stopped,

(iii) to state whether Government have hitherto consulted, or are considering the desirability of consulting, public opinion with regard to the condition of things brought about by the rapid erosion of Noakhali town and the problems of the location of the site of the district headquarters, and

(iv) to lay on the table all papers in this connection?

Questions and Answers.

Answer by the Hon'ble MR. KERR :—

" (i) The attention of the Hon'ble Member is invited to the answer given by the Hon'ble Mr. Cowley to question No. XLII at the Council meeting of the 20th November, 1917. No measures to prevent erosion are contemplated.

(ii) An area of 75 bighas has been acquired at Sonapur, half a mile from the Noakhali railway station, and if the erosion should continue to such an extent as to place any of the existing buildings in imminent danger, temporary buildings will be erected on the Sonapur site, as necessity arises. Government have not yet come to any conclusion as to the action to be taken in the event of the town of Noakhali being completely diluviated, as it is hoped that this contingency will not arise, at any rate for some years, while it might possibly not occur at all.

(iii) The measures now adopted were the result of a full inquiry made by the Commissioner, who visited a number of places in the district and ascertained the views of the public and the persons mainly concerned. The Hon'ble Sir Henry Wheeler also visited the district in July last and received deputations at Noakhali and Feni. In the event of further erosion rendering a complete evacuation of Noakhali necessary, opportunities will be afforded to the public for expressing their views regarding the steps then to be taken.

(iv) It is not thought desirable to publish the correspondence between Government and their officers. If further information is desired on any point its supply will be considered."

Circular No. 3386 A, dated Calcutta, the 20th April 1914, referred to by the Hon'ble MR. KERR in his answer to question No. LVII (unstarred) asked by the Hon'ble MAULVI A. K. FAZL-UL-HAQ at the Council meeting of the 19th February, 1918.

From—J. G. CUMMING, Esq., C.I.E., I.C.S., Chief Secretary to the Government of Bengal.

To—All Commissioners of Divisions.

THE Governor in Council has had under his consideration the question of the co-ordination of the orders in force in the Presidency on the subject of the employment of Muhammadans in ministerial appointments.

2. The policy of the Government of India regarding appointments, which lie in the hands of the Local Governments, the High Courts or local officers, was enunciated in the Resolution of the Home Department, dated the 15th July 1885, published in the Gazette of India of the 18th July 1885, in which the following passage occurs :—

"The Governor-General in Council desires that, in those provinces where Muhammadans do not receive their full share of State employment, the Local Governments and High Courts will endeavour to redress this inequality as opportunity offers and will impress upon subordinate officers the importance of attending to this in their selection of candidates for appointments of the class referred to. The subject of the extent to which Muhammadans are employed in offices under Government might usefully be noticed in the annual reports of provincial administration."

Attention was invited in the same Resolution to the fact that the numerical inferiority of Muhammadans in the public offices was very marked in Bengal. Orders have been issued from time to time by the Governments of Western and Eastern Bengal, emphasizing the importance of giving effect to the policy of the Government of India as indicated in the above Resolution, prescribing statistical returns to show the progress made and reminding local officers of the importance of the subject. Recent statistics obtained from local officers, however, show that the progress attained in this direction so far has not been very marked. It will be observed from the figures noted in the margin for offices subordinate to the Divisional Commissioners in Eastern Bengal that the proportion of Muhammadans in these offices still falls below the percentage borne by the Muhammadan population literate in English to the total population of persons literate in English. While it is not intended that Muhammadans should be admitted to the public service when their educational qualifications fall short of the standards that have already been fixed for admission to that service, it has to be remembered that literacy is not the only important consideration that should govern recruitment for Government service. It is reasonable that the number of Muhammadans in ministerial posts should also bear some relation to the importance and population of the community. The adoption of a policy based on these principles has long been approved by Government; and it appears to the Governor in Council that these principles have assumed a greater importance owing to the remarkable progress in education made of late years by the Muhammadan community. His Excellency in Council is therefore convinced that the time has come when it is advisable to fix a more definite proportion of appointments which should be filled by Muhammadans in the ministerial services employed in district offices. Special orders are already in existence regarding the ministerial officers in the offices of the Secretariat and of Heads of Departments. After a careful consideration of all the circumstances, His Excellency in Council thinks that, under present conditions, one-third would be a fair share of the ministerial appointments which should be held by Muhammadans in the offices in the Dacca, Chittagong and Rajshahi Divisions excluding the Darjeeling district, and in the Presidency Division. In the other districts of the Presidency the proportion should correspond approximately to the percentage of the population represented by Muhammadans. His Excellency in Council desires that officers empowered to make appointments should make special efforts to attain to this standard, and that until the prescribed proportion has been reached, they should not reject a Muhammadan candidate, if qualified, in favour of a Hindu candidate merely because the latter has superior qualifications. Failure to comply with these instructions in respect of appointments made should be especially explained in the annual statement prescribed in paragraph 4 of this circular.

3. There are reasons to believe that the paucity of Muhammadan candidates has often been due to the fact that vacancies are not properly advertised. Accordingly I am to invite attention to the standing orders contained in rule 1, Appendix B, at page 78 of the Board's Rules, 1910 (cf. also corresponding rule 1, Appendix B, at page 83 of the Board's Rules, 1902, applicable to the districts in Eastern Bengal), which direct that whenever a permanent vacancy occurs or is about to occur in a paid appointment, a notice of the fact shall be suspended in some prominent place in the office, and a date, which shall not be less than 15 days after the issue of the notice, shall be fixed for filling up the vacancy. His Excellency in Council desires that heads of offices should scrupulously follow this rule and should supplement this procedure, when necessary, by invoking the assistance of recognized Muhammadan associations to secure qualified candidates. It is hoped that, as the number of qualified Muhammadan youths increases every year, it will not be difficult to obtain suitable candidates; if only steps are taken to ensure that timely information of the existence of vacancies reaches those interested. The Governor in Council is confident that, with the co-operation of his officers and by the adoption of the measures indicated, a distinct and steady advance will be maintained in the matter of employment of Muhammadans.

4. Lastly, for statistical purposes, it is important to secure a uniformity in the form of returns furnished to Government by local officers, regarding the employment of Muhammadans, in place of the different forms which have hitherto been in use in Eastern and Western Bengal. The Governor in Council accordingly directs all officers concerned to furnish the prescribed statistics commencing with the current official year in the form annexed to this circular. This form will supersede all the forms hitherto in use. The returns should reach Government not later than the 1st of July following the year to which they relate. The return regarding the employment of natives of the province prescribed by the late Government of Eastern Bengal and Assam need not be furnished in future.

Allegations by an under-trial
prisoner.

LX. (a) Has the attention of Government been drawn to certain serious allegations which have been made by one Priyanath Das in regard to the treatment that he received as an under-trial prisoner at the hands of the officers of Bagerhat Jail in the district of Khulna?

(b) If so, have the Government made any inquiry into the said allegations?

(c) Will the Government be pleased to state whether it is a fact—

(i) that the said Priyanath Das, on his first admittance, was made to strip and undergo a sort of drill along with other prisoners who had been stripped likewise?

(ii) that on his refusing to eat rice touched by any Muhammadan, he was forcibly fed from the hands of a Muhammadan?

(iii) that he was made to clean the drains of the jail and to do other menial work?

(iv) that he was assaulted by a warder and sustained injuries as a result?

(v) that he represented these matters to the Doctor? and

(vi) that thereafter he was subjected to greater oppressions?

Answer by the Hon'ble MR. KERR :—

" (a) Yes.

(b) An inquiry has been held by the District Magistrate.

(c) Priyanath Das was admitted to the Bagerhat sub-jail on the 31st October, 1917, and was released on bail on the 13th November. During this period, the jail was visited twice by the Subdivisional Officer, once by a non-official visitor, and daily by the Assistant Surgeon, who is also Deputy Superintendent of the jail. Priyanath Das was also produced before the Subdivisional Officer in Court on several occasions. He made no complaint to the Subdivisional Officer or to the non-official visitor regarding his treatment in jail. The only complaint that he made to the Assistant Surgeon was that he had been slapped by a warder. No mark of injury was shown, and the Assistant Surgeon, considering the assault a trivial one, verbally reprimanded the warder. The District Magistrate has found the other allegations to be without foundation."

THE BENGAL (ALIENS) DISQUALIFICATION BILL, 1918.

The Hon'ble Sir S. P. Sinha presented the report of the Select Committee on the Bengal (Aliens) Disqualification Bill, 1918, and moved that the said report be taken into consideration.

The motion was put and agreed to.

The Hon'ble Sir S. P. Sinha also moved that the clauses of the Bill be considered for settlement in the form recommended by the Select Committee.

The motion was put and agreed to.

LIST OF BUSINESS—ITEM No. 4.

The Hon'ble BABU AMBICA CHARAN MAJUMDAR moved that for the word "Native", in line 2 of clause 2 of the Bill, the word "Indian" be substituted.

He said —

"My Lord it may be poetically true that there is nothing good or bad but thinking makes it so ; but so long as there is a human mind moved by human feelings and sentiments thinking often becomes unavoidable. The word "native" as used by Europeans in this country has come in as a word of contempt. (A voice cried 'No'). You may say 'No' but we are the people who feel and you are the people who use it. No doubt, my Lord, we are as much natives of India as Englishmen are the natives of England ; but I do not suppose that any man, either a Frenchman, a German or a Russian domiciled or naturalized in England would ever venture to call an Englishman a native. Particularly in the case of the Indian Princes they have rendered signal services in the present crisis and I do not see why we should use the word 'native' instead of 'Indian' to designate them. The local Government of another province has set a very good example by discouraging the use of this word in any official paper or document, and I think the Bengal Government have everything to gain and nothing to lose by similarly discouraging this term. Besides, my Lord, the word 'India' in this Act has been defined not only to mean British India but also the territories of our allied Princes, so, in the fitness of things, the word 'Indian' should be substituted for the word 'native'."

The Hon'ble SIR S. P. SINHA, said :—

"On behalf of Government I accept the amendment proposed by my Hon'ble friend. I do not think that the use of the word 'native' in Acts of the Legislature carries any sense of contempt with it, but at the same time I think that there is considerable force in what the Hon'ble Member has urged with regard to the use that is sometimes made of the word, and in deference to what I cannot help thinking is a very common and almost universal sentiment the Government accepts the suggestion made by the Hon'ble Member."

The motion was put and agreed to.

The Hon'ble BABU AMBICA CHARAN MAJUMDAR was to have moved that after the words "In this Act", in line 1 of clause 2 of the Bill, the brackets and figure "(1)" be inserted, and that the following be added, namely:—

"(2) British subject means any of His Majesty's natural-born, domiciled or naturalized subjects in India or in the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland".

He said:—

"Upon mature consideration I have come to the conclusion that this amendment ought not to be moved at the present stage and so I ask your Excellency's permission to withdraw it.

The motion was then, by leave of the President, withdrawn.

LIST OF BUSINESS—ITEM No. 6.

The Hon'ble BABU AMBICA CHARAN MAJUMDAR moved that after the word "Vice-Chairman", in line 12 of clause 3 of the Bill, the words "or Engineer or Health Officer", be inserted.

He said:—

"Under clause 3 of the Bill there are certain appointments which have been mentioned as being withheld from the aliens. They are the Chairman, the Deputy Chairman, the Vice-Chairman; the two posts of Engineer and Health Officer particularly of Calcutta and Howrah are also very important appointments and I do not think that they are in any way less important than those of the Deputy Chairman and Vice-Chairman. I, therefore, propose that the words 'Engineer' or 'Health Officer' be also inserted after the word 'Vice-Chairman'."

The Hon'ble Sir S. P. SINHA said:—

"Sir, this particular point was considered very carefully in the Select Committee and it was unanimously decided that we should not add these two particular officers, and the reason is this: what the Bill does is to preclude aliens, the meaning of which is well known, from, first of all, taking part in the elections and secondly from being elected themselves. But it goes further than that because it disqualifies aliens from holding executive office of the particular description mentioned, namely, Chairman and Vice-Chairman. So far as these officers are concerned they become members of the body over which they preside or practically preside, and there is a large amount of discretion which is vested by the statutes regulating local bodies in these offices. The same cannot be said with regard to officers of the description mentioned in the amendment, such as the Engineer or the Health Officer; and the sense of the Select Committee was that it would be best to leave it to the discretion of the Municipality, the Local Board or the District Board as to whether they would have an alien for the purpose of carrying out the duties of an Engineer or Health Officer. It does not restrict them in their choice and I have no doubt that if officers were available for these particular posts who are British subjects and not aliens, the local bodies concerned would give preference to British subjects, but we do not think that it will serve any useful purpose to restrict the discretion of the local bodies in making their choice, in cases of officers who do not dictate the policy but carry out orders themselves. Under these circumstances I would ask my Hon'ble friend if it would serve any useful purpose to put these two additional officers in the section."

The Hon'ble Sir S. P. Sinha moved that the Bill, as settled in Council, be passed.

The motion was put and agreed to.

LIST OF BUSINESS—ITEM NO. 9.

THE SERAMPORE COLLEGE BILL, 1918.

The Hon'ble Sir S. P. SINHA moved that the Serampore College Bill, 1918, be referred to a Select Committee consisting of the Hon'ble Mr. Wordsworth, the Hon'ble Dr. Deba Prasad Sarbadhikari, the Hon'ble Dr. Howells and the Mover with instructions to circulate their report in time for its consideration in Council at the meeting to be held on the 13th March 1918.

He said :—

"As the Bill was introduced in a very clear speech by the Hon'ble Mr. O'Malley at the last meeting of the Council I do not think that there is any necessity for me to say anything on this occasion with regard to the provisions of the Bill."

The Hon'ble BABU AMBICA CHARAN MAJUMDAR said :—

"My Lord, the Serampore College is one of the oldest, if not the oldest, college in Bengal. It carries back our memory to the days of William Carey, Joshua Marshman and John Clark Marshman who were the pioneers not only of missionary enterprise but also of education in this country. It is, therefore, not without some feeling of regret that I find myself constrained to partially oppose this measure. The Serampore College, as the Hon'ble Members are aware, was established in the year 1818 when Serampore was Danish territory. In 1827, His Majesty King Frederick VI of Denmark granted a Charter to the college empowering it to confer degrees upon its students. Eighteen years passed away and the college authorities did not actually take power to confer these degrees. Then, in 1845, Serampore was transferred to the British Government by a Treaty. In 1858 a University was established under a Royal Charter in Calcutta and the Serampore College was duly affiliated to that University enjoying a handsome grant from Government for its maintenance and the Charter rights of 1827 were waived. Now it is proposed to invoke the authority of this Charter after a lapse of nearly three-quarters of a century to establish a new University at the mill town of Serampore almost opposite this University town of Calcutta. Before anything else I would like to know what has happened since 1845, which has led to the sudden resurrection of this long-forgotten Treaty for the establishment of a new University there. My Lord, I have not the least objection to the college authorities of Serampore being empowered to grant theological degrees. This is a matter which is entirely between the Serampore College on one side and the Scottish Churches, the St. Paul's Cathedral Mission, the St. Xavier's and other Missionary colleges, on the other. If this differential treatment will not touch their susceptibilities it need not hurt mine ; but the power proposed to be conferred upon the Serampore College to grant degrees other than theological seems to me to be open to serious objection. I have my own doubts as to our power to create such an institution in the face of the Charter of the Calcutta University without the aid of a Parliamentary statute, but I am not so presumptuous as to lay much stress upon my opinion in the matter. The learned Member in charge of the Bill must have satisfied himself as to that. I oppose the Bill on principle. Why should we single out one college for the purpose of this extraordinary power, while there are so many colleges, many of which are more efficient and better equipped than the Serampore College, when we are not prepared to grant this power to them? There is the Presidency College which dates from the time of the old Hindu College and quite as old as the Serampore College. It is the premier college in the Presidency and there are the Metropolitan College, the Ripon College, the City College and the Scottish Churches College. We are not going to grant any such power to any of these colleges ; then why should we grant this extraordinary power after a lapse of nearly 74 years to the Serampore College? My Lord, I know there is some sort of Treaty, but Your Excellency will be pleased to consider what stupendous changes have taken place since 1845 in this country. A University has been established which, as far as territorial jurisdiction is concerned, is perhaps the largest in the world. Your Excellency now rules over a Presidency which is twelve times as large as Denmark, whether in the time of Hamlet or in the time of King Frederick VI, and in the particular case of this Charter His Majesty the King of Denmark had only Serampore as his sole possession in this country and he may have granted a Charter to it with the idea of starting a small University town. But Your Excellency has to consider not only the college at Serampore, but also the case of 41 colleges that have sprung up under the University of Calcutta. As far as the Treaty is concerned I do not think we are going to break it. The Charter has been appended to the Bill which has been circulated to us and I do not see anything which compels us to single out the Serampore College and to give it the power of conferring degrees other than theological. If the Treaty was not broken in 1858 it cannot be broken now by leaving matters where they stand.

There is one other question which ought to be considered along with this Bill. The Calcutta University Commission are now sitting and they have not finished their labours and we do not know what their recommendations would be. At this moment to start new Universities in this country seems to be singularly unfortunate and improper.

There is yet another question to which I will draw Your Excellency's attention. It may be that by granting this power to the Serampore College we may be interfering with the power of the Calcutta University and I do not think that we can grant this power to the Serampore College unless and until the Calcutta University has disaffiliated it first of all. I do not think that it is reasonable for any individual to try to burn a candle at both ends. It cannot remain part and parcel of the Calcutta University and at the same time exercise the power of conferring degrees independently of the Calcutta University. With these observations I oppose this Bill so far as it proposes to give to the Serampore College power to grant degrees other than theological. I have already said I have no objection to the granting of theological degrees by the Serampore College. There is the Vice-Chancellor of the Calcutta University and I dare say he will consider this Bill in all its bearings at the Select Committee before this measure is passed into law.

The Hon'ble Babu MAHENDRA NATH RAY :—

The Serampore College Bill, 1918.Dr. Howells.

involved in the Bill authorizing the Council of the college to grant degrees in branches of knowledge and science other than theology is objectionable. I have no doubt the Select Committee will consider this part of the Bill with great care. There is one matter to which I would invite the attention of the Council and it is this : The Treaty of which I do not find a copy in the papers circulated—I may have missed it, of 1845, which imposes upon the Government of India certain duties and liabilities, as I have said, has not been placed before us, but I find in the Statement of Objects and Reasons a summary of the rights and immunities which the Treaty granted to the College. And the summary goes on to say that it was laid down in the Treaty of Purchase that the rights and immunities granted to the college by the Charter should not be interfered with, but should remain in force in the same manner as if they had been obtained by a Charter from the British Government subject to the general law of British India. No doubt the language of the Charter is perhaps wide enough to authorize the Council of the Serampore College to grant degrees in other branches of knowledge and science than theology, because the Charter in somewhat quaint language speaks of the power of conferring upon the students of the college, Native Christians as well as others, degrees of rank and honour according to their proficiency in as ample a manner as any other college. The Serampore College, the Charter goes on to say, shall only have the power of conferring such degrees to the students that testify their proficiency in science. Without criticising and without trying to understand the exact scope of the power granted in the Charter, it is clear from the summary of the provisions of the Treaty which is placed before us that all these rights and immunities are to be subject to the general law of British India, and I take it that one of the laws in force in British India is what is contained in the Universities Act, which contemplates the grant of degrees only by bodies constituted under that Act. It would, therefore, be no infringement, it seems to me, subject to what the law officers of Government say, of the rights preserved by the Treaty to hold that the Serampore College Council should not have the power of conferring degrees in every branch of science and knowledge, and it seems to me that to convert the Serampore College into a University which would be competent to grant degrees in all branches of Arts and Science would be to give it the power which would not only interfere with the proper jurisdiction of the Calcutta University but with the proper discharge of the functions of other colleges in this province. At any rate there are some colleges close by which are likely to be very seriously affected if such a power were granted. I leave this matter to the law officers of Government, and if we are not bound by the Treaty to authorize the College Council of the Serampore College to grant powers of conferring degrees in all different departments of Science and Arts, I should think that their power of granting degrees should be confined to theological subjects. As regards these the remarks that I have made about the impropriety of the conferring of the general power would not apply."

The Hon'ble DR. HOWELLS said :—

" My Lord, it seems to me that by far the greater part of what the first speaker said and a very considerable part of the speech of the second speaker can carry no conviction at all in view of the facts of the situation. The speakers from time to time spoke of certain University powers proposed to be conferred on the Serampore College. I see absolutely no meaning in any such remark. We possess certain powers and we are receiving no new powers that we do not at present possess, powers at any rate of the nature referred to by the two speakers. The facts of the situation are perfectly clear. They have already been set forth in this Council. Certain powers were granted to the Serampore College by the Danish King in the year 1827 ;

The Serampore College Bill, 1918.Dr. Howells.

Serampore, as is well known, being at that time a Danish settlement. The founders of the college, though men of faith, were cautious men and had the true interest of education at heart. Soon after the foundation of the college and the granting to it of University powers, there was a financial crisis in India of a very serious character. It affected the great commercial firms and the finances of the college suffered considerably. It was, therefore, due deference to sound educational ideals, the ideals of all educationalists as to what a University really is, that led the college authorities to the view that it would be unwise for the time being to exercise any such powers as they possessed. In addition to the clause already referred to by my friend, Mr. Ray, there is a regulation which also has legal validity, equally with the Charter, as contained in the statutes drawn up by the Serampore authorities in the year 1833. Those regulations are given in the Serampore College Bill, as circulated among the members of the Council. The regulation in question reads as follows :—

‘The first Council and their successors for ever being authorized by the Charter to confer such degrees of rank and honour as shall encourage learning in the same manner as other Colleges and Universities, they shall from time to time confer degrees in such branches of Knowledge and Science as may be studied there, in the same manner as the Universities in Denmark, Germany and Great Britain. In doing this the Master and Council shall ad libitum call in the aid of any or all the Professors of Serampore College.’

In the year 1845, after considerable pressure from time to time on the part of the British authorities who wished to purchase the settlement of Serampore, the Danish King yielded and agreed to the sale, but in connection with the sale one thing that had troubled him from time to time—you will get the facts related in the college reports and in the Lives and Times of Carey, Marshman and Ward by John Clark Marshman—as to the situation of Serampore College, provided the sale was effected, and we finally agreed to the sale only after personally attending to the question of the rights of the college; that was the reason of the clause already referred to by the Hon'ble Mr. Ray, viz., to the effect that the rights and immunities granted to Serampore College by Royal Charter of February 1827, shall not be interfered with, but continue in force in the same manner as they had been granted in British India, subject to the general law of British India. Now, Sir, here is a very definite Treaty with a Foreign Power—Denmark—a Treaty, solemnly entered into, confirming without a shadow of doubt the University powers already conferred by the Danish Crown on the college. I am no lawyer, but if law has any meaning or any common sense in it, that is the only possible interpretation, and I never yet heard such interpretation questioned by anybody from lawyers of the highest eminence in this country, Indian and European, right up to the best lawyers of the Crown in England. The whole thing has been under consideration for years and there has been only one interpretation of the facts of the case, viz., that the Serampore College possesses these powers, real University powers, without any reference to any institutions of University rank that might have arisen at a later time. This has been the vital issue. Now, I am aware that there may be difference of opinion regarding the character of Treaties and regarding the way in which Treaties ought to be observed. I judge, Sir, that if it had reference to a Treaty affecting any Indian Prince, any Treaty going back for many years in connection with any with any Indian State, I doubt that the two speakers would without doubt claim that such Treaty should be rigidly adhered to to the very letter. True, there are powers that consider Treaties, especially in relation to powers that are weaker than themselves as mere scraps of paper; I trust, Sir, that the two speakers will not link themselves for a single moment with the aspect that would regard solemn Treaties, recognized as legally valid, as mere scraps of paper that can be torn up and repudiated. What I understand, what the civilized world understands by British faith, is manifest in the present attitude of the British Government in recognizing, even though it may be inconvenient that there is something sacred in a Treaty, and certainly so far as we are concerned as a college we greatly appreciate the way in which the British Government, although looking upon this as somewhat of an inconvenience, have regarded themselves as bound down by the law and by a Treaty with a Foreign Power as a sacred pledge and international obligation. So far as theological degrees are concerned, no question has been raised; we are in fact using the powers of the Charter already and have been using them for the past few years for the conferring of theological degrees. The way was made clear to us from one standpoint by the attitude of the last University Commission which declared that it would be unwise for the Indian Universities to contemplate the conferring of degrees in theology. All we seek now is to broaden our foundations so as to secure closer co-operation with other Christian bodies besides the Baptists.

Regarding the question of Arts degrees it must be recognized that the situation is not without its difficulties. Instead of Government conferring powers upon us, I think that if the Bill is carefully read, it will be recognized that we are of our own free will voluntarily limiting the exercise, at any rate, of our powers; we can, so far as the legal power is concerned, proceed to grant degrees even in Arts and Science or any other Faculty at any time. But in view of the situation that has actually arisen, we have agreed, after consultation with the Government, to the insertion of clause 13 in the Bill; and I trust that the significance of our concession will be fully recognized. In view of the misunderstanding that there is already in existence on the subject, I would like to read this clause of the Bill:

'13. If, at any time, the Council shall intend to grant degrees in any branch or branches of Knowledge and Science other than Theology, such degrees shall be confined to students who shall have received regular instruction at the Serampore College; and before the Council proceeds to grant such degrees, it shall satisfy the Government as defined in section 2 (b) of the Indian Universities Act, 1904, in relation to the Calcutta University as to the adequacy—

- (1) of the establishment and equipment of the college;
- (2) of the academic standard to be maintained; and
- (3) of the financial provision made therefor:

Provided that the said Government on ceasing to be so satisfied, may withdraw their approval of the granting of such degrees.'

Now, this is a voluntary concession on our part. It was made clear to us that we ought not, unless we were ready for it, to be compelled to agree to this concession, and certainly anything beyond this we should not regard as fair or reasonable. But we feel that our educational ideals of what a University really means, was so clear and so sound that we had little or no hesitation in making this concession referred to so far as the granting of Arts degrees is concerned, it would be fatal and ruinous to our own interests to think of exercising this power, unless there is the most abundant justification for it. We are not in rivalry with the University of Calcutta. The University of Calcutta already recognizes that it is overwhelmingly large. If, at any time, circumstances should lead us in that direction and there should be adequate justification for it in the judgment of those concerned, we retain the right to develop as an independent University, granting our own secular degrees, and I am sure that those who have the best interests of education at heart, would in no way oppose the objects we have in view, objects which are perfectly straightforward and perfectly open to the criticism of the Government and the world."

The Serampore College Bill, 1918.Dr. Deba Prasad Sarbadhikari, The President; Sir S. P. Sinha.

The Hon'ble DR. DEBA PRASAD SARBADHIKARI said :—

"My Lord, at the present moment, I do not wish to say anything with regard to the principle or the details of the Bill, but there is one other matter which is necessary for me to place before the Hon'ble Member in charge and Your Excellency in connection with the motion before the Council. The University of Calcutta have not yet been able to consider the matter fully. The Bill was referred to the Faculty of Law of which the Hon'ble Babu Mahendra Nath Ray is a member. The Faculty has made its report and that report will come before the Senate for consideration on the 9th March. If the report of the Select Committee is to come before the Council on the 13th March, the Select Committee will not have the opinion of the University before it. It would be an undoubted advantage for the Select Committee to have the opinion of the Faculty of Law as well as of the Senate when it is considering the measure."

The President said :—

"Does the Hon'ble Member wish to move an amendment to that motion?"

The Hon'ble DR. DEBA PRASAD SARBADHIKARI said :—

"I would leave it to the Hon'ble Member in charge."

The Hon'ble SIR S. P. SINHA said :—

"My Lord, I regret that there should be any appearance of controversy with regard to this very harmless measure. I think that a great deal of the apprehension felt by my Hon'ble friends, Babu Ambica Charan Majumdar and Babu Mahendra Nath Ray, is due to a misconception as to the object of this legislation, and I think also that my friend, the Hon'ble Dr. Howells, was somewhat unnecessarily warm (if he will allow me to say so) about any invasion of the rights of the Serampore College. It is undoubtedly the fact that the Serampore College at the present moment possesses the power of conferring degrees in Theology, in Arts, in Science, and in every other branch of knowledge and that they can do so without a reference either to the Government or to the University of Calcutta, because, although their rights are preserved subject to the general law of British India, there is at present nothing in that law to restrict their undoubted and recognized right of conferring degrees. They have the power, and it is also perfectly correct that this Bill proposes by virtue of that very provision to enact that the power which they possess should be subject to certain restrictions, which do not exist at the present moment, namely, that they should not confer these degrees without satisfying the Government that their equipment for the purpose is adequate and sufficient. So far, therefore, from this Bill enlarging the rights of the Serampore college it is a measure enacted to restrict their rights and the college authorities have been reasonable enough to agree to such restrictions, because, while they feel that on their side they are not likely to claim the privilege of conferring degrees unless they are properly equipped, they are equally confident that the Government will not place any obstacles in their way, if, and when, they are sufficiently equipped for the purpose. The whole object of the Bill, if my Hon'ble friends will for one moment look into the Statement of Objects and Reasons, is this, the college authorities are naturally anxious to begin conferring degrees in theology, which, as some Hon'ble speakers before me have pointed out, the University Commission thought that it was undesirable that Indian Universities should; but they felt also that belonging only to a particular denomination of Christians it would add to the prestige and utility of their degrees if the denominational basis upon which the college rested was modified by the creation of an enlarged Council and of a Senate consisting of members belonging to different Christian Churches. That is the primary object of this Bill and so far as one can judge, practically, the only object of this Bill. They have at present no intention of conferring degrees any more than they have had since 1827, but what they desire to do is to take power to themselves to form a Senate in which all Christian sects will be represented, so that their theological degrees would be valued, not merely by the particular sect to which the college belongs, but by all other sects of Christians. That being so, it is regrettable that any semblance even of controversy, should be apparent in a measure of this kind. I have no doubt that the observations of my friends, the Hon'ble Babu Ambica Charan Majumdar and the Hon'ble Babu Mahendra Nath Ray, will be taken into consideration by the Select Committee. The measure is a purely non-controversial one. There are no doubts about their powers and there is no doubt about the restrictions which are to be imposed upon them.

With reference to what fell from the Hon'ble the Vice-Chancellor, I may state that we are very anxious to accommodate the Senate of the University of Calcutta in every possible manner and not to hurry or hustle them in any way. If the 13th March, which is mentioned in the motion, is not suitable or is considered too early, I am perfectly willing that the report of the Select Committee should not be presented till the 28th March or even the 4th April. I prefer personally the 28th March, so that there might be ample time to consider the matter. I would propose, therefore, that instead of the report being considered on the 13th March it should be considered on the 28th March."

The Hon'ble DR. DEBA PRASAD SARBADHIKARI said :—

"If the 4th April is suitable, it might be taken up on that date."

THE CALCUTTA HACKNEY-CARRIAGE BILL, 1918.

The Hon'ble SIR S. P. SINHA said :—

"As there is likely to be a large volume of business on the 4th April, I am sorry it will not be a suitable date. I would, therefore, ask my Hon'ble friend to agree to the 28th March. With these observations, I hope that the Council will not have any difficulty in accepting the motion as amended."

The motion was then put in the following amended form and agreed to :—

That the Serampore College Bill, 1918, be referred to a Select Committee consisting of the Hon'ble Sir S. P. Sinha, the Hon'ble Mr. Wordsworth, the Hon'ble Dr. Deba Prasad Sarbadhikari and the Hon'ble Dr. Howells with instructions to circulate their report in time for its consideration in Council at the meeting to be held on the 28th March 1918.

LIST OF BUSINESS—ITEM NO. 10.

The Hon'ble SIR S. P. SINHA moved for leave to introduce a Bill to consolidate and amend the law relating to hackney-carriages and palanquins and to make certain provisions with regard to rickshaws in Calcutta.

He said—

"It may be useful to summarize briefly the facts leading up to the existing law. Under the first Calcutta Hackney-carriage Act (Bengal Act V of 1866) the control of hackney-carriages was vested in the Commissioner of Police.

The Calcutta Hackney-carriage Bill, 1918.Sir S. P. Sinha.

In compliance with a Resolution of the Justices of Peace, dated the 11th of September 1874, Bengal Act IV of 1878 was passed, under which the control of hackney-carriages was transferred from the Commissioner of Police to the Municipal Commissioners of Calcutta, with effect from the 1st of June 1878. On the recommendation of a Committee of the Corporation appointed in October 1890, the law was further amended by Bengal Act II of 1891 which is the Act now in force. Proposals were thereafter brought forward from time to time with a view to improving the hackney-carriage service in Calcutta and in 1911 a report on the improvement of the hackney-carriage service in Calcutta, adopted by the Corporation, was forwarded by the Chairman for the consideration of Government. In pursuance of that report an amending Bill was framed by the Government and introduced in Council and referred to a Select Committee on the 4th of July 1916. The three most important provisions of that Bill were :—

- (i) the omission of the sections in the existing Act by which the classes of hackney-carriages and also the fares for the same are rigidly fixed. The Bill provided that both these matters should be regulated by by-laws framed under the Act ;
- (ii) a provision for compulsory production of carriages with horses and harness used therewith within a week after the expiration of six months from the date of annual registration ; and
- (iii) a provision for securing the identification of horses.

The Select Committee considered that the Bill did not deal adequately with all the additions and alterations necessary in the existing Act and that the changes required would so materially alter the Act as to go entirely beyond the scope of an amending Bill. They accordingly recommended that the Bill should not be further proceeded with, that the existing Act should be considered as a whole and that a new consolidating and amending Bill should be framed. The Select Committee's report was presented to the Legislative Council in August 1916 and a motion was carried that the Bill should not be further proceeded with. A new consolidating and amending Bill was then drawn up in accordance with the suggestions of the Select Committee, embodying the provisions of the former Bill as well as other modifications of the existing law which were found necessary. These modifications were such as to render a further reference to the Government of India necessary before the Bill as recast could be introduced in the Provincial Legislative Council. It was accordingly submitted to that Government for approval and we have had the benefit of their suggestions and criticisms and now that the Government of India have finally approved of the Bill, it is possible to introduce it in Council.

The modifications of the existing law made by the present Bill are fully explained in the Statement of Objects and Reasons and notes on the clauses. The most important change is the provision made in Chapters II and IV for the separate registration of horses and carriages. It has been found in practice that the chief defect in the present mode of registering horses is that there is nothing to identify the animals which have been passed as fit by the registering officer. The registering of carriages and horses is now done simultaneously and as the period within which carriages are registered extends over several weeks, owners often bring up the same horses harnessed to different carriages. Inferior horses are afterwards substituted when the carriages actually ply for hire. To prevent this fraud and to ensure that only horses that are fit should draw registered carriages, provision is made in clauses 29 and 30 to facilitate the identification of horses approved by the registering officer and to prevent the substitution of animals not approved by him. As, moreover, one man may own a carriage and another the horse or horses which draw it, provision is made in clause 25 for the separate registration of horses—while the compulsory production of registered horses with harness for half-yearly inspection by the registering officer is ensured by clause 28. On the occasion when the last Bill was introduced, the Hon'ble Babu Ambica Charan Majumdar seemed to have some misgivings as to whether the marking for identification of horses which was contemplated could be made without causing much bodily pain to the animals. It might be of interest therefore to mention the history of the provision in this respect. Sometime before 1911 the Corporation moved Government to sanction a by-law to the effect that horses should be branded on the hoof for purposes of identification. The Government consulted the Superintendent of the Civil Veterinary Department in the matter and declined to sanction the proposed by-law on the ground that it would not work satisfactorily and was not likely to secure the object aimed at. The Corporation then tried an alternative method which obtained in Jubbulpore. A round brass disc about the size of a rupee with a registered number stamped on the side and the class of the carriage for which the horses registered stamped on the reverse was fastened round the horses' neck with flexible wire, the ends of which were fastened by a small lead-seal so that any unlicensed horse could be easily detected and dealt with as such. This scheme was on trial, found to succeed in securing the object aimed at, but the Chairman, supported by the Legal Adviser of the Corporation and by the view of Government, held that it could not be enforced and it was, therefore, left to the option of hackney-carriage owners to affix the disc or not as they chose. The Corporation thereafter recommended that legislation should be undertaken to give effect to the provision of discs as above mentioned. Government agreed that the system of discs appeared to be as good as any other which has yet been devised, but better means might possibly be discovered hereafter and it was desirable, therefore, that the amendment of the law should be in a general form so as to permit of the adoption of the disc method or any other method with the same object in view. Accordingly it is provided in clause 29 of the present Bill that the registering officer shall cause to be attached or applied to any registered horse such mark of identification as may be prescribed by by-law made under clause 71.

The Bill also applies to rickshaws mutatis mutandis the provisions already in force in regard to palanquins. The difficulties now experienced in enforcing the appearance of a driver before a Magistrate are met by a provision (clause 73) that summonses against the driver under the Act may also be served on the owner of the carriage or horses and by the provisions of clause 47 (c) and (d) empowering the registering officer to cancel or suspend the driver's license, if the driver fails to appear before the Magistrate when summoned to answer a charge or if the owner, on being called upon to do so, fails to produce him. The penalty clauses throughout the Act have been revised and made mutually consistent, and suitable terms of imprisonment in default of payment of fine have been prescribed. Attention is also drawn to the first provision of clause 2 which provides that when it is proposed to extend the Act to military cantonments the notification extending the Act shall not be published without the previous sanction of the Governor-General in Council. The second proviso enacts that when it is proposed to exclude from, or include in, Calcutta any local area in the vicinity of the same by notification, a draft thereof shall be previously published and any rate-payer or inhabitant of the area may, if he objects to the draft, submit his objections in writing to the Local Government within six weeks from its publication and the Local Government shall take such objections into consideration. It is believed that, with these safeguards, no objection will be found to the Bill in so far as regards its possible application to cantonment areas or areas not included in Calcutta."

The motion was put and agreed to.

*Resolutions.Rai Mahendra Chandra Mitra Bahadur ; Mr. Cumming.LIST OF BUSINESS—ITEM No. 11.RESOLUTIONS.(Under the Rules for the discussion of matters of general public interest.)

The Hon'ble RAI MAHENDRA CHANDRA MITRA BAHADUR moved the following resolution :—

This Council recommends to the Governor in Council that steps be taken to remodel the sluice in the Damodar left embankment on the western border of mauza Gazipore in thana Amta, in the district of Howrah, by widening the size of the existing narrow vent and lowering the floor of the said sluice with a view to draining out the stagnant rain-water from the paddy fields and preventing any further damage to the winter rice crop of mauzas Sonamukhi and Gazipore.

He said :—

“ My Lord, I need hardly take up the time of the Council by entering into details about the urgent necessity of the proposal which I am placing before the Council to-day. On a previous occasion the Hon'ble Mr. Cumming stated that the Amta Drainage Scheme had already been approved by Government and was only awaiting funds, the cost having been estimated at about ten lakhs of rupees. The proposal which I now make is a modest one and involves an expenditure of a few thousands which can be met out of the special grant of two and a half lakhs of rupees provided in this year's Budget, with a view to mitigate the evil effects of the Damodar floods in the Burdwan Division. Less than two lakhs of rupees has probably been spent out of this grant by this time. As the Damodar left embankment is Government property, it is only natural that the sluice in question measuring two feet broad by four feet three inches high, used for the double purpose of irrigation and drainage for an area of $1\frac{1}{2}$ square miles, should be remodelled by Government to meet the present demand. The present condition of the paddy fields, which are still under deep water, is doing immense mischief to the winter rice crop, and betrays a most deplorable state of affairs ; if the water is not drained out now, it will not flow out when the river rises in the rainy season, with the result that it would not be possible to grow a new crop next season. The urgency of draining out the water in question now cannot be gainsaid. And I hope and trust, the Council will accept the resolution thus preventing the possibility of spreading discontent among the illiterate and starving peasantry. With these few words, I commend this resolution to the acceptance of Your Excellency's Council”.

The Hon'ble Mr. CUMMING said :—

“ Sir, the Hon'ble Member desires that certain yillages to the west of thana Amta, in the district of Howrah, be drained into the Damodar river through a sluice in the left embankment of that river, as a separate project apart from the main Amta drainage project.

There are two grounds why Government are not prepared to accept the resolution ; an engineering ground and a legal ground.

Resolutions.

Rai Mahendra Chandra Mitra Bahadur ; The President ; Maharajadhiraja Bahadur of Burdwan.

In the first place, while the Hon'ble Member desires to drain these villages to the west into the Damodar river, nature has ordained that the natural drainage from that locality is to the east and south-east. Provision has been made for the drainage of this locality in the Amta drainage project which has been prepared and which awaits execution when funds are available.

In the second place, it is true that at a certain level of the Damodar river it is possible to drain through the sluice in question to the west into the river ; but if any one desires to take advantage of that opportunity, the proper procedure is to make an application to the Collector under section 18 of the Embankment Act. If it should appear to the Collector that the work is one which may probably be executed with advantage, then the procedure prescribed in section 7 of the Act will be followed. I, therefore, recommend the Hon'ble Member to advise the people of the locality either to wait till the Amta drainage project is completed or to come forward and make an application under section 18 of the Embankment Act."

The Hon'ble RAI MAHENDRA CHANDRA MITRA BAHADUR said :—

"My Lord, the Hon'ble Mr. Cumming has referred first of all to the engineering difficulty. That question, being a technical one, is very difficult, and I am not in a position to answer it properly.

With regard to the legal aspect, I can put forward my own views on it. Section 18 of the Embankment Act no doubt lays down the procedure by which the construction of sluices may be made, but to my mind it appears that that has reference only to new sluices. If the section be read in the light which I submit to this Council, it will appear that there is already an old sluice and the question involved is as to its enlargement. That is the only point raised. In my humble opinion, therefore, the provision of section 18 will not be a bar, if the Hon'ble Member in charge considers that it is necessary. As the question is a technical one, I have no other alternative but to withdraw it."

The Resolution was then, by leave of the President, withdrawn.

LIST OF BUSINESS—ITEM No. 13.

The PRESIDENT said :—

"I understand that the Hon'ble Maharajadhiraja Bahadur of Burdwan has an engagement later in the day and I have ascertained from the Hon'ble Mr. Irwin that he has no objection to item No. 13 being given precedence. Under the circumstances, I now call upon the Hon'ble Maharajadhiraja Bahadur of Burdwan to move his Resolution."

The Hon'ble MAHARAJADHIRAJA BAHADUR OF BURDWAN moved :—

This Council recommends to the Governor in Council that early steps be taken to obtain official and non-official opinion on the advisability of an enactment of an Impartible or Inalienable Estates Act for Bengal or of an amendment of the Bengal Settled Estates Act, so as to make it more attractive to the classes for whose benefit the Act was intended.

He said :—

"My Lord, for many years past I have cherished a keen desire to see in Bengal an enactment something like the Madras Impartible Estates Act. My first attempt in this direction dates back to the year 1909 when I was making some private enquiries about the desirability of amending the Bengal Settled Estates Act so as to render it more popular and acceptable to those for whom it was meant. I received a most sympathetic response from the then Lieutenant-Governor Sir Edward Baker, who, later on in 1910 appointed a Committee of members of the Legislative Council to enquire into the cause of the failure of the Settled Estates Act and to consider remedies. As having served on the Committee, I remember the proposal of amendment had to be dropped mainly on the ground of there having been no general demand for the amendment of the Act amongst the zamindar families, though the Committee found 'that there were instances of persons who would like to see their way to prevent a disintegration of their property, which must follow their death'. Having thus failed in my attempt to secure an amendment of the Settled Estates Act, I proposed, as a member of that Committee, to have introduced into Bengal an Impartible Estates Act and the Committee recommended my suggestion for the consideration of the Government. This was just prior to the Delhi changes when we could count upon Bihar as a part of Bengal. I seriously contemplated trying in a private Bill in consultation with the representatives of the Baronial Houses of Bihar, many of whom like my own House were governed by the law of Primogeniture according to Kulachara. Owing, however, to the territorial redistribution of 1911 my idea had to be abandoned and the Government too did not move in the matter any further. Since then I have been watching the sentiments of my brother zamindars of Bengal in this respect for the last seven years and when at the first Conference of Bengal Zamindars held in Calcutta, in December last, it was 'considered desirable to have an enactment of an Impartible and Inalienable Estates Act for the protection of Zamindars in Bengal' and a Resolution was passed 'to consider the question with a view to memorializing the Government on the subject' I thought it was time to take up this subject once again to the Legislative Body of this Province and I deemed it my duty thus to gather for the deliberations of the Zamindars' Committee, of which I am a member, through the medium of the Government, official and non-official opinions which will be of the greatest value to us of the Committee, when we meet to frame concrete proposals for the consideration of the Government.

In some quarters there is an apprehension that my intention in bringing this Resolution is not only to forestall the activities but to confuse the issues of the Committee in which I have been given to play my own part howsoever small or insignificant it may be! Considering that I was largely responsible for inaugurating the first Conference of Bengal Zamindars in December last it would not only be comical but ungracious on my part if I were to try to belittle the existence of a force which to me has been most welcome and is full of potentiality of a far-reaching consequence to the Zamindar community of Bengal in general. My object therefore in bringing this Resolution forward at this stage is two-fold. In the first place, it is to expedite the fruition of a long-cherished desire in my mind to have something done in the local legislature to protect the importance and integrity of old and honoured zamindari houses by starting work simultaneously in the Legislative Body and in the body of the zamindars concerned, so that each might pursue its own course of investigation independently and benefit mutually by each others' findings whenever occasion may arise for their mutual reference. Secondly, it is to assist the Committee of the Zamindars mainly by collecting through Government Agency expert opinion, both official and non-official, whose views are essential to enable the Committee to bring forward their final proposals to the Government. It is true that after all the zamindars concerned are the best judges as to what they need for the protection of their families and properties, but it is equally true that an enactment of the kind contemplated in the Resolution involves intricate questions of Hindu and Muhammadan laws of succession and alienation and as these laws are highly technical and complicated, opinion of legal experts is indispensably necessary in coming to a definite conclusion on the subject. I must candidly confess that I am far from being well-versed in the Daya-Bhag Law of Bengal or in the different laws of succession amongst the different sects of Muhammadans, and perhaps there are not many among us who may tackle these problems ingeniously, but on the other hand, the Government may give us the best legal advice on such points, it may give us without any difficulty an idea of the working of similar legislations in other Provinces, as we know, there is already one existing in Madras and another is about to be introduced into the United Provinces, and it is for securing these invaluable aids that I have deemed it necessary to move this Resolution in Council even before the Zamindars' Committee would meet; it will at least save them from being criticised as not being either fully representative in character or as having taken on their shoulders a colossal piece of contemplated legislation without considering its issues in all its different aspects. If we were to start on our mission without the support of the Government on the one hand or expert advice, both official and non-official, on the other, we should be much less sure of success than we would be if we appeared before the public and this Council with our proposals based on the best advice and opinions available in the Province. My intention is simply to see if there is a demand for an Impartible Estates Act in Bengal and to receive the opinion of official and non-official experts on the advisability of introducing such an enactment in our Province and having reasons to believe that the Government will assist me to gain the object that I have in view I sincerely hope that my brother zamindars present here and all my other colleagues, both official and non-official, will lend me their support, not only as a manifestation of their earnest desire to try and find out what obstacles there may be towards achieving a matter of vital importance to the Zamindars of Bengal, but also, as I have said previously, to assist the Committee of Zamindars with invaluable materials to frame concrete proposals for the acceptance of the Government and the Council at a later stage.

With these words, my Lord, I beg to move the Resolution which stands in my name."

The Hon'ble Mr. CUMMING said :—

"Sir, I am in a position to state at once that Government accept the Resolution of the Hon'ble Member to the effect that the opinions of officials and non-officials be elicited on the advisability of legislation on the subject of the impartibility and inalienability of estates.

It will be convenient to give here a summary of the past history of similar proposals. In 1904, the Bengal Settled Estates Act was passed. When that Act was introduced, its objects were stated to be the preservation of old or wealthy families from decay, the maintenance of their territorial influence and the prevention of subdivision of estates of historical and political importance; and provision was made in the Act for preserving, in special cases approved by Government, the continuity of noble and influential families, whose estates were not protected by the existing law from division on the decease of a proprietor.

Up to 1910, only one landlord had taken advantage of the Act, and the Government of Bengal appointed a Committee to enquire into the causes of the failure of that Act. The Committee submitted their report in 1910, suggesting certain amendments of the Act, in order to remedy certain defects which had apparently contributed towards the failure of the Act. At the same time, however, they said that they had grave doubts as to whether there was any general demand for the amendment of the Act.

Resolutions.Kumar Shib Shekhareswar Ray.

The Hon'ble Maharajadhiraja Bahadur asked in Council in March 1913 a question on the subject of the amendment of the Act. The reply then given was that the Government of Bengal had decided that, in the absence of a stronger indication by the land-holding community of Bengal of a desire for an amendment of the Act, it was not advisable to undertake legislation.

A further pronouncement was made in May 1913. As the sovereignty from Bengal of the area constituting the province of Bihar and Orissa reduced the number of impartible estates in the Presidency, the Governor in Council decided to take no further action in the matter. The Maharajadhiraja Bahadur was, however, informed at the time that, if there was evidence of a demand amongst the majority of the zamindars, the matter might be considered again.

In view of the attitude of the Conference of zamindars, Government are now prepared to institute an enquiry from officials and non-officials on the lines of the resolution of the Hon'ble Mover."

The Hon'ble KUMAR SHIB SHEKHARESWAR RAY said :—

"My Lord, I am one of those who were responsible for an important resolution on the subject at the Conference of zamindars held on the 24th December last, and it gives me much pleasure to find that the prominent members of our community are taking a keen interest in the matter. It was only at the last meeting of the Council that one of my friends put a question on the subject and thus brought it to the notice of the Government, and to-day our leader has himself taken up the question, though his zamindari is an impartible Raj, and we are grateful to the Hon'ble Maharajadhiraja Bahadur for his resolution which cannot but emphasise the importance of the subject, and my friend is to be congratulated on the very modest nature of his resolution. It has been so judiciously drawn up that the Government could hardly afford to reject it. But there is a thing or two which I think I should bring to the notice of the Maharajadhiraja before he presses for his resolution. As has been said by the Maharajadhiraja, the Zamindars' Conference has appointed a strong and representative Committee with several influential and experienced members to make a thorough and exhaustive enquiry into the matter and discuss it in all its aspects with the zamindars who are interested in the legislation and to formulate a scheme which would be acceptable to us. It was also resolved to forward this scheme to the Government for taking proper action. To my mind, that would be the proper stage at which the Government should take up the enquiry, as it would then give the Government something definite on which to obtain the opinion of the public as well as of the officials, and proceeding in this way it would be comparatively easy for the Government to arrive at a practicable solution of the problem. At present, the Government enquiry is bound to be more or less indefinite and aimless in its character and as such it would almost be like groping in the dark. The Government now do not know exactly what is really wanted by us or what would suit us best. In fact, even we do not know what is really wanted by us. We have now only a kind of desire that there should be some such legislation by which we can keep our estates compact and save them from being squandered away by our spoilt children. When drafting the resolution for the Zamindars' Conference, our intention was that we should first enlighten our community as to the nature of the existing laws on the subject in Bengal and in other parts of India and for this purpose some of us even intended to publish a full history of the incidents of such legislations together with a critical study of the report of the committee appointed by the Government a few years back. In short, our idea was to make the whole zamindar community actively interested in the matter and by free personal discussions amongst ourselves to arrive at a definite understanding with a minimum of opposition.

My Lord, we have now in Bengal a school of young zamindars who are not only beginning to take a real and active interest in the management of their zamindaries but also in all matters connected with our obligation to ourselves, our Government and our tenantry. We want now every encouragement from our leaders as well as from the Government, and the public. If our Committee is left alone, I am sure we shall never be found wanting and the fruits of our labour cannot but be of immense help to your Excellency's Government. But if the resolution, now before the Council, is given effect to, it is sure to damp our spirit; in fact all the importance and usefulness of our Committee will be gone. Having once given their opinion to the Government very few will care to discuss the matter with us. Our query will only bring in copies of the opinions sent to the Government, and even what little discussion we will have, would be quite useless for our purpose. As I know the nature of the zamindars, none of them would like to change his opinion once given to the Government, and so an agreement amongst ourselves would be almost a thing of impossibility. I would not have been so particular in opposing a simple resolution like this, if I did not believe it to be a fact that the Government enquiry will not only render our Committee useless but also would be itself aimless and consequently its results too would be lifeless.

“ My Lord, I know the procedure in many zamindaries and when I say it, I do so with full knowledge of the facts, that whenever opinions are asked by the Government on any subject, the majority of the zamindars refer the whole thing to their lawyers, and what opinion is forwarded to the Government is not the considered opinion of our class but rather an artistic and academic treatment of the subject by our lawyers, and the result is that the zamindars remain as ignorant of the existing state of affairs as of the effect of their opinion. This may sound rather harsh, but such is the real fact and we are now going to face it boldly; we want to infuse life and intelligence into our class. Our aim is to shake off our traditional lethargy and ignorance and drag out our class from its conservative stagnancy, and in our noble endeavour we of the new school want all help from all who can help us. And bearing this in my mind, I appeal to my hon'ble friend the Maharajadhiraja of Burdwan to withdraw his resolution. I appeal to him not to stifle our ardour by invoking Government aid just at present, but to let us try and stand by ourselves, and I trust that I do not appeal in vain.

In this connection, I would also like to submit that as a result of my reference of the question to my constituency, I have received about sixty replies, and with one exception all of them are opposed to this resolution, the one exception being the Maharajdhiraja himself, who is also an esteemed member of my constituency. I would also like to say that, in reply to my letter, the British Indian Association, of which the Maharajadhiraj is the President, writes the following :—

“ Your letter regarding the Bengal Settled Estates Act was considered by our Committee at their meeting held on Wednesday last. The Committee were of opinion that while they had no power to fetter the discretion of the Maharajadhiraja Bahadur of Burdwan in connection with his proposed motion suggesting the amendment of the Bengal Settled Estates Act, they certainly thought that the Maharajadhiraja Bahadur would show some courtesy to the Zamindars' Conference if he postponed his motion until the question had been threshed out by the Committee appointed for the purpose in accordance with one of the resolutions of the Zamindars' Conference.'

May I express my hope again that the Maharajadhiraja Bahadur will find his way to withdraw the resolution.'

The Hon'ble BABU KISHORI MOHAN CHAUDHURI said :—

"My Lord, I am in full sympathy with the movement set up by the Hon'ble the Maharajadhiraja Bahadur of Burdwan. I do not see why there should be any difficulty in arriving at a conclusion which should be acceptable to all. If the Zamindars' Association is really anxious to consider the question in all its details they can be done side by side with the official and non-official opinion without taking up much time. I support the resolution."

The Hon'ble MAHARAJADHIRAJA BAHADUR OF BURDWAN said :—

"My Lord, I would have gladly withdrawn the resolution had I thought it would have really done any good. It is true that the versatile Kumar has produced a letter written by the Hon'ble Raja Hrishikesh Laha."

The Hon'ble KUMAR SHIB SHEKHARESWAR RAY said :—

"May I rise to a point of order, Sir? I object to the term 'versatile' used by the Hon'ble Maharajadhiraja Bahadur."

The President said :—

"That is not a point of order."

The Hon'ble MAHARAJADHIRAJA BAHADUR OF BURDWAN said :—

"I have given the letter my best consideration, and with due deference to the views expressed by the Hon'ble Raja Hrishikesh Laha on the matter, I do not think that it would be any good postponing this inquiry through the Government. On the contrary, I am so very convinced that if we are really going to bring this matter to a successful issue before the next Zamindars' Conference takes place we ought to have before us available the best expert opinion to enable us to arrive at a conclusion so that, as I have already said in my speech, when we come up before the Council we do so with all the best opinion available on the subject. If I did not think that to be the proper course, I do not think that, as the President of the British Indian Association or as a member of the Committee regarding which the Hon'ble Kumar has spoken, I would have brought up this resolution at the present stage. Moreover, when the Government are agreeable to take up the inquiry especially after the resolution passed by the Zamindars' Conference, we should not lose this opportunity of getting—really gratis for ourselves—all the best opinion available in the Province. I would like to point out to the Hon'ble Kumar the wording of the resolution that was adopted at the Zamindars' Conference. The wording is 'This Conference is of opinion that the enactment of an Impartible and Inalienable Estates Act for the protection of Zamindars of Bengal is desirable and that a Committee consisting of the following gentlemen be appointed to examine the question with a view to memorialise the Government on the subject.' Surely there is nothing in the resolution which is likely to clash with my resolution to-day. If we are going to memorialize the Government, is it not essential, is it not the most successful course to try to get the best opinion you can get before you send in your memorial? The view taken up by the Hon'ble Kumar might have serious effect on me, for it might make others think that I am trying to commit a breach of trust with the Committee. I am afraid the Hon'ble Kumar has misunderstood my intention. It is not my intention in any way to belittle the importance of the Committee regarding which I spoke in my introductory remarks, and that has been made amply clear by the Hon'ble Kumar himself when he says that there are zamindars who will send in their opinions which are really the opinion of paid lawyers. I think he will find that when this information is gathered the Committee will be saved the trouble of going to those zamindars whose opinions count for nothing because their opinions will be written for them. We really want opinions of those who have taken an interest in this Conference and who have showed a desire to do something for their class. And if this information gathered through the agency of Government cannot be acceptable to them, I do not know what opinion would be acceptable. For these reasons, my Lord, I would like to press my resolution."

Resolutions.Raja Hrishikesh Laha; Mr. Irwin.

The Hon'ble RAJA HRISHIKESH LAHA said :—

"My Lord, a word of explanation is necessary from me. The letter that has been read by the Hon'ble Kumar contains the opinion of the British Indian Association and not my own. What is proposed in the resolution moved by the Hon'ble Maharajadhiraj will, I think, help the zamindars' conference in coming to a right conclusion. If they have before them all the opinions that are given to Government on the subject, they would be able to formulate their proposals, and also the Government will not be placed in a very difficult position in regard to ascertaining correct views on the subject. I, therefore, support the resolution."

The motion was then agreed to.

LIST OF BUSINESS—ITEM No. 12.

The Hon'ble MR. IRWIN moved :—

This Council recommends to the Governor in Council that—

- (i) the teaching of Hygiene and Sanitation by duly qualified teachers be made compulsory in all State aided schools, both for boys and girls, in the Province ;
- (ii) these subjects be included as compulsory subjects for the University Matriculation Examination ; and
- (iii) provision for the above be made in the next budget.

He said :—

"My Lord, the resolution which stands in my name was on the agenda for the last Council meeting, but time did not permit of its being discussed and it was therefore postponed to the present meeting.

In my opinion it needs very few words by way of commendation; it must. I venture to think, commend itself to every sensible thinking person who has the true interests of the country at heart.

Resolutions.

Mr. Irwin.

Subsequent to the framing of this resolution, I read in the daily papers the report of a speech delivered by Your Excellency at Burdwan on the 9th ultimo, in which you said that one of the tasks which you cherish the laudable ambition to accomplish during your tenure of office is that of a big advance in the combat of disease in this Province, and this you repeated in the course of your most interesting address on the subject of malaria delivered in this Chamber on the 29th ultimo to the members of the District Boards of Nadia, Jessore and the 24-Parganas.

I beg respectfully to congratulate Your Excellency, and I am sure that all here present will agree with me that a more noble object it is impossible to conceive, and it encourages me to hope that you will lend a favourable ear to my suggestion to-day.

The present time seems very appropriate in which to introduce a resolution of this nature into this Council when the University Commission is sitting and deliberating on what alterations, if any, shall be made in the curriculum of studies and education being carried on in the school and Colleges of India.

I may say here that in response to a printed circular request from the University Commission for suggestions, I have already recommended the course embodied in my resolution.

One of the Old Latin authors speaks of the 'Mens sana in corpore sano.' I think that with the exception perhaps of poor, unhappy Russia, which by the way may well be taken as an object-lesson at the present time by our would-be legislators, no country in the world is more in need of the 'mens sana' than our country of India.

All of us here present must be well acquainted with the terribly insanitary condition in which fully 90 per cent. of the inhabitants of India live and the filthy state in which the immediate vicinity of their dwelling places is kept.

As an instance of the appalling indifference of lower class Indians of the present day to the question of sanitation, I may quote from the resolution of the United Provinces Government on the working of the District Boards for last year. In 1912 the Local Government introduced, as an experiment, the system of granting small sums to village committees, for the purpose of 'keeping their villages clean in their own way.' Most of the villages refused to take them, and so the experiment has been abandoned in all but three districts.

Thus even when given money free, for purposes of sanitation, villagers refused to make use of it.

Nothing, surely, My Lord, but persistent education can overcome this terrible apathy as regards health, and it is to this end that my proposal tends.

Even uneducated Indians are cleanly in their persons, but, to Western ideas at all events, there is a singular inconsistency in their habits. To give an instance, some of us must often have seen and wondered greatly at people standing up to their waists in water, washing their clothes and persons and then finally, before leaving, scooping up with their hands and rinsing out their mouths and necessarily, to a certain extent, absorbing the very water impregnated with the scouring of their clothes and persons.

Surely the inference may very well be drawn that such a deleterious habit must arise from ignorance of the danger incurred to health from it, and if only the habit of cleanliness in their food and surroundings as well as in their persons were to be persistently inculcated from youth that it would in time come to be regularly adopted, as the rising generation grows up, and then become second nature, greatly to the benefit of future generations.

Even in the most highly educated and civilized countries of the world it is comparatively of very recent years that the benefits arising from hygiene and sanitation have been recognized, and the effect which even the most ordinary precautions, such as the boiling of milk or drinking water, may have on the health or mortality of the consumers.

The ravages of diseases which prove most fatal in this country, viz., malaria and intestinal complaints of all descriptions, are particularly susceptible of mitigation to a certain extent at all events often by the most simple measures of sanitation.

Only recently Dr. Bentley, the Sanitary Commissioner of Bengal, has been giving a most interesting series of lectures, illustrated by lantern slides, on this subject, both in Darjeeling and Kurseong, and I was greatly struck by the intelligent interest displayed even by the lowest classes, and the questions which were subsequently put to me on the subject by some of my own people.

Dr. Bentley demonstrated the great danger of diseases, arising from impure water and milk, and fly-contaminated food, which are amongst the most common but also the most fatal in this country; at the same time he pointed out how often and how easily they can be mitigated and checked by the most simple methods.

It is, however, hopeless to expect to change the habits of centuries in a day, or a month, or a year.

The children of the present generation will be the fathers and mothers of the generation to come; let Government step in and insist that in all State-aided schools and Colleges, qualified instructors shall teach habits and methods of cleanliness not only in the person but in the food, the dwelling places and their surroundings, and without doubt another generation will demonstrate the beneficial result.

Mrs. Besant, in the course of her address on behalf of the Home Rule League to his Excellency the Viceroy and the Secretary of State at Delhi on 26th November last, attributes 'the short life period' and 'the high death rate' in this country to 'the lack of education, the appalling poverty and increasing indebtedness of the agricultural population' consequent on the inefficiency of the 'ruling oligarchy.'

I venture to think, My Lord, that if more sanitary habits and methods of living were imbued into the lives of the people, that 'the appalling poverty,' which in comparison with other countries I venture to doubt, and 'the increasing indebtedness of the agricultural population,' the accuracy of which statement I also question, might be eliminated as factors conducing to 'the high death rate' which she attributes to the misrule of her fellow countrymen.

According to the Englishman of 29th December last, I see that a resolution was passed, at a meeting of the Indian National Congress, held on the previous day to the following effect—

'That, having regard to the havoc caused, year after year, by malaria, plague and other epidemics and pestilences, this congress urges that question of sanitation should receive a far larger measure of attention than they do at present and that adequate steps be taken for the sanitary improvement of the country.'

Resolutions.Mr. Irwin; Mr. Arden Wood.

I think, My Lord, that the method I suggest 'for the sanitary improvement of the country', i.e., by teaching the people themselves to give a 'larger measure of attention' to their sanitation, will prove in the long run far more efficacious and far less expensive than any other that can be devised.

I think after reading the above-quoted resolution that I may confidently rely on the support of most of my hon'ble friends of Indian nationality in this Council for my resolution and perhaps some of the medical experts present will express their opinions on the subject. I may say, My Lord, that I am authorised by Surgeon-General Edwards, our late Surgeon-General in this Province, and now Director-General of Medical Service in India, to say that this resolution has his strong support.

I may further say that I understand on good authority that a similar resolution is likely to be introduced very shortly in the Bombay Council, and further that it is likely to receive the favourable consideration of that Government.

Much more might I know be said in support of this resolution, but the benefit to be derived, if it be acceded to, is, I venture to think, so obvious that I will not take up any more of the valuable time of the Council by adducing further arguments, but will commend it to the favourable consideration of Government with the hope that not only will it be accepted, but that it will be given effect to with the least possible delay and not put in a pigeon-hole for possible further consideration at some future date."

The Hon'ble MR. ARDEN WOOD said :—

"My Lord, I venture to think that the Hon'ble Mr. Irwin has done good service by moving this resolution, and I am glad to give my hearty support to the principles that underlie it, if not to the resolution itself. For if there ever was a practical question it is this question of public health, and it is one, to the importance of which, in its larger aspects, Your Excellency's Government is clearly alive. I take it that the consideration that has affected the mover, as it affects all of us, is the terrible waste of human efficiency, and the economic loss to the country, owing to preventable ill-health. We should all welcome any steps that could be taken to increase the physical well-being of the people of this province. But it seems to me that the first condition of improvement is the awakening and enlightenment of public opinion on sanitary questions, on the prevention of disease, on the alleviation of physical disability. And I confess that I have no great faith in the teaching of hygiene in schools as a means of bringing this about. What is taught in schools is very apt to stay in the schools. No doubt great good has been done in England by the systematic instruction of the children in primary schools in cleanliness and the care of the person. That is practical. But the conditions in Bengal are widely different. Mr. Jack in his most interesting book 'The Economic Life of a Bengal District' says 'The Bengali is certainly the cleanest race on earth.' What we want public opinion stirred up about in Bengal is not so much personal cleanliness or the ventilation of dwellings, as the conditions of the communicability and spread of disease, the dangers arising from contaminated water and bad food—dangers from which the public in England are now largely protected.

As a matter of fact, hygiene has been taught more or less in schools in England for a number of years, and the subject has been examined upon by various public bodies. But there has not been any very appreciable effect upon public opinion or public health. On the other hand a step has been taken in recent years that has had momentous practical consequences. I refer to the medical inspection of schools. I quote a recently published report in saying that the inspection of school children in England has led to an advance in public health productive of a manifold financial return in national efficiency not expressible in figures.' And although the proportion of children of school-going age in Bengal is relatively small, nevertheless it is, I think, through the medical inspection of school children and the action taken in consequence that a real advance will be made towards the improvement of the public health. And such a procedure is much more likely to arouse the interest of the parents than lessons in hygiene. An Hon'ble Member had a resolution down for a previous meeting of Council proposing this medical inspection of school children. I do not know why he withdrew it ; I should have been glad to support it. Perhaps at the present time there are difficulties in the way of providing the necessary expert inspecting staff. If so, I would suggest that some sort of beginning might be made that would need no expert staff, by making the schools keep a record of the physical measurements of their pupils. This may seem a very small beginning, but I think the practice would tend to arouse interest in the question of personal physical fitness, and the records would certainly be of interest and utility. An accurate record of variations of weight at different seasons of the year would of itself be valuable.

Resolutions.

• Mr. Arden Wood ; Babu Ambika Charan Majumdar.

But even granting that the teaching of hygiene in schools would do no harm and might do some good I am strongly of opinion that the addition of hygiene as a compulsory subject in schools would be unfair to the schools. They already have more subjects to teach than they can do justice to. Let the subject be taught by all means in Training Colleges in association with elementary science. Here it might bear useful fruit.

And the proposal that hygiene should be made a compulsory subject in the Matriculation Examination seems to me to be singularly inopportune at a time when we are hoping that the University Commission will succeed in making the Matriculation what it really should be, namely, a means of selecting those students who are fit to pursue with advantage to themselves a course of liberal education leading to a degree.

I should like to suggest that the Government should consent to take up this important question, and that, on that understanding, the Hon'ble Member should withdraw his well-meant resolution."

The Hon'ble BABU AMBIKA CHARAN MAJUMDAR said :—

"My Lord, I fully appreciate the resolution which has been brought forward by the Hon'ble Mr. Irwin. It divides itself into two branches. First of all, he asks the Government to make the study of hygiene and sanitation a compulsory subject in all State-aided schools. In the second branch, he asks the Government to make it a compulsory subject for the Matriculation examination. No doubt it is of the utmost importance that our young men should know something of the elementary rules of hygiene and of sanitation before they learn anything else. The Hon'ble Member who has just spoken seems to think that medical inspection would be of greater use and advantage than instruction in hygiene and sanitation. I do not clearly understand him. Medical inspection may be very good, but I do not think mere medical inspection without the student being grounded in the elementary rules of hygiene and sanitation can be of much use, because before the medical men go to inspect the schools and to instruct the students the students must know something about hygiene and sanitation. There is no real conflict between the Hon'ble Mr. Irwin and the Hon'ble Member who has just spoken. One may be supplementary to the other ; but at the same time there is some difficulty in making the subject compulsory in the University Matriculation examination. The resolution itself is somewhat self-contradictory. First of all, it asks the Government to make the study of hygiene and sanitation compulsory in State-aided schools, but the University examination is not confined simply to the State-aided schools, and it would be unfair to make a subject compulsory which is not compulsory to all the schools that send up for the Matriculation examination. What I think may be done is to make the subject optional. On this point, I believe, it is the Vice-Chancellor who will be able to speak more authoritatively, although I think if it be made an optional subject, students, who may take it up, will be able to pass better by securing a larger aggregate of marks, and it would be an incentive to non-aided schools to introduce hygiene and sanitation gradually in order to take advantage of the optional subject. In this connection I like to bring to Your Excellency's attention one fact which is of some importance. A good deal of money is being spent in the zanana classes. I know from my experience that our ladies who attend these classes do not like the simple literary education which is given to them. They are taught 'Bodhudaya', 'Charitabali', 'Charupath' and 'Sitarbanabash.' They say, and very rightly say, that they know more than this. In the zanana classes there are ladies who are generally matrons. What they want is that some instruction in sanitation and hygiene should be given to them so that they might attend to their children. They want particularly to know how to attend to their children and how to treat and take care of them in simple cases. I had once a discussion with one of the inspectresses on the subject. She admitted the force of the arguments and also admitted that that was the reason why our zanana class was not a success. She complained, and very rightly complained, that there were no qualified teachers to teach these subjects. The mistresses that are employed have merely literary education, but they have no adequate qualification in hygienical and sanitary rules. With these observations I heartily support the principle embodied in the resolution of the Hon'ble Mr. Irwin, but I do not clearly see my way to support the second branch of this resolution."

The Hon'ble BABU KISHORI MOHAN CHOUDHURI said :—

"My Lord, I have great pleasure in supporting the principle of this resolution, and I am specially thankful to Mr. Irwin as it clearly shows that he feels for us. There is some difficulty, however, in making it compulsory in the beginning. I am also of the opinion of my hon'ble friend Babu Ambika Charan Mazumdar, that it should not be compulsory at first and that special arrangements should be made for teaching the girls sanitation. Malaria and poverty are really the most important questions to be combated against, and as I come from a district which has especially suffered from malaria—I mean the district of Rajshahi—I fully appreciate and am really thankful to the Hon'ble Mr. Irwin for the resolution he has brought forward. I hope something can be done; simply medical inspection or spending some money for the prevention of malaria will not be sufficient. If the boys are taught sanitation they will, when they become the head members of the family, be able to introduce sanitary measures which will benefit the country at large. I have great pleasure in supporting the principle of the resolution with this modification that it may be optional in the beginning and that gradually it will be made compulsory."

The Hon'ble DR. NILRATAN SARKAR said :—

"My Lord, I think it my duty to support generally the resolution moved by the Hon'ble Mr. Irwin. As to the necessity of teaching hygiene and sanitation, there cannot be any question. It has been suggested that the school inspection of children may replace the teaching of sanitary science or hygiene. My Lord, as the Hon'ble Mr. Arden Wood has said, our peasants and our cultivators in the far-off villages are the cleanest of human beings, but does this fact prevent them from falling victims at the earliest chance to dysentery and cholera; and what is the reason that they fall victims to some of the most ordinary diseases that could be prevented. It is only due to the want of knowledge and knowledge only. My Lord, it has been said that knowledge is power, but this common adage applies with peculiar force to the conditions of Bengal at the present moment. The necessity which seems paramount at the present moment is to create a sanitary conscience in our people and to create the conviction in their minds as to certain truths and certain facts which may be palpable to others in better positions. So far as education is concerned, the poor villager does not know that it is the mosquito that is his accursed enemy. He does not know the ordinary rule that by boiling his drinking water he can be saved a world of troubles and miseries and that he can also save himself and his family from death. This is what he is to be told and what he is to be taught, and that ought to be a part of the primary education that we aim at introducing in the country. My Lord, it is a necessity in after-life to have a knowledge of general hygiene and sanitation, and looked at from this point of view, it is a necessity in our organizations—those very organizations which have been created and which are being created by Government whose primary object is to look after the sanitation of the province. Our local bodies have members, many of whom, for the want of sanitary knowledge, find it difficult to discuss and decide sanitary matters, either in compliant and amiable ignorance or oftener in compliant and obstinate refusal. Many of them are placed in very false positions when important measures come before them for discussion. No wonder there is no training in sanitary matters in all the strata of our education. I would like to see sanitary education permeating all the different grades of our education in this country; such a state of things can only be generally favourable to the development of those institutions and the spread of these ideas which Your Excellency's Government aim at in Bengal, because otherwise co-operation from the people is either hopeless or finally impossible.

My Lord, a question has been raised as to whether it should be made a compulsory subject in the Matriculation examination or not. I am unable at this moment to vote with the Hon'ble mover on this point, because this important question of making a course on sanitary science a compulsory subject in the Matriculation is correlated with many other important questions that are not before us to-day, and this question must be discussed and considered in the light of these questions; but there is no doubt that before the Matriculation stage the study of sanitary science should be introduced in our schools; it does not matter whether it is a subject for the Matriculation examination or not. Every student ought to have clear ideas regarding sanitation. Another objection has very often been urged against proposals for introducing sanitary education elsewhere on the ground that the study of sanitary science, as that science is of a composite nature, must be based upon a previous study of some of the simpler sciences like Chemistry, Physics and elementary Biology. I quite agree with those gentlemen who urge this argument against sanitary education without any scientific basis. When we aim at education in sanitary science in the higher grades, that is the sort of sanitary education that is to be imparted to experts, medical men and others concerned with the department; but for the general public we do not require that sort of scientific education, and we must attempt to give a sort of education which can create conviction in the minds of the young people that such a thing has to be done and such a thing has to be avoided, that the mosquito and the fly must be prevented from having access to his rooms anyhow, or that the water must be boiled before use. If we can create such a conviction in the minds of the young people, I think that would be one of the most desirable things in Bengal even if we have to sacrifice the claims of science to some extent. Therefore I feel that from the point of view of necessity as well as from the point of view of practicability to some extent, the resolution deserves our support.

Resolutions.

*Dr. Nilratan Sarkar; Babu Bhabendra Chandra Roy;
Mr. Provash Chandra Mitra.*

The question of teachers is involved in the resolution. My Lord, the President of the State Medical Faculty is present here, and I suppose my statement will be borne out by him when I say that there are 2,500 qualified men on his list—all medical men—who could be utilised for the purpose of diffusing sanitary education in the land. I see no difficulty as regards that. Of course there is the question of finance involved in this matter, but I do not think that it is desired that that question should be discussed here. On the whole, therefore, I think it my duty to support, with my whole heart, clauses (i) and (iii) of the resolution, whereas as regards clause (ii), although I think it is desirable, I am unable to give it my formal support, considering that the question more properly falls with the province of the University."

At this stage the Council was adjourned for lunch.

The Hon'ble BABU BHABENDRA CHANDRA ROY said —

"My Lord, the sight of a non-official European member actively interesting himself in a question affecting the well-being of the Indian community is indeed inspiring to the Indian section of this House. If the Hon'ble Mr. Irwin and his friends, while occupying a bench sacred to the cause of silence, will from now hold out their hand to us in comradeship, we will only too readily grasp it with all the warmth of oriental sincerity and gratitude.

Sir, coming to the subject matter of the resolution, I am in complete sympathy with the Hon'ble mover. The health of our school-children should receive the most careful attention at the hands of the educational authorities. The large percentage of rejections among the recruits to the Bengali Battalion and the Indian Defence Force is an alarming indication how the youth of Bengal stand in point of health. And any measure which may have the effect of promoting the physical well-being of our race is bound to receive our support. An American writer has asked the question "Why not compulsory health for all—children, youths and adults—in so far as it, like education, is individually attainable? It is no more chimerical, Utopian or dangerous", says the writer, "than compulsory education sounded to our forefathers, and it is a good deal more necessary. All sickness is waste, and most of it is unnecessary". This is the verdict of America. And we hope that we shall be able to act up to it in no distant time."

The Hon'ble MR. PROVASH CHANDRA MITRA said :—

"My Lord, in the first place I desire to congratulate most respectfully the Hon'ble mover of this resolution for bringing forward a resolution of such importance before the Council. It is, I believe—I speak subject to correction—the first time in the history of the reformed Council that a non-official European member has brought forward a resolution of this nature touching the welfare of the masses and the classes of Indians in this country and let me hope, My Lord, it is a happy augury of the future. We hope that Indians by birth and Indians by adoption will work together and put their shoulders to the wheel for the common weal of Indians by adoption and of Indians by birth. My Lord, I have every sympathy with the object of this resolution, and I believe that the principles underlying this resolution will do the greatest possible good to my community. If I offer some criticism to the resolution as it stands I do so for furthering the object which the Hon'ble mover has in view and not for defeating the principles of this resolution. From the remarks made by some of my Hon'ble friends who have preceded me two points stand out before us. It has been criticised by the Hon'ble Mr. Arden Wood that the mere introduction of the teaching of hygiene and sanitation will not serve the object in view; that spread of knowledge regarding hygiene and sanitation by experts is the real thing. There is a good deal of truth in this criticism. It has also been pointed out by the Hon'ble Dr. Sarkar that introduction of study of sanitation and hygiene in our school curricula will spread knowledge about hygiene and sanitation. What I mean is this: it is the business of experts to find out the truths about these matters by patient investigations, but mere finding out of the truth will not do—the truths have got to be put before the public and the truths have got to be assimilated by the public at large and what better medium can there be than of our schools where children will learn those truths which the patient labour and researches of experts have found out. Therefore, it seems to me, My Lord, that it is as much necessary to give effect to the criticisms of the Hon'ble Mr. Arden Wood as it is necessary to introduce a knowledge of hygiene into our schools and universities. But, My Lord, the portion of the resolution to which I have some criticisms to offer is the portion where the Hon'ble mover seeks to make the teaching of hygiene compulsory in our schools and in our University. I feel that at the present moment we have not got enough competent teachers; when I say we have not got competent teachers I do not mean that there are none; there may be some teachers but the number will be insufficient to teach all boys if these subjects be made compulsory, and what I suggest to my Hon'ble friend the mover of the resolution is that instead of making hygiene and sanitation compulsory to start by making it optional, and subject to the approval of the Hon'ble mover I should like clause (i) to read as follows:—

Resolutions.

Mr. Prowash Chandra Mitra; Dr. Howells.

- (i) The teaching of hygiene and sanitation by duly qualified teachers be made optional in all State-aided schools, both for boys and girls in the province.

Then as regards clause (ii) I should like to read it as follows:—

- (ii) These subjects be included as optional subjects for the University Matriculation examination.

As regards clause (iii) I would suggest my Hon'ble friend the mover to delete it for the present. The subject is one of such importance that I do not think that we should hastily attempt to make provision for it in the budget of the current year. If the subject has got to be tackled with any seriousness then it must cost a large sum of money. The budget of the present year is more or less a fixed thing and after all, however important the subject may be, a delay of one year will not be a delay which will be thrown away. In this one year we may properly investigate into the question; and we may properly consider how the matter can be best introduced and how the money can be best utilised. I suggest that instead of provision for giving effect to the resolution being made in the next budget such provision may be made in the budget of the following year. With these remarks I support the principles of this resolution."

The Hon'ble Dr. HOWELLS said:—

"My Lord, I do not know whether I find myself in full agreement in any one of the three points mentioned in the resolution, but I am in most hearty agreement with what the speaker wants. It seems to me exceedingly fundamental in our plans for progress that there should be spread by every possible legitimate means a larger knowledge of sanitation and hygiene. The amount of ignorance on matters of this kind now in existence from Chairmen of Municipalities down to common coolies is simply appalling. It is seldom that you get men apart from those who have come in immediate touch with the results of sanitation and are in touch with medical practice who are aware of its great effect on health. It is really rare to find in the ordinary man any knowledge of sanitation and hygiene and all that it stands for. How far actually teaching in schools may be helpful it will be difficult to say. But one thing I do know that in an area of which I have some practical experience, practical demonstration proved to be exceedingly helpful and that is the introduction of filtered water in the town of Serampore. The number of people who believed in filtered water in Serampore three years ago was exceedingly limited. But the manifest effects of filtered water on the health of the people, the rapid decline in cholera owing to the introduction of filtered water has now become known to the common coolie. I should say that a simple demonstration like this would have more beneficent effect and would spread sanitary knowledge in the district than years and years of sanitary teaching would do without such demonstration in our schools. No amount of teaching unless it is backed up by a persistent and steady advance in the way of introducing measures of this character throughout the length and breadth of Bengal as far as finances allow would do any good. Practical demonstration seems to me the permanent solution of the problem. More than twenty years ago when I came out to this country I had the privilege of teaching in a high school and in those days there was a selection of books in connection with the Calcutta University in which there were several chapters on sanitation. I had to teach sanitation as contained in those chapters. That was rather a perfunctory way of teaching sanitation. And unless sanitation has some real and practical background, I am doubtful whether it will produce in any way any good result. We are all of the same opinion on the importance of the subject and the desirability of introducing a conscience on the subject amongst the people. After all it is not long since that we English people have come out of the dark in this connection. In the days of our fathers the idea of sanitation was of a very fundamental character, and if we read of the conditions in old Calcutta, we find that it reflected very little credit on the part of those concerned and we can only say that there was very little or no idea of sanitation a hundred years ago. But the most satisfactory thing in Europe amongst the working classes is that there is a real conscience among them of sanitation and hygiene. And how has this come about? The Hon'ble Mr. Arden Wood mentions about inspection of schools by doctors. But is it to be on a compulsory or voluntary basis? I think this would be beset with difficulties. I think that if the Government promises to look into the question and see what steps can be taken for giving effect to the purposes of this resolution, it would be the best way of dealing with this. The question of combating the positive ignorance of the people in regard to sanitation is a serious one, and it is also necessary to deal with the mischievous idea that is prevalent about sanitation."

The Hon'ble RAI RADHA CHARAN PAL BAHADUR said :—

"My Lord, I rise to give my support to the resolution that has been moved by my Hon'ble friend Mr. Irwin. I have followed with considerable interest the preceding speakers and I find that there is a consensus of opinion in support of the resolution that has been moved by the Hon'ble Mr. Irwin. Some of my friends say that they support the principle of the resolution but they do not go far to support some of the details." So far as I am concerned I have not been able to quite follow some of my Hon'ble friends who have preceded me and who think that it is not needed to make the study of hygiene and sanitation compulsory in schools or for the Matriculation examination. I think, My Lord, as far as I have been able to gather, that there is much in the proposal to make the study of hygiene and sanitation compulsory to commend itself to this Council. I remember also that Bengali was at first an optional subject in the Matriculation examination in my days, and I believe it is now a compulsory subject. I know very well how much the study of our own language was neglected in those days when Bengali was merely an optional subject for the Matriculation examination and also for the First Arts which is now called the Intermediate Examination. I think, My Lord, there is nothing, so far as my community is concerned, objectionable to make the study of hygiene and sanitation a compulsory subject in the Matriculation examination. The Hon'ble Mr. Arden Wood has said that the Matriculation examination is intended to examine the fitness of students who go in for the Arts examination, i.e., for the higher courses of study. I believe the study of books is a comprehensive thing and the study of hygiene and sanitation may well be included in the curriculum of the Calcutta University. I do not, in supporting the resolution of the Hon'ble Mr. Irwin, minimise the importance of remedial measures regarding the improvement of the condition of things in villages and in mufassal towns in addition to the supply of filtered water, the improvement of drainage, the cutting of jungles and many other things. I believe that in addition to other subjects the study of hygiene and sanitation in our schools and pathshalas will be very useful in attaining the object we all have in view, namely, the general improvement in the sanitary condition of this Presidency and especially of Indian homes and surroundings. With this view, as a member of the Indian community, I gladly welcome the resolution which has been moved by the Hon'ble Mr. Irwin in the interest of our community."

The Hon'ble SIR S. P. SINHA said :—

"My Lord, I need hardly assure my Hon'ble friends that the Government is in entire sympathy with the object of the Hon'ble Mr. Irwin in moving this resolution. That object, I conceive, is to be attained by the spreading of the knowledge of ordinary simple rules of hygiene amongst the people and thereby rendering them more capable of avoiding those unhealthy conditions which lead to disease. I can assure the Council that this subject has received for a long time past the earnest and continuous attention of Government. In the well-known resolution of the Government of India on the educational policy of Government, dated the 31st February 1913, the Government of India said this :

'The claims of hygiene are paramount not only in the interests of the children themselves, though these are all-important, but also as an object-lesson to the rising generation. Hitherto want of funds and the apathy of the people have been responsible for the comparatively small attention paid to hygiene.'

I am afraid we have not progressed very far in either of these directions. The resolution goes on to say :

'In some provinces a simple course of instruction in hygiene is prescribed at some period of the school course, but the lessons are often of too formal a type, are not connected with the life of the pupil and fail to form his habits or to enlist his intelligence in after-life in the struggle against disease. In some areas, there is a general inspection of school premises by medical authorities; but it is believed that little is done for the individual inspection of school children, and that medical advice has not always been enlisted in regard to the length of the school day, the framing of curricula, and such matters. The Government of India commend to local Governments a thorough enquiry by a small committee of experts, medical and educational, into school and college hygiene. The scope of the enquiry will no doubt vary in different parts of the province, but the following seem to be important matters for investigation :—

- (i) The condition of school houses, hostels and other places where pupils reside, from the point of view of sanitation.
- (ii) The professional examination of building plans, from the hygienic point of view.

Resolutions.Sir S. P. Sinha.

- (iii) The introduction of a simple and more practical course of hygiene ; whether it should be a compulsory subject in the various schemes of school-leaving certificates, and whether it should be recommended to Universities as part of their Matriculation examination. (This is the subject matter of the resolution.)
- (iv) The inspection, where possible, of male scholars, with special reference to infectious diseases, eye-sight and malaria. (This point has been mentioned by the Hon'ble Mr. Arden Wood.)
- (v) The length of the school day, home studies, and the effect upon health of the present system of working for formal examinations.
- (vi) The requirements in the way of recreation grounds, gardens, gymnasias, reading rooms, common rooms, etc.
- (vii) The inspecting and administrating agency required, the possibility of co-operation with existing organisations and the provision of funds.

Now in pursuance of that policy, in 1913 the Government of Bengal appointed a representative committee to enquire into the whole subject of school and college hygiene. The committee included men of practical experience and insight into educational problems, both from the physical and intellectual point of view. It was presided over by the Director of Public Instruction (Mr. Hornell) and its members were Colonel Clemasha, the then Sanitary Commissioner, the Sanitary Engineer, Dr. Grey, the Adviser on Physical Education to the Government of Bengal, Colonel Deare, Sir Kailash Chandra Bose, Mr. Smith Allen, Miss Brocke, Mr. Saroda Ranjan Das and Maulvi Wahed Khan Bahadur with Mr. Stark of the Education Department as Secretary, and amongst the subjects which they were asked to enquire into were the introduction of a simple and practical course of hygiene, whether it should be compulsory and whether it should be recommended to the University as a subject in the Matriculation examination. That committee held protracted sittings and afterwards made an unanimous recommendation to the Government of Bengal. They were of opinion that there should be a course of hygiene and sanitation for the four upper classes of high schools, for which at present there was no provision ; but the difficulty they felt was the want of teachers to whom the task of teaching these children could be confided. As regards European schools, steps have been taken on the basis of the syllabus drawn up by the hygiene committee to make the study of hygiene compulsory both for boys and girls. As regards Indian schools, the Government accepted the principle that the teaching of hygiene should be an integral part of the secondary school course and that a working knowledge of hygiene should be a sine qua non of the teachers, and for that purpose it would be necessary to include hygiene in the course for training schools. There is a scheme now being prepared by the Director of Public Instruction with that object, that is, for introducing hygiene in the course for training schools. I am sure the Hon'ble Mr. Irwin will be the first to recognise that we cannot carry out his resolution, even if we wanted to, unless we had duly qualified teachers who are to carry out the teaching of hygiene in the schools. The first thing, therefore, is to get the teachers. We are having a scheme prepared and it is to be hoped that we shall have in the near future funds to carry out that scheme. As I was telling the House with reference to the report of the committee, we sent up a comprehensive scheme of school and college hygiene costing Rs. 50,000 a year. We had accepted the suggestion that oral instructions should be supplemented by magic lanterns, charts and diagrams. The Government of India, after carefully considering our scheme, expressed their general approval of it, subject to a very important condition, namely, that the Government of Bengal should be able to finance it from provincial revenues when normal conditions were restored. Therefore, with the greatest possible desire to give effect to the general demand for providing a certain amount of teaching of hygiene and sanitary science in the schools, we have not got, first of all, the teachers to do it ; and, secondly, we have not got the money either to train the teachers and we have got to wait till we can get both money and teachers. Now that I have explained the attitude of Government with regard to the first part of the Hon'ble Mr. Irwin's resolution, namely, the provision for the teaching of hygiene in aided schools, I may mention for the information of the Hon'ble mover that that scheme includes as one of its essential portions a scheme for the medical inspection of children in schools. The Government believe that both are necessary for the objects which we all have in view—the medical inspection of children as well as the teaching of hygiene and sanitary science.

Taking the second part of the Hon'ble Mr. Irwin's resolution, that also, as I have already said, has been engaging the attention of the Government of India and of this Government, and after consulting the local Governments, the Government of India came to the conclusion somewhat contrary to their first idea that it would not be desirable to make the course in hygiene in higher institutions compulsory. They point out to us in their letter of the 18th January 1917 that 'such of the local Governments as have intimated their opinion were not in favour of the teaching of hygiene as a separate subject for examination. The Government of India are prepared to accept this conclusion, for as a result of further consideration, they are themselves inclined that the insistence on the instruction of pupils in hygiene with a view to an examination test would probably only lead to a somewhat formal and superfluous course of instruction. They are disposed to think that a preferable alternative would be to give practical instruction to teachers in hygiene. In these circumstances, having regard to the fact that a test in hygiene does not properly fall within the scope of an University examination as such, the Government of India are not at present prepared to invite the Calcutta University to consider whether sanitation and hygiene should be recognised as alternative subjects for the matriculation examination.' I think that disposes of the second portion of the resolution, as regards hygiene and sanitary science being made compulsory subjects for the University examination.

With regard to the third point, the conclusion follows from what I have already said before that it would be premature altogether, even if it were possible, to talk of making allotments in the budget for this purpose. We are all of us convinced that in the interests of the pupils, it is necessary to create or to stimulate the 'sanitary conscience.' It is recognised that one of the best ways of doing that is to give a certain amount of instruction in the schools with regard to hygiene and sanitary science, but for that purpose there are two things that are essential—first, the provision of an adequate number of well-equipped teachers and, secondly, funds. Neither of these is available, and, I am afraid, neither will be available for some little time to come. We must be satisfied, therefore, with the gradual progress that is being made, and I am sure Hon'ble Members will recognise that some progress has been already made, and that we must trust to better times for the purpose of carrying out the full programme sketched in the resolution of the Hon'ble Mr. Irwin."

The Hon'ble Mr. IRWIN said :—

"My Lord, in deference to what appears to be the general wish of Hon'ble Members, I am prepared to agree to substitute the word 'optional' for the word 'compulsory' in the second paragraph of my resolution. I would further ask Your Lordship's permission to add to the first paragraph of my resolution the following words :—

Resolutions.Mr. Irwin.

'and that grants be made to unaided schools for similar teaching under conditions to be settled by the Director of Public Instruction.'

As regards the objection of want of funds, surely, My Lord, I need say nothing more than that for such an object there are many other projects which should be set aside or postponed until less stringent times.

As to the difficulty of providing qualified instructors, I would ask if the assistance of the Sanitary Commissioner, who is also the Professor of Hygiene at the Medical College, has been sought?

Dr. Bentley assures me that, if given the means and authority, he would guarantee to provide sound teaching in a hundred municipalities in the Province within six months. Has not the appointment of a Deputy Sanitary Commissioner been already sanctioned? If so, why has it not been given effect to by the appointment of a qualified man? Less than Rs. 10,000 would suffice for this.

In conclusion, I have here, My Lord, a most interesting pamphlet on this subject published, in 1877, by Dr. John Murdock, from which none will admit of my quoting to-day, but which I commend to the notice of the authorities. It is prefaced by the words :—

'An appeal to the Indian Government, the Director of Public Instruction and the University Authorities on behalf of the Dumb Millions of India, the victims of indescribable misery and whose death-roll is doubled from a violation of the Laws of Health.'

If those words, My Lord, do not appeal to those in authority to give a favourable ear to my resolution, nothing that I can add will. I can only appeal to Government not to neglect this opportunity of trying to relieve the sufferings of millions."

The PRESIDENT said :—

"Does the Hon'ble mover wish to move the resolution in the amended form?"

The Hon'ble Mr. IRWIN said :—

"If Your Lordship permits me, I would move the resolution in the following amended form:—

This Council recommends to the Governor in Council that—

- (i) the teaching of Hygiene and Sanitation by duly qualified teachers be made compulsory in all State-aided schools, both for boys and girls, in the province; and that grants be made to unaided schools for similar teaching under conditions to be settled by the Director of Public Instruction;
- (ii) these subjects be included as optional subjects for the University Matriculation Examination; and
- (iii) provision for the above be made in the next budget."

LIST OF BUSINESS—ITEM No. 14.

The Hon'ble RAI MAHENDRA CHANDRA MITRA BAHADUR moved the following resolution :—

This Council recommends to the Governor in Council that a special division of the Public Works Department, to be called "the Damodar Embankment and Drainage Division", be formed with effect from the beginning of the next official year.

He said :—

"My Lord, the necessity for embankments in the district of Hooghly has long been recognised, and they date back to a period anterior to British rule. It was, in fact, considered to be a duty of the zamindars 'to secure their lands from inundation by repairing the embankments.' The cost of repairing the ~~bands~~ was known as ~~pu~~ and was realised by the zamindars from the tenants concerned. When the British took over the ceded districts, numerous embankments were in existence in Hooghly, the most important being within the Burdwan Raj Estate, which owned those along the Damodar.

From the earliest times the district of Burdwan has been protected from floods by embankments along the Damodar. At first individual efforts rather than public contribution provided for their construction. A landowner whose field was threatened would construct a bandh to save it with the result that the flood water would attack some other point further down. The process would be repeated again and again until the banks of the river were protected by a series of regular embankments. Before the last half of the nineteenth century, however, these were neither so extensive nor so strong as to effectually check the fury of the great floods to which hill-fed streams, such as the Damodar, are liable, and the early history of the district is full of accounts of disastrous floods which breach the embankments and caused widespread damage. The earliest recorded occurred in 1770, and the injury which it caused to the winter rice crop intensified the famine of that year. The inundation was first observed on the 29th September, when the waters of the Damodar rose to a level with the top of the embankment and near the western extremity of the town of Burdwan, the embankment gradually gave way. The damage was repaired, but four or five days later a second rising of the river resulted in the entire destruction of the embankment. Every effort to check the violence of the torrents proved in vain and the town of Burdwan was almost totally destroyed, not an earth-built hut remained, and even houses constructed with bricks suffered considerably.

Mr. W. W. Hunter, of the Bengal Civil Service, furnished the following information to the Hon'ble George Campbell, one of the Judges of Her Majesty's Supreme Court of Judicature in Bengal, and President of the Famine Commission, in the Minutes appended to the Famine Report of 1769-88 :—

'Before the end of the rainy season in 1770 the evident depopulation had excited grave apprehension in the minds of the Council. While a third of a generation of the poor had been thus swept from the face of the earth, a whole generation of once rich families had been reduced to poverty. On every side we hear of the revenue famines, a wealthy class, who then stood forth as the visible Government to the common people, being unable to realise the land tax, stripped off their office, their persons imprisoned and their lands, the sole dependence of their families, re-let. The ancient houses of Bengal, who were afterwards acknowledged by the British Government as the lords of the soil, fared still worse. The Raja of Burdwan, whose province had been the first to cry out, and one of the last to obtain relief, died miserably towards the end of the famine, leaving a treasury so utterly drained that his son, a boy of sixteen, had to melt down the family plate, and, when this was exhausted, to beg a temporary loan, in order to perform his father's obsequies. Ten or fifteen years later we find the unfortunate prince, unable to satisfy the Government demands, a prisoner in his own palace. His successor at the present day enjoys an income reputed at more than a hundred thousand sterling * * *. The two great potentates in the west of Lower Bengal were reserved for a more cruel fate. At the close of the famine, the Revenue Agents, being unable to wring the land tax out of their depopulated estates, were sharply dispossessed and when the local records open we find one of the princes, the aged Hindu Raja of Bishenpore, let out of the debtor's prison only to die, and the other, the youthful Mussalman Raja of Birbhum, hardly suffered to obtain his majority before he was confined for arrears'.

Another flood which seems to have been equally disastrous occurred in Burdwan in 1787. Describing the damage caused by it, the Collector,

Resolutions.Rai Mahendra Chandra Mitra Bahadur.

Mr. Kinloch, wrote: 'The town is totally destroyed, not a vestige of a mud house remaining and even those built of brick are many of them fallen or so entirely damaged that a longer residence in them becomes dangerous. Many people have lost their lives and great number of cattle are drowned.'

The inundation of 1823, which commenced on the night of the 26th September, was caused by the bursting of the Damodar, the Baghirathi and minor streams.

The flood of 1855 resulted in the destruction of the embankment on the right side of the Damodar in the district of Burdwan.

The successive floods of the Damodar in recent years which are so well known have made the material condition of the people very bad and the sufferings of the inhabitants of the affected localities can be better imagined than described.

At present the South-Western Circle of the Public Works Department, is divided into four divisions, viz. :—(1) Cossye, (2) Northern Drainage and Embankment, (3) Circular and Eastern Canals and (4) Midnapore Canal Revenue Division.

(1) The Cossye Division contains the districts of Midnapore, Hooghly and Howrah, with divisional headquarters at Midnapore.

(2) The Northern Drainage and Embankment Division contains the district of Hooghly, Burdwan, Birbhum, 24-Parganas and Howrah with the divisional headquarters in Calcutta.

(3) The Circular and Eastern Canal Division comprises the districts of Khulna, 24-Parganas, Jessore, Bakarganj and Faridpur, having the divisional headquarters in Calcutta.

(4) Midnapore Canal Revenue Division contains the districts of Midnapore and Howrah, having the divisional headquarters at Midnapore.

The Central Circle is divided into two divisions, namely, (1) Burdwan and (2) Nadia Rivers Division.

(1) The Burdwan Division contains the districts of Hooghly, Burdwan, Birbhum, Bankura and Jessore, with divisional headquarters at Hooghly.

(2) The Nadia Rivers Division comprises the districts of Murshidabad, Nadia, Burdwan and Birbhum, having the divisional headquarters at Berhampore.

Incorporation of the above-named districts in the several divisions, as noted above, is neither geographically nor politically consistent. These divisions are rather arbitrary. Therefore, the above districts as comprised in two circles should be re-distributed and in consideration of the gravity of the situation caused by the Damodar floods in the districts of Howrah, Hooghly and Burdwan, some of the aforesaid divisions should be amalgamated and without incurring further expenditure a special division of the Public Works Department to be called the 'Damodar Embankment and Drainage Division' can be formed. The question of mitigating the untold sufferings of the vast population of more than 800 villages is a very important one.

Therefore, from the administrative point of view, the formation of the 'Damodar Embankment and Drainage Division' with divisional headquarters at Burdwan or Hooghly and not in Calcutta is very desirable and urgent.

With these few words, My Lord, I move the resolution for the acceptance of Your Excellency's Council."

Resolutions.Mr. Cumming; Rai Mahendra Chandra Mitra Bahadur.

The Hon'ble MR. CUMMING said :—

"Sir, the historical aspect of the Hon'ble Member's speech is somewhat wanting in relevancy; but as regards his suggestion for a re-distribution of the organization of the Public Works Department, there is much to be said; and, indeed, if the Hon'ble Member will examine the past records of the Department, he will find that the Department has not been unwilling to re-distribute its staff as occasion requires.

As regards this particular point, namely, that a special division of the Public Works Department, to be called the Damodar Embankment and Drainage Division, be constituted, I desire to say at once on behalf of Government that the formation of such a division is contemplated. The area in question, as correctly stated, is included in the Northern Drainage and Embankment Division, which is a heavy charge; and a further subdivision of responsibility is undesirable. At the same time, it must be made clear that it is not possible, owing to the insufficiency of staff, to say that the division will be formed at the beginning of the next official year or even during the currency of the war. It should be remembered that war is responsible for the reduction of more than one-fourth in the superior staff of the Public Works Department, and it is with extreme difficulty that the existing organization can be carried on even as it is. If the Hon'ble Member would be prepared to alter the terms of his resolution by the substitution of the words 'as soon as possible,' for the words 'with effect from the beginning of the next official year,' then Government would be prepared to accept the resolution in the modified form."

The Hon'ble RAI MAHENDRA CHANDRA MITRA BAHADUR said :—

"My Lord, I accept the suggestions made by the Hon'ble Mr. Cumming and beg to move the resolution in the following amended form :—

'This Council recommends to the Governor in Council that a special division of the Public Works Department, to be called 'the Damodar Embankment and Drainage Division' be formed as soon as possible.'

The motion was put in the amended form and agreed to.

LIST OF BUSINESS—ITEM NO. 15.

The following resolution which stood in the name of the Hon'ble RAI MAHENDRA CHANDRA MITRA BAHADUR was, by leave of the President, withdrawn :—

This Council recommends to the Governor in Council that Mr. O. Addams-Williams of the Public Works Department be placed in charge of the proposed Damodar Embankment and Drainage Division.

LIST OF BUSINESS—ITEM NO. 16.

The Hon'ble RAI MAHENDRA CHANDRA MITRA BAHADUR moved the following resolution :—

This Council recommends to the Governor in Council that a Standing Committee of officials and non-officials for the proposed Damodar Embankment and Drainage Division be constituted, with the Commissioner of the Burdwan Division as President.

Resolutions.

Mr. Cumming; Maulvi Abul Kasem; Rai Mahendra Chandra Mitra Bahadur.

He said :—

"My Lord, this resolution speaks for itself, and I submit that a Standing Committee ought to be appointed."

The Hon'ble MR. CUMMING said :—

"Sir, the Hon'ble Mover's speech is commendably short. Presumably he refers to the Committee, the constitution of which was contemplated in the resolution of the 3rd July, 1906. In accordance with that resolution, Committees were formed for many districts, including those in the Damodar basin, namely, the Midnapur, Bankura, Birbhum, Burdwan, Hooghly and Howrah districts. The personnel was to consist of the Commissioner of the Division as President, and the Collector, the Superintending Engineer, the Executive Engineer, the District Engineer, and selected landholders as members. The attention of the Commissioner will be drawn to the appointment of such Standing Committees, and the lists of names of landholders will be revised in accordance with existing conditions and requirements. Under the terms of that resolution, such Standing Committees are to be convened by the Commissioner when required.

In this case, again, Government would be prepared to accept the recommendation in the resolution, if the wording be slightly altered. I suggest for the Hon'ble Member's consideration that the resolution might read as follows :—

'This Council recommends to the Governor in Council that Standing Committees of officials and non-officials for the districts in the Damodar basin be constituted in accordance with the terms of the resolution of the 3rd July, 1906.'

If the Hon'ble Member would accept this as a modification of his original resolution, on behalf of Government, I would be prepared to accept it."

The Hon'ble MAULVI ABUL KASEM said :—

"My Lord, after the assurance given by the Hon'ble Mr. Cumming, that if the changes proposed by him be acceptable to the Hon'ble Mover, the resolution will be accepted by Government, I do not think that I need trouble the Council with any speech of mine. I hope that the Hon'ble Mover will accept the suggestions of the Hon'ble Member in charge."

The Hon'ble RAI MAHENDRA CHANDRA MITRA BAHADUR then moved the resolution in the following amended form :—

"This Council recommends to the Governor in Council that Standing Committees of officials and non-officials for the districts in the Damodar basin be constituted in accordance with the terms of the resolution of the 3rd July, 1906."

The motion was put and agreed to.

LIST OF BUSINESS—ITEM No. 17.

The Hon'ble RAI MAHENDRA CHANDRA MITRA BAHADUR moved the following resolution :—

This Council recommends to the Governor in Council that the grade pay of the typists of the Bengal Secretariat be raised from its present scale to a uniform grade of Rs. 40—5—100, with effect from the 1st April, 1918.

Resolutions.Mr. Donald.

He said :—

"My Lord, the history of the typists of the Secretariat may be briefly stated as follows :—

There are only two grades of typists at present, namely, (1) Rs. 30—2—50 and (2) Rs. 50—2—70 ; so it takes a person entering on Rs. 30 ten full years to get up to the Rs. 50 grade, i.e., a living wage. The posts in the other grade are very limited and it falls to the lot of a fortunate few only to obtain Rs. 50—2—70 just after completing their Rs. 30—2—50. Moreover, the typists are not allowed, on any account, to participate in the general clerical line in which the pay and prospects are handsome. The routine clerks in the general line are in receipt of a pay ranging from Rs. 40 to Rs. 100 from which they can rise up to the higher grades of the ministerial service, if they can show their capacity. The routine clerk is generally one who writes up registers, records and despatches papers. A typist of average merit can and should effectively perform these duties. Still, as regards pay and prospects, the typists have not unfortunately been placed on the same footing as that of the routine clerks. The starting pay of a typist is very poor. It should be raised to Rs. 40 and if a progressive pay of Rs. 40—5—100 were given in place of the existing ones, namely, Rs. 30—2—50 and Rs. 50—2—70, it would be only in the fitness of things. Owing to the increased cost of living Rs. 100 in these days in 12 years is not too much to aspire to.

My Lord, with these words I commend this resolution for the favourable consideration of Your Excellency's Council."

The Hon'ble MR. DONALD said :—

"My Lord, the question raised in the resolution of the Hon'ble Member has already been under the consideration of Government in connection with a memorial which was submitted by the typists in the Secretariat. The present rates of pay which have been given by the Hon'ble Member have now been in force for a considerable period, but Government recognize that they are not adequate at the present time and have already come to a decision that they should be improved. We agree with the Hon'ble Member that Rs. 40 should be the minimum wage. This is the minimum wage for a clerk in the Lower Division and we consider that a typist should be remunerated at not less than this figure. We further see no reason in having two grades of typists since all do the same work and except from the point of view of capacity it is impossible to differentiate between them. So long as they conform to the prescribed tests they should all be treated alike and there is no point in making a distinction in the rate of pay. This arrangement will remove the difficulty to which the Hon'ble Member has referred that only a few in the lower grade are fortunate enough to secure promotion to the upper grade after they reach the maximum of the lower grade. But we are not prepared to go to the length suggested by the Hon'ble Member as regards increments and the maximum rate of pay. Under the Hon'ble Member's proposal a typist would reach his maximum in a comparatively short period and for the rest of his service would be on the same rate of pay. This is not desirable. Whatever increments should be allowed should be spread over a longer period, so that the officer may have some addition of salary to look forward to throughout the greater part of his service. The maximum proposed by the Hon'ble Member is also too high for this class of officer. The work is, as the Hon'ble Member admits, routine work but it is of a more routine character than that performed by men in the higher grades of the Lower Division. The typists cannot be really compared with the Lower Division generally. They are merely copying, more and simple ; they are not of the Stenographer class. The higher grades in the Lower Division have more important duties than of writing up registers and records ; they have

Resolutions.

Rai Mahendra Chandra Mitra Bahadur ; President ; Mr. H. R. A. Irwin.

important reference work to do. Considering the character of their work Government are of opinion that Rs. 80 is a sufficiently high maximum salary for the typist class. They have, therefore, decided to fix the pay of all typists at the uniform rate of Rs. 40—2—80. This is a very substantial improvement on the old scale, and it gives an adequate initial wage—a continuous increment throughout the most of the officer's service and a higher maximum wage to which all can attain. In view of this decision the Hon'ble Member will probably not desire to press his resolution.

The Hon'ble RAI MAHENDRA CHANDRA MITRA BAHADUR said :—

"My Lord, I accept the suggestions made by the Hon'ble Mr. Donald."

The PRESIDENT said :—

"Does the Hon'ble Member wish to withdraw his motion?"

The Hon'ble RAI MAHENDRA CHANDRA MITRA BAHADUR said :—

"Yes, My Lord."

The resolution was then, by leave of the President, withdrawn.

LIST OF BUSINESS—ITEM No. 18.

The Hon'ble MR. H. R. A. IRWIN moved the following resolution :—

This Council recommends to the Governor in Council that the Scheme for the Improvement of Roads in the Duars, which was in 1913 approved by Government after many conferences and much negotiation, be steadily continued until completion; instead of being stopped or interrupted after the expenditure of 20 lakhs, as has been announced by officers of Government.

He said :—

"Your Excellency may perhaps be aware that I represent the Tea Industry of Bengal and it is on behalf of the Planters of the fertile district of the Duars that I now appeal to you.

I think it may not be amiss to give a very brief review of the history of the Duars, which is probably unknown to many members of this Council, possibly even to Your Excellency.

The district lies at the foot of the Himalayas, to the south of and contiguous to the Bhootan boundary and, though adjacent to the main line of the Eastern Bengal Railway to Darjeeling, is just off the beaten track and very few travellers to the hills think of the great industry, which is making such rapid progress close alongside their route.

It is intersected by many large rivers, which drain the slopes of the Himalayas and has a very heavy rainfall, amounting in some parts to well over 200 inches—consequently traffic is very much restricted and congested for want of good roads and bridges.

It has only of late years been incorporated in the Indian Empire, having been taken over from Bhootan in 1863.

It measures approximately 100 miles east and west, along the foot of the hills, and 80 north and south from the Bhootan boundary.

Less than 40 years ago it was nothing but a howling waste of forest and jungle, the home of wild elephants and tigers, yielding no revenue and hardly supporting a single human being.

Resolutions.Mr. H. R. A. Irwin.

To-day there are no less than 130 Tea Estates, comprising over 110,000 acres in cultivation, yielding approximately, 75,000,000 lbs. of tea; there are numerous Bazars and a railway with 153 miles of line open for traffic.

It is no exaggeration to say that the district, the sole industry of which is tea, is the means of supporting and giving sustenance to approximately a quarter of a million souls.

The tea industry is the sole raison d'être of the railway.

I do not think I shall be contradicted when I say that but for the tea industry of the Duars, the Hardinge Bridge, which ranks amongst the big bridges of the world, would not yet have been constructed.

Prior to the war there were over 300 Europeans on the Tea Estates of the Duars but many have joined His Majesty's forces in some capacity or another and are assisting to win the terrible war which still devastates the world and some have laid down their lives nobly in the cause of liberty and right.

I say without fear of contradiction that the Duars, which though comparatively small in point of area, is, taking into consideration the capital and interests involved, probably the most important of the country districts of Bengal to-day.

It is impossible for me to say what the total revenue contributed directly and indirectly to Government, amounts to; I fancy if I were to hazard a guess, Hon'ble Members might accuse me of exaggeration and I will, therefore, confine myself to known facts—one figure I can give definitely on the basis of 40 per cent. of the crop from the district, which the Food Controller requires for the United Kingdom, we get the large (previous to the war I should have said, huge) sum of £1,500,000 which the produce of this small district contributes directly, by way of duty alone, to the revenue of the United Kingdom: this sum is certainly underestimated, as there is no doubt, that much more than 40 per cent. of the crop does find its way there, but the figure I give is definite and cannot be contradicted.

In other words, this one item alone, contributed through the Duars, suffices to run the war for Great Britain for five or six hours, if other parts of the Empire contributed in like proportion, His Majesty's Ministers would have little difficulty in finding funds.

I fear I weary you My Lord, and I apologize to the Council for inflicting myself upon it twice in the same meeting, but the near approach of the Budget and the consequent risk of the matter being overlooked, makes it imperative to the interests I represent, that I should trespass on your time and I crave the patience of Your Excellency and the Council, whilst I appeal for assistance in a matter so seriously affecting such an important district and community, in this Province.

In spite of the importance of this district, which I think I may claim to have clearly demonstrated, it is only within the last few years and after many conferences and much correspondence that the question of roads and the communications has seriously occupied the attention of the authorities! the only thoroughfares were what could only be called, jungle tracks; roads, in the true sense of the word, did not exist.

However, in 1912, Your Excellency's predecessor, Lord Carmichael, personally visited the Duars to see the state of affairs for himself.

It was not the best season of the year at which to form a correct opinion of the awful condition into which these jungle tracks develop! the climate and country of the Duars in the cold weather is almost perfect! in the height of the rains, it is—well—the reverse! none but those who have seen it for themselves can imagine the state kutchas roads get into after weeks of heavy rain and heavy traffic! to transport goods, through the awful mud and slush which prevail, is nothing less than cruelty to man and beast! and yet for want of metalled roads it has to be done.

Be that as it may, His Excellency saw sufficient to impress upon him the absolute necessity for taking immediate steps to ameliorate the existing state of affairs, and he gave instructions for a conference to be held at Jalpaiguri, at which a scheme should be drawn up for properly constructed, metalled roads with a network of feeder roads.

This conference was duly held and presided over by—

The Hon'ble Mr. B. K. Finnimore, Secretary to the Government of Bengal, Public Works Department, and attended by—

The Commissioner, Rajshahi Division ;
The Deputy Commissioner, Jalpaiguri ;
The Superintending Engineer, Northern Circle ;
The Executive Engineer, Jalpaiguri ;
The Chairman, Duars Planters' Association ;
The Vice-Chairman, District Boards ; and Maulvi Masharraf Hussain.

After much deliberation and discussion it was decided to recommend two main roads, east and west and north and south throughout the length and breadth of the district, to be constructed by Government, and feeder roads, to be constructed by the district Board, with the aid of grants from Government, it being argued that without an efficient system of feeder roads, the main trunk roads would be of little use.

The Deputy Commissioner undertook, in conjunction with the Duars Association, to draw up a scheme for the feeder roads most necessary in connection with the newly proposed scheme.

Eventually a scheme, for the two main roads, as previously stated, aggregating 114 miles, five major feeder roads, aggregating 84 miles, and six minor feeder roads, aggregating 42 miles, was submitted to Government.

Commenting on this at the Council Meeting of 4th April, 1913, the Hon'ble Mr. P. C. Lyon said : 'An admirable scheme for the purpose has been drawn up by the local officers in communication with the District Board' and further said : 'We have every hope that with the combined resources of the Public Works Department and the District Board it will prove possible to carry the whole scheme through eventually.'

The two schemes, viz., the main roads to be constructed by the Public Works Department and the feeder roads by the District Board, with Government assistance, were estimated to cost 24½ lakhs and 10 lakhs, respectively.

In forwarding these estimates to the Secretary, Duars Association, the Deputy Commissioner, Jalpaiguri, wrote on February 13th, 1914 :—

'After full consideration of the proposals Government have decided to carry out as much of the programme as possible but it has not been found possible to allot the whole amount required for carrying out the full programme. It is probable that a sum of 20 lakhs will be found during the next four years for this purpose.'

In November, 1913, Government by notification in the Calcutta Gazette, dated November 15th, sanctioned the formation of a new temporary Public Works Division to be designated the Duars Road Division, with headquarters at Jalpaiguri.

Resolutions.

Mr. Aminur Rahman.

Replying to the Hon'ble Mr. Chaplin at the Council Meeting of 13th March, 1914, with reference to the estimate of 84½ lakhs, the Hon'ble Mr. Finimore stated that 'the scheme had been carefully considered by Government' and 'it is not possible during the next four years, to provide more than 20 lakhs for these roads.'

Again, at the Meeting of 3rd April, 1914, Sir William Duke said :—
The programme to be adopted by the Public Works Department will closely follow the programme of local requirement—we may not be able to provide all that is required, but Government expect to be able to provide the greater part in the next few years and the work will, I hope, proceed rapidly.

To be brief, My Lord, the four years referred to by Government officers, are now drawing to a close and the work has been steadily progressing in the meanwhile.

Though, principally owing to unforeseen circumstances, such as enhanced cost of tools, materials, etc., due to the war, as much work as was hoped for, has not been completed for the money spent, still we tender our grateful thanks to Government for what has been done.

I think, My Lord, from the comments on the scheme, by various responsible Government officers, which I have quoted, we were justified in inferring that Government would continue to carry out the full programme, after the 20 lakhs, first allotted, had been spent and the four years had elapsed.

Now lately, however, we have learnt with great dismay, almost I may say, consternation, that the work is to be closed down abruptly, even if only temporarily, at the close of the current financial year and the lately formed Public Works Division with the staff, contractors, tools, machinery, etc., is to be disbanded and dispersed.

It is against this decision, My Lord, I now beg most earnestly to appeal.

We do not expect under present war conditions, that the annual grants will be on the same scale as heretofore, but we do earnestly trust that the work will be steadily, if more slowly, continued, and that the whole scheme for improving the means of communication in this important district, will not be stultified through partially constructed roads being left in a blind state and not linked up in one concrete whole.

In conclusion, My Lord, I respectfully urge that provision may be made in the coming Budget for the steady continuance of this scheme and if orders have been issued for the dispersement of the Public Works Division, that they may be countermanded before it is too late, so that money may not be wasted in having to collect the component parts together again."

The Hon'ble MR. AMINUR RAHMAN said :—

"My Lord, when we are talking of the Duars Roads Improvement Scheme, it may seem to some to be a matter of purely local interest, and I fear it will not rouse much enthusiasm in the Hon'ble Members who are not directly interested in it. But when we realize that with it is bound up the future of the tea industry which is a matter of Imperial concern and in which an enormous amount of British and Indian capital has been invested, which employs hundreds of thousands of men and directly or indirectly affects a large number of business concerns in this country and in England, we can justly claim to have raised a question which deserves the sympathetic attention of Hon'ble Members and officials in this House. We must gratefully acknowledge the help given by the Government in the shape of a grant of 20 lakhs. That alone shows that the Government appreciated the magnitude and seriousness of the question. The war has upset all our calculations and it would be the height of folly to embarrass the Government by pressing for further grants if at the same time we could not prove beyond doubt that it would be unwise to adopt a policy of retrenchment in this direction.

No one can foresee what the condition of the tea trade will be during the continuance of the war and immediately after. So far we have been able to tide over the extreme difficulties through the generous support of the British Government who have made arrangements to buy Indian tea in India. But the cost of production and transportation is an essential factor in the condition of the trade. Bad communication, the want of a bridge where it is necessary, bad roads leading to the railway stations, all these mean greater expenditure on both production and transportation. Although we have just managed to escape a disaster on account of the steps Government have taken to buy tea, we still view the future with great misgivings and alarm. I am certain Government is not in a position to make any predictions in our favour. We have, therefore, to exert every means to put ourselves in such an advantageous position, so that in case there is a sudden depression in the trade we can just manage to live. We are already making great sacrifices ourselves in order to keep the trade going. The price of machinery and stores has increased to an unprecedented extent. On account of occasional depressions in the trade and bad state of finance the condition of labour is far from satisfactory. The want of a sufficient quantity of rolling stock has made our position insecure. In such circumstances, I am sure we can justly demand that the Government should make some sacrifice to give us some relief in our distressed condition. For the Government also it would be a wiser policy to continue the work. Mr. Travers, the Chairman of the Duars Planters' Association—a man whose patriotism and high sense of public duty has been a source of strength and inspiration to us all during these trying times—said only the other day in his address to the Duars Planters: 'Gentlemen, your Committee and your members' I am quoting Mr. Travers—'your Committee and your members are supremely grateful to Government for what it has already done for our roads. Had the grants not been forthcoming, the industry must have stood still instead of advancing as it has done. But we would respectfully draw the attention of Government to the fact that important roads bearing a large and increasing traffic are still mere kutchra tracks. We do not ask' says Mr. Travers—'we do not ask under the present war conditions for a continuance of the grants at the rate at which they have been allotted in recent years. But we do appeal for a continuance of the Duars Road Division with smaller grants to steadily proceed with improvement. The Division is in working order now. Let it once be closed and the staff, contractors, tools and organization be disseminated and only at very large expense can reorganization take place.' The opinion of such a high authority on this subject deserves the respectful consideration of every Hon'ble Member of this House. If it is the intention of the Government to carry on and complete the work of improving the Duars roads, and I believe they have given an undertaking to this effect, then they would be well-advised to proceed with the work however slowly, and gradually build up a system of roads that will help the planters as well as the Government. And I say this advisedly. The Duars roads have a military significance. You cannot ignore the possibilities of a good system of communication in your frontiers. I should urge the Government to accept this resolution."

The Hon'ble Mr. CUMMING said :—

"Sir, I regret that it is not possible for Government to accept the Resolution in its present form, but I trust that after the statement which I propose to place before the Council, regarding the attitude of Government in the matter of the four years' programme which the Hon'ble Mover has sketched, Hon'ble Members may see that this conclusion has considerable justification."

Resolutions.Mr. Cumming.

The Hon'ble Mr. Irwin has given us an interesting account of the Western Duars, its development within recent years and its contribution towards the funds of the British Empire. It is true that Government have a great interest in their property in the Western Duars which came under their control about half a century ago and that the annual production of tea in this area is twice the total of the Darjeeling district. It is also true that 20 years ago there was not a single metalled road in the whole district, and that the whole country-side is devoid of old established communications and is, moreover, subject to heavy rainfall. Nevertheless, any amelioration of the communications in the Duars must have reference to the finances of the whole Province.

At the outset, I desire to point out that the sum of 20 lakhs for the improvement of the Duars roads was fixed for purely financial reasons. A four years' programme at an estimate of over 2 crores of rupees was initiated in 1913, for the purpose of bringing up to the proper standard the equipment of the whole Province, principally in buildings and communications. Under the sub-head of roads, demands for all the districts were tabulated and the total demand for communications in the whole Province came to 43 lakhs. In view of the total amount of money which at that time, before the outbreak of war, it was contemplated it would be possible to allocate to the whole provincial scheme, it was decided that 28 lakhs might be made available to meet the demand of 43 lakhs for roads throughout the whole Province for a period of four years. Now, the share of the Public Works portion of the Duars Road Scheme in that total of 28 lakhs was only 15½ lakhs. I should explain at this stage what the Duars Road Scheme was. As explained by the Hon'ble Mover, Lord Carmichael, in November 1912, in reply to the addresses presented at Jalpaiguri, advised the District Board and the Planting Community to draw up a scheme for the improvement of communication by road within the district as a whole. After much discussion with the local officers and the representatives of the District Board and the Duars Planters' Association, two comprehensive schemes were drawn up for the improvement of roads in the Duars, one known as the 19 road scheme to which the Hon'ble Member has referred at a cost of 24½ lakhs for roads which were to be constructed and improved by the Public Works Department and a separate one of 10½ lakhs towards the programme of work to be carried out by the District Board. The District Board at one time contemplated borrowing 4 lakhs and it was proposed that Government should give a contribution to the District Board of 6 lakhs; and so if this sum be included the total outlay of public funds which was proposed would have been nearly 31 lakhs of rupees. Towards the end of 1913 the Government considered that no more than the 15½ lakhs to which I have already alluded could be spared for the Duars Road Scheme. Later, however, as the resources of the Board had been increased by the surrender of the Public Works Cess, Government, in January 1914, decided, instead of giving a grant to the District Board, to carry out as much of the Public Works Department programme as was possible from provincial funds; and it was thought probable at that time that a sum of 20 lakhs could be found in the next 4 years from 1914 to 1918 for the scheme. That is the origin of the sum was 20 lakhs to which the Hon'ble Mover has referred. It was further decided that some parts of the programme should either be eliminated or postponed until after 1917-18 when it might be possible to find funds for the extra work. The Public Works scheme of road improvement at a cost of 24½ lakhs had been cut down to one of 16½ lakhs; but the additional 3½ lakhs representing the difference between that sum and the 20 lakhs were given to the Public Works Department scheme instead of to the District Board scheme.

This decision to contribute 20 lakhs in four years was made before the outbreak of war; and Government would have been perfectly justified on the outbreak of war in reconsidering the decision. Indeed, the Jalpaiguri

Resolutions.Mr. Cumming.

District have been extremely fortunate that, notwithstanding the outbreak of the war, so much has been spent in this part of the Province for carrying out a programme which was contemplated before the war; for in so many other directions, Public Works expenditure contemplated before the war has been ruthlessly cut down. The Hon'ble Mr. Aminur Rahman has given utterance to this. The Planting Community, have not been unmindful of the fact. In December 1917 the Duars Planters' Association said that they were most grateful for the generous grant of 20 lakhs which had been and was being made towards the improvement of communications, and they recognized that Government in a very difficult financial period had done very much for the Duars.

The attitude of Government in this matter has been made clear to the Council by Mr. Lyon in 1913 and by my predecessor in a speech made before this Council in the month of April 1916. In 1913, Mr. Lyon made the remarks which the Hon'ble Mr. Irwin has already quoted: 'that Government had every hope that with the combined resources of the Public Works Department and the District Board it would be possible to carry out the whole scheme eventually.' Mr. Beatson Bell, in 1916, stated that the programme for the construction of 19 roads was one which Government always hoped to carry out; that the roads which had been constructed at that time were costing much more than was contemplated; and that, although the programme for the 19 roads had been formulated, it had never been promised that these 19 roads should be constructed regardless of cost. The view of the Financial Department has been that, when the four years programme had been finished, there would be another stock taking; but that Department could not guarantee to finance the works which might then remain to be completed.

Now, towards the end of 1917, the Duars Association pressed both the local officers and Government for the completion of the whole of the original scheme. But it was decided last year that for financial reasons Government could not commit themselves to an expenditure beyond the 20 lakhs. In accordance with this decision, construction will now continue till March 1919; it is not the case that construction will simply continue till the end of the current financial year, as the Hon'ble Member apparently understands; but in view of the disabilities affecting the finances of this Province, it is not at present possible to say what amount of money can be spared for further construction during 1919 and the following years. In January 1918 the Association represented that the work should be continued as some of the important connected links are still awaiting. The Government appreciate the fact that even by 1919 the original scheme will still be incomplete. As regards the roads in the Public Works programme, interior communications have now been practically completed in four out of the five subdivisions into which the Duars, from the point of view of tea industry are divided. For the future, there remain the completion of the interior communications in the fifth sub-district and the construction of trunk lines of communication with the district headquarters.

On one point, however, I am able to reassure the Hon'ble Member and the Duars Planters' Association that any misgiving which they may feel that roads already constructed will not be maintained, is without foundation. The roads already constructed will certainly be maintained. I understand, however, that the real apprehension of the Association is that the Construction Division which is already in existence for the work in hand may be disbanded; and the wish is expressed that even if the progress be slow and small the organization which has been constituted for the construction of roads should not be abandoned. On this point I regret I can give no definite assurance.

Resolutions.

Mr. Irwin; Babu Akhil Chandra Datta; Babu Kishori Mohan Chaudhuri; Babu Bhabendra Chandra Roy.

In view of the statement which I have made and of the fact that the amount of money which can be further allotted to this scheme, must be considered with reference to the claims of the province as a whole, I trust that the Hon'ble Member will see his way to withdraw this resolution. As it is, the Public Works project has received $3\frac{1}{2}$ lakhs more than what was originally contemplated, and the whole of the 20 lakhs is being debited to Revenue and not included in the Loans Budget. "

The Hon'ble Mr. IRWIN said :—

" My Lord, as I understand from the Hon'ble Mr. Cumming that the work will be continued till March 1919, I beg leave to withdraw this resolution, I would bring the matter up again a year hence if necessary. "

The motion was then, by leave of the President, withdrawn.

LIST OF BUSINESS—ITEM No. 19.

The Hon'ble BABU AKHIL CHANDRA DATTA moved the following resolution :—

This Council recommends to the Governor in Council that all persons who have been interned, or who may hereafter be interned, under the operation of the Defence of India (Criminal Law Amendment) Act, 1915, be domiciled in places free from malaria and insanitary conditions.

He said :—

" My Lord, the grievances of those who have been interned are well known and on the present occasion it will not serve any useful purpose to repeat the old story. I wish only to say this that whatever may have been the circumstances which have led to the internment of these young men and quite apart from the question whether they have been rightly or wrongly interned, they are certainly entitled to such treatment as political prisoners all over the civilized world receive. With these few words I commend the resolution to the acceptance of Your Lordship's Council."

The Hon'ble BABU KISHORI MOHAN CHAUDHURI said :—

" My Lord, I support the motion. It is but fair that when a person is taken charge of attention should be given to his sanitary needs. We have no objection to a person being watched over and detained in custody but his sanitary need should not be ignored in any way, as we see that the worst criminals in the jails are given proper attention by the Civil Surgeon. I think that as the request is a very fair one it will be accepted by the Council."

The Hon'ble BABU BHABENDRA CHANDRA ROY said :—

" My Lord, it would be a great pity if the present resolution has to encounter official opposition. Time and again, we have sought to bring to the notice of Government the deplorable state in which a very large proportion of the détenus in Bengal are believed to live their life of exile. I am not aware that in our attempts in this direction we have sometimes made ourselves odious to Government and provoked the anger of mighty officials. I hope it will not be contended on behalf of Government in reply to this Resolution that there are no known instances in which détenus have suffered from malaria or from other diseases due to the general incondition of particular localities. We know as a fact that a very large number have been domiciled in desolate or unhealthy surroundings, and that they have been petitioning the authorities for being removed to better places. Some time back I asked for information relating to the complaints made by détenus on such grounds and was told in reply that the officers were too busy to bother themselves with compilation of the information asked for. I have every respect for our officials, but I positively refuse to allow them to be the judge of the utility or importance of any information sought by non-official members. Though my question was not considered important enough for a reply, an attempt was made on a later occasion to cut the ground away from under our feet, by reading out extracts from a letter purporting to show how grievances were carefully manufactured by some people. The very fact that it came into the hands of some responsible officers was thought sufficient to dispense with the necessity of proving the genuineness of the letter. But, I think, even if the letter be genuine, it can at best represent the eager solicitude, perhaps of a friend whose grief has got the better of his wits, to help an unfortunate internee with what he considers to be very clever suggestions for making his lot less hard to bear. Much capital was sought to be made of this letter, though it cannot in any event establish that most of the complaints are fabricated.

Resolutions.Sir Henry Wheeler.

"My Lord, an individual internee may be a revolutionary of the darkest hue; but it is one of the noblest traditions of British justice to accord humane treatment even to a convicted assassin. It is enough that you have deprived several hundreds of our fellow-subjects of their liberty without trial by any court of law. It is enough that you have not taken the public into your confidence in the matter. It is enough that you have not permitted us to form into visiting committees and satisfy ourselves as to how they are being treated. But if Government expect the people to take everything on trust, I am afraid they are making an over-draft on the public confidence.

"My Lord, the authors of Bengal Regulation III of 1818, in their large-heartedness were anxious to ensure the health and creature-comforts of the political prisoners, and made provision for periodical reports regarding these matters. But the Defence of India Act, and the rules framed thereunder, are remarkable for the absence of any such humane provisions. If our present-day legislators have failed to act up to the noble standard of their predecessors, even in the matter of repressive legislation, may it not be expected that those responsible for administering the later laws will supply the omission? The answer to this will depend upon the fate of the present resolution."

The Hon'ble SIR HENRY WHEELER said :—

"Sir, my attitude towards this resolution is not influenced by any disagreement with the object which the Hon'ble Mover has in view or by any want of sympathy with his aim. My criticisms are rather in respect of its wording, the acceptance of which might appear to commit Government to action which, practically, may not always be possible. It is unfortunately the case that malaria prevails in many parts of this Presidency; it is unfortunately the case that the majority of villages in this Presidency would scarcely answer the requirements of a strict sanitarian. In arranging for the residence of those detained we can only take the province as we find it. It is perfectly impossible, for instance, to guarantee that the détenus during the period of their detention shall be immune from the risk of malaria. An obvious contingency is that they might have been infected even before their detention. Nor is it practicable to guarantee that they shall live under sanitary conditions differing from those prevailing in the province as a whole, or from those in which they were living previous to their detention. Within these limitations, Government has not the slightest desire that these men should live in malarious localities or in insanitary conditions. Their wish is directly to the contrary. The healthiness of the localities in which these people are to be detained is one of the conditions to be borne in mind when these villages are originally chosen, and, therefore, with the object of the Resolution we have no disagreement. If the Hon'ble Member agrees to recommend that 'endeavour be made as far as possible to domicile all persons who have been interned or who may hereafter be interned under the operation of the Defence of India (Criminal Law Amendment) Act, 1915, in places free from malaria and insanitary conditions.' I have not the slightest objection to accepting the Resolution. It merely represents what we are already doing and what we are anxious to continue doing."

Resolutions.Babu Akhil Chandra Datta.

The Hon'ble BABU AKHIL CHANDRA DATTA said :—

"My Lord, I accept the suggestion made by the Hon'ble Sir Henry Wheeler, and beg to move the resolution in the following amended form, namely :—

'This Council recommends to the Governor in Council that endeavour be made, as far as possible, to domicile all persons who have been interned, or who may hereafter be interned, under the operation of the Defence of India (Criminal Law Amendment) Act, 1915, in places free from malaria and insanitary conditions.'

The motion was put in the amended form and agreed to.

LIST OF BUSINESS—ITEM No. 20.

The Hon'ble BABU AKHIL CHANDRA DATTA moved the following Resolution :—

This Council recommends to the Governor in Council that the amount of Rs. 489-13-3, being the costs incurred by Government in the defence of the suit brought by Babu Lalit Chandra Dass against Mr. Burton, Superintendent of Police, in the Munsif's Court at Balurghat, be recovered from the said Mr. Burton.

He said :—

"My Lord the facts of this case are well known.

'Far from Jupiter, far from thunder,' is an old saying the truth and wisdom of which none will dispute. Babu Lalit Chandra Das apparently forgot this and had the temerity to take settlement of a plot of land adjoining the compound of a police-station in the district of Dinajpur. He put up a barbed-wire fence separating his plot from the thana to protect his crops from the cattle and horses of the thana officers. Six months after Mr. Burton chanced one night to cross the land on an elephant, forced open his passage, and the next morning ordered his policemen to destroy the entire fence which they did on the allegation that the public had a right-of-way over the land. Lalit Babu, of course, could not fight the Superintendent and being helpless sent a wire to the District Magistrate and the Divisional Commissioner, but without any response. They have hardly any control now-a-days over the police. His only cause was to seek redress in a law Court. But where is the Magistrate in this country who would give him relief as against a Superintendent of Police? He, therefore, brought a suit for damages in the Civil Court against Mr. Burton. Justice was, however, vindicated in the Court of the Munsiff who found that the action of Mr. Burton was most unjustifiable and decreed the suit. Mr. Burton appealed. Mr. Garlick, District Judge, held that Mr. Burton had no right to break a passage through the fence and confirmed the decree of the Munsiff.

The suit was contested by Mr. Burton. But who financed him? We are told that in the lower Court the Government Pleader conducted the defence at the cost of the Government and that the cost incurred by Resolutions.Sir Henry Wheeler ; President ; Babu Akhil Chandra Datta.

Government in the defence of the suit has amounted to Rs. 480-15-3. The amount is undoubtedly a very very paltry one, but the question is, 'why should, as a matter of principle, the rate-payers be made to bear this burden ?

"The public or the Police may or may not have had a right-of-way over the land, but quite apart from this question, could Mr. Burton forcibly re-open the passage which had admittedly been obstructed six months before and which had remained closed for six months? Could he take advantage of his position as Superintendent of Police and to employ an elephant and the policemen to force open the passage? Could he in any case, destroy the entire fence in view of the fact that the land undisputedly belonged to Lalit Babu? Divested of his official position, would he and could he have done so as against a powerful neighbour able to fight Mr. Burton and to maintain his rights and if he had done so, would it not be said that he had taken the law into his own hands? If, instead of Mr. Burton, another neighbour of Lalit Babu had committed such zurburdistism, and if Lalit Babu had complained to Mr. Burton, would not this very Mr. Burton send him up as the leader of a riot? If it was an offence on the part of a private citizen, how much more so is it for one in a responsible position whose duty is to protect people from oppressive neighbours? The law-keeper should not be the law-breaker. There was no manner of justification, My Lord, for what was done by Mr. Burton. It was a gross abuse of his power as Superintendent of Police.

The subsequent conduct of Mr. Burton made his case still worse. Lalit Babu's brother Satish Babu was a Sub-Inspector of Police under Mr. Burton. After the institution of the damage suit, Mr. Burton had the graciousness to suspend Satish and thereafter reported him for his dismissal although in the meantime he had been transferred to some other district and had, therefore, no jurisdiction over Satish."

The Hon'ble SIR HENRY WHEELER said :—

"Sir, I rise to a point of order. The question of the suspension of a sub-inspector is entirely irrelevant to the subject of the resolution. As a matter of fact a question on the point has been put to-day, and an answer has been given that the subsequent suspension of the sub-inspector had no connection with this matter."

The PRESIDENT said :—

"I do not quite understand the relevancy of the Hon'ble Member's argument. If, as Sir Henry Wheeler has stated, an answer has been given to the effect that the two cases are not connected it is obvious that the Hon'ble Member's argument is not relevant."

The Hon'ble BABU AKHIL CHANDRA DATTA continuing said :—

"I bow to Your Excellency's decision. I pass over this passage according to Your Excellency's ruling. Mr. Burton, according to the law of the land, committed an offence against the public and under the law and practice of this country he ought to have been prosecuted at the cost of the Government, and the Government pleader should have been engaged to conduct the prosecution. At all events the Government should not have conducted the defence at their cost. This view it appears has been latterly accepted by the Government, for as soon as it was found by the Munsiff that Mr. Burton's action was not justifiable, the Government refused to finance the litigation and asked him to defend himself as best as he could in the Appellate Court. That being the position accepted by the Government it follows as a matter of course that the cost incurred in the Lower Court should be recovered from him. Why should the people pay the penalty for his indiscretion and rashness. It is not a question, My Lord, of amount, but a question of principle—a question of the right of the people—a question as to the relation between the public and the public servants."

The Hon'ble SIR HENRY WHEELER said :—

"Sir, I would first of all invite the attention of the Council to the fact that we are being invited by this resolution to go back upon action taken by our predecessors, and I may say at once that we should be very unwilling to do so unless it can be shown that our predecessors were entirely misled in their appreciation of the case and that the conduct of Mr. Burton, who is the officer involved, had been of a character far otherwise than that which they had understood it to be. Contrary to the inference which might be drawn from this sudden recrudescence of questions and the present resolution, the incident in issue occurred on the 17th February, 1915. The Munsiff's judgment was delivered on the 29th January, 1917 (and it is only the costs in the Lower Court with which we are, concerned), while that of the District Judge was given on the 17th December, 1917. Our rules do not contemplate the subsequent recovery from an officer of the cost of litigation which Government has once agreed to meet, and such a course would only be justified in a very exceptional case of the kind which I have indicated. The question of the incidence of the cost of the proceedings before the Munsiff was decided in 1915, in the time of Lord Carmichael's Government, and after taking legal opinion.

The judgment of the Appellate Court in this case is already in the hands of the Hon'ble Members and the facts of the matter are, therefore, known to them. I will, therefore, only emphasize a few aspects of the case very briefly.

'Mr. Burton had been Superintendent of Police, Dinajpur, from February 1913 to November 1915. He had four times inspected the Porsha thana and had once spent Christmas there. He was, therefore, well acquainted with the locality. The dispute which led to the litigation was as to the existence of a right-of-way over certain land adjacent to the thana and affording access to it. It was not a new dispute. The tract is alleged to have been obstructed in 1913 when the obstruction was removed by the officer in charge of the thana. The fence was said to have been re-erected in September 1914, the police again taking exception to this proceeding, and on arriving at the thana after dark on the 17th February, 1915, Mr. Burton found the elephant on which he was riding obstructed by this fence. His case was that he gave instructions for a passage-way to be re-opened next morning, and that this was done. The extent to which the fence was actually destroyed and the manner of its destruction, were in dispute. On the basis of the action so taken the owner of the land (Babu Lalit Chandra Das) sued Mr. Burton for damages which were awarded by the Munsiff to the extent of Rs. 15. On appeal this order was upheld.'

The main issue with which we are concerned is whether Mr. Burton was acting bona fide in the assertion of what he reasonably believed to be a public right in which the means of access to one of his thanas was involved, and in which, therefore, he, as head of the district police, was legitimately interested. It is only fair to him to mention that his information was that the real owner of the land was one of his own sub-inspectors, and the learned Judge found that 'there are certainly grounds for suspecting' that this was the case, though he held that there was no evidence beyond certain suspicious circumstances. He accordingly gave the point against Mr. Burton. However, such a suspicion would not unreasonably have intensified Mr. Burton's wish that the public should not be sufferers by the closure of the right-of-way.

Resolutions.Babu Akhil Chandra Datta.

As to the existence of a road over this land the Appellate Court recorded a clear opinion that the Munsiff was wrong in doubting whether any path ever existed. It was further held that Mr. Burton took that route on the 17th February because he had been that way before, and after observing that 'the learned Munsiff has believed the plaintiff's witnesses and disbelieved the defence witnesses on all points on very insufficient grounds in my opinion,' the learned Judge remarked: 'I have no hesitation in accepting the defence evidence that a cart track across the plaintiff's land did exist and was in constant use up to September 1914.'

Therefore we have it that a path existed and that Mr. Burton knew of its existence. Mr. Burton, as Superintendent of Police, was entitled to look to the interests of his thanas and of the public in resorting to them, especially if he suspected that the action of one of his subordinates had endangered these interests, and I can see no reason to doubt that on this ground he took a step in good faith which he thought was justified. He has been cast in damages because 20 years' user of the path was not proved in Court. It is only right, however, to point out that the Appellate Court noted that it thought: 'that it is highly probable that it (the path) has been in existence so long,' and it apprehended that the owner of an easement had the right to abate a wrongful obstruction of it if he was prepared to prove that the easement existed.

Finally, as to the alleged damages done, the learned Judge finds that the amount was undoubtedly exaggerated in order to defeat the plea of justification. He upheld the Munsiff's estimate of Rs. 45 as possibly not too large, but he added: 'though if the fence had been re-erected at once the defendants estimate of Rs. 5 would probably have been nearer the mark.'

What it comes to, therefore, is that an officer of Government took action to assert a right-of-way in which he was interested, not personally, but by reason of his position as a Government servant; it is questionable whether in so doing he did any serious damages, and he was undoubtedly endeavouring to reopen a path which had existed. He failed in the suit because he could not prove the existence of the path for 20 years despite the high probability of this being correct. In all these circumstances I submit that our predecessors were justified in considering that Mr. Burton's conduct had been bonâ fide and in promising to meet the cost of the resulting litigation. From that decision we think it would be improper to resile, and I cannot, therefore, commend the resolution to the Council."

The Hon'ble BABU AKHIL CHANDRA DATTA said:—

"My Lord, it is said that the Superintendent of Police was justified by a bonâ fide belief that there was a right-of-way over the land. In answer, I have got to say this: that the question of bonâ fides cannot arise in view of the fact that the entire fence, according to the finding of the District Judge was destroyed and, which, according to the District Judge, was not less than 50 feet in length. There might have been a way, but it does not follow that the owner could not put a fence over his land. The utmost that the Superintendent could do, if he had a bonâ fide right-of-way, he could only force open the fence which was necessary for his passage and not the entire fence. That is one thing, and there is another fact which would show that he could not have proceeded in this manner. It is admitted that the fence had been put up six months before the occurrence. For six months the alleged passage had been blocked up and if that is so, it is only an elementary criminal law that all those, who claimed the right, could not take the law into their own hands—and forcibly remove the fence. Here, the person concerned happens to be the Superintendent of Police; but if he acted in a matter like this in any special capacity, the law does not give any special right to any Government servant as regards this question of right-of-way. Therefore, if it was an offence on the part of a private citizen, it was equally an offence on the part of the Superintendent of Police. It has been stated that he was not interested in the matter personally, but he was interested in it as a Superintendent of Police. Your Excellency will excuse me if I put it in another way ; it is not so much a question of interest as it is a question of prestige—a question of vanity and love of power. Of course, the Government rules do not contemplate the refund of such amounts, but I do not think that if it is held by this Council that the Government is entitled to a refund of this amount, there are any rules framed by the Government which can override the decision of this Council."

Resolutions.Babu Akhil Chandra Datta.

LIST OF BUSINESS—ITEM No. 21.

The Hon'ble BABU AKHIL CHANDRA DATTA moved the following resolution :—

This Council recommends to the Governor in Council that steps be taken to regulate the prices of food-stuffs, charcoal, cloth, salt, sugar and other necessities of life.

He said :—

"My Lord, this question affects the vital interests of the vast population of this Presidency and the importance of the matter cannot be too much emphasized ; but at the same time I do not feel myself called upon to make out a case in support of my resolution inasmuch as the principle advocated in this resolution has already been accepted by the Supreme Government in a notification which has been issued since I have sent notice of this resolution. If I still press this resolution I do so because I feel that here in Bengal the matter has not yet been taken up with that enthusiasm and earnestness which it deserves. I implore Your Lordship to take immediate steps with that vigour with which the Bombay Government is fighting this problem. With these few words I commend this resolution to Your Excellency's acceptance."

The Hon'ble MR. MARTIN said :—

"My Lord, I must oppose this resolution, although on the face of it such a resolution may commend itself to many people as being amply justified by the present course of events and what has recently happened. The Hon'ble Mover does not ask definitely for Government control over the prices of food-stuffs and so on but it practically amounts to that. With all respect to him I do not think he realizes what he is asking for and the difficulties which lie in the way of control of this nature. It seems to me that control to be efficient ought to be thorough and to be thorough in control over the prices of these articles one will have to control them at the source of supply, to control them during their transport to this country and to control them during delivery and distribution in this country. I think, therefore, that the Hon'ble Member will realize that such control is beyond the province of this Government. It is true that the Government of India have notified that they may take steps to control the price of salt, but in my opinion no case has been made out for such control and I do not think it is necessary. The shortage of supply in this province and particularly in the district to which the Hon'ble Member belongs led to a temporary rise in prices. This led to considerable excitement and unfortunate occurrences in parts of the district. I have, however, studied the matter very carefully and I cannot see any justification for that excitement nor the unfortunate events that sprang from it. The cost of salt to a fairly large sized family amounts to an extra expenditure of a few annas on salt sufficient to keep them supplied for weeks. Now the price of salt in the districts was abnormal for the space of about a month, so that there was no real hardship imposed upon the people in these districts nor do I think that Government control was thereby rendered necessary.

The question of sugar is very much the same the temporary shortage of supplies causing a natural rise in price. Supplies are now coming into the country and I understand that communication with Java is likely to be freer and better with the supply of tonnage ; and the shortage is not likely to be of long duration.

Resolutions.Rai Mahendra Chandra Mitra Bahadur ; Babu Kishori Mohan Chaudhuri.

In the case of cloth undoubtedly great hardship has been caused from which we are all suffering. The rise was certainly not due to profiteering which is the only reason which can call for Government control in this connection. The price of cloth which is sold in Bengal to-day is very much less than the price at which it can be imported. I would point out that the control of the price of cloth would mean control in no less than three continents—that is control over the price of cotton in America, control over production in England and control over distribution in India. I think the Hon'ble Member will realize that control by this Government in such circumstances will be a practical impossibility. I hope, My Lord, that what I have said will convince the Hon'ble Member that this resolution is perhaps a little too hasty under the circumstances and that he will not press it."

The Hon'ble RAI MAHENDRA CHANDRA MITRA BAHADUR said :—

"My Lord, I beg to support the resolution and in supporting it I voice forth the sentiments and ideas of my countrymen—wherever I go, whether to a hamlet, town or city there is complaint everywhere that the prices are abnormally high and it is high time, in my humble opinion, that the Government should interfere. I am the last person to urge that there should be a restraint in the trade or that the legislature should be compelled to intervene, but at such times it is necessary that Government should interfere. Yesterday I read a press notice showing the action taken by the Bombay Government. Consequently I am encouraged by this to ask Your Excellency and Your Excellency's Government to move in the matter. It has been represented that there ought not to be any Controller, but the question is how could the Government interfere? A remedial measure ought to be taken. You cannot understand sitting in Calcutta what things are going on in the mufassal. The people in the mufassal are not in a position to meet their needs and in the difficulties in which we are placed if there be any remedial measure it ought to be taken up."

The Hon'ble BABU KISHORI MOHAN CHAUDHURI said :—

"My Lord, I am also of opinion that some remedial measure ought to be adopted. It is no doubt a question of supply, but at the same time we have to consider whether the middlemen and other dealers are making undue profit and whether any measure cannot be adopted which will lessen the abnormal prices. In the mufassal our experience is that in some places more than double the prices have been realized of what prevailed about two or three years ago. My idea is, of course, to start co-operative stores, but then only the members will be benefited thereby. If larger relief is to be provided for in every district, at least at headquarters station of the district and the subdivisional headquarters, some shops may be opened under the direct supervision of the district officer or settlement officer with the co-operation of the leading men who could import and sell the things at cost price. It is an admitted fact that the people are suffering much from the high prices and our impression is that it is not merely due to the limited supply but to something else—probably as I have suggested it is due to the undue profit that is being made by the middlemen. Some enquiry may be made as to the cause and if some arrangement could be made by which the people could be supplied with the ordinary necessities of life at lesser cost than at any rate ought to be done. So I think that Government interference is necessary, as without Government these things cannot be done. If, with the Government credit at the back and the supervision of the district officer and the subdivisional officer, some shops be opened where things can be sold at cost price or with a little profit much relief can be given to the suffering people. The present unrest is due to the abnormal rise in prices and it is high time that Government should take some steps."

Resolutions.Sir Henry Wheeler.

The Hon'ble SIR HENRY WHEELER said :—

" The Hon'ble Member's resolution has raised a subject in which we are all much interested at the present time and with which the happiness of the province is very much bound up ; and although I shall have to oppose the adoption of this resolution, I am not sorry that I have had this opportunity of laying certain considerations in regard to it before the Council, as the matter is one in which we may well seek to bring about clear thinking by all classes of the community, while any advice and help that we can enlist in dealing with an admitted difficulty are to be welcomed. But I agree with the Hon'ble Mr. Martin in thinking that the Hon'ble Mover can scarcely have appreciated the wide scope which his resolution really covers. As worded, it includes the regulation of the prices of food-stuffs, charcoal, cloth, salt, sugar and other necessities of life, which interpreted widely, might really be taken to mean that this Government should take upon itself the task of regulating the whole bazar. I think, on consideration, that Hon'ble Members will admit that whatever their desire to attain the ideal of removing all discomfort, this is not a practical proposition. I would warn the Council against placing too implicit a trust in the efficacy of the blessed words ' regulation ' and ' control '. The regulation and control of prices is a question which has been brought forward since the outbreak of war, and many experiments have been made, first in hostile countries and later, unfortunately, by ourselves and our allies, but everybody, who has touched, or has any knowledge of, the details of control, has realized the difficulties and pitfalls which surround it on every side, and sees the possibility of doing more harm than good by the adoption of well-intentioned measures which do not work out in practice in accordance with the idea with which they were undertaken. If, therefore, we can avoid the necessity of regulation and control, I say, even at the cost of some discomfort, that it would be for good, and we should only attempt such a course if forced to do so as a last necessity. No regulation or control can abolish the discomforts entailed by the war. The whole world is a sufferer from it ; England is a sufferer from it, and from my own short personal experience of England during the war, I should say that in the United Kingdom at the present time a sovereign, for practical purposes, goes about as far as 10 shillings in the previous days of peace. To take, again, a country nearer East, I came across a letter only recently in the Pioneer which shows that Egypt is also in a like state. Merely to quote a short extract, it runs as follows :—

" The price of food-stuffs is steadily rising in this country and compared with the state of affairs in 1914 the increase is very considerable. Meat now stands at 100 per cent. above pre-war prices and 60 per cent. above the price this time last year. Sugar—and this is a land of sugar production—has risen by 100 per cent. compared with its pre-war price, and 100 per cent. compared with that at the corresponding date last year ; the same is the case with flour ; eggs are treble their pre-war price, although this is a country of egg export and the local production has been considerably developed " and so on.

This is unfortunately the experience of every country in the world. At the risk of troubling the Council with statistics, I would like to give some figures which have been compiled in the Statistical Department of Government and which point to certain interesting conclusions. Taking the range of wholesale prices adopted by the statistician, which includes over 40 leading articles in the wholesale market, and making a comparison between the rates prevailing at the end of December 1917, as compared with the pre-war level at the end of July 1914, the rise in wholesale prices has been 68 per cent. in Calcutta, 109 per cent. in Bombay, 94 per cent. in Karachi and 111 per cent. in Madras. That is not without interest as showing that Calcutta is fortunately rather better off than other Presidencies, a fact which has a bearing on the criticism that we have so far failed to adopt measures similar to those recently taken by the Bombay Government. It is also the case that the general level of wholesale prices in Calcutta has moved upwards less quickly than in other parts of India. Retail prices, taken in the same way, of certain articles of common consumption had risen in Calcutta in December 1917 (as compared with July 1914) by 21 per cent., in Bombay by 29, and in Karachi by 34. Up to the end of the third year of the war, that is, August 1917, the fluctuations in prices in these three places as compared with the pre-war level were about the same; but the prices rose at the end of December 1917 by 8 per cent. and 10 per cent. in Bombay and Karachi, respectively, as compared with 1 per cent. in Calcutta over the level of August 1917. That, probably, is the reason why special action has been found necessary in Bombay. The problem in that city is complicated by special factors, and Lord Willingdon has drawn attention to the enormous influx of people into Bombay since the outbreak of war, partly of labourers in military employ, partly of troops themselves, and partly of people from surrounding places affected by plague. All these factors make the Bombay problem somewhat peculiar to itself. We here have undoubtedly suffered, and suffered severely, with resulting hardship which is well known and undeniable, but we can derive some consolation from the fact that the situation is worse in other parts of India.

Resolutions.Sir Henry Wheeler.

Coming to the particular articles which the resolution enumerates I would only touch briefly upon each. As regards the regulation of the price of food-stuffs, I think, the Hon'ble Member himself cannot really have appreciated the facts, because the wholesale prices of food-grains, according to the same statistics, are actually lower in Calcutta than at the outbreak of war by some 8 per cent. That being so no case can be made out for regulating the price of food-stuffs, and the poorer classes are at least in this respect deriving some benefits from an unusual situation. It is true that retail prices have risen, but not in a very marked degree. I will merely cite a few instances: Taking the pre-war retail prices as equal to 100, the figures at the end of December 1917 are for food-grains 109, cereals 110, pulses 107 and ghee 150; as regards ghee, recent legislation in this Council may have been partly accountable. Milk has risen by 12 per cent., but potatoes show a fall of 4 per cent.; so on the whole, the situation is not unfortunate from the point of the consumer.

The next articles mentioned in the resolution are charcoal and sugar. As regards the former, from such information as I have been able to obtain, I cannot find that there has been any marked fluctuation since last July and August. The sugar market undoubtedly shows an increase in rates, and we find that in Calcutta, the rise in wholesale prices was 88 per cent., in Bombay 70 per cent., in Karachi 106 per cent., and in Madras 67 per cent. The retail price in Calcutta rose by 82 per cent. Nevertheless, although the increase is heavy, without looking further into the circumstances of the sugar market, I should hesitate to embark upon a policy of regulation if the situation does not become worse than it now is.

The resolution covers also other necessities of life, but I think the general remarks which I have made may suffice without going into further details. There remain the two items of salt and cloth.

Now as regards salt we all know that prices have been very high, and unfortunately they are higher in Calcutta than elsewhere. In comparison with the index number of 100 to which I have already referred the wholesale figures at the end of December 1917 were Calcutta 598, Bombay 221 and Karachi 279. Thus we have been at a considerable disadvantage in respect of salt, although prices have more recently fallen somewhat, but as the Council knows, the Government of India have already notified salt as an article for regulation, and we had hoped to have got out orders relating to its control before to-day. Delay has been caused by some objections raised by the Government of Bihar and Orissa, which is equally interested in the prices fixed, but I have asked them to send down some one at once in order

Sir Henry Wheeler.

Turning to cloth, this is unfortunately one of the most difficult and complicated items in the whole problem. It is undeniable that the price of cloth has risen very highly and, taking the rate of July 1914 as 100, the wholesale figure at the end of December 1917 was 261. I have here a sheaf of prices and quotations for various kinds of cloth, though I hesitate to weary the Council by giving them even by way of illustration. They all show generally that prices have gone up very largely as compared with the pre-war period. Here are one or two instances of different varieties :—

CALCUTTA MARKET PRICE.						MANCHESTER PRICE.
April 1911.			February 1918.			January 1918.
Rs.	A.	P.	Rs.	A.	P.	Rs.	A.	P.
1	13	6	4	11	9	6	12	3
1	3	0	3	3	3	4	8	0
3	9	6	7	12	0	16	6	0
7	2	0	16	6	0	24	9	0

I have now given the Council a certain amount of detail in the hope that the subject will be found of interest and the figures of some bearing. Apparently some Hon'ble Members think that this Government has been somewhat slow and slack in taking up this question. I think that view is scarcely fair. It is no official impropriety to say that the action which has been taken by the Government of India in respect of the regulation of prices was largely at the instance of His Excellency's Government, while we have been considering the question of cloth, and what we can do we will do. But we cannot embark—and I would not advise the Council to press us to embark—on a reckless policy of regulation, without quite seeing where we may be landed by doing so.

Resolutions.Babu Akhil Chandra Datta ; the President ; Sir Henry Wheeler.

The Hon'ble BABU AKHIL CHANDRA DATTA said :—

"My Lord, I feel and I must in all frankness admit that the resolution as it stands is rather too wide, and that I should have confined it to cloth and salt. As regards these things there is no doubt that the question is a very very difficult one. At the same time, there is so much hardship felt in the province on account of the high prices of these two things, that we cannot but look up to the Government for some sort of relief in these two matters."

The PRESIDENT said :—

"Does the Hon'ble Member wish to withdraw his resolution?"

The Hon'ble BABU AKHIL CHANDRA DATTA said :—

"I may be permitted to move an amendment to this resolution confining it to cloth and salt and leaving out the others."

The Hon'ble SIR HENRY WHEELER said :—

"Sir, As I have said, there is some difficulty about this. We have already taken action as regards salt. As regards cloth, I have already tried to show what our difficulties are and we cannot pledge ourselves that we shall undertake regulations."

The PRESIDENT said :—

"Perhaps, I may point out that if the Hon'ble Member wishes to confine his motion to salt and cloth, it has already been met, as far as salt goes, and the Hon'ble Member in charge has explained that we are taking action on it; so that the only question that remains is the question of cloth. The question of cloth is an extremely difficult one to deal with, but the Hon'ble Member in charge has said that we are considering the matter in order to see whether it is possible to do anything in the matter. Under these circumstances, is there any difference between us?"

The Hon'ble BABU AKHIL CHANDRA DATTA said :—

"My Lord, in view of the pledge given by the Hon'ble Member as regards salt and also in view of the fact that the question of cloth is being seriously considered by Government, I beg to withdraw my resolution."

The resolution was then, by leave of the President, withdrawn.

LIST OF BUSINESS—ITEM No. 22.

The following resolution which stood in the name of the Hon'ble Babu Akhil Chandra Datta, was by leave of the President, withdrawn.

This Council recommends to the Governor in Council—

- (a) that steps be taken to put an end to speculative transactions in salt, and
- (b) that in every centre of trade and commerce throughout the Presidency, facilities be offered to the public for the purchase of salt at duly notified prices.

LIST OF BUSINESS—ITEM No. 23.

The Hon'ble BABU AKHIL CHANDRA DATTA moved the following resolution :—

This Council recommends to the Governor in Council that the following words be deleted from section V of the Police Administration Report of 1916, namely, "A good deal of eloquence has lately been expended on the subject of increased expenditure on the Police."

Resolutions.Babu Akhil Chandra Datta.

He said :—

“My Lord, the bulk of the discussion of the last year's Budget by the non-official members of this Council concentrated upon the subject of increased expenditure on the Police. In fact this was the burden of the song of almost all the representatives of the people. There was a tendency in some quarters to call the last year's Budget a War Budget, but the expenditure on Police rose by such leaps and bounds that I characterized it a Police Budget. The expression was no doubt resented by those who were responsible for the abnormal rise in the cost of Police Administration, but none the less there was quite a chorus of disapproval by those members who represent the people's interest in this Council. Our criticism was, however, more than the authorities by their habit and tradition could bear with good grace and the irritation and heart-burning found their manifestation in the observation which forms the subject-matter of the resolution which Your Excellency has so kindly permitted me to move.

Now the questions which I propose to discuss in moving this resolution are the following :—

- (i) Does the observation to which this resolution takes exception refer to the discussion by non-official members of the Council in connection with the last Budget?
- (ii) If so, is the observation consistent with official decorum and etiquette?
Is it proper?
- (iii) If not, should the sentence be deleted from the Administration Report?

There can be no manner of doubt as regards the real objective of the criticism. Is it not an enigma which defies our powers of construction and interpretation? This attack is not even a veiled one. He who runs may read it. The simple test is this—what is the impression which was irresistably produced in the mind of every member of this Council as he read the sentence? This is a test which I hope will be acceptable to all the Hon'ble Members. One Hon'ble Member honestly felt that this was the clear and obvious meaning and accordingly asked the Government in the last meeting of the Council if it was not so. This gave the Government and through the Government the author of the report an opportunity to disavow the insinuation and to reassure those who interpreted it as a fling at the non-official members. But the reply which was vouchsafed was not only not reassuring but aggravated the situation. The suggestion made by my Hon'ble friend Mr. Ray was not repudiated. It was said that the remark was made by the author of the report on the basis of the published information available to him; from whatever sources it may have been derived. Is it a point blank answer, my Lord, to a point blank question? Are we a bit wiser by reason of the answer? The outstanding result, however, is that the suggestion remains unrepudiated and non-traversal, as we all know, is tantamount to admission. We have been told that the unwritten rules governing the matter are those based on etiquette and good feeling. I am quite prepared to accept the unwritten rules which are now reduced to writing. The question, however, arises for your Lordship's consideration; has the observation of the Administration Report not transgressed these rules? Is it consistent with official decorum and etiquette for the Head of a Department to employ such language about discussions in Your Excellency's Council? Under the regulations of this Council our speeches are addressed direct to Your Excellency. Can it be consistent with decorum for the Head of a Department to speak in such disrespectful languages of those speeches? Is he not by reason of his appointment under the Government bound to speak more respectfully about speeches addressed to Your Excellency? Does he not owe it to his position as a public servant to be more respectful to the proceedings of the Council, presided over by Your Excellency?

Resolutions.Babu Ambica Charan Majumdar ; Maulvi Abul Kasem.

We sometimes hear of impertinent remarks made by impertinent police officers against decision of Courts with which they feel dissatisfied. They, of course, do so in confidential reports. They would certainly be guilty of contempt of Court if they had the temerity to make such remarks in any published report. I do think, my Lord, that the language employed towards the members of the Council constitutes contempt of Council. So far as this matter is concerned, it does not make any difference whether the members attacked are official or non-official. Non-official as they are, they are none the less members of Your Excellency's Council and not members of the Council of the Inspector-General of Police.

The next question is whether such observations are calculated to promote good feeling. Possibly the author of the report thinks that not only Christianity requires a man to turn his right cheek when he receives a slap on his left, but Vaishnavism also inculcates the response to brickbats by pure love. According to this lofty ideal alone can it possibly be said that the sting of the remark will not cause irritation and bitterness.

My Lord, the remark of the Administration Report has infringed the rules laid down in the last meeting of the Council. The remark is undignified, un-Parliamentary, improper and ultra vires and should not be allowed to disfigure the Administration Report.

In conclusion, I shall only say this: Our protests against the large increase of Police expenditure were absolutely abortive. It would be only adding insult to injury to allow such criticism by Heads of Departments."

The Hon'ble BABU AMBICA CHARAN MAJUMDAR said :—

"My Lord, in rising to make a few observations on this regrettable incident I wish to be understood that I am not moved by any personal feeling or sentiment. I do not wish Your Excellency to defend us, but I only ask Your Excellency to defend the dignity of this Council and the position of the legislature. If Your Excellency and the galaxy of administrators sitting to your right could for more than two hours tolerate the inconsequential flow of eloquence at the last Budget debate, I do not think that it was the business of any police officer sitting in the quiet recess of the Secretariat to resent it. It is said that 'a good deal of eloquence was expended' over the increased allotment for the Police. Whether a good deal of eloquence was expended or a good deal of money was wasted on that day it was a matter which was closed with the passing of that Budget; and I do think that it was both indecorous and undignified, if not actually impertinent, for any member of the administration to criticize the proceedings of the legislature and to treat that assembly as an unwholesome foreign body fit only to be ejected by vomiting forth such effusions as have characterized the Police Administration Report which has just been published. Such fulminations may appear in the columns of a newspaper, but I do think that they are singularly inappropriate in a solemn document like an Administration Report. A spirit like this ought to be discouraged. As for myself I can well console myself with the reflection that the higher one mounts the purer becomes the atmosphere, and although such unseemly observations may well appear in a Police Report, I think that they cannot find a place in the report of any higher branch of the administration."

The Hon'ble MAULVI ABUL KASEM said :—

"My Lord, I only rise to support the resolution moved by my Hon'ble friend Babu Akhil Chandra Datta and I do not think I need add anything to what has been said on this subject. I believe, my Lord, that all criticisms on questions of administrations which are addressed to Your Excellency are not only—whether they are accepted or not—welcome to Your Excellency, but also to the members of this Government; and I think it is unfair both to this Council and to the administration in general for any Head of a Department or any official to pass any critical remarks on the conduct of proceedings in this Council. With these few words I hope Your Excellency in Council will find your way to accept this resolution."

Resolutions.Babu Bhabendra Chandra Ray ; Maulvi Fazl-ul Haq.

THE HON'BLE BABU BHABENDRA CHANDRA RAY said :—

"My Lord, when I discovered the passage in the Police Administration Report, I thought it must have been a case of oversight on the part of the higher authorities who, I presume, have to go through Reports before they are published; and I expected that in reply to my question about this matter at the last meeting, Government would acknowledge this to be so. But to our surprise and regret, a desperate attempt was made to defend a thoroughly indefensible position by resorting to language of a delightful vagueness in which some of our official friends excel. It was all the same a clear—though hardly a straightforward—admission that the reference was to the proceedings of this Council.

My Lord, the passage referred to has been stated to be quite in conformity with etiquette and good-feeling. That this resolution has been brought forward to-day is ample proof that it is not considered in that light on this side of the House. It is considered by us to be a gratuitous insult to this Council.

The whole question is whether a subordinate official is at liberty to criticize in official reports the proceedings of this Council. I appeal to your Lordships' parliamentary experience to say what the result would be if, say, a permanent Under-Secretary had the hardihood to be humorous at the expense of the House of Commons. Would he be defended by the Ministry in the House or given the sack? We have heard a good deal about the dignity of the Legislative Council. When, for instance, a resolution or a question is not admitted without any reasons being assigned, and it finds its way into the Press, Hon'ble Members are roundly charged with having taken away from the dignity of the Legislative Council. I hope our official friends will demonstrate by their voting on this resolution that they really care for the dignity of the Council."

THE HON'BLE MAULVI FAZL-UL HAQ said :—

"My Lord, I rise to support this resolution not merely because it raises an important question of principle but also because the answer that has been given by Government to some of the interpellations on this subject have, as has been pointed out by my Hon'ble friend Babu Akhil Chandra Datta, aggravated the situation by adding insult to injury. I think that it is time that we should bring matters to an issue and get from Government a clear and unmistakable statement as to the importance which they attach to the dignity and prestige of the non-official members in this Council. Personally my Lord, I do not care very much whether the importances that attaches to the membership of Council is higher than that of the membership of a debating club or the Pinjrapole Society at Sodpur. But I think it is time that the public whom we serve should know how very sorely we are tried, and how very futile are our efforts to get a proper recognition of those interests, the protection of which we consider to be our most sacred charge.

Resolutions.The President ; Maulvi Fazl-ul-Haq.

My Lord, I had occasion to go through the answers that have been given to-day to the two questions on this very subject, one by the Hon'ble Babu Bhabendra Chandra Ray and the other by Babu Akhil Chandra Datta. I think it is necessary that I should draw the attention of the Council to the nature of the replies that have been given to these interpellations. My friend, the Hon'ble Babu Bhabendra Chandra Ray, who was the first to put a question on the subject tried to elicit the information whether, in making the remarks which the Inspector-General of Police did as regards the discussion on last year's Budget relating to police expenditure he had in his mind the speeches that had been made by the non-official members of this Council. The plainest course for the Government to follow, in my humble judgment, was to get a statement from the Inspector-General of Police one way or the other, and frankly tell us either in the affirmative or in the negative. Instead of doing that, I am extremely sorry that the official or officials who prepared the answer to the interpellation only tried to fence with the matter and wanted to evade the issue by giving us answers which really did not meet the points that had been raised. As an instance, my Lord, I will refer the Council to some of the answers which have been given to-day ; e.g., Question V (Unstarred) put by the Hon'ble Babu Bhabendra Chandra Ray."

The President said :—

"Order, order. I must call the attention of the Hon'ble Member to rule 17 of the Question Rules which says that no discussions shall be permitted in respect of any question or any answer given to a question. I understand the Hon'ble Member seems to be showing a tendency to transgress that rule and I hope that in the subsequent remarks which he may make he will endeavour to refrain from doing so."

The Hon'ble MAULVI FAZL-UL-HUQ continuing said :—

"I must bow to your Excellency's decision. Although I have not the particular rule before me, I understand the rule to mean that as soon as an answer to an interpellation is given it is not open to a member of this Council to enter into a discussion with a member of the Government on the point. But I think that it is perfectly open to us, in speaking on a resolution, to refer to a reply given in this Council and discuss it from our points of view. The particular rule that has been read to me, I submit, does not preclude a discussion of the reply which has been given to an interpellation.

My Lord, the time at my disposal is short and it is really too late in the day to spend any further eloquence on the matter on which so many speakers have already spoken and on which articles have appeared in the public press. But, what I was going to submit for Your Excellency's consideration was the fact that instead of giving a plain and direct answer Government really tried to withhold the information which was sought simply for information's sake. I can assure Your Excellency that neither the Hon'ble Babu Bhabendra Chandra Ray nor Babu Akhil Chandra Datta wanted to transgress the rules of etiquette and good-feeling, and it was only fair to them that the information should have been given, but instead of that Government says to-day that the Inspector-General had before him not merely the discussions in Council but also the comments that appeared in the public press. I am extremely sorry, my Lord, that this answer should have been given by a member of the Government and especially by one whose mother-tongue itself is English. I submit that the eloquence to which reference has been made must be with reference to speeches and cannot refer to comments in the newspapers. I do not wish to enter into an elaborate discussion of what eloquence really means, but reading the Inspector-General's report, one is at once led to think that he must have referred to speeches and not to written comments. We really do not speak of eloquence as a written comment. Secondly, my Lord, the point was whether the reference had been made to the speeches of the members of this Council. Yes or no would have been quite sufficient and no explanatory words were called for. My Lord, I do not wish to say more on this point, because Your Excellency's ruling is that the replies given in this Council are not open to further comment. The reason why I think this remark should be expunged from the Police Report is extremely obvious. We are here to assist the Government, and while I think that it is extremely unfortunate that we should be compelled to discuss these matters publicly in this Council it is also our bounden duty to point out to Your Excellency that it is almost impossible for us to discharge our duties faithfully and conscientiously if we are haunted with the idea that the remarks which we make in this Council will be subject to criticism by Heads of Departments, criticisms which we cannot have any opportunity to answer. If the Inspector-General wanted any defender from the attacks that had been made on the policy of his department, I believe, there are several of that category in this very Council and it was certainly not his business in writing out the annual report of the department to take upon himself the functions which can properly be performed by the Hon'ble Member of this Council—I mean the official members.

Resolutions.

Maulvi Fazl-ul Haq ; Sir Henry Wheeler.

Then, my Lord, quite apart from the fact we would be hampered in our duty if there are no restrictions to the limit to which our remarks could be criticized by Heads of Departments, I think I am right in saying that the public at large also feel that the powers and privileges, whatever they may be of non-official members of this Council, should not be subject to criticisms by the Heads of Departments. Indians as a rule are not very familiar with the Parliamentary procedure or with what happens in England, when Members of Parliament rise to criticize the Government and when those representing the Government give replies and defend the Provincial Government. Indians generally look upon one's power and privileges by the extent to which protection is given by Government to the exercise of those powers and privileges by particular persons, and if the public at large come to entertain the view that an Hon'ble Member of this Council is not immune from an attack by a Head of a Department, he will at once be led to think that whatever may be the honorific title which may attach to the names of the members of this Council they are, so far as prestige and honour is concerned, much below those who have to run the several departments of Government. I do not claim for a moment that a non-official member of this Council as a rule would like to get an assurance from Your Excellency that in point of official precedence or in other matters they are superior or inferior to Heads of Departments, and no non-official member is filled with any vanity on that point. But I wish to make this point clear that so far as the public at large is concerned, it is also the duty of Government to see that our prestige and whatever honour may attach to the membership of this Council may remain unimpaired. It is then and then only that we can be useful coadjutors and instead of being critics—and merciless critics—we could be of the greatest possible help not merely in giving information to Your Excellency but also interpreting the Government policy to the public. My Lord, I can well understand that it is very difficult at this stage to delete a sentence like that from a Government report, but the circumstances are also peculiar and although my friend the Hon'ble the Mover has not indicated how this course could be adopted, if Your Excellency accepts the resolution. I would respectfully suggest that the passage be deleted by a notification in the Gazette. With these few words I beg to support the resolution."

The Hon'ble SIR HENRY WHEELER said :—

"I feel some hesitation in detaining the Council at this hour with a lengthy speech on this subject, because I apprehend that if the answers that we have already given to various questions have failed to disabuse certain

Resolutions.Babu Akhil Chandra Datta.

Hon'ble Members of the illusions under which they are labouring, nothing that I can add verbally is likely to have that result. I submit that the Hon'ble Members who have spoken to-day are seeing insults where they do not exist, and are defending themselves against attacks that are not made. It has been taken for granted that this remark was an attack upon the dignity of this Council. I deny that it is an attack upon anybody or upon the dignity of this Council in particular, and when we hear of 'the vomiting forth of violent fulminations' and 'direct attacks' and 'impertinent criticisms', I submit that Hon'ble Members are indulging in the language of hyperbole and exaggeration.

Now, let us take the full statement as it was made. It ran :—

'A good deal of eloquence has lately been expended on the subject of increased expenditure on the police, but if an efficient and contended police force is desired, it must be paid for. A high degree of efficiency can hardly be expected from an underpaid, undermanned and badly housed force, deficient both in clothing and equipment. A considerably larger expenditure will have to be faced before the urgent needs of the department can be satisfied'.

I maintain, Sir, that taking that remark as a whole, it is a reasonable comment by a responsible Head of a Department on a matter of great importance to his department; what he is pressing is that if efficiency is to be maintained, then, in his view, more money must be spent. That is an opinion which any man may well have formed on consideration of all the sources of information which, as has been said in one of our answers, were available to him—from his reading of the newspapers, his reading of the proceedings of this Council, his conversations with his acquaintances—and interpreting the sentence as conveying the impression left on the mind of the Inspector-General of Police as to the view of this matter which prevailed in certain quarters, I say it was not an unreasonable expression and that no attack need be inferred from its use. This Council ranges over a large field of subjects. Surely it is not to be contended that any remark made by an official in a report relative to an administrative question with which he is naturally concerned as the Head of the Department is to be taken as derogatory to the dignity of this Council, merely because some one in Council may have touched upon the same point. The Head of the Department may rightly have read and considered what was said in this Council with reference to the department of which he is in charge, but he has many other sources of information, and surely it is a somewhat exaggerated view of the bearings of our discussions on the minds of the public to assume that any comments made on administrative subjects are necessarily derived from, and with reference to, remarks which have been made here.

As regards the etymological argument that 'eloquence' must refer to something spoken, may I merely mention such frequently heard expressions as 'eloquent' articles, 'eloquent' newspaper writings, 'eloquent' descriptions and the like, are all common expressions in the English language.

It has already been said on behalf of the Inspector-General of Police in answer to a question to-day, that he had neither solely nor even mainly in his mind what had been said in this Council. The honour of the Council is necessarily dear to any member of Government, and so long as His Excellency occupies the position of President, he is not likely to allow it to be infringed. But we cannot agree to accepting a resolution which infers that one of our responsible Heads of Departments has committed an indiscretion, which he distinctly disclaims and for imagining the commission of which we can see no justification."

The Hon'ble BABU AKHIL CHANDRA DATTA said :—

"My Lord, as we apprehended the Hon'ble Sir Henry Wheeler has defended the Inspector-General of Police. He said that it was not an attack ; of course there is nothing innately perverse in our nature that we should see insult where there is really none and precisely for that reason a question was asked at the last meeting as to whether or not there was an insinuation. If a straightforward answer had been given at the last meeting then we would not possibly have brought forward this resolution in to-day's meeting. We have been compelled to bring forward this resolution as an inevitable result of the answer that was given at the last meeting. It has been said that we have indulged in hyperbole. And has not, My Lord, Sir Henry Wheeler expended so much eloquence needlessly in describing our position with respect to this matter? It is said that the Inspector-General has reasonable ground for saying so in his report. With your Lordship's permission I shall submit that when the observation was allowed to be made in the Administration Report there was committed only a sin of omission but now an additional sin of commission has been committed by upholding or justifying it. It is not only the non-official members but also the official members who should be keen about the honour of this Council ; and your Lordship will excuse me for a bit of frankness—it may be the judgment of the official members of this Council may be somewhat unconsciously influenced by the consideration that he is more an official like the Inspector-General of Police than a member of this Council.

Babu Akhil Chandra Datta.

LIST OF BUSINESS—ITEM No. 24.

The Hon'ble BABU AKHIL CHANDRA DATTA moved the following resolution :—

This Council recommends to the Governor in Council—

- (a) that a Committee consisting of the Hon'ble Sir S. P. Sinha, the Hon'ble Mr. J. G. Cumming, Sir Gurudas Banerjee, Sir K. G. Gupta and the Hon'ble Maulvi A. K. Faz-lul-Haq be formed to inquire into the case of the two women of Bankura both named Sindhubalas ;
- (b) that the result of the said inquiry be published in the shape of a communiqué ; and
- (c) that if the Committee find that the arrest of one or both of the two women was unjustifiable, suitable punishment be awarded to the officer or officers responsible for their arrest.

He said :—

"My Lord, we have been assured that the Defence of India Act is not an 'Oppression of India's Act for the prosecution of innocent young men'. We have been assured that the Act is administered with the utmost consideration and circumspection and that the personal liberty of His Majesty's subjects is never lightly interfered with. But the case of the two Sindhubalas and the Government communiqué published in yesterday's papers have made disclosures which we cannot contemplate with equanimity and have proved beyond doubt that all that glitters is not gold and that things are not what they are represented to be. Let us examine the Government version and see whether there was any justification for the arrest and detention of the two unfortunate women of Bankura. We are told that a slip of paper containing the name of one Sindhubala with her address was found among the papers of a member of the revolutionary party in Calcutta, and the Criminal Investigation Department, Calcutta, at once telegraphed orders to the Superintendent of Police, Bankura, to arrest her under the Defence of India Act. The Government communiqué says that the Criminal Investigation Department had reasonable grounds for regarding the original name found on the slip as suspicious. My Lord, such a view can only be based on the assumption that all relations, all friends, and all acquaintances of the members of the revolutionary movement are themselves revolutionaries. Not only this, even those who are known to them but to whom they are perfect strangers are also revolutionaries. Suppose a political suspect wants to communicate his grievances to the Secretary of the Indian Association and writes his name on an envelope ; then according to the dictum laid down in the communiqué it could be said that the discovery of the envelope would constitute reasonable grounds for suspecting that the Secretary of the Indian Association was a participant in the revolutionary movement. I shall not labour on this point. But I shall say this : We have always been told that the people are never suspected unless the Criminal Investigation Department have reasonable grounds for suspecting them. Am I then to understand that during the last three or four years many of my countrymen have been suspected on such reasonable grounds as have been disclosed in this Government communiqué ? It is now admitted that the order of the Criminal Investigation Department for the arrest of a Sindhubala was an error of judgment. But the two Sindhubalas in their inarticulate voice must have said to the Criminal Investigation Department : 'It may be an error to you, it may be play to you, but it has been something more serious to us'. Error of judgment—honest error of judgment—honest error made in coming to an honest judgment by an honest enquiry to get at the truth is certainly pardonable ; and I for one never quarrel with such errors. But error of judgment presupposes the exercise of some judgment. The question, therefore, arises—Was there any enquiry made by the Criminal Investigation Department before they came to this erroneous judgment? Did the Criminal Investigation Department take any evidence of any kind? Did they examine any witness? Did they make any enquiry of any description whatsoever? Was there anything before the Criminal Investigation Department except the mysterious communication made to them by that magical slip? There was not even so much as the statement of a police spy or informer. It is, therefore, a case where there was no judgment, erroneous or otherwise—it is, therefore, not a case of error of judgment. Judgment without enquiry is an achievement of which the Criminal Investigation Department may be proud, but I shall certainly say this that such procedure is repugnant to all ideas of justice and fair play. Our complaint, my Lord, is that the Criminal Investigation Department has been invested with extraordinary powers: our complaint is that they have exercised those powers without any sense of responsibility; our complaint is that many persons as innocent as the two Sindhubalas admittedly are have been arrested as recklessly as they were arrested; our complaint is that many innocent men and boys have been the victims of the over-zealous activities of the Criminal Investigation Department. We have been persistently and insistently inviting the attention of the Government to the inherent defects of the general policy regarding the administration of the Defence of India Act and to the outrageous injustice to which it has inevitably led in individual cases. But we have always been told in reply that we are abnormally suspicious; that our complaints are without any foundation. If I were permitted to speak out with absolute frankness I would say that we have all this time cried in the wilderness and failed to make any impression upon the robust optimism of the Government, that the Act is administered with the utmost care and scruple. But, my Lord, the case of the Sindhubalas and the facts admitted by the Government in connection with this case have conclusively demonstrated, if any demonstration were needed, that our complaints were not unfounded; that we were in the right and that the Government were in the wrong; that there is a screw loose somewhere in the machinery of internment and that there is something wrong somewhere in the affairs of the internment Department.

Resolutions.Babu Akhil Chandra Datta.

Why should it be supposed for one moment that the case of these unfortunate women is a isolated instance of the grievous wrong done by the Criminal Investigation Department? Who knows, my Lord, how many have been arrested and deprived of their personal liberty, under similar circumstances? This case is only a typical illustration of the gross abuse of power by the Criminal Investigation Department brought to light possibly owing to the fact that the victims happened to be women. It should at all events now be recognized that the strong views held by our distinguished countryman, Sir Rabindra Nath Tagore, on the subject of internment are not unwarranted by the manner in which the Defence of India Act is being administered in Bengal.

Why was the first Sindhubala arrested although she did not answer the description given in the warrant? It is said that the Superintendent surmized that the word Kamanbia Ghose in his order might be a mistake for Kunja Ghose and thinking that one Sindhubala, wife of Natobar Ghose, residing in that house might be the woman named in his instructions he arrested her. Now, the Superintendent's explanation is, to say the least, astounding and carries its own condemnation! On such a puerile surmise he most light-heartedly rushed into the sacred zenana where angels should have feared to tread. It is of course now admitted that the Superintendent arrested a wrong Sindhubala. The next question is why did he arrest the second Sindhubala when the order was to arrest only one woman? She also did not answer the description given in the order of the Superintendent even the name of the village did not tally. This Sindhubala was the wife of one Debendra Ghose. It is seriously stated in the Government communiqué that the Superintendent began to entertain doubts whether the words Kamanbia might not after all have been a mistake for Debendra and arrested her. My Lord, the first Sindhubala was arrested because the Superintendent thought Kamanbia might be a mistake for Kunja and the second Sindhubala was arrested because he thought Kamanbia might be a mistake for Debendra. It is of course now admitted that like the first Sindhubala the second Sindhubala is also as innocent as anybody present here. Verily, my Lord, we are fallen upon evil times when even our women are arrested on such pretexts as these. Was there the shadow of justification for arresting two women, one of whom the Superintendent knew was no more guilty than his ownself was? Would this abnormally overzealous Superintendent arrest a third woman if he had got scent of a third Sindhubala? Possibly he had drawn his inspiration from that interesting hero of Ramayan who was sent to the mountain of Gandhamadan to fetch the plant Bishalyakarani (विषल्यकरणी) but unable to recognise the same carried the entire mountain over his shoulders. We should be thankful to him that the Bankura Superintendent did not arrest the entire female population of Bankura.

Let us, however, see what happened after the double outrage. We are told that the Superintendent despatched a telegram to the Criminal Investigation Department asking which Sindhubala should be detained or both. We are further told that this telegram was delivered at the Criminal Investigation Department office but it was subsequently mislaid and it was not put up before any officer. The result, of course, was that neither Sindhubala was released and both had to rot in the jail. Not receiving any reply to his telegram the Superintendent posted his report of the double arrest to the Criminal Investigation Department. Like the telegram this report also reached the Criminal Investigation Department office and like the telegram this report also failed to obtain any immediate attention of the Criminal Investigation Department. For we are told that according to the usual routine the report was marked by the Special Assistant to one of the Special Superintendents by name. The latter officer, however, left Calcutta on urgent duty on the 8th January and the report was not seen by him till the evening of the 11th idem on his return. So the poor Sindhubalas had to rot in the jail up to the 11th January. But the Special Superintendent returned to Calcutta on that day and let us see whether one or both of the Sindhubalas were released without further delay. We are really grateful to the special Superintendent for we are told that he at once called for the file and submitted it to the Deputy Inspector-General on the 12th January. Very well, let us see what prompt action is taken by the Deputy Inspector-General. Why, it is seriously stated in the communiqué that he decided to telegraph to Bankura for the arrest of Debendra Ghose, husband of second Sindhubala, against whom grave charges had in the meantime been brought by the police and deferred orders in respect of the two women until the receipt of an answer to his telegram. But alas, we are told that there was a misunderstanding about this telegram also and as a matter of fact it was not despatched. The Deputy Inspector-General was, however, under the impression that the telegram had been sent and postponed orders about the women several days, expecting an answer to the telegram which had never been sent. The women were no doubt spending their days in the jail but we cannot be too grateful to the Deputy Inspector-General, for the communiqué says in a tone of great self-complacency that after a week he at once came to the conclusion that the two women could not be detained any longer and on the 18th January recommended their release to the local Government and their release was at once directed.

Resolutions.Babu Akhil Chandra Datta.

Such is the interesting history of the arrest of the women and their detention for 15 days in the jail as told in the Government communiqué. As I was reading it, my Lord, I was only wondering if it was and if it could be really the version of the Government. For I cannot conceive a greater indictment of the Criminal Investigation Department than this explanation itself. The most powerful and skilful advocate of Sindhubala could not possibly think of drawing up a more scathing impeachment of the Criminal Investigation Department. We are treated with the story of a series of blunders—a story of a series of sins of commission and omission committed in that mysterious Department popularly known as the Criminal Investigation Department. I do not know whether I should characterise this as a comedy or a tragedy of errors. If, however, the story is true, it only proves how inefficiently the Department is working. Is this, my Lord, the valuable service of the Criminal Investigation Department upon whom the most extravagant eulogy is so lavishly showered in season and out of season. There is one thing, my Lord, in the communiqué to which I feel bound to call Your Excellency's attention. It is said that the detention of the two Sindhubalas for a fortnight in the jail was due to a tissue of unfortunate but unintentional blunders. But is it not rather difficult to appreciate this explanation in view of the fact that throughout the whole of that fortnight the newspapers were crying hoarse over this unfortunate and outrageous incident? The indecent haste with which the order of arrest was passed and executed was however more than made up by the abnormal delay made in releasing them. It appears that "hurry up" is the watchword of the Criminal Investigation Department in the matter of arrest, whereas "put off the evil day" is their watchword in the matter of release. The raid on the Sindhubalas may be a feather in the cap of the Criminal Investigation Department but it may be the last straw on a camel's back. There is after all, my Lord, a limit even to oriental patience. People have tolerated indiscriminate arrests of men and boys. They will never do so in the case of their mothers and sisters. Has the Government considered for one moment the disastrous effect of the arrest of Sindhubalas upon the female population of the country in general and of Bankura in particular? One Sindhubala had a child in her arms. Will not that child imbibe an ill-will towards the Government with the milk from the mother's breast? There was a child in the womb of the other Sindhubala. Will not that child be born with a spoon in its mouth coated with anything but goodwill towards the Government which has persecuted its mother for nothing? In view, my Lord, of the far-reaching effects of such reckless arrests, it behoves Your Excellency to institute a careful and searching enquiry regarding the incident and award suitable punishment to all those who are responsible for it and who have thereby exposed the Government to such unsavoury criticism. Your Lordship should also order such steps to be taken as may make the recurrence of such an incident in future impossible. The short-sighted and bigoted policy of not washing the official dirty linen before the public will no longer do. It is an old and exploded shibboleth which must now be cast to the winds. Public opinion must now be reckoned with. It will not put up with such conduct on the part of the public servants. The time is gone when public servants used to lord it over, riding roughshod over the feelings of the people; the time has come when public servants must be servants of the public not merely in the sense that they receive their pay out of the taxes paid by the public, but in the sense that they exist only to serve the public. As Lord Morley (then Mr. Morley) wrote to Lord Minto :—

That system (system of arbitrary rule) may have worked in its own way in old days, and in those days the people may have had no particular objection to arbitrary rule. But, as you have said to me scores of times, the old days are gone and the new times breathe a new spirit ; and we cannot carry on upon the old maxims.

My Lord, the people demand that a searching enquiry be made and suitable and deterrent punishment be meted out to all those who are responsible for the unjust and unnecessary harassment of the two women."

The Honb'le RAI DEBENDER CHUNDER GHOSE BAHADUR said :—

"My Lord, I would accept the facts as they have been accepted by this Government in the official communiqué in the newspapers of Calcutta yesterday, and I have no intention of criticising the statements which have been accepted by Your Excellency's Government. My Lord, we are gratified in observing the spirit which has animated Your Excellency's Government in issuing the communiqué which appeared in the Calcutta papers yesterday about the subject of my Hon'ble friend's motion. The Government have already met my hon'ble friend's demand more than half-way in this regrettable business. The Government it seems has very carefully considered all the facts of the case and have informed the public of their own view in the matter. It has said that the order for arrest sent from the seat of the Government to the Bankura Police Superintendent was wrong. But it has not said anything about any punishment for any officer high or low through whose carelessness and want of judgment the two village women of Bankura were arrested and kept in prison for about two weeks. The officers concerned have this much to be said in their favour that they have in the past been encouraged in these courses, that their predecessors in office have been doing the same, and that highhandedness is the tradition of the police, who are otherwise a most useful body of public servants. In the present instance the Press has served the country very well. But for their persistent references to this unhappy incident in this remote corner of Bengal, I doubt very much whether the detention in jail of these two supposed suspects would have terminated after two weeks. In this country interference with personal liberty is made generally in a light-hearted manner by the Executive, and judging from recent events, women here do not get the same amount of consideration in their hands as their sisters in England. Your Excellency no doubt remembers the incidents of the Cass case in London which took place some years ago. An innocent shop girl of that name had to leave her business place at a very late hour in the evening, and was passing by a street alone, when an over-zealous police constable arrested her and kept her in the lock-up for a few hours. It created such a sensation in England that I believe the Home Secretary had to resign and make a scape-goat of himself. My Lord, I implore your government to caution the police in their pursuit of anarchical criminals amongst the women folk of the country. If they did that, they would be increasing the virus of anarchism, instead of lessening it. The present case is an illustration of the flimsy grounds upon which the police of the country proceed to deprive a person of his personal liberty, and of the ill effect, upon the feeling of the people, of their wild and injudicious proceedings. It is not necessary in the interests of good government to drag out a woman from her home because her husband or brother was a suspect and photographs of revolutionaries were found in her room. And whether you are prepared or not to mark your disapproval of the conduct of the officers concerned in the manner suggested by the words of the motion of my Hon'ble friend, you can do some reparation to the victims of your act, and the least you can do is to give adequate money compensation to the two injured women. This will not only soothe their feelings, but will have a very wholesome effect on the country—a thing more to be prized than the fetish of prestige."

Resolutions.Babu Mahendra Nath Ray; Sir Henry Wheeler.

The Hon'ble BABU MAHENDRA NATH RAY said :—

"My Lord, with some hesitation but with a full sense of my responsibility as a representative member of Your Excellency's Council, I support the motion. It seems to me that the official communiqué does not conclude the matter. The thing which strikes me most is that the official communiqué discloses some principles upon which the Criminal Investigation Department work. I was trying to formulate them to the best of my power and without prejudice, and I find that one may say without being guilty of verbal or substantial inaccuracy that the principles upon which the Criminal Investigation Department act are (1) every person, man or woman, whose name appears on any paper belonging to a suspect, shall be arrested, (2) any body answering to the name may be arrested on suspicion without adequate enquiry as to his identity. If the Criminal Investigation Department act upon principles like these, it is high time that there should be a thorough and sifting enquiry into these cases; whether the particular form of enquiry suggested in the motion will be adequate or not is another matter.

The official communiqué says that in directing the arrest of the woman concerned the Calcutta authorities of the Criminal Investigation Department were guilty of committing an error of judgment. I accept that statement with great satisfaction, but it is necessary and it is due to the public that Government should say that the Criminal Investigation Department are not competent to arrest every person, a man or a woman, whose name appears on any paper belonging to a suspect, or that anybody answering to a name should not be arrested on suspicion without any adequate enquiry as to identity. All this of course is quite apart from the perfunctory act of the Superintendent of Police who arrested the two women answering to the name and who kept them under arrest or in jail for two weeks. That is a matter which Government is no doubt enquiring into and in regard to which Government will pass proper orders, but having regard to the reasons I have ventured to place before the House, I think it is a matter which is not concluded by the official communiqué. I have no doubt there is no member in this House who will subscribe to such principles formally and that it is high time that by way of expression of our disapproval of such supposed principles we should not stop here, but that we should request Government to have a thorough and sifting enquiry made into the matter by an independent authority who will not be influenced by the principles on which the Criminal Investigation Department obviously work."

The Hon'ble Sir HENRY WHEELER said :—

"My Lord, in dealing with this resolution, I propose to confine myself as far as possible, to its terms and to the definite proposals made therein. These are three in number : first, that an enquiry be instituted by certain gentlemen ; secondly, that a communiqué be issued, and thirdly, that the officers held responsible be punished.

On behalf of Government I express our inability to accept that resolution on the following grounds : in the first place an enquiry has already been held, the facts have been elicited, and a full and frank statement has been laid before the public ; secondly, a communiqué has already issued, and finally, we propose to communicate to the officers concerned the expression of disapproval which is conveyed in the communiqué. To officers in their position it is no small punishment to be told publicly that they have committed an error of judgment. Apart from these points, I would only notice one criticism that has been made to-night of the supposed reckless and unjustifiable attitude of the police in assuming that there are reasonable grounds for suspicion against all relatives or connections of any man who is regarded as connected with the revolutionary movement. In defence of the police there are several considerations which should be borne in mind in judging of what they did. It is the common experience of these investigations and arrests made in circumstances such as these of members of the revolutionary party that names and addresses are found among their papers (frequently in cypher) indicating the names of post-boxes, harbourers and sympathisers. This has been proved up to the hilt by actual experience. Again, in this particular instance enquiry showed that other names found in the batch of papers were of people of this character. Further, although the person concerned in this case was a woman, it has unfortunately been the experience that women are being utilised in this movement in these capacities. These facts are to be remembered in justification of what has been represented to night to have been an absolutely unjustifiable suspicion on the part of the police, but, as I have said, Government consider that an error of judgment was committed, and in informing the officers concerned to that effect, intend to prevent, as far as possible, the recurrence of such incidents in future by directing that orders concerning women should not be passed without a prior reference to Government. That being so, I submit that we have taken reasonable action, and that the further steps asked for in the resolution are not required."

The Hon'ble BABU AKHIL CHANDRA DATTA said :—

"My Lord, I do not like to add anything by way of reply, for I do not think there is anything that is necessary to be said. I would only say one word in answer to the Hon'ble Sir Henry Wheeler. It appears to me to be a dangerous principle to lay down that whenever there are in any papers names found, experience has shown that there is a real ground for suspicion that these people are dangerous. A man may have relations, friends and acquaintances. Necessarily the names of these people may come in some papers and books, and merely because their names are found in any of the papers belonging to a member of the revolutionary party, should one come at once to the conclusion that they must be revolutionary conspirators and then order their arrest and say that there is reasonable ground for their arrest? I do not know whether I have done service or dis-service by bringing up this resolution as the action of the Criminal Investigation Department seems now to receive the approbation of a responsible member of Government. It is a case of from the frying pan into the fire. I do not think that any justification in defence of the Criminal Investigation Department was admittedly necessary in a case like this. In view of the injustice done, a word of consolation might have been used; instead of that an attempt has been made to justify the procedure adopted by the Criminal Investigation Department. However I do not think that the reply of the Hon'ble Sir Henry Wheeler really merits any reply from me."

The PRESIDENT said :—

"Perhaps it will not be out of place if I say a few words to the Council. I rise to do so because I think that the Hon'ble Member who has just sat down has misinterpreted a remark which was made by the Hon'ble Sir Henry Wheeler. But before I touch on that particular point, let me say, on behalf of the Government, that we take no exception at all to the action which the Hon'ble Member has taken in moving this resolution, and so far as I myself am concerned, I take no exception to the tone or substance of his speech or of the speeches of other Hon'ble Members in connection with this matter. Undoubtedly it is the duty of Members of the Council to bring matters of public importance to the attention of the Government and to voice the views of the public with regard to them. So I say that we take no exception at all to the action which the Hon'ble Member has taken in bringing forward this resolution.

Resolutions.The President.

Now the Hon'ble Member has inferred from a remark by Sir Henry Wheeler that it was the practice in the Criminal Investigation Department to arrest without further enquiry any person whose name might appear upon any document found in the possession of a man either known to be or suspected to be a member of the revolutionary party. I don't think that that was a strictly accurate interpretation of what Sir Henry Wheeler said. Unless my memory plays me false, what Sir Henry Wheeler said was that the experience of the past had shown that when the names of persons were found in cypher among the papers of a man who had been shown to the satisfaction of the Government to be connected with the revolutionary movement,—experience in the past had shown that these persons were almost invariably sympathisers and aiders of the movement, not necessarily in a major degree but generally in a minor degree, sympathisers who provided what is known as post boxes for the correspondence of the members of the revolutionary party, or sympathisers in that they assisted the members of the revolutionary party to abscond. I feel that all Hon'ble Members who listened carefully to what Sir Henry Wheeler said will bear me out when I say that this is what he said and what he intended to suggest. I certainly did not understand him to say that it was the regular practice for the Criminal Investigation Department to arrest without enquiry any person whose names were found under any circumstance in any document discovered in the possession of suspected persons. It seems to me that it is very desirable that this point should be made clear. In connection with that all that I wish to say is this, that the Government have frankly admitted that in this case an error of judgment was made and that the Government regret that it should have been so. It must be obvious to everybody that it is far more to the interest of the Government than of anyone else that errors of judgment of this kind should not be committed. It is the Government that have to bear the responsibility for that. Hon'ble Members may rest assured that it was no mere empty words which Sir Henry Wheeler spoke when he said that orders had been issued which would, so far as possible, prevent in the future any similar error of judgment being committed, and he stated, I think specifically, that in any case in which the police had reasonable grounds in future for suspecting a lady, action should not be taken against her until the matter had been referred to Government. Hon'ble Members will understand, I hope, that it is our intention to guard, so far as it is possible, against any similar errors of judgment in future.

It may not perhaps be out of place if I remind Hon'ble Members in this connection that the task which has been laid upon the shoulders of the Government is a very heavy one and one which has never been of their own seeking, but it was a task which was forced upon them by outrages and by crimes. It sometimes seems to me that both in the press and on the platform, as a result of the natural desire on the part of the spokesmen of the public to see that these extraordinary powers which the Government are exercising are exercised as justly as possible, they do sometimes lose sight of all the horror and the misery that the public themselves have been saved from as a result of the action which the Government have been compelled to take. I venture to leave that for the consideration of the Council, that when they are considering these matters, let them understand that it is in the interest of the public themselves that the Government has taken this action, and that if it had not been taken, if these extraordinary powers had not been exercised by the Government during the past year or two, we should undoubtedly have seen a continuance and probably an increase of that horrible series of crimes and outrages which blackened the history of Bengal for a period of something like ten years.

Resolutions.

Babu Akhil Chandra Datta ; Sir Henry Wheeler.

I hope that hon'ble members will not think that I have taken too much upon myself in making these observations. The matter under consideration is one for which I, as the head of the Government, must take full responsibility. So long as members of this Council are satisfied, as I trust they are, that the Government are at all times desirous of doing everything that lies in their power to prevent the miscarriage of justice and to prevent the infliction of hardships on innocent persons, so long I say as the members of this Council are satisfied that this is the position of Government, I am prepared to let the matter rest there."

The Hon'ble BABU AKHIL CHANDRA DATTA said :—

"In view of your Lordship's kind assurance, I beg leave to withdraw the Resolution."

— The Resolution was then, by leave of the President, withdrawn.

The Hon'ble SIR HENRY WHEELER said :—

"Sir, as I do not wish that there should be any possibility of misunderstanding in connection with this incident, may I, with Your Excellency's permission, add one word. In my reference to the papers frequently found among the effects of members of the revolutionary party, I think I used the words 'in circumstances such as these.' I referred to the names frequently found jotted down on scraps of paper and in pocket books among the private papers of these men. Such names are sometimes in cypher and some times en clair. In this particular instance there were names in cypher, but the name of Sindhubala Dasi was en clair."

ADJOURNMENT.

The Council was then adjourned to Tuesday, the 5th March, 1918, at 11 A.M., at Government House, Calcutta.

*Questions and Answers.LIST OF BUSINESS—ITEM No. 2.*STARRED QUESTION.

By the Hon'ble BABU BHABENDRA CHANDRA RAY :—

*1. Are the Government aware of the opinion that has been expressed that the girls' schools and zenana agencies are becoming unpopular on account of the treatment received by the teachers and respectable zenana ladies from the Officiating Inspectress of Schools? Girls' schools and zenana agencies.

Answer by the Hon'ble MR. O'MALLEY :—

"No."

UNSTARRED QUESTIONS.

(The Answers to which were laid on the table.)

By the Hon'ble MR. AETAF ALI :—

I. (a) Are the Government aware that four rooms belonging to the Junior Madrassah at Rajshahi were taken over by the Principal of the Rajshahi College about four years ago, an assurance being given at the time that the rooms would be restored to the Madrassah after the completion of the Physics Laboratory? Rajshahi College and the Junior Madrassah.

(b) Is it a fact that after the completion of the laboratory another room in addition to the four was taken?

(c) Is it a fact that, as a result of this, some of the Madrassah classes are held in the Muhammadan college hostel which is outside the Madrassah building?

Answer by the Hon'ble MR. O'MALLEY :—

"(a) The answer is in the negative. The building in question formerly belonged to a senior Madrassah, which was abolished in 1883. In 1884 it was decided to retain the junior classes of the Madrassah, on the condition that they were to be treated as a branch of the college and not as Madrassah classes, and to use the old Madrassah building partly for the college and partly as a hostel for the students attending the Madrassah classes. Government at the same time made over Rs. 20,000, representing nearly two-thirds of the original cost of the building, to the Mohsin Fund, from which the major portion of its cost had been met.

The building consists of a central hall and 12 rooms, of which six have long been used and are still used for the Madrassah classes. The central hall was used as a lecture theatre and the other six rooms for the college science classes before the new physical laboratory was built. Since July 1914, when the laboratory was completed, the latter six rooms have continued to be used for college purposes, two for Arabic and Persian classes and the rest for tutorial classes and seminars for honours classes.

In 1909 the Lieutenant-Governor of Eastern Bengal and Assam, in reply to an address presented by the Rajshahi Muhammadan Association, gave an assurance that when the new laboratory was completed, the portion of the Madrassah building then used by the college would be given up for the Madrassah classes. It has not yet been possible to do this on account of the requirements of the college.

(b) No.

(c) No. One class has long been held in a building which was formerly used as the Madrassah hostel and is now used as a college Muhammadan hostel."

Questions and Answers.

By the Hon'ble MR. F. W. CARTER :—

European Lunatic Asylum
at Ranchi.

II. (a) Will the Government be pleased to state when the Lunatic Asylum for Europeans, at Ranchi, is likely to be opened?

(b) Has it been arranged for the services of Major Peebles to be placed at the disposal of the Government of Bihar and Orissa to act as Superintendent of the Asylum?

(c) Has the necessary furniture and equipment been provided?

(d) In the event of the Ranchi Asylum being ready for occupation in the near future, are the Government considering the desirability of setting aside sufficient money in the forthcoming Budget for the re-building of the present Lunatic Asylum at Bhowanipore as an observation place for suspected lunacy? •

Answer by the Hon'ble MR. DONALD :—

" (a) No exact date can be stated. It is expected that the institution will be opened early this month

(b) The services of Major Peebles were placed at the disposal of the Government of Bihar and Orissa on the 10th January, 1918.

(c) Major Peebles is at present engaged in furnishing and equipping the Asylum as a necessary preliminary to its being opened.

(d) Government have decided to convert the existing Asylum at Bhowanipore into an observation ward for mental cases. A sum of rupees two lakhs has been provided for the purpose in the Provincial Civil Works estimates for 1918-19."

By the Hon'ble KHAN SAHIB AMAN ALI :—

Muhammadan
students in Chittagong.

III (a) Are the Government aware that a considerable number of boarders from the Government Madrassah Hostel at Chittagong have been removed to the Victoria Moslem Hostel in that place?

(b) Is it a fact that as a result of the removal a considerable number of seats fell vacant in the former hostel, and that these were filled by Muhammadan students from the Training College?

(c) Will the Government be pleased to state why the Muhammadan students of the Madrassah College included in the new Madrassah scheme have not been given the vacant seats?

(d) Are the Government considering the desirability of inquiring from the Principal of the Moslem College as to the number of applications he has received from candidates in the Moslem College who desire seats in the Government Madrassah Hostel?

(e) Are the Government considering the desirability of removing the Training College students to the Victoria Islam Hostel, situated within a mile from the Training College?

Answer by the Hon'ble MR. O'MALLEY :—

" (a) Government are aware that pupils of the Government Moslem High School who were resident in the Madrassah Hostel were removed to the Victoria Moslem Hostel in order to make room for pupils of the Normal School.

(b) It is a fact that a number of seats became vacant. They were taken by pupils of the Normal School. There is no Training College at Chittagong, and it is presumed that the Hon'ble Member refers to the Normal School.

(c) The Hon'ble Member is referred to the reply to part (a) of the question.

(d) No. It is presumed that by the Moslem College the Hon'ble Member means the Madrassah.

(e) No."

IV. (a) Are the Government aware of the number of scholarships which each District Board awards to the students studying in the Engineering, Medical, Agricultural, Weaving, Deaf and Dumb, Art, Veterinary and other Technical Schools and Colleges? Scholarship awards by District Boards to Technical Schools and Colleges.

(b) If so, will the Government be pleased to lay on the table a statement showing the number of scholarships awarded by each District Board to Muhammadan students in such schools and colleges?

Answer by the Hon'ble MR. O'MALLEY :—

"A statement is laid on the table."

Statement referred to in the answer by the Hon'ble MR. O'MALLEY to question No. IV (unstarred) asked by the Hon'ble KHAN SAHIB AMAN ALI at the Council meeting of the 5th March, 1918, showing the number of scholarships awarded by District Boards to Technical Schools and Colleges.

Muhammadans and road cess.

V. (a) Will the Government be pleased to lay on the table a statement showing the amount of road-cess paid by Muhammadan raiyats, intermediate holders and zamindars in the different districts of the Bengal Presidency, as compared with the amounts paid by other communities?

(b) Is it a fact that the Muhammadans are paying equal or more cess than other communities?

(c) If so, are the Government considering the desirability of issuing circular orders to the different District Boards to make provision for scholarships to be awarded to Muhammadan students, in proportion to the cess paid by that community?

Answer by the Hon'ble MR. O'MALLEY :—

“(a) and (b) The information is not available, and Government are not prepared to call for it in view of the expense and labour involved in the compilation of the figures, which would necessitate the employment of a large additional staff.

(c) No.”

By the Hon'ble KHAN SAHIB AMAN ALI :—

Muhammadan
president panchayats.

VI. (a) Will the Government be pleased to state the number of Muhammadan president panchayats in the Brahmanbaria and Chandpur subdivisions in the district of Tippera in the year in which the system was first introduced and also in recent years?

(b) Is it a fact that the number of Muhammadan panchayats has decreased?

(c) If so, are the Government considering the desirability of inquiring into the cause of such decrease?

Answer by the Hon'ble MR. KERR :—

“(a) and (b) When the president panchayat system was first introduced, the number of Muhammadan president panchayats in the Brahmanbaria subdivision was 38 out of a total of 100, and in the Chandpur subdivision 40 out of a total of 60. The numbers now are 25 and 35 out of 77 and 52, respectively.

(c) In answer to inquiry the District Magistrate reports that in filling up vacancies in president panchayatships, regard is always had to the importance of the Muhammadan community in the union concerned, but that it is often difficult to find suitable Muhammadans with the necessary qualifications.”

(b) Is it a fact that the Hindu Tahsildar so appointed has a bad record of service?

Questions and Answers.

Answer by the Hon'ble MR. KERR :—

"(a) and (b) The case to which the Hon'ble Member refers is the appointment of a clerk in the Khas Mahal Department in the Noakhali Collectorate, not of a Tahsildar. Government understand that in this case an appeal is pending before the Commissioner of the Chittagong Division; and for this reason do not consider it desirable to make any pronouncement in the matter at the present stage."

By the Hon'ble MAULVI A. K. FAZL-UL-HAQ :—

X. Will the Government be pleased to state—

(i) the total expenditure on Hostels, Boarding Houses and College messes in Bengal during the financial years of 1912-17; Expenditure on Hostels, etc.

(ii) the total expenditure on such institutions, meant exclusively for Muhammadans, during the same period?

Answer by the Hon'ble MR. O'MALLEY :—

"Two statements are laid on the table. In Statement B separate figures showing the expenditure incurred on institutions meant exclusively for Muhammadans cannot be given without an undue amount of labour."

Questions and Answers.

By the Hon'ble MAULVI A. K. FAZL-UL-HAQ :—

XI. (a) Is it a fact that in allotting seats to the invited guests on the occasion of the presentation of addresses to His Excellency the Governor on his recent visit to Burdwan the seat of the late Nawab Abdul Jubbar was placed after some Rai Bahadurs and that of Shamsul Ulama Lutfur Rahman after all the Rai Bahadurs?

A question of precedence.

(b) Are the Government considering the desirability of inquiring why the Muhammadan title-holders were not given places according to their rank?

(c) Is it a fact that the Muhammadan gentlemen referred to above though present in Burdwan did not attend on the occasion?

Answer by the Hon'ble MR. KERR :—

"(a) The late Nawab Abdul Jubbar, C.I.E., occupied the sixth place in the Burdwan district Durbar list, and he was accordingly allotted the sixth seat on the occasion referred to. Shamsul Ulama Lutfur Rahman is a resident of the district of Murshidabad and is not on the Burdwan Durbar list. He was invited to the ceremony at the request of the Secretary of the Muhammadan Association, and no question as to his precedence arose.

(b) The enquiries which have been made show that the arrangements were in accordance with the rules.

(c) It is reported that the late Nawab was unable to attend the ceremony owing to age and bodily infirmity. It is not known why Shamsul Ulama Lutfur Rahman did not attend the ceremony or whether he was in Burdwan on that day."

XIII. (a) Is it a fact that about 23 Sub-Judges including one District Judge, promoted from the Provincial Service, are due to retire on or before the 1st May, 1918?

Extensions of service of certain Judicial officers.

(b) If so, are the Government considering the desirability of requesting the High Court not to allow any extensions of service to these officers in view of the recent letter No. 109-Public, dated India Office, London, the 7th September, 1917, from the Secretary of State, amending the Civil Service Regulations with regard to the pensions of Gazetted officers?

Questions and Answers.

Answer by the Hon'ble MR. KERR :—

" (a) Yes.

(b) Extension of service for one year was granted to four of the officers in September 1917 before the receipt of the recent orders. The case of the remaining officers is under consideration and will be decided in accordance with the orders now in force."

Scheme
regarding the Provincial
Judicial Services.

XIV. (a) Is it a fact that, after the separation of Bihar, the High Court submitted a scheme regarding the Bengal Provincial Judicial Service?

(b) Was that scheme approved by the Government and shown as the existing cadre in the Report of the Public Services Commission?

(c) If so, will the Government be pleased to state why that scheme was not given effect to?

Answer by the Hon'ble MR. KERR :—

" (a), (b) and (c) The Hon'ble Member is referred to the answer given to the question put on this subject by the Hon'ble Babu Akhil Chandra Datta at the meeting of the Council held on the 7th August, 1917."

By the Hon'ble MAULVI A. K. FAZL-UL-HAQ :—

Pay of Munsifs

XV. (a) In view of the assurance given by the Hon'ble Nawab Sir Syed Shams-ul-Huda in his Budget speech of the 3rd April, 1917, on my resolution for increasing the pay of the last grade of Munsifs, that the Government of India have promised to deal with the recommendations of the Public Services Commission expeditiously, will the Government be pleased to state whether there is any chance of the recommendations of the Public Services Commission being given effect to in the next financial year?

(b) If not, are the Government considering the desirability, in the next financial year, of raising the pay of the last grade of Munsifs to Rs. 250 and of giving effect to the scheme shown as the existing cadre of the Munsifs and Sub-Judges in the Report of the Public Services Commission?

Answer by the Hon'ble MR. KERR :—

" (a) It is not possible for this Government to say when final orders will be passed on the report of the Royal Commission.

(b) The answer is in the negative."

By the Hon'ble MAULVI A. K. FAZL-UL-HAQ :—

Prospects of Munsifs.

XVI. (a) Is it a fact that the majority of Munsifs do not rise to the Rs. 400 grade till they reach the age of 45 years?

(b) Are the Government aware of the opinion that has been expressed that the efficiency of this branch of the Government service is jeopardised owing to the bad prospects held out to the members of the service?

Answer by the Hon'ble MR. KERR :—

" (a) The average age at the time of promotion to the second grade of the Munsifs who are now in that grade, was 41 years and 4 months.

XX (a) With reference to my unstarred question No. VI regarding the hook-worm disease, asked at the Council meeting of the 3rd July, 1917, and the Hon'ble Mr. Donald's reply thereto, will the Government be pleased to state whether a reply has been received from the Government of India to the representation from this Government?

(b) If so, what is the nature of such reply?

(c) If no reply has been received, are the Government considering the desirability of reminding the Government of India on the matter?

Answer by the Hon'ble MR. O'MALLEY :—

" The Government of India have accepted the proposals of this Government for a comprehensive inquiry into the prevalence and distribution of hook-worm disease in Bengal. The Governing Body of the Indian Research Fund Association have agreed to meet the cost of the scheme, which is estimated at Rs. 6,000. The inquiry has already begun "

XXI (a) With reference to the answer to my question No. XXXVIII, asked at the meeting of the Council, held on the 22nd January, 1918, regarding commutation proceedings in the record-of-rights operations, will the Government be pleased to state whether there are any instances on record in which the rate has been fixed by the Settlement authorities at more than one-fifth of the value of the gross produce, since the instructions referred to in the said question were issued?

(b) If so, what is the proportion of such instances to the total cases of commutation in each particular district where the record-of-rights operations have been carried on?

Answer by the Hon'ble MR. KERR —

" (a) Yes.

(b) Since the instructions were issued commutation has been ordered in 284, 74 and 17 cases in the districts of Midnapore, Dacca and Mymensingh, respectively. The number of cases in which the rent fixed exceeded one-fifth of the value of the gross produce was 166, nil and 15 in the three districts."

Transfer of Agricultural Department to

XXIII. (a) Is it a fact that the office of the Director of Agriculture is to be transferred to Dacca?

(b) If so, will the Government be pleased to state the circumstances relating to this step?

(c) Are the Government considering the desirability of transferring any other offices from Calcutta to Dacca?

Answer by the Hon'ble MR. KERR :—

" (a) The answer is in the affirmative.

(b) and (c) Government adhere generally to the view which they have frequently expressed that in the interests of administrative efficiency it is desirable that all departments should be situated at the headquarters of the Government; and it is not their intention to transfer other offices from Calcutta to Dacca.

The case of the Agricultural Department has been reconsidered by Government on account of certain representations made to them by the present Director of Agriculture in the Presidency. There are, in the opinion of Government, special circumstances which differentiate this department from others. The Director in any case must spend a considerable part of his time at the Chief Government Experimental Farm which is situated at Dacca. In Bombay, the United Provinces and Burma, the headquarters of the Agricultural Department are situated away from the headquarters of Government. In these circumstances Government have decided on the removal to Dacca of the headquarters of the Department of Agriculture. In coming to this conclusion, Government have borne in mind among other considerations the views expressed by the representatives of Eastern Bengal."

(d) If so, will the Government be pleased to lay a statement on the subject on the table?

Answer by the Hon'ble MR. DONALD :—

" (a) The opinion of this Government was invited on the provisions of the Bill as a whole.

(b) The reply of this Government is before the Government of India and it is the latter which should apparently be moved for its publication, if desired.

XXVII (a) Is it a fact that there have been a few cases of plague in some parts of the district of Bakarganj?

Plague in Bakarganj.

(b) If so, will the Government be pleased to state the circumstances relating to the outbreak, and the steps taken in connection therewith?

Answer by the Hon'ble MR. O'MALLEY :—

"An outbreak of plague occurred in the village Rajihar in Gournadi thana of the Bakarganj district. The disease first developed in a youth who had returned from Calcutta. The Civil Surgeon visited the village on the 6th February and the District Magistrate on the 8th February. The Magistrate arranged for a small segregation camp outside the village and for the despatch of certain necessities from Barisal. A Sub-Assistant Surgeon was sent from Barisal to attend specially to the outbreak and the medical officer in charge of the Gournadi dispensary was ordered to devote himself to it. As soon, also, as intimation was received by the Sanitary Commissioner, an officer with special experience of plague was immediately despatched to the village from Calcutta to investigate and report. Three cases of suspected plague also occurred in Barisal towards the end of January which appear to have had no connection with the cases at Rajihar. The statistics up to the 28th February, 1918, are—attacks 31; deaths 30; 1 case cured. From 24th to 28th February there were no seizures and no deaths."

Resignation by a Munsif of Patuakhali

(b) If so, will the Government be pleased to state the reasons for such resignation?

(c) Is there any truth in the statement that the said resignation was due to the fact that the above named gentleman had applied for short leave to attend the Kumbh Mela, and that this was refused?

Questions and Answers.

Answer by the Hon'ble MR. KERR :—

" (a) Yes.

(b) In his letter of resignation addressed to the High Court, he stated that he was unable to continue in his office owing to the state of his health.

(c) No. The Munsif did not apply for leave for any purpose either to the District Judge or to the High Court."

The new division in Mymensingh. c

XXIX. (a) Will the Government be pleased to state what are the proposed area and limits of the new subdivision of Dhanbari in Mymensingh under the scheme of district partition?

(b) Are the Government considering the desirability of ascertaining public opinion regarding the allocation of thanas to the respective subdivisions and the re-distribution of thana areas?

Answer by the Hon'ble MR. KERR :—

" (a) The new subdivision of Dhanbari will consist of thanas Dhanbari, Gopalpur, Madhupur, Sarisabari, Kalihati and Ghatail, covering an area of 615 square miles, together with the Gargazali portion of the Madhupur jungle, the exact area of which has not yet been determined.

(b) The scheme for the partition of Mymensingh was published in the Calcutta Gazette in Resolution No. 6287 P., dated the 27th May, 1915, and the opinions of the public were invited. The suggestions which were received have been fully considered, and certain modifications of the original project introduced in consequence. Government do not consider that it would serve any useful purpose to consult the public again."

The railway bridge over the Brahmaputra.

XXX. (a) Is it a fact that the Railway bridge over the Brahmaputra at Mymensingh has obstructed the flow of the river, and that a char has been thrown up in consequence?

(b) Are the Government considering the desirability of making an inquiry into the circumstances relating to this matter, and of taking steps for the removal of any such obstruction?

Answer by the Hon'ble MR. COWLEY :—

" (a) In 1916, the active channel of the old Brahmaputra river, about 800 feet above the Railway bridge, was on the Mymensingh town side of the river bed; since then the active channel has gone over to the left bank side and a char has formed on the town side. This char increased slightly during the year 1917. In the opinion of expert local officers the formation of the char is not due to obstruction by the Railway bridge but to the natural tendency in all deltaic rivers with sandy beds for the active channel to occupy only part of the bed and for the remainder of the bed to shoal up.

(b) No."

(b) Is it a fact that although in the district of Khulna a number of Union Committees were constituted after regular election of members thereof, the work of a large number of these Committees has been kept in abeyance? If so, why?

Sessions Case No. 10 of 1915, Dinajpur.

For prosecution—Babu Jotindra Mohon Sen, Public Prosecutor

For defence—None.

Judgment.

THE nine accused persons in this case have been committed to this court for trial on charges of rioting, and with the provisions of section 149, I. P. C., of causing grievous hurt to Mr. L. H. Burton, the Superintendent of Police of this district in the discharge of his public duty, by piercing his leg with arrows.

All the accused have pleaded not guilty to the charges and the evidence against them has been heard in this court.

The case for the prosecution is that on a complaint having been lodged before a Magistrate by one Panchanon Das, a civil court peon, that he had been violently resisted by the accused Paru Sonthal and others in the execution of a writ of attachment of Paru's movable properties, a warrant for the arrest of Paru was issued by the Magistrate. The police officer entrusted with the execution of the warrant failed to execute it and applied for the issue of proclamation and attachment against Paru and these processes were issued by the Magistrate. Several police officers, including the Inspector of the Division attempted to execute these processes but failed owing to threats of armed resistance by Paru and his associates. Eventually the Superintendent of Police, with the approval of the District Magistrate, consented to the employment of armed police to overcome the resistance. On the morning of the 30th March, Mr. Burton proceeded to the vicinity of Paru's bari with an armed force of 20 constables and 2 head-constables and accompanied by the Inspector and the Kotwali Sub-Inspector. At a distance of about a mile from the bari he directed the armed force to come on slowly and rode ahead with the Inspector and Sub-Inspector. On reaching the bari, Mr. Burton rode into the courtyard and called out in Bengali to Paru to come out, adding that there was nothing to fear and that he would see that justice was done. The Sub-Inspector called out to Paru that he had a warrant for his arrest and that he should come out and give himself up.

Questions and Answers.

There was no response to these calls and in fact as Mr. Burton says, the bari appeared to be deserted. But presently the sounds of a drum being beaten and of voices, were heard inside the bari. Some Sonthals were seen coming towards the bari from different directions as if in response to the drum. Mr. Burton then sent the Sub-Inspector galloping off to bring up the armed force. He then took up his position along with the Inspector on a field about 30 yards to the east of the bari. Then four or five Sonthals came out in front of the bari and began to perform a sort of war dance to the sound of a drum, led by Paru who carried an axe in his hand, and kept saluting the sun. Mr. Burton from where he stood, again attempted to reason with them calling out to them that they were fools and that it was useless to attempt to resist an armed force. The armed force then arrived and Mr. Burton divided it up into two detachments sending one in charge of one of the head-constables to the west of the bari round by the north to prevent an escape in that direction and keeping the other with him. While the first detachment was on its way to take up its position, arrows were shot from the bari in both directions. Some whizzed past Mr. Burton who thereupon exchanged his pistol for a musket loaded with buckshot and fired the charge at the legs of one of the men who were in front of the bari dancing about and shooting arrows. The man (whom Mr. Burton says he saw actually shooting arrows in his direction), seized hold of his leg as if hit there. This, however, seemed to have no effect on the party of defenders. So Mr. Burton loaded again with buckshot and fired at a man's head. The man fell. He had also ordered his men to load with buckshot and fire low. At this moment a swarm of bees came from the direction of the bari and attacked Mr. Burton and the men with him. As he was struggling to protect himself against the bees, dropping his musket and losing his hat and glasses, he suddenly felt a sharp pain in his left leg and, looking down, found as he says, that an arrow had passed right through it. He then retired to some distance and after examining his wound started back for Dinajpur to get medical assistance, as it was apprehended that the Sonthals' arrows were poisoned. He left directions to keep the bari surrounded and promised to send out reinforcements from headquarters. Keramat Hossain, Head-Constable, with the 10 constables under his charge, then took up positions round the block of four baris, which includes Paru's bari and they were presently reinforced by 3 or 4 constables from the other detachment. (The head-constable and other constables of the second detachment, as well as the Inspector, had returned to a neighbouring bari to get what relief they could for their bee-stings).

According to Keramat Hossain, the Sonthals were at this stage still shooting arrows thick and fast in several directions and beating a drum. Presently, however, they withdrew into the main courtyard. Keramat Hossain called out again to Paru, threatening to set fire to his house if they did not stop. He then saw the Sonthals retiring inside the huts and the drum beating ceased. He thereupon signalled to his men to close in round the bari and ordered them to push the inner courtyard with fixed bayonets which they did. He next proceeded to address the inmates of the huts to induce them to come out. At this moment large reinforcements from headquarters arrived on the scene consisting of 43 armed constables in charge of a head-constable and soon after that, Paru, after some bandying of words was partly induced and partly pulled out of the west hut and placed under arrest. Five more men were induced to come out of the north and west huts and three more were found hiding in the dark inside the huts when a search was made with lights. These eight others were similarly placed under arrest and all nine were brought in custody to Dinajpur the same evening. They have remained in custody ever since and they have been identified as the nine accused persons now before the court. Five of them, viz., Chota, Jagan, Jagua, Budhan and Suga made statements with nature of confessions before Babu Girish Chandra Nag, Deputy Magistrate at Dinajpur, on the following day (March 21st) Paru, Churu, Manu and Kucor all had gun-shot wounds on them when they were arrested.

Questions and Answers.

For the prosecution eleven witnesses have been examined in this Court, viz., Mr. Burton, Inspector Anadi Nath Ghosh, Sub-Inspector Srikanto Chakravarty, Head-Constable Keramat Hossain, Bhagabat Tewari and Mahamad Sakur Khan, Padarat Thakur (a shop-keeper who followed the police party and saw something of what occurred), Panchanan Das (the Civil Court peon), Dukhu Sonthal and Baranga Uraon (who prove the relationship between the accused persons) and the plan-maker Kailash Chandra Mittra. The deposition of the Assistant Surgeon of Dinajpur who examined and treated Mr. Burton, the four wounded accused and the stung constables, has been read as evidence.

Several documents evidencing the origin of the proceedings, against Paru and the subsequent course of event in connection with the attempt to arrest Paru have also been proved.

Exhibit 9 is the examination by the Magistrate of Panchanan Das on his complaint on the 10th February. Panchanan has stated in his evidence in this court that he was resisted in the execution of the writ of attachment and severely beaten by Paru, Churu and Jagan amongst the present accused, although at the time of lodging his complaint he did not know the names of the latter two.

Exhibit 6 is the warrant for the arrest of Paru addressed to the officer in charge of the Kotwali thana (who was Srikanto Chakravarty). Exhibit 7 is the proclamation for his appearance and Exhibit 3 is the Magistrate's order of attachment.

This evidence makes it clear that the warrant of arrest was legally issued and that the two police officers were acting legally and discharging their public functions in attempting to arrest Paru on the 30th March.

The evidence of Mr. Burton and of the Inspector, Sub-Inspector, Keramat Hossain, Bhagabat Tewari and Padarat Thakur fully proves the first part of the general case for the prosecution up to the wounding and retirement of Mr. Burton. As regards the number of persons who at this stage came out in front of Paru's bari and made demonstrations against the police, Mr. Burton says he saw five or six at a time, the Sub-Inspector speaks of five or six men in the outer courtyard and three or four men in the passage, and the Inspector speaks in much the same way, Keramat Hossain and Bhagabat Tewari speak of nine or ten men dancing about outside. Most of them seem to have been armed with bows and arrows.

Paru is identified by all the four police witnesses as the man who was taking the leading part in the proceedings. Of the other accused Churu is identified by the Inspector and the Sub-Inspector, Jagan by the Sub-Inspector, Jagua by the Inspector, Budhan by the Inspector and Sub-Inspector, Manu by the Sub-Inspector and Chota by the Sub-Inspector. Mr. Burton also identified Chota as a man who passed quite close to him into one of the houses adjoining Paru's when the drum beating began. Kuor who, as medical evidence shows, had nine gun shot wounds in his leg, is almost certainly the man at whose legs Mr. Burton first fired seeing him actually shooting arrows in his direction. Manu, who had a gun-shot wound in the eye is probably the man at whose head Mr. Burton fired the second charge. At any rate it is clear that he as well as Paru and Churu who also received gun-shot wounds, must have been to the fore when the shots were fired.

The second part of the case ending with arrest of all nine is proved by the evidence of Keramat Hossain, Bhagabat Tewari, Muhammad Sakur Khan and partly by the evidence of the Inspector and Padarat Thakur, the latter of whom saw the last three men brought out of the huts and identified them as Jagan, Chota and Budhan. At the time of the arrest, were found inside the bari 40 arrows, 13 bows, four shields, a large dao, one axe, a spear, a drum and Mr. Burton's hat as well as some other articles. Fifty-five other arrows were picked up outside the bari. All these have been produced and marked as Ex.

Questions and Answers.

The evidence of the Assistant Surgeon shows that Mr. Burton's leg was pierced to the bone by two punctured wounds and that he was incapacitated for at least six weeks. In the first instance an operation had to be performed under chloroform. (I may add that at the time of giving his evidence in this court, over 2½ months after the occurrence, Mr. Burton was still on leave recovering from the effects of the injuries).

It is proved beyond all manner of doubt that there was an unlawful assembly of over 5 persons headed by Paru, with the common object of resisting the lawful arrest of Paru, and that grievous hurt was caused to Mr. Burton while discharging his public duty, in prosecution of the common object. Most, if not all, the members of the assembly having been armed with bows, arrows or other deadly weapons, I hold that they all know that grievous hurt was likely to be caused and that they were therefore all criminally responsible, under the provisions of section 149, Indian Penal Code, for the injury inflicted. As I have already said, the fact that Paru, Churu, Kuor and Manu were members of the unlawful assembly is proved incircumstantially by the gun-shot wounds which they sustained. Against the other five accused there is the evidence of one or two witnesses who say that they recognised them amongst the persons making the demonstrations in front of the bari, the fact that they were all eventually found inside the bari, and in the case of each of them, a statement of the nature of a confession. I leave aside for the moment the first class of evidence, especially in the cases of Chota, Jagan and Jagua, each of whom was only recognised by one witness, having regard to the possibility that the witnesses might be mistaken as to the identity. The next question which arises is whether the fact of the persons being subsequently found in Paru's bari is conclusive proof of their having taken part in the demonstration of resistance which resulted in the injury to Mr. Burton. It would certainly have been a stronger piece of evidence if it had been clearly shown that the bari had been successfully isolated from the beginning to the end of the operations. But there was evidently something of a break in the operations consequent on the bee incident and the constables guarding the bari thereafter have not been called as witnesses to testify that no one passed into the bari. However, it is clear to me that if any one did so pass in, at or after that juncture, he could only have done so with the intention of reinforcing the defenders, and the matter is, in my opinion, sufficiently cleared up by the confessions of these five accused, coupled with the evidence of the relationship to Paru and their behaviour on previous occasions. Jagua, in the opening sentence of his confession, stated, "when the police and the Sahib came, we entered Paru's house with bows and arrows".

Suga stated, "I was in Paru's place when the police Sahib went there yesterday. Paru said to me: Shoot them with arrows, else I shall kill you. I discharged my arrow once."

Chota stated, "Paru Majhi said to me. Do what I tell you or I shall kill you. When the Police Sahib went close to the bari of Paru, I was ploughing. I left my plough and entered the bari of Paru through fear. I remained there". He goes on to say that he remained all the time inside the hut. But it is obvious that any one who entered Paru's bari at the time when the police were about to make a raid on it, could only have done so with the object of joining in the resistance. The evidence of Baranga Uraon shows that Chota, although a step-brother of Paru, does not live in Paru's bari, but in the bari of his own brother Jagua, which is some distance to the south, and not adjoining Paru's bari (vide the map Ex. 8).

Budhan, in his confession stated, "When the Police Sahib went, I was in Paru's bari.....I beat the drum."

Jagan, in his confession does not explicitly say that he was in Paru's bari at the time Mr. Burton was wounded. In fact he asserted that when the gun was fired he returned into his own hut (his bari adjoining Paru's) and remained there. The evidence, however, shows that he was found in Paru's bari. He stated, however, that he, as well as Budhan beat the drum, which would show that he was a member of the unlawful assembly at the inception.

These confessions appear to me to have been voluntarily made, although they have been, more or less, retracted before the Committing Magistrate. Even there Suga admitted that he had shot an arrow and Budhan that he had beaten the drum. Suga there asserted that Mr. Burton fired first. If he meant that he fired before any arrows were shot, his statement cannot possibly be accepted in face of Mr. Burton's evidence.

Then as regards relationship and previous conduct, it is in evidence that Churu is brother of Paru and Jagua and Chota are both step-brothers, Budhan is a first-cousin, Mannu is his nephew, Suga is a cousin, while Jagan and Kuor are both connected with him by marriage.

The evidence of the Civil Court peon, Panchanan, shows that when he went to execute the writ of attachment, Churu and Jagan joined Paru in resisting him with violence.

The evidence of Inspector and Sub-Inspector shows that when they went to arrest Paru on a previous occasion (in execution of the same warrant), Paru came to them in a neighbouring bari accompanied by some 15 other men, all armed with bows and arrows, axes, daos, shields, etc., and threatened to kill them if they did not leave the place immediately. The Inspector identifies Churu, Jagan, Jagua and Budhan as having been amongst Paru's companions on this occasion and the Sub-Inspector similarly identifies Churu and Chota.

Reading all this evidence together, I entertain no doubt that all the accused persons assembled in Paru's bari expressly for the purpose of resisting the police.

There appears to me to have been no sort of justification or even excuse for such resistance. In fact, it appears from the evidence that Paru pretends or imagines himself to be a Rajah, and has for some time past determined to defy all public authorities. I may add here that papers on the record show that Mr. Burton was very reluctant to employ an armed force and the evidence shows that even after he had started for the place with his force, he made every attempt to effect his object first without bringing the force on to the scene and secondly, without resorting to actual use of the fire arms. There can be no doubt, I think, that the ultimate firing of the two charges of buckshot was necessitated by the circumstances.

Finding and Sentences.

Agreeing with both the assessors, I find all nine accused persons guilty of offences under sections 148, 333/149, I. P. C. Under the latter section I sentence Paru to rigorous imprisonment for five years and Churu, Jagan, Jagua, Budhan, Mannu, Kuor and Chota to rigorous imprisonment for three years each. Suga in consideration of his age (14 years) I sentence to rigorous imprisonment for three months under the same section. No separate sentences are passed under section 148, I. P. C.

Staff of the Secretariat room.

XXXVII. (a) Will the Government be pleased to state the number of petitions which were submitted to Government about the grievances of the assistants of the Secretariat record room and what steps, if any, have been taken thereon?

(b) Will the Government be pleased to state whether it is a fact that the entire old staff of assistants were removed on the ground that the terms of their service had expired and that a new staff of assistants recruited from outside were appointed in their place?

(c) Is it a fact that circulars were issued by the Government to certain District offices to provide these men with appointments wherever possible?

Answer by the Hon'ble MR. KERR :—

" (a) Eight petitions were received from temporary assistants of the Secretariat record-room whose services had been dispensed with. In six of these, allegations were made against the Keeper of the Records. These allegations were fully enquired into by the Under-Secretary to Government in the Political Department and were found to be baseless. The other two petitions merely asked for employment.

(b) A number of temporary assistants were employed for various periods on repairing, arranging and tracing the old historical records. Their number varied from time to time, and on 15th September, 1917, when the sanctioned term of their appointment expired, seven men were so employed. Their work was not satisfactory, and it was decided to replace them by six men on better pay and with superior qualifications.

(c) Yes."

Vacancies in the Secretariat Record Room.

XXXVIII. (a) Will the Government be pleased to state whether the Secretariat Rules require the notifying of vacancies in the Secretariat Record Room?

(b) If so, why the rules were not complied with by the Keeper of Records, Mr. Dias, in respect of vacancies in the Record Room?

(c) Will the Government be pleased to state whether the claims of qualified men in the Record Room were passed over from time to time on the occurrence of vacancies there? If so, why?

Answer by the Hon'ble MR. KERR :—

" (a) and (b) The Secretariat rules do not require that these appointments should be notified.

(c) In two cases assistants in the record room were passed over for promotion because they were considered unfit for the vacant posts."

(c) Is it also a fact that he was appointed on the understanding that according to his own statement he was only 45 years of age?

(d) Are the Government considering the question of removing Mr. Dias from his post?

Answer by the Hon'ble MR. KERR :—

" (a) Government are not prepared to lay these papers on the table.

(b) The answer is in the affirmative. The Accountant-General miscalculated Mr Dias' age on incorrect information supplied by the Secretariat Accounts Branch and has since corrected the mistake

(c) No He was 48 years of age at the time of his appointment.

(d) No."

The Amended Draft Financial Statement.

Mr. Donald.

LIST OF BUSINESS—ITEM No. 2.

THE AMENDED DRAFT FINANCIAL STATEMENT.*

The Hon'ble Mr. DONALD presented the Amended Draft Financial Statement for Bengal for 1918-19 :—

He said : —“ I have the honour to present to the Council the •Amended Draft Financial Statement for the year 1918-19. Hon'ble Members have already received copies of the statement together with a memorandum which explains the general financial situation of the Presidency in the current and coming year. As regards the current year it will suffice to say that our receipts have exceeded our expectations. From Excise we expect to get Rs. ten lakhs over the budget figure, from Income Tax fifteen lakhs, and from sales of quinine for military requirements about eighteen lakhs. Against this there is a falling off under Stamps. On the expenditure side there are savings, mainly under Police and Education.

As to the coming year our estimates have been prepared on lines similar to those followed in the past two years. War conditions still prevail, and the principle that our expenditure should not exceed our total income had again to be followed. We found it impossible however to meet all our urgent wants within the limits of our income and the Government of India have therefore allowed us to draw on our balances to the extent of Rs. 40 lakhs. Twelve lakhs of this are required for the replenishment of our reserve of quinine, while the balance is needed mainly for urgent public works of importance. Our expenditure in the coming year will thus be considerably over that of the current year, but in the end our balances will be at approximately the same figure as that with which we started the present year.

I would invite the attention of the Hon'ble Members to the further memorandum which was circulated yesterday—making corrections and additions in the Financial Statement. Consequent on the recurring assignment of Rs. 5½ lakhs which has been given by the Government of India for primary education this amount has been added both to the revenue as well as to the expenditure side of the estimate.

There is one other point which I desire to mention. In the last two years there was some discussion on the subject of the supply of departmental budgets to Hon'ble Members, and the Hon'ble Mr. Beatson Bell last year told the Council that the departmental budgets would be promptly printed in convenient form for the use of all members interested in them. So far as I recollect only one member applied for copies. This year we have taken a further step. Hitherto our Civil Estimates have been printed by the Government of India, but we have now taken over this work ourselves, and I am in a position to-day to furnish each member of the Council with a copy of these estimates for his own use in connection with the discussion on the Financial Statement. Hon'ble Members will realise that the figures are as yet only provisional, and will not be final till the Budget is finally presented. These estimates contain all that is in the departmental budgets as regards income and expenditure of the budget year and of the two years previous, and will, I believe, give all the information that Hon'ble Members desire to have. But if there is any point in which Hon'ble Members have any doubt I shall be glad to explain it to them or give them any information they may desire.

*The Amended Draft Financial Statement.Sir S. P. Sinha.LIST OF BUSINESS—ITEM No. 4.

The Hon'ble SIR S. P. SINHA introduced the following heads :—

EXPENDITURE—19A.—Courts of Law.

He said :—

" Sir, I rise to introduce the figures relating to Courts of Law.

The total budget estimate for 1917-18 was Rs. 1,01,57,000, but the revised estimate has been reduced to Rs. 1,00,10,000, with reference to the actual charges of the first nine months of the year. The decrease is chiefly due to smaller payment of fees to pleaders in connection with both civil suits and criminal cases.

The total expenditure for 1918-19 has been estimated at Rs. 1,01,75,000. This includes a provision of Rs. 1,08,000 for the office of the Administrator-General and Official Trustee, Bengal, the control of which was recently transferred from the Government of India to this Government. A grant of Rs. 55,000 was made for the current financial year to meet the expenditure of this office from the 1st October 1917 to 28th February 1918. As the present staff of 14 Judges has proved insufficient to cope with the volume of work in the Calcutta High Court, and as it has not yet been possible to depute a Judge to inspect the mufassal Courts, the permanent addition of a Judge to the High Court Bench has been recommended to the Government of India. The appointment of a temporary additional Judge to help in clearing off the existing arrears of the Court has also been recommended to the Government of India. Provision has accordingly been made for two additional Judges with their establishment for the High Court. Provision for two temporary District and Sessions Judges and five temporary subordinate Judges with their establishment has been made in the budget for 1918-19, as the existing provision for one temporary District and Sessions Judge and two subordinate Judges with their establishment proved inadequate for administrative requirements and money had to be re-appropriated from other heads. Provision of Rs. 7,93,000 has been made in the next year's budget against Rs. 6,32,000 this year for Law Officers. The increase is chiefly due to the fact that larger provision had to be made under the heads 'Fees to Counsel and pleaders for conducting civil suits before the High Court', 'Fees to pleaders in criminal cases', and 'Charges for conducting law suits.' Provision has also been made for the additional Legal Remembrancer and his establishment as the term of his appointment has provisionally been extended. There has been, however, a considerable reduction under the head 'Charges under the Defence of India Act' from Rs. 75,000 in 1917-18 to Rs. 50,000 in 1918-19.

It has not been found possible to make provision in the Provincial Civil Works Budget for any new Judicial major works for the year 1918-19, though this year a sum of Rs. 19,508 was allotted for the acquisition of land for the construction of a new civil court building at Burdwan. A sum of Rs. 15,000 has, however, been provided in the budget for Judicial minor works as was done in this year's budget."

EXPENDITURE—24B.—Sanitation.

" I beg to introduce for the consideration of the Council the estimates of expenditure on Sanitation.

The Amended Draft Financial Statement.Sir S. P. Sinha.

The expenditure for the current year, which was originally estimated at Rs. 5,98,000, has been reduced by Rs. 88,000 in the revised budget for the reason explained in paragraph 54 of the draft Financial Statement. The transfer of a portion of the grant for sanitary improvements to the Irrigation Department is due to the fact that the Banka scheme in Burdwan is being carried out by that department, and does not imply a diversion of funds from sanitation.

The budget estimate for next year shows a very marked increase over the provision made in the last two years and amounts to Rs. 11,71,000. Government feel that, with the utmost regard to the requirements of economy, it is no longer possible to restrict expenditure on sanitary works within the narrow limits of recent budgets. On pages 24 and 25 of the draft Financial Statement will be found a list of projects which it is proposed to undertake at an estimated total cost of approximately eight and a half lakhs. Of this amount one lakh is provided for various charges, not connected with engineering, which are largely of a recurring nature and three lakhs for sanitary engineering works such as drainage and water-supply in urban areas. The balance of approximately four and a half lakhs is provided for objects shown in Part I of the list (Anti-malarial works). It will be seen that with three exceptions these are either large projects of rural drainage or measures such as survey and investigation preparatory to projects of this nature. This provision represents the beginning of a new campaign which Government are anxious to initiate on a large scale against malaria in rural areas. It includes contributions aggregating 2½ lakhs towards two schemes known as the Arul Bil and Jamuna schemes in the districts of Nadia, Jessore and the 24-Parganas. The schemes were the subject of an address recently delivered by His Excellency to a Conference of District Boards at Government House, which will be fresh in the memory of members of Council : and I need only remind them that it is intended that these schemes should be initiated by the District Boards concerned and carried out under the Sanitary Drainage Act, VIII of 1895 ; the cost being met, so far as it is not covered by the Government grants, by loans taken by the Boards from Government and being eventually recovered from landholders beneficially affected by the scheme. Apart from the District Board schemes, Rs. 1,40,000 has been provided for schemes to be carried out entirely at the cost of Government, viz., the Saraswati scheme in Howrah district, the Baragachia and Manikhati schemes in the 24-Parganas district and the Chhapra Bil scheme in Nadia district. Provision is also made for two anti-malarial schemes to be executed on lines laid down by Dr. Bentley in the towns of Nawabganj and Faridpur as well as for completing Dr. Bentley's experimental schemes in the Burdwan district and at Jungipore. It is expected that the last two schemes, as well as the two schemes at Meenglass and Singram which are being financed by the Indian Research Fund Association, will be completed during the ensuing financial year.

In conclusion, I am glad to be able to announce that intimation was received a few days ago from the Government of India that they have allotted Rs. 1,00,000 from their sanitary reserve for the current financial year for a contribution to the Midnapore waterworks scheme. This amount is being transferred from Imperial to Provincial funds and will be paid at once to the Midnapore Municipality.

I beg also to introduce the figures relating to Civil Works in charge of Civil Officers.

The Amended Draft Financial Statement.Mr. Cumming.

The Budget estimate of receipts for the current year was Rs. 1,59,000, but in the revised estimate this has been reduced to Rs. 1,50,000. The decrease has been made mainly with reference to the average actuals of the last three years under the head "Tolls." The budget estimate for 1918-19 is Rs. 1,58,000.

As regards expenditure, the increase of Rs. 2,93,000 in the revised estimate for the current year is the result of an increase of Rs. 3,57,334 in augmentation grants to District Boards and of a provision of Rs. 40,000 for grants to District Boards by Commissioners of Divisions, set off against a decrease of about Rs. 1,00,000 under grants to Municipalities by those officers. This latter reduction is due to the fact that the grants made by the Divisional Commissioner for educational and medical purposes are debited to those heads instead of to the head Civil Works by reappropriation from this head.

The estimate for 1918-19 is Rs. 12,19,000, of which details for Rs. 11,95,490 are given in paragraph 65 of the Financial Statement."

The Amended Draft Financial Statement.Mr. Cumming.

He said :—

"Sir, I have the honour to introduce the main Heads under Land Revenue and its connected subjects.

The revised estimate of gross land revenue for 1917-18, namely, three crores and one lakh shows a decrease of five lakhs compared with the sanctioned estimate. The difference is mainly due to decreases of 2½ lakhs under ordinary revenue (fixed collections) and of 3½ lakhs under 'Recoveries on account of survey and settlement charges.' The estimated receipts for 1918-19 are one and half lakh less than three crores. An improvement of 2½ lakhs is anticipated in the collections from Government estates, but expected recoveries on account of survey and settlement charges show a decrease of nearly nine lakhs which is due to the postponement in 1916 of the settlement operations in Jessore and Bankura.

The provincial expenditure for 1918-19 is estimated at Rs. 36,28,000 against Rs. 34,38,000, the revised, and Rs. 35,57,000, the budget estimate for 1917-18. The increase is principally due to enhanced provision for improvements in Government estates. The proposed expenditure on General Administration varies very little from that provided in 1917-18. I should like however to mention that we have already 40 Circle officers, and that provision has been made for the appointment of a few more officers at selected centres. The completion of the whole scheme, however, as recommended to Government, must necessarily take time.

"In the case of the Forest Department, there has been an increase in the receipts owing to the supply of a large quantity of sleepers and timber for the Munitions Board, with the result that the gross revenue which we expect to realise during the current year is 15 lakhs against the sanctioned estimate of 13 lakhs. This demand for timber is expected to continue next year; and we have accordingly estimated a revenue of 16 lakhs. On the expenditure side, the current year's estimate has been exceeded by Rs. 78,000, owing to additional grants sanctioned for departmental operations for the supply of timber. The estimate of expenditure for 1918-19 is seven and a half lakhs. This provides for the departmental supply of timber for war purposes and for the sowing and plantation in connection with the artificial regeneration of sal."

"The variations in the receipt side of the head "Agriculture" are due to the normal growth of revenue. On the expenditure side, there is a proposed extension of over 2½ lakhs, in comparison with the current year's estimate of 11½ lakhs. The estimate of over 14 lakhs for next year includes a provision of one lakh for the distribution of improved varieties of jute and paddy seed in the Presidency. As explained in the Financial Statement, this scheme is of special importance and great interest attaches to it. Provision has also been made in next year's budget for strengthening the controlling and inspecting staff required for supervision, inspection and audit of the growing number of co-operative societies in the Presidency."

"The revised estimate of receipts under the head "Scientific and Miscellaneous Departments" for the current year shows a huge increase of Rs. 18,22,000 over the sanctioned estimate. The increase is due to unusually large sales of quinine including a special sale of 30,000 lbs. to the Army for the Eastern Mediterranean Field Force. The estimate of revenue for next year is Rs. 19,09,000 which provides for increased receipts from cinchona plantations and from fees for registering Joint Stock Companies.

The great demand for quinine has resulted in a serious depletion of the reserve built up by this Government just before the outbreak of war; and in order to increase the supply and meet the growing demand, it has been found necessary to replenish the reserve and to extend the existing plantations and increase the output. This explains the increase of Rs. 1,27,000 in the revised estimate of expenditure for the current year as well as the provision of Rs. 11,28,000 for the purchase of Java quinine in the estimate for

The Amended Draft Financial Statement.Mr. Donald.

1918-19. The budget for next year also includes provision for the appointment of a Director of Industries, which was sanctioned in October 1917; also for his office and for grants totalling one and half lakh for the development of industries in the Presidency.

"I also beg to introduce the head of Ports and Pilotage which are under the Marine Department. Under this head the shrinkage both in receipts and expenditure on account of the war still continues. In framing an estimate of the cost of the Pilot Establishment in 1918-19, an increase over the revised estimate of the current year has been allowed.

The contribution of 1½ lakhs to the Chittagong Port which is included under the head "Miscellaneous" requires an explanation. Last year the Member in charge stated that the grant then made would be the last in accordance with the five years' arrangement which terminated in 1917-18. In view, however, of the unsatisfactory financial conditions of that port, Government have decided to continue the contribution until the end of the war."

LIST OF BUSINESS—ITEM No. 3.

The Hon'ble MR. DONALD introduced the following heads:—

1—REFUNDS AND DRAWBACKS.

6—STAMPS.

XII—INTEREST.

XXII AND 29—SUPERANNUATION.

He said:—

"As regards these heads I have nothing to add to what is contained in the Financial Statement."

V—EXCISE.

7—EXCISE.

"As regards excise the actual receipts in 1916-17 amounted to Rs. 1,44,44,229 against Rs. 1,45,00,000, anticipated last year. The receipts in February and March 1917 were below expectations. The budget estimate for the current year is Rs. 1,46,00,000, but during the first ten months there has been a gradual increase almost every month, and collections are already rupees ten lakhs over those of the corresponding period of last year. We anticipate that at the close of the year the total collections will be Rs. 155 lakhs. The consumption of country spirit is going up, as the following figures show. For the first ten months of 1914-15 the consumption amounted to 594,106 gallons, for the same period of 1915-16 to 533,287 gallons, of 1916-17 to 510,684 gallons and of the current year to 570,325 gallons.

This increase is the result of the enforcement of better control over the country spirit trade, particularly in Calcutta; on two occasions during the year steps were taken to check the increase by the imposition of higher duties. The consumption is still less than that of 1914-15. Opium and ganja consumption on the other hand continues to decrease. Taking the figures for ten months the issues of ganja in 1914-15 were 92,018 seers, in 1915-16, 73,298 seers, in 1916-17, 75,193 seers, and in 1917-18, 67,948 seers, while the consumption of opium in 1914-15 amounted to 52,823 seers, in 1915-16, 43,479 seers, in 1916-17, 38,114 seers, and in the present year, 36,832 seers. The treasury price of opium will be raised on the 1st April from Rs. 40 to Rs. 50 per seer, and the estimate of gain on sale proceeds of excise opium has been placed at Rs. 15,80,000 for 1918-19. After the large increase in the current year we do not expect any great rise next year, and the Budget for 1918-19 has been accordingly placed at Rs. 1,00,00,000.

The Amended Draft Financial Statement.Mr. Donald.

As to expenditure a full explanation has been given in paragraph 42 of the Financial Statement, and I have nothing to add here."

10.—INCOME TAX.

"As for income-tax expenditure, the work of the Collector of Income-tax has much increased in consequence of the introduction of the new Super-tax Act (Act VIII of 1917), and will be further added to when the new Income-tax Bill becomes law. Provision has been made for increasing the pay and allowance of the Collector, and we shall doubtless have to make certain additions to his establishment."

REVENUE—

XVII—Police.

EXPENDITURE—

20—Police.

"Turning to Police, the receipts exhibit little variation and call for no particular remark.

On the expenditure side Mr. Lyon, in connection with the introduction of the Amended Draft Financial Statement for 1917-18, explained the reasons justifying a larger outlay, which still fell short of the requirements of the Force; but it will be noticed that the revised estimate for 1917-18 shows an appreciable decrease over the Budget figure for that year. Except in so far as this is partly due to transfers to the Public Works Department on account of the execution of works, the saving is rather a matter of the postponement of expenditure than of final economy, but certain schemes have not as yet been put through, and the money allotted to them is, therefore, still in hand. The estimate for 1918-19 stands at Rs. 1,37,85,000, showing an increase of Rs. 3,47,000 over the corresponding figure for the previous year. The details of the charges are set forth in paragraph 50 of the memorandum accompanying the Financial Statement, and several of the heavy items are connected with the enhancement of the pay of the subordinate police, which, I think, is generally admitted on all sides to be necessary. Such items are: Rs. 1,00,000 on account of the pay of constables of the Calcutta Police, Rs. 60,308 in respect of the regrading of district sub-inspectors and head-constables in order to give effect to the sanctioned scale, and Rs. 54,114 for raising the pay of head-constables. The sum of Rs. 1,30,759 has been provided for additions to the ordinary reserves of head-constables and constables; money was allotted for this scheme in the current year, but sanction was not received in time for use to be made of it. Other items of importance which are in continuation of similar provisions during 1917-18 are Rs. 1,26,765 connected with the patrol arrangements on the river Hughli, Rs. 6,75,000 for works in connection with the reorganization of the subordinate police in Eastern Bengal and Rs. 1,48,596 connected with the reorganization of the river police in the same part of the province. The effects of the war on prices are seen in the additional provision for uniforms of the Calcutta Police (Rs. 10,000) and in the increased expenditure under country stationery (Rs. 21,000). Two large items are for additional temporary force in the Intelligence Branch (Rs. 1,04,308), and for increase in the temporary force of the District Intelligence staff (Rs. 2,13,446), the intention being to strengthen the hands of the district establishments in dealing with Intelligence work, which in some areas has now become of a complexity necessitating the strengthening of the existing staffs. This also is an echo from the Budget of the current year. Connected with the better supervision of Criminal Tribes are the provision of Rs. 10,800 for the Karwal Nat Settlement at Saidpur and of Rs. 31,768 for a special establishment. The appointment of an Additional Superintendent of Police for the district of Faridpur amounts for Rs. 18,992, while there are a number of items connected with the redistribution of heavy charges."

The Amended Draft Financial Statement.Mr. Donald.

XXIII.—STATIONERY AND PRINTING.

30.—STATIONERY AND PRINTING.

"The estimate of receipts of the Stationery and Printing Departments calls for little comment. The revenue from this source has diminished with the discontinuance of certain publications. On the expenditure side (Revised) there will be a considerable increase of rupees two lakhs over the Budget figure consequent on the high price of paper and stationery, and as rates are not likely to fall we have repeated this enhanced figure in the Budget for the ensuing year. On the other hand, expenditure on the management and contingencies of the Secretariat Press is less. As to this Press we have, as the Council is aware, been compelled to take measures for the construction of a new building. The present accommodation in Writers' Buildings is far from adequate, and the conditions under which the employes work are of an insanitary character and inimical to their health. Land is being acquired on the Bridge Road at Alipore near the Press and Forms Department building, and during the coming year it is proposed to push on with the levelling of the land, the purchase of bricks, and so much of the construction as can be carried on with the provision of Rs. 50,000 that has been made under Civil Works. We are likely to be faced with difficulties regarding some of the necessary materials of construction, and the provision is therefore smaller than would otherwise have been the case."

XXV.—MISCELLANEOUS.

32.—MISCELLANEOUS.

"The Miscellaneous Budget comprises several small items, and detailed figures under receipts are shown on pages 41 and 42 of the Financial Statement. The revised estimate of receipts is Rs. 6,96,000, an increase of Rs. 38,000 on the Budget. This result is chiefly due to the inclusion of fees for the audit of the offices of the Administrator-General and Official Trustees, which were transferred to the control of the Local Government with effect from the 1st October 1917, and also of fees for the audit of accounts of Co-operative Societies.

On the expenditure side the Revised shows a nominal saving of Rs. 7,72,000, which is mainly due to the adjustment under the appropriate heads of charges for grain compensation allowance for which rupees four lakhs was provided in the Budget, and of grants sanctioned by His Excellency from his allotment for petty grants. The provision of rupees two lakhs for unforeseen charges has also been distributed under the proper heads, while the grants made to the Calcutta Hospital Nurses Institution, the Lady Minto Nursing Association, the Lady Canning Home for training nurses are now debited to the head 'Medical.' Against these transfers and adjustments a sum of Rs. 1,45,407 has been debited to this head in order to adjust a sum advanced from Class II of the Loans Budget for the construction of the Mohamaya Sluice. The Budget for 1918-19 amounts to Rs. 9,14,000, and includes rupees two lakhs for general reserve, Rs. 40,000 for petty grants by His Excellency, Rupees 50,000 for gratuitous relief, and rupees four lakhs for grain compensation allowance. The question of raising the pay of the menials of the several departments of Government, both in Calcutta and the mufassal, is still under consideration, and the Government of India are again being addressed on the subject. Owing to the fall in the price of rice it does not now seem likely that the whole of the sum of rupees four lakhs for grain allowance will be required for this purpose, and it is proposed to utilise a portion of the provision in order to give partial effect to the scheme for the enhancement of the pay of menials."

*The Amended Draft Financial Statement.Lieut.-Col. Buchanan.LIST OF BUSINESS—ITEM No. 3.

The Hon'ble LIEUT.-COL. BUCHANAN introduced the following heads :—

REVENUE—

XVI B—Jails.

EXPENDITURE—

19 B—Jails.

He said :—

"There is nothing very noticeable in the Jail Budget except in so far as it again reflects the effects of the war. Thus owing to the larger supplies to the Military Department we have an increase on the receipt side, with additions on the expenditure side for the increased purchase of raw materials for manufactures. The enhanced prices of articles of consumption connected with Jail administration, e.g., uniforms and equipment and lighting, account for further expenditure in excess of the normal. On the other hand, with the greater cheapness of grain dietary charges have fallen."

REVENUE—XXA—MEDICAL.EXPENDITURE—24A—MEDICAL.

"The continuance of the war has stood in the way of several important schemes connected with the Medical administration of the Presidency. The great Tropical School cannot yet be opened, while the construction of the new Eye Hospital must still be deferred. A scheme is under consideration for the construction of an extension of the Tropical School building to provide for an Institute of Hygiene towards which the Indian Research Association has agreed to contribute Rupees one lakh; it will not, however, be possible to proceed with the construction of the building at the present time. The servants' quarters at the Medical College Hospital are under construction, and the building of quarters for the servants of the Campbell Hospital who are now accommodated in very dilapidated buildings, will shortly commence. The Ranchi Asylum for Europeans will soon be opened, and when the inmates of the Bhowanipore Asylum are moved there it is proposed to construct on the old site an observation hospital for mental cases. A sum of Rs. 2 lakhs has been provided for the purpose in next year's budget."

The Asylum for Indians at Ranchi is now under construction. This Government provided Rs. 1½ lakhs towards the expenditure this year, and a sum of Rs. 6 lakhs will be paid during 1918-19. The construction of the new buildings at the Mitford Hospital, Dacca, is making satisfactory progress.

Two lakhs of the promised contribution to the Belgachia Medical College have already been paid during the current year, and a third lakh will be given before the 31st March. The balance still due—Rs. 1,62,000—has been provided in the budget for payment in 1918-19. Provision has also been made for the annual recurring grant of Rs. 50,000. Other items of new expenditure are shown in paragraph 53 of the Financial Statement. A noticeable item is the provision for additions to the Campbell and Dacca Medical Schools with the object of accommodating a larger number of students. Proposals for an increase in the pay of Sub-Assistant Surgeons are now under the consideration of the Government of India, and the sum of Rs. 55,000 represents the increase that will be thus entailed."

EXPENDITURE—

43—Minor Works and Navigation.

He said :—

Sir, I have the honour to introduce for the consideration of Council the Public Works heads of the Budget entitled "Irrigation Major Works, XXIX—Receipts and 42—Expenditure and Minor Works and Navigation, XXX—Receipts and 43—Expenditure."

The Major Works with which we have to deal in this Presidency are the Midnapur and Hijili Tidal Canals. In regard to these I have nothing to add to the statements which have been made under this head in paragraphs 33 and 61 of the amended draft financial statement.

In regard to "Minor Works and Navigation" which is more important in its effect upon the Provincial revenues, the chief sources of revenue are the tolls received from navigation on the Calcutta canals, the Sundarbans route and the Madaripur Bhil route which together form the navigable route for boats and inland steamers between Calcutta and Eastern Bengal. In this respect I have nothing to add to the statements made in paragraph 34 of the Amended Draft Financial Statement.

The current year's revised estimate of expenditure under "43—Minor Works and Navigation" has been raised from Rs. 22,41,000 to Rs. 22,89,000 on account of the additional grant sanctioned for the anti-malarial scheme in connection with the flooding of the Banka Valley area in the district of Burdwan. The Budget estimate for 1918-19 is for Rs. 27,00,000. This increase is chiefly due to the provision for certain important works as detailed in paragraph 63 of the Amended Draft Financial Statement. In regard to the current year's Revised and next year's Budget estimates of expenditure under this head I may state that in both years a provision of

The Amended Draft Financial Statement.Mr. Donald.

Rs. 2,50,000 has been made for works in connection with mitigating the effects of floods in the Burdwan Division. I may also state that a sum of Rs. 3,00,000 has been provided in the Budget estimate of expenditure for next year for the acquisition of land and works in connection with the creation of a spill from the Bidyadhari river in order, it is hoped, to improve that river and thus improve the outfall of the Calcutta drainage system.

In connection with the Damodar Reservoir Scheme the services of an officer with up-to-date experience in the preparation of such projects have been placed at the disposal of this Government by the Government of India and a sum of Rs. 20,000 has been provided in the next year's Budget estimate for expenditure on preliminary works in that connection. The Damodar Canal project which has been prepared with the object of irrigation in the district of Burdwan, and improvement of the sanitary conditions in the districts of Burdwan, Hooghly and Howrah is now being revised in accordance with the wishes of the Government of India and it is hoped that the project will be submitted to the Government of India for sanction in the course of the next year. It is proposed to treat this work as a minor work for which both Capital and Revenue accounts are kept.

I have also to introduce for the consideration of the Council the Budget for Civil Works in charge of the Public Works Department.

I have nothing to add to the statements which have been made under this head on pages 3, 13, 28 and 29 of the Amended Draft Financial Statement.

Paragraph 64, on pages 28 and 29, deals with the expenditure in this and the coming year. The decrease of Rs. 50,000 under Establishment in the Revised Budget of Expenditure for this year is due to an increase in the receipts from the Government of India as contribution towards the establishment employed on Imperial Works. The increase of Rs. 2,55,000 under Repairs is due partly to the normal increase in the number of roads and buildings to be maintained, but mainly to the fact that during the past three years many repair items had to be postponed on account of the financial stringency resulting from the war.

For the coming year after providing for Establishment and Repairs and for the completion of works which will be in progress on the 1st April there is a sum of Rs. 25,30,000 left for new Minor and Major Works, the distribution of which is shown on pages 28 and 29 of the statement.

The Hon'ble MR. DONALD said :—

"Although the funds for the partition of districts are provided in the Public Works budget the Political Department is concerned with the question, and a brief statement of the present position may therefore be made on its behalf. The sums provided on this account are for Midnapore Rs. 6,64,000 and for Mymensingh Rs. 6,50,000. These are two of the items in respect of which we have been allowed to draw on our balances, and the Council has before this discussed the merits of the proposals. The Secretary of State has now approved of the principle on which the division of Midnapore is contemplated, and has allowed preliminary arrangements for brick burning to proceed, while final orders as to details are expected shortly. The estimates of the Mymensingh project are in an advanced stage, and will, it is anticipated, be submitted to the Government of India shortly. It is hoped, therefore, to make some progress during the year with these long deferred schemes.

*The Amended Draft Financial Statement.Mr. Wordsworth.LIST OF BUSINESS—ITEM No. 7.

The Hon'ble MR. WORDSWORTH said :—

"SIR, I have the honour to introduce for the consideration of the Council the Budget heads of—

XIX.—Education—*Receipts.*22.—Education—Expenditure.

Receipts.—On the receipts side of the Budget there is little to observe except that the upward tendency of receipts noticeable in the preceding Budgets has been maintained. The following figures explain the situation :—

				Rs.
1914-15	...	Actuals	...	8,47,110
1915-16	...	Do.	...	8,86,574
1916-17	...	Do.	...	9,47,392
1917-18	...	Revised	...	9,40,000
1918-19	...	Budget	...	9,79,000

Although the "Revised" figure for 1917-18 has been put at Rs. 9,40,000 it is expected that the actuals for the year will be in the neighbourhood of Rs. 9,50,000.

Expenditure.—There was a steady growth in educational expenditure up to the year 1914-15, when normal expansion was arrested by circumstances due to the war. The figures of expenditure for the years 1915-16 and 1916-17 showed a decline, but the revised Budget for the current year and the estimate for next year give indications of increase as will appear from the following figures :—

				Rs.
1912-13	...	Actuals	...	73,76,829
1913-14	...	Do.	...	81,12,515
1914-15	...	Do.	...	92,07,022
1915-16	...	Do.	...	84,83,414
1916-17	...	Do.	...	76,87,152
1917-18	...	Revised	...	81,14,000
1918-19	...	Budget	...	1,03,01,000*

I should explain in this connexion that the various Imperial grants which have hitherto appeared in the Budget as lump provisions are distributed in the Budget for the next financial year under the several detailed heads of charges. Certain balances which have not been formally allocated to definite objects of expenditure are shown in lump.

The Budget which I introduce to the Council has been framed on strict lines and contains little of special note. Its outstanding features are explained in the Financial Statement before us, the items of new expenditure included in it being shown on pages 6, 21, 92 and 93 of that Statement. It is not necessary to repeat them. I wish, however, to add a few words in explanation of the following items :—

1. Starting of two hostels in the old Secretariat Building at Dacca—one for Hindus and the other for Muhammadans ... Rs. 16,500

There is a hostel attached to the Dacca College. But as this is not large enough to accommodate all the students seeking accommodation in the college hostel many students were hitherto accommodated in messes instituted in the town under the Dacca Mess Scheme. As a more satisfactory arrangement a section of the old Secretariat building at Dacca has been adapted and is now used for hostel purposes. The recurring charges in connexion with this arrangement amounts to Rs. 18,500.

2. Appointment of an additional Professor of English, Hooghly College ... Rs. 2,400

An increase in the number of students in the 1st and 2nd year classes of the College has made the present arrangement for the teaching of English inadequate. The post of the appointment of an additional Professor of English has accordingly been provided for.

* This figure includes the recurring assignment just notified of 6½ lakhs from Imperial Revenue for the improvement of primary education.

The Amended Draft Financial Statement.

Rai Priya Nath Mukherji Bahadur.

3. A sum of Rs. 3,39,000 has been provided under "Grants-in-aid" for Calcutta hostels. This sum, the details of which were given by Mr. Hornell while introducing the Budget for the current year, was not spent during 1917-18, and it is necessary to repeat the provision; Rs. 1,89,000 of which will be utilized in completing the Calcutta hostels project and the balance for the improvement of the accommodation for the Bethune College.
4. The notification of 5½ lakhs recurring grant from Imperial sources for primary education has been received too recently to permit me to indicate in detail the directions in which it will be utilised. As soon as the necessary instructions are received from the Government of India schemes for the utilisation of the grant will be drawn up.

LIST OF BUSINESS—ITEM No. 8.

The Hon'ble RAI PRIYA NATH MUKHERJI BAHADUR introduced the following heads :—

REVENUE—X—REGISTRATION.
EXPENDITURE—12—REGISTRATION.

He said :—

"SIR, I have the honour to introduce the heads of revenue and expenditure of the Registration Department.

The sanctioned estimate of receipts for the current year was Rs. 22,00,000. In the light of the average for the nine months this estimate has had to be revised and it is now anticipated to be Rs. 19,60,000. This defect is due to a fall in the number of registrations by about 10 per cent. The year has been one of bumper crops, but the price of jute has been unusually low and owing to want of freight rice could not be exported and is a drag on the market. On the other hand, there has been a large rise in the price of many necessities of life, specially in cloth and other imported goods. All these have contributed to make money scarce. The result is that creditors have found realization difficult and investment has been restricted. Also, agriculturists having plenty of cheap food were placed above the necessity of borrowing or selling off their lands. These factors have combined to keep down the number of registrations. The condition of things is rather abnormal and it is difficult to draw any conclusions on the basis of past years when it was found that both prosperity and adversity contributed towards increase in registrations. To be on the safe side, we have estimated the receipts for the next year on the supposition that the present conditions might continue and we have accordingly put it down at Rs. 19,60,000.

On the expenditure side, the estimate provides for Rs. 11,57,000. The sanctioned estimate for the present year is Rs. 11,36,000 and the revised estimate on the basis of actuals is Rs. 11,60,000. The increase of Rs. 24,000, or about 2 per cent. is due to larger expenditure on various services, such as temporary copying establishments, establishments for experimental and temporary offices opened to serve public convenience, increased contingent expenditure for the equipment of offices and renovation and rebinding of valuable books and registers, increase in travelling allowances on account of more frequent and necessary inspections and rearrangement of the cadre in accordance with the present scale. This is a growing department and its needs are many. The estimate for the next year has been put down at Rs. 11,54,000, as Rs. 3,000 for grain compensation has been excluded, having been shown under head "Miscellaneous."

Owing to the war we have had again to keep in abeyance various schemes for the permanent improvement of the Department. The proposal for the revision of the cadre which will greatly benefit the officers is now before the Secretary of State. The long deferred scheme for the revision of the ministerial establishment in the district headquarters and mofussil offices which has been sanctioned by the Secretary of State cannot be given effect to for want of funds. We have had to cut down expenditure to the irreducible minimum for carrying on the current work of the Department, and it is a matter of regret that several much needed improvements have inevitably to be postponed."

*Resolutions.The President (Sir Henry Wheeler); Maulvi Abul Kasem.RESOLUTIONS.(Under the rules for the discussion of matters of general public interest.)LIST OF BUSINESS—ITEM No. 9.

The PRESIDENT (SIR HENRY WHEELER) said :—

"The Hon'ble Mover of this resolution does not appear to be here. The resolution therefore fails unless any other non-official member desires to move it on his behalf."

The HON'BLE MAULVI ABUL KASEM, in the absence of the Hon'ble Maulvi Fazl-ul Haq, moved the following resolution :—

This Council recommends to the Governor in Council that the special tribunals constituted under the Defence of India (Criminal Law Amendment) Act, 1915, for the trial of persons accused of being concerned in the recent disturbances of looting in hâts and bazars be dissolved, and that the trial of such persons be held under the ordinary law.

He said :—

"Sir, the object of moving this resolution is that on the ground of economy, expediency and justice it is desirable that the accused in the hât-looting cases should be tried by ordinary courts and not by special tribunals. It is also admitted by the Government that these hât-looting cases have arisen out of economic conditions prevailing in the country and that the accused in these cases are not habitual criminals, nor are they guilty of heinous offences. We have been induced to move this resolution also on the ground that that these tribunals have not given satisfaction to the public, and on account of the monstrously heavy sentences passed by some of these tribunals. Any ordinary courts in dealing with cases like these would remember that there is a right of appeal and they would therefore decide the cases accordingly, and [with a fear that there is an Appellate Court. But these tribunals are immune from all these difficulties and have passed as heavy sentences as they liked on the convicted people without much consideration. The public impression is that these tribunals want to finish the work as best they can and the sentences they have passed have not given public satisfaction. Nobody denies that the people concerned in these cases should not be dealt with summarily and punished; but they should not be treated as hardened criminals nor should the sentences be very heavy. This is not a new occurrence in Bengal. In 1906-07 such cases of rioting happened in several parts of the Mymensingh and Barisal districts, and the accused were as large in number as those concerned in the present cases. They were tried by the ordinary courts and the punishments meted out to them were very reasonable and in a very few cases there was an appeal. Such cases also happened in Midnapore and in the 24-Parganas; and we do not understand why it is necessary to have special tribunals at heavy expense for the purpose of trying these cases. The people can understand that in cases like these several innocent people are concerned. When there has been a riot some people will be summarily tried and some innocent people may be implicated in such cases—there is no help for that. What we object to is the wholesale constitution of these tribunals. It is true that non-official Indians are on these tribunals but the choice lies with the executive."

Resolutions.Rai Mohendra Chandra Mitra Bahadur.

I am sorry to say that the personnel of these tribunals has not given satisfaction and we demand that these accused persons be tried by the ordinary courts. With these few words I commend this resolution to the acceptance of this Council."

(At this stage, the Hon'ble Sir S. P. SINHA took the Chair).

The Hon'ble RAI MOHENDRA CHANDRA MITRA BAHADUR said :—

"Sir, I have to submit a few observations in connection with the resolution. The Hon'ble Mover wishes that the special tribunals constituted for the trial of offenders under the provisions of the Defence of India Act, 1915, in hât-looting cases be dissolved. There are certain admitted facts which come to my mind. The poor cultivators have been put to distressed circumstances, owing to abnormally high prices of food stuffs, cloth and other necessities of life. They cannot purchase a pair of khootis with the sale-proceeds of a maund of paddy or jute. There is no proper supply of articles, although the demand is heavy. On the 19th December last I moved the Council to devise means to relieve the distressed condition of the jute cultivators. I then stated: 'Every morning we get disquieting news of looting in the Muffassal bazars. I have heard of proclamations issued by Mr. F. A. Sachse, District Magistrate, Noakhali, in which to preclude the possibility of looting in the bazars he has penalised the holding of the hât after 3 p.m., he has openly admitted that as long as the war continues prices will remain high and there is chance of looting recurring in the bazars. And as it is impossible to station armed police in all bazars he ordered, under section 144 of the Civil Procedure Code, the closing of all bazars at 3 p.m.' This, Sir, is a serious state of affairs and I am sure it is receiving that consideration from Your Excellency's Government which it demands. But I must say that though our police may be powerful enough to restore tranquility in disturbed areas, they will not be able to eradicate the possibility of the recurrence of disturbances as long as they have to deal with that dangerous element—a poor peasantry armed with hunger and exasperated. Not only should the poor peasants be relieved of their present distress but steps should also be taken to induce them not to give up cultivation of jute in despair.' This is the sad picture which I then presented to the Council and it is now known that special tribunals have been established for trying the alleged offenders. I read in the Statesman of the 28th of February last that hât-looting cases were dealt with in the ordinary criminal court in the district of the 24-Parganas, and that the offenders were punished with imprisonment of a few months. In Bombay, ordinary criminal courts meted out the punishment to the offenders. Now the question raised by the Hon'ble Mover is of grave importance. Have the Government exercised sound discretion in constituting special tribunals to try the offenders. Do the hât-looting cases present to us facts which necessitated special measures to secure public safety and the defence of British India? Was it necessary in such cases for the local Government to direct an order under section 3 of the Act? No one can question the absolute authority given to Government for the appointment of the Commissioners to try such offences. But have the Government properly exercised their jurisdiction in a sound manner, in divesting the ordinary criminal court to try offenders in hât-looting cases? The growing popular feeling is that the administration of the ordinary law may be sufficient to check these disturbances in hâts and bazars. The public naturally consider that the ordinary criminal courts can try such offenders. The commission of offences of dacoity, murder, robbery, rioting, theft, etc., may be tried in ordinary courts. Public tranquility may be maintained by the ordinary and speedy procedure laid down in the Code of Criminal Procedure. The hât-looting cases cannot be viewed as assuming a political significance so as to threaten the safety and tranquility of the British Empire.

Resolutions.Babu Kishori Mohan Chaudhuri ; Sir Henry Wheeler.

We all condemn the political organizations the object of which is to spread anarchism, but we are at a loss to know why criminal cases of ordinary kind are only to be tried by special tribunals ; the offenders when so tried, lose the right of appeal. This procedure is very alarming to the public mind and the public have a right to ask the Government to dissolve the special tribunals and to drift the course of law to run smoothly in an ordinary way. The special tribunals are to be constituted when the ordinary criminal courts are not in a position to punish the offenders brought before them. If there be a departure from the procedure laid down in the Code of the Criminal Procedure, it is open to the public to come forward and criticise the action of Government. As long as the Defence of India Act is in the Statute Book, every loyal citizen should and must submit to it ; but, Sir, if there be no necessity or even if there is doubtful necessity the Defence of India Act should not be resorted to for the trial of such offenders. I respectfully submit that there is an obligation upon Government to act upon the reasonable criticisms submitted to them by the people of the country. We are bound to reason with Government and point out their errors. There is a growing feeling of a large section of the community against C. I. D. officers, against the police whose unpopularity is immense. The police is a powerful agency on behalf of Government. Their action is watched with anxiety. Unpardonable errors are committed by them as in the case of the Sindrobalas. It is our anxious desire—our humble request to Government that they should constitute special tribunals not on police versions but upon enquiries made by responsible gazetted officers other than those whose over-zeal and high-handedness create discontent among the people and make them unhappy. In this view with all respect to those who had to report to Government to constitute such tribunals I feel it my duty to support the resolution of the Hon'ble Mover."

The Hon'ble BABU KISHORI MOHAN CHAUDHURI said :—

"Sir, I think the resolution should be accepted. These hât-looting cases have nothing to do with the political crimes. They generally arose out of the economic pressure exerted by the unthinking poor and uneducated mobs. The very fact that these cases occurred in broad day light in hâts and bazars, show that they could not have been premeditated ; on a sudden impulse the unthinking and uneducated mobs committed these acts of lawlessness. Of course, it is not unlikely that the low class bad characters took advantage of these occurrences and aggravated the seriousness of the situation. The police investigations in such cases are far from satisfactory. There are reasons to believe that in some cases probably from interested motives the real culprits are not either traced or are let off and the innocent bystanders are sent up in order to make some persons the scapegoats. For these reasons, it is very reasonable that in the trial of these cases—though the question of identification in the actual participation in the act of looting is a very simple one—still it is very desirable that the police investigation should be conducted with a full sense of responsibility and with a view that the defence should get all the advantages of ordinary trials. Of course, in jury districts they will get the benefit of the verdict of the jury ; the local people are likely to know more about the nature of the thing and they should get the advantage of an appeal to the higher courts. For these reasons, I think the proposal should be accepted and there is no reason why the ordinary law courts should not be competent to deal with these cases. With these few words, I heartily support this resolution."

The Hon'ble SIR HENRY WHEELER said :—

"Sir, in opposing this resolution, I should like to remind the Council of the situation with which we were faced towards the end of last, and the beginning of the present year, and while explaining the reasons why these special tribunals were created, to disabuse some Hon'ble Members of the idea that in adopting this procedure we were making a use of the Defence of India Act to which those who passed that Act did not intend that it should be put. As will be fresh in the minds of all of us, towards the end of last year and, I think, extending also into 1918, there occurred in certain districts of the province, beginning originally in Noakhali and Chittagong, a series of cases in which mobs looted hâts and bazars, took away articles from the shops, and assaulted the shopkeepers and in some cases also the police. The total number of such occurrences was 148; they extended to all the divisions of the province—being 38 in the Presidency Division, 15 in the Burdwan, 28 in the Dacca Division, 16 in the Chittagong and 51 in the Rajshahi Division. The example that was set, at first in a more or less local corner, spread to other districts with the results which I have just mentioned. And I think it will also be remembered that the papers at that time were full of appeals to Government to restore law and order and to prevent the interference with the peaceful life of citizens and shopkeepers. That is the situation which arose, at a time when this country, along with the rest of the Empire, was engaged in this deadly war. It was a situation which had a direct bearing on the war. To the best of our ability we tried to quell the disturbances with the men at our disposal; but had they extended over a wider areas, it would have been inevitably necessary to call in aid from outside, which would have directly affected the military arrangements of the Government of India.

That being the situation, what were the requirements to meet it? In the first place, I submit, the primary requirement was the speedy restoration of law and order. It was the fundamental duty of Government not to run the risk of these disturbances spreading throughout Bengal, and from Bengal possibly to other provinces. The restoration of law and order was effected by bringing in police from outside, thus necessarily depleting the police in other districts, and by the arrest of offenders and the investigation of cases as quickly as possible: for that purpose, too, special officers were brought in from outside; when these cases were instituted, the second requirement was their speedy disposal, both in order that people might realise that punishment would follow quickly upon their offences, and to allay feeling among the people themselves, because, undoubtedly, there was a tendency in some places for these occurrences to have engendered a certain amount of friction among different communities. Another reason for expedition was in order that our depleted staffs and over-worked officers might not have their energies entirely absorbed in the disposal of these cases. Fortunately the cases ceased; but had they gone on it would have been most detrimental to the administration if our police and magistrates had found their hands absolutely full and been unable to cope with new occurrences.

Such being the situation, and the requirements of the situation as I view them, I may explain to the Council the action we took. In the majority of instances the disposal of these cases has been left to the ordinary courts. Even in districts where special tribunals have been created, it is only the more serious cases which have been made over to the special tribunals. As an instance, in the district of Rangpur, I find that out of 20 cases only 7 have been made over to the special tribunal, and it is inevitable that this should be so, since the only cases that are triable by the special tribunals are those falling under sections 395 and 412 of the Indian Penal Code. Obviously, therefore, any charges that do not come within these sections cannot be tried by the special tribunals. We, did not, moreover, set up tribunals everywhere, and as a matter of fact, they were appointed only in the districts of Chittagong, Noakhali, Rangpur, Dinajpur, Jessore and Khulna. In these six districts there were for disposal 48 cases with 1,638 accused—thus bearing out the contention that, but for the adoption of this special procedure, these cases, involving many accused persons, might have dragged on for an inordinate time. Of these cases 8, involving 258 accused, have been disposed of; 24, involving 915 accused, are pending, and 4, involving 165 accused, are put down as likely to be brought before the tribunals.

It is not my purpose to defend the personnel of these tribunals, and I should regard my doing so as improper as attacks upon them in this Council; but since the point has been touched upon by one Hon'ble Member I will merely draw attention to what the constitution of the tribunals has been. In the Chittagong district the members serving upon the tribunal are the District and Sessions Judge, a deputy magistrate, an honorary magistrate and a landholder and merchant; in Noakhali, the District and Sessions Judge, a pleader and the Vice-Chairman of the District Board; in Rangpur the District and Sessions Judge, a pleader and a deputy magistrate, in Dinajpur the District and Sessions Judge, a pleader and a deputy magistrate; in Jessore and Khulna the District and Sessions Judge, a retired Presidency magistrate and a pleader. So far as possible, an attempt has been made to have on the tribunals both a Hindu and a Muhammadan. I am content to leave the matter at that.

That being what we have done and the reason why we have done it, I would now only touch upon the last point, namely, the idea that we have misused the Defence of India Act in appointing these tribunals. That can best be tested by a reference to the discussion in the Imperial Council at the time when the Defence of India Act was passed. I shall be able to show that the situation which arose here was described almost verbatim by Sir R. Craddock in the course of his speeches on the Bill as a contingency against which the Act was directed. In dealing with the special procedure provided for in the Act, he pointed out the extreme necessity at a time of war of maintaining the public peace, and after dealing with two contingencies with which we are not now concerned, he referred to a third. With your permission, Sir, I would like to quote his remarks on this point, as they have a very direct bearing upon the present situation:—

Thirdly, we come to a class of disorder which has characterised recent disturbances in the Western Punjab. This is of a different kind and has no definite political object when it starts;—it is simply lawlessness, partly induced by economic unrest. Men break out against the restraints of the law to plunder their weaker neighbours and if this lawlessness is unchecked it soon assumes the aspect of rebellion against all constituted authority, or it may take on the complexion of racial or religious rioting. In some of the Western Punjab districts, indeed, it is rapidly becoming a movement among lawless Muhammadans, under the stress or pretext of high prices, to loot and plunder their Hindu neighbours, to wreck the shops and houses of banias and burn their bonds and books. Violent mobs of this kind rapidly swell in numbers; any success draws in fresh adherents or produces imitators, and the danger may become a very serious one if it is not effectively dealt with at the very start.

These words most aptly represent the state of affairs with which this Government was faced during the period I have mentioned, and that being so, and it being the clearest duty of Government to maintain order in the province in these times of stress, I maintain that we were absolutely justified in these circumstances in ensuring the prompt disposal of these cases by adopting the special means which the Act places at our disposal. I cannot, therefore, accept the resolution on behalf of Government."

The Hon'ble MAULVI ABUL KASEM said:—

"Sir, we are thankful to the Hon'ble Sir Henry Wheeler for the statement he has made, but I am sorry to say that I fail to understand why it is necessary for the speedy restoration of peace and order that these cases should be tried by special tribunals. The Hon'ble Member-in-charge himself admits that special tribunals have not been formed in all the districts of

Resolutions.Sir Henry Wheeler ; Maulvi Abul Kasem.

Bengal and even where they have been formed, all the cases have not been made over to them for disposal. As I began by saying and as the resolution itself says—we want especially in the serious cases that the accused should have the right of appeal against the decision of the first court of justice ; and what is more we desire that the Court passing the judgment and sentence should have an idea that their judgments are subject to appeal and that will be moral check on their judgments. That is the reason why we have taken the opportunity of moving this resolution. Nobody denies that it was absolutely necessary to restore peace and order and prevent a recurrence of these things and the Government was certainly appealed to on that behalf and we still have the opinion that if there be a recurrence of such lawlessness, speedy measures should be adopted to check the spread of these cases. It is true that peace and order had to be restored by the police but not by a prompt and speedy trial of the offenders. These offences could have been tried at a much less cost by the ordinary courts than by these special tribunals, and, I think, more speedily with this advantage, that in case of their being tried by a magistrate there would have been an appeal. With due deference to the Hon'ble Member-in-charge, I would submit that there is no foundation for the statement that these hât-looting cases were due to any difference of feeling between the two communities : there was absolutely no such feeling at the time when these cases occurred."

The Hon'ble SIR HENRY WHEELER said :—

"The Hon'ble Member is misrepresenting what I said. I never stated that these occurrences had been caused by ill-feeling between different communities, but that in the course of them there was a danger of ill-feeling between the different communities developing."

The Hon'ble MAULVI ABUL KASEM, continuing, said :—

"Sir, I have found from certain statements made in the vernacular Press that an attempt was made to make out that these hât-looting cases were due to racial feeling between the Hindus and Muhammadans, but from enquiries made, both by officials and by non-officials, we have found that there is absolutely no foundation for such a statement. I think the Press have corrected this statement. These disturbances were entirely due to economic conditions, and these rustic people, rightly or wrongly, believed that the prices of some articles were raised for the advantage and aggrandisement of the dealers of those articles and the people wanted to have revenge on them. It was certainly unlawful on their part to do so, and what we wanted was that these people should be tried by the ordinary courts and reasonable sentences be passed on them. I understand that in one case about 20 to 25 persons have been sentenced to heavy sentences of 7 to 8 years' rigorous imprisonment. These are surely sentences which should be passed on hardened criminals. For these reasons, I submit, Sir, that this resolution should be accepted by this Council."

The motion was then put and lost.

At the instance of the President Item No. 11 was taken up for discussion before Item No. 10.

LIST OF BUSINESS—ITEM No. 11.

The Hon'ble MAULVI ABUL KASEM, in the absence of Maulvi A. K. Fazl-ul Haq, moved the following resolution :—

This Council recommends to the Governor in Council that a gazetted officer (not being a police officer) be specially deputed to make full and

Resolutions.

Mr. M. Ashraf Ali Khan Chaudhuri; Deba Prosad Sarbadhikari; Sir Henry Wheeler.

detailed inquiries into all cases of alleged oppression committed by the police in connection with the recent disturbances of looting in hâts and bazars.

He said—

"Sir, in moving this resolution I only make mention that rightly or wrongly there is an impression in the public mind that the police have taken advantage of the hât-looting cases in going over to villages and extorting money from the villagers and submitting them to all sorts of torture. Allegations have been made both in the Press and by various bodies of people against this sort of thing and in justice to the police themselves and for the good name of the Government, I think the Government ought to accept this resolution and hold an inquiry, entirely independent of police agency, to find out whether there is any truth in these allegations or not, but allegations have been persistently made with a good deal of vehemence by people residing in those parts of the country where these cases have occurred. It has been alleged, first, that hâts were looted and, secondly, that villages were looted in their turn. In justice to the police officers themselves I see no reason why an enquiry should not be directed. Efficiency of the police itself demands that an enquiry should be made, and I hope Government will be pleased to accept this resolution and hold an enquiry. Even in this case I do not ask for a non-official enquiry but an official enquiry which is not a police one."

The Hon'ble Mr. M. ASHRAF ALI KHAN CHAUDHURI said—

"Sir, in supporting this resolution I take this opportunity of saying that every one knows that after some disturbance the police do take the opportunity of realising something from the people of the locality. Sometimes the police themselves create the trouble solely for the purpose of squeezing out money from the accused. Sir, in the district of Rangpur, I know it personally, that the police from one village have been able to take a great amount of money from the villagers as bribe. When I put this before the District Magistrate and told him about it I heard that he held an enquiry or rather had the enquiry held by some body and the report was that no allegations were made out. In this resolution it is urged that a gazetted officer, not being a police officer, be especially deputed to enquire into these allegations. With regard to this matter I would only make this observation that when an officer goes to a village to enquire into cases of this sort he is always surrounded by the police who try always to keep out the people coming near the gazetted officer. If the gazetted officer goes to the village without a police officer with him and tries to take the help of the people of the locality there, then I think this enquiry will be helpful; otherwise what is the good of sending some body of the police force to enquire into these cases as the villagers themselves will be afraid to come forward to substantiate the allegation they make against the police. With these few words I heartily support this resolution."

The Hon'ble Dr. DEBA PROSAD SARBADHIKARI said :—

"Sir, I rise to support this resolution. On the occasion of my recent visit to Rangpur I found the feeling there to be very strong in connection with these cases, and I certainly think that for the good name of the police and of the Government a thorough investigation is required. There is not the least doubt that public feeling in some of the districts is very high."

The Hon'ble Sir HENRY WHEELER said :—

"Sir, I would, first of all, put it to the Council that the particular proposal contained in the resolution cannot, in any circumstances, be the best means of arriving at the object in view. It proposes the deputation of a special gazetted officer to make a detailed enquiry in all the areas in which allegations against the police may have been made in connection with these hât-looting cases. I have just told the Council the number and extent of these cases, and I can see no advantage in superseding the ordinary staff on whom such enquiries would ordinarily devolve in favour, at this late day, of one special officer who will have to tour round all the districts concerned and endeavour to ascertain facts which, as I shall show later, have already been investigated.

The importance of prompt enquiry into any allegations of misconduct on the part of police is not one which is in any way new to Government; it has long been realised and it is provided for in the rules. The rules of the Police Manual require the immediate report of any such serious allegations to the Superintendent of Police, and through him to the District Magistrate; while on receipt of that information it is the duty of the District Magistrate to consider whether he should order a magisterial enquiry in lieu of the departmental enquiry, which the Superintendent of Police (in the absence of the District Magistrate) should always institute of his own motion, or whether he should instruct a magistrate to co-operate with the Superintendent of Police or the Subdivisional Police officer in the enquiry. There is a specific direction, therefore, drawing the attention of all our officers to the importance of this matter and impressing on them the expediency of enquiry by extra departmental agency in serious cases. The particular matter of allegations against the police in hât-looting cases is not, of course, in itself different from similar allegations made against the police in any other connection, and it would be improper, in my opinion, to attempt to lay down that because allegations are made in connection with hât-looting cases, even though these may have been adduced in several districts and have attracted a certain amount of attention, a novel procedure should be adopted which would not be followed otherwise. But, as a matter of fact, in connection with these allegations, we ourselves, over and above the rules, drew the attention of our local officers to the need for enquiry. On seeing certain violent statements made in certain newspapers, which I need not particularise, but of the recklessness of some of which the Council may judge by the communiqué which we issued the other day specifically denying the allegation that a number of people had died from ill-treatment, we wrote on the 2nd and 5th February to the officers concerned, pointing out that these complaints were being mooted and that—if there were specific allegations made—they must be enquired into promptly. In one of our letters we even suggested the deputation of a magisterial officer, thus echoing our rules which lay down such a procedure when the charges are serious. Therefore long before this resolution was moved, and in addition to our standing orders governing these matters, we directed an enquiry. In response to these orders enquiries have been made, and I would like to draw the attention of the Council to the reports received, which will give some indication of the action that has been taken and of the present situation.

I referred just now to specific allegations against the police, and our orders were confined to them only. If the charge is that an offence has been committed, it is only fair to the police that persons should come forward and state exactly what has happened. I greatly deprecate statements like 'We do not say it is true, we cannot say whether it is correct or not, but, people are under the impression that horrible offences are being committed,' and so on; nor, to my mind, does it redound to the credit of those who lay charges of that description. However, we ordered enquiries into specific allegations, and the general purport of the replies is as follows:—

From the districts of Rajshahi, Bogra, Jalpaiguri, Dinajpur, Pabna, Jessore, Nadia, Murshidabad, Khulna, Bankura, Birbhum, the Chittagong

Resolutions.Sir Henry Wheeler.

Hill Tracts, Tippera and Dacca we were told that no such specific allegations have been made.

The Commissioner of the Chittagong Division reported that as regards Chittagong he had heard of no such allegations or rumours except the articles in the newspapers. At Noakhali he had seen the Hon'ble Maulvis Fazl-ul Haq and Abul Kasem, who complained to him of this matter, though before their arrival the people had not done so. He asked them to produce evidence, but they declined to do so on the ground that the people were afraid to come forward to give evidence against the police. The Commissioner, however, advised the District Magistrate to make an enquiry, and on the 20th February he reported that the District Magistrate had made an enquiry and was directing the prosecution of a sub-inspector and certain constables and dafadars. From the report of the District Magistrate of the 23rd February, it appears that 58 complaints were the outcome of one case in which a sub-inspector had nearly been beaten to death, and 21 complaints of another. The District Magistrate enquired into matters personally, assisted by a sub-registrar, and, as I have said, certain prosecutions have been the outcome. These cases are presumably now pending, and it would be improper to pronounce any opinion on them.

The District Magistrate of Chittagong reported that the 'allegation that police arrested people indiscriminately appears to be without any foundation as far as this district is concerned.' Neither in the cases that have been instituted before the courts had these allegations been seriously made.

I now turn to the district of Rangpur, to which the Hon'ble Mr. Ashraf Ali Khan Chaudhuri has referred, and I think I can show that the impression he has got that nothing has been done is erroneous. The District Magistrate reports :

'The work of the investigating police officers was carefully supervised by police officers of superior rank and also in most cases by the Subdivisional Officer and District Magistrate himself. Of the 20 cases which occurred in the district 15 were personally looked up by me. As far as I know there has been no allegation by any of the persons arrested in any case that they have been wrongfully arrested at the instance of any zamindar or his amla.'

The latter is an accusation that was freely made in some quarters. He then goes on to refer to certain specific cases.

Thus in the Fulbari looting case, the Subdivisional Officer reported that the allegation was without foundation. In the Bharatkhal case, regarding which a complaint was made by Mr. Ashraf Ali Khan Chaudhuri, an enquiry was held by the Subdivisional Officer. The charge of wrongful arrest by a railway head-constable was not substantiated. Three other cases which were brought forward broke down, and I understand that one case against a panchayat is still pending. In the Chilmari looting case, the enquiry was made by the Subdivisional Officer who was of opinion that the charges brought against the police and tahsildar were false and without foundation, being the outcome of party feeling. The District Magistrate personally visited the spot during the police enquiry and states that 'no complaint was made by any person either against the police or tahsildar.' The District Magistrate is now, however, making a further enquiry into these charges. A particular accusation that a woman had a miscarriage by reason of police ill-treatment was enquired into by the Subdivisional Officer, who found that it was without foundation. The Sunderganj case was investigated by the Subdivisional Officer, a deputy magistrate and also by the District Magistrate. It has been held that an inspector, a sub-inspector and a constable are at fault, and a prosecution will be instituted against those persons against whom legal evidence is forthcoming.

I now turn to the district of Bogra in which, in connection with a charge of assault on the police, similar allegations were made; they were enquired into by the Subdivisional Officer and held to be unsubstantiated.

In Malda, 9 petitions were filed against the attachment of movable property; the allegations were generally that the police had attached the properties of absconders which the relatives alleged did not belong to the men who were wanted. These cases were enquired into by a sub-inspector and one complaint of a different character was taken up by the Superintendent of Police.

In the 24-Parganas, there was a complaint made against a chaukidar, which was enquired into by a sub-deputy collector and found to be unsubstantiated.

In Mymensingh there were two petty cases against a dafadar and certain constables; one was enquired into by a deputy superintendent of police and another by a sub-deputy collector.

In Midnapore, there was one case which was enquired into by a deputy magistrate and found to be false.

I think the Council will see, therefore, that under our instructions enquiry has been made into a number of cases. Some of these have been held to break down. Where, however, in the opinion of the enquiring officer there was a prima facie case against any members of the police, we have not hesitated to put them on their trial and the result must be left to the courts. There is no need, therefore, for farther enquiry, since Government have already dealt amply with the situation, and I submit that the resolution should not be accepted."

The Hon'ble MAULVI ABUL KASEM said :—

"Sir, although the wording of the resolution is somewhat vague yet it was never in my mind to suggest that a gazetted officer should go round all the district and hold enquiries. What I meant to suggest was that in each district a gazetted officer, not being a police officer, be deputed to make these enquiries. We quite admit that it is wrong to make allegations without giving specific instances, but the difficulty lies not only with the people. Rustic people are always afraid to complain against the police or to say that they have given bribes. There are other reasons too. Having offered bribes they are also guilty, and, secondly, they believe that if they give evidence against the police they will be hunted down by the police and may be put to all sorts of trouble on different occasions. So they do not venture to come forward. Reference has been made that these allegations had not been made before we went to see the District Magistrate. The District Magistrate said that he had never heard of any allegation. We told him that nobody had come because they dared not come. They did not venture to complain against the police, and even when a prima facie case to proceed against the police is made out the people do not come forward to give evidence. But there still remains the impression that an enquiry by the Deputy Superintendent of Police or the Superintendent of Police is carried on more with a view to protect the police than to find out the guilty. The impression is there, and I think there are very good grounds for the impression, that whenever any complaint is made against the police, higher officials do not try to find the truth about it, but that they want to see how best they can save their subordinate officers, and that is the reason why the subordinate police is so unpopular with the people.

Resolutions.Mr. Ashraf Ali Khan Chaudhury; Sir S. P. Sinha.

I am glad, however, to know that orders have been issued to make these enquiries and I only suggest that these enquiries should be held by gazetted officers, preferably by the District Magistrate, and I see no reason why this resolution cannot be accepted by Government."

The motion was put and lost.

At this stage the Hon'ble SIR HENRY WHEELER again took the chair.

LIST OF BUSINESS—ITEM No. 10.

The Hon'ble MR. ASHRAF ALI KHAN CHAUDHURI in the absence of the Hon'ble MAULVI FAZL-UL HAQ moved the following resolution :—

This Council recommends to the Governor in Council that in the case of trials arising out of the recent disturbances of looting in hâts and bazars, the defence of all accused persons who are too poor to defend themselves shall be undertaken by Government.

He said :—

"Sir, it is the custom of the British Courts that if there is nobody to defend an accused in a Police Court, the sympathetic Judge always asks junior members of the bar to come and defend him. Sir, we have got instances that in murder cases the Judge asks somebody to defend the accused, perhaps this is generally done. But in other cases there is no such rule as this. In hât-looting cases the accused generally go undefended and they have gone undefended in some cases. In hât-looting cases the accused are generally poor and they would not have been sent up as accused persons if they were not poor. Why is that? Because they have not been able to get away from the clutches of the police, and that is the reason. As far as I have been able to gather information personally and from others also, I have come to this conclusion that the real offenders have escaped but those who were very poor and those who have been asked by the police to bribe them and have not done so have only been sent up and are being tried by the Courts as accused persons. In Bharatkhalī there were something like 92 accused persons and, if I am not far wrong, some women and children were also sent up by the police, but the District Magistrate discharged the women and children, and then later on out of the 92, four were discharged as there was no evidence against them. Out of the remaining 88 only 39 persons have been acquitted as there was no evidence against them. From these facts one can at once see that the poor people, those who are innocent, have been sent up. Therefore there is no harm in accepting this proposal by the Council that the poor people who have really been sent up as accused before the Courts should be defended by pleaders or by vakils. There is a feeling in this country that those people who had been brought before the Courts are really innocent persons and it would do credit to your Government if you show due respect to this feeling. The police know that they are safe whatever they may do, but if that idea grows you cannot depend upon your police, and then what will be the state of the country? With these words I commend this resolution to the Council."

The Hon'ble SIR S. P. SINHA said :—

"I am sorry, Sir, I am unable to accept this resolution on behalf of the Government. In the first place, I could not do so, because this was a matter which we should have to report to the Government of India and obtain their orders before we could pass an order ourselves. The present rule is that it is only in cases of persons accused of murder that their defence is undertaken or rather provided for by Government, and even in these cases there were until recently two limitations; first, that the accused persons must be unable to provide for their defence themselves, and, secondly, that the nature of the defence must be such as to induce either the District Magistrate or the Sessions Judge to conclude that the accused ought to have legal assistance provided for them. In all other cases, that is cases other than murder, there is no provision at the present moment by which it is the duty either of the District Magistrate or the Sessions Judge to provide for the legal defence of accused persons. It would, therefore, be a very wide extension of the principle now applied to murder cases. We should hardly be justified in accepting such an extension in these cases without extending to all cases of accused persons charged with offences but unable to provide for their defence. I am prepared to go to that length if anything new can be shown which indicates the necessity for such a course, namely, that whenever a person charged with an offence is unable to provide a lawyer for his defence, Government should pay for a lawyer for his defence. That is not the rule in this country. No necessity has been felt for such a rule. Speaking for myself, I am unable to see why in these hât-looting cases, which are of an extremely simple nature and where the only question is one of identification, i.e., whether the man charged did or did not take part in the looting which undoubtedly took place, why in these cases as distinguished from all others it should be necessary for Government to provide for the defence of accused persons. I deprecate what the Hon'ble Mover said with regard to the feeling in the country. Surely, when persons are charged with offences before the tribunals appointed by law, we cannot take into account the fact that this man or that man or a number of people—you may call them the public if you like—consider that these persons are innocent. That is not the function of Government; surely it is the duty of the Courts to discharge them if they are innocent, and it is for that purpose that the tribunals have been constituted. It would be straying from the point to consider the question as to whether they are guilty or not; that is a matter which will be decided according to the ordinary law by the tribunal appointed for that purpose. I think it is hardly relevant and, if I may say so, hardly proper to say that these people are believed to be innocent or that the innocent people have been placed before the Courts and the guilty have been allowed to escape. It tends to create a prejudice against the tribunal and a prejudice in favour of the persons charged before the Courts. It ought not to be done in the Council or in the public press. If I were to accept this resolution it would not be a question of any pecuniary importance, as it would mean only, I suppose, a few thousand rupees, and if those cases were to continue, which I hope they would not, it might run to a great deal more. But, as a matter of principle, is there anything to distinguish these cases of rioting and looting from all other cases of rioting and looting, so that we should provide for a lawyer in these cases, though we do not do so in others? I am unable to see any point of distinction between these and other cases which are constantly before the Courts in every district. I am therefore unable to recommend to the Council the acceptance of this resolution."

Resolutions.Mr. Ashraf Ali Khan Chaudhuri.

The Hon'ble MR. ASHRAF ALI KHAN CHAUDHURI said :—

"Sir, I am rather surprised to hear from my Hon'ble friend that the hât-looting cases are of a simple nature. If they are of a simple nature, then why should they be tried by the special tribunal? That is the first point. My friend knows very well that if a case comes before the special tribunal it becomes nearly as serious as a murder trial and the accused have got in some cases up to seven years' rigorous imprisonment. Why should not every offence be dealt with in this way? In answer to that I say that this is a matter which has stirred the whole country, nearly all the districts of Bengal, and it would have done absolutely no harm to the Government if they had only asked some junior pleader to defend the accused in these cases. Perhaps the junior pleader would have defended them without any remuneration at all."

The Hon'ble SIR S. P. SINHA said :—" They are free to do so now."

The Hon'ble MR. ASHRAF ALI KHAN CHAUDHURI said :—

" If this were done the Government would have been liked by the people more. That is all I can say. Sir, if the Government of Bengal had written to the Government of India for permission or order it would have been a very easy matter, and I do not think they would have gone against the wishes of the Government of Bengal. And even if it were decided to try these cases by special tribunals it would have done no harm to get somebody to defend these people. I know that in the Karanjahat case in Bogra the allegations were that things worth only Rs. 8-2 were looted from the hât and for that an accused got 4 or 5 years. This is what has happened in these hât-looting cases. With all respect to my friend I should like to add that if still there is time and the Government would employ somebody in the district to defend these people they would earn the gratitude of the people. Let the people understand that they shall be dealt with harshly if they are really found guilty, and let them also understand that the Government are very just to them by trying to find out the innocent from the guilty people."

The motion was then put and lost.

LIST OF BUSINESS—ITEM No. 12.

The Hon'ble RAI MAHENDRA CHANDRA MITRA BAHADUR moved the following resolution :—

This Council recommends to the Governor in Council that Government do take into consideration the revision of the rules under the Bengal Municipal Act, 1884, for the election of Municipal Commissioners, now in force in mufassal Municipalities in Bengal, with a view—

- (1) to insert in rule 13 after the figures 57 the words " or removed under section 19 " ;
- (2) to add the following in rule 14 before the word " publish," namely :—

" The Chairman shall decide whether the rule is duly complied with " ;
and

- (3) to omit the words " and his decision is final " in rule 29.

He said :—

" Sir, with reference to the first part of my resolution, I regret to note that there has been an omission to add the following words after the words ' or removed under section 19 ' but has not obtained the sanction of the Local Government as provided in section 22 of the Act. I ask therefore the permission of the President to amend this part of my resolution accordingly. "

Rule 13 of the Election Rules lays down clearly that any person to vote under these rules and not disqualified under section 57 of the Act shall be

Resolutions.

Sir S. P. Sinha.

qualified to be elected a Commissioner. If any one reads this rule without reference to section 22 of the Act, he is naturally led to infer that a Commissioner removed from his office under section 19 of the Act shall be elected, if he is a qualified voter. The right of election of a Commissioner is a right exercised by qualified voters. The election is therefore the result of voting by qualified voters in favour of another qualified voter who is a candidate for Commissionership. Rule 13, as it stands at present, is not a bar to the election of a Commissioner removed under section 19 of the Act. This rule does not notice the provisions of section 22 which lays down that a Commissioner removed under section 19 may be elected or re-elected with the sanction of the local Government.

With reference to rule 14 of the Election Rules, I beg to point out that, supposing in the application in Form B the proposer or seconder is not a qualified voter or supposing that all the supporters of a candidate or a few of them are not qualified voters, the question is whether the Chairman of a Municipality is bound to publish the name of the candidate in Form B which generally contains the names of the proposer, seconder and supporters. Relying upon the provisions of section 31 of the Calcutta Municipal Acts 1899, which embodies a similar rule of procedure, an Hon'ble Judge in the High Court observed in a case reported in 22 Indian Law Reports, Calcutta P, 717, 'I do not think it is intended to be laid down here that, supposing a person had not submitted the name of any approver at all, or submitted a number less than 8, or submitted them within a period less than seven days before the day fixed for the election, the Chairman in such a case would be bound to accept the name of the person as a candidate.' Justice Sale further explained the views of Justice Trevelyan in the earlier case reported in 19 Indian Law Reports, Calcutta, P. 192, 'that assuming there has been a sufficient prima facie compliance with the condition laid down by section 31, the Chairman has no power to go further and determine questions affecting the status of persons claiming to be candidates duly qualified under the Act.' I have ventured to submit my suggestion to the Council so that rule 14 be made clear.

Referring to the third part of my resolution, I venture to think that the words 'his decision is final' should be omitted from the Election Rule No. 29. The Magistrate does not decide the dispute under the provisions of the Code of Criminal Procedure. He does not treat the dispute as a crime. He is merely to decide it as an arbitrator. As a matter of fact, his decision is not a final one. It is generally contested in Civil Courts. Section 15 of the Bengal Municipal Acts 1899 provides the authority who shall decide disputes under the rules. If a statute or a rule having the force of law declares a decision of the authority as a final one, and at the same time it lays down that it may be contested in the Civil Courts, it seems to me to be an anomaly.

With these few words, I submit, Sir, that my resolution be accepted by the Council."

The Hon'ble Sir S. P. SINHA said :—

"Sir, I confess that I am somewhat puzzled as to why this resolution has been brought forward. I am not aware of any difficulty having arisen by reason of the existing rules. Our attention has not certainly been drawn to any such difficulties and the amendments proposed by the Hon'ble Mover are more or less questions of drafting, which if he will bring them before us when we are considering the amendment of the Act and the rules, I am sure, would receive every consideration. But what exactly it is that he finds fault with in the existing rules and why he wishes to change them, I cannot say."

Resolutions.Sir S. P. Sinha.

To take the first one: the rule as it stands and which he wants to change is this:—

'Any person qualified to vote under these rules and not disqualified under section 57 shall be qualified to be elected a Commissioner.'

My friend wants to add to that, that not only must he not suffer from a disqualification under section 57, but he must not have been removed by Government under section 19. There is a section in the Act which provides that any person so removed shall not be capable of being elected as Commissioner unless he has obtained the consent of the Government; my friend says that a person removed shall not be elected a Commissioner, unless he has obtained the consent of the Government, but this is in the Act now. I do not see why he asks the Council to consider this at all. That is, with regard to the first portion of the resolution. All the answer that I can give to my Hon'ble friend is that the change which he seeks to introduce is absolutely unnecessary, being provided by the Act itself—section 22.

Then we may take the next one. Rule 14 which provides that every candidate for election shall send his name to the Chairman in writing a certain number of days previous to the election and his proposer and seconder must subscribe their names to the paper and eight other electors besides. Then the rule goes on to say, 'The Chairman shall put up a list of all candidates in the same form at the municipal office not less than 15 days before the date of election.' My friend wants to add to that, that the Chairman before publishing that list must decide as to whether the form that has been sent in has the names of the proposer and seconder and eight other names that are required, and that it has been sent in time before he includes them in the list to be published. But surely that is the rule now. The Chairman shall publish the names of all persons who have sent in their names in time, but if the time is past and a man sends in his name and that of the seconder and proposer and so forth the Chairman simply puts it away, and says that 'I cannot publish your name as you have not come in time.' He does decide necessarily as to whether the form is correct. Then you add nothing to the rules by saying that he must decide whether the paper is in accordance with form or not. He must decide it before he publishes the list. There is no harm in accepting the Hon'ble Member's proposal; but, as a matter of drafting, I do not think it is necessary, nor I venture to say, with all respect to the Hon'ble Member, do I see the necessity of troubling the Council about such a matter at all.

Let us take the next one: 'The Chairman shall decide and his decision is final.' I may point out that my friend quotes the rule (29) wrongly. The words in the rule are 'shall be final' and not 'is final.' My friend has pointed out that it is not final in the sense that you cannot go to the Civil Courts about it, because there is a section which says that although the Magistrate decides on any particular point, if a man is aggrieved he may go to the Civil Court and contest the decision of the Magistrate; but all that was meant by saying that the decision of the Magistrate shall be final was this: that there shall not be an appeal to the Commissioner and from the Commissioner to the Local Government. And so far as the preliminary dispute is concerned, apart from the Civil Court, you shall not go to any higher authority than the Magistrate. There is a section in the Act that it shall not be final in such a sense as to preclude the jurisdiction of the Courts. What more do we want? I can only say that although all these three amendments are defective in some respects they are harmless, and I do not see any necessity for any one of them, and I should, as a draftsman, be inclined to think that the rules, as they at present exist, are better drafted than they would be if my friend's suggestions were accepted. I would, therefore, suggest that the

Resolutions.The Hon'ble Rai Mahendra Chandra Mitra Bahadur.

Hon'ble Member should not press this resolution; but when we are reconsidering the rules as well as the Act, his suggestions with regard to these matters will be attentively and respectfully considered."

The Hon'ble RAI MAHENDRA CHANDRA MITRA BAHADUR said:—

"Sir, I submit that I would not have come to this Council, had not the question come up for consideration before the Civil Courts. I do not think it is necessary to refer to concrete cases; but I may refer to the amendment which I propose with regard to rule 14. As a matter of fact, the Chairman, under that rule, is required to publish the names; but cases occurred in which the authority of the Chairman was questioned and he was asked to publish the list according to form. It is necessary that the form should contain the names of the proposers and seconders, as well as those of eight supporters. Supposing it is found that the supporters are not qualified voters; still the Chairman was pressed to publish the notice in Form B. If he refused to do so, he was dragged into the Civil Courts on the ground that he had no authority to decide the question whether the notice was in due compliance with the requirements of the rule. As the Hon'ble Member in charge considers that it is a harmless rule, I submit, for the consideration of the Council, that such alterations as I suggest, viz., the addition of a few words 'that the Chairman shall decide whether the form is in due compliance with the rules' will save a lot of trouble afterwards, and that is the reason why I have brought this matter to the notice of the Council.

As regards the second part of my resolution, viz., whether a person who has been removed under the provisions of section 19 of the Act shall be elected a Commissioner or not, rule 13 of the Election Rules lays down, that 'no matter whether a person who is removed under section 19 or not, he shall be elected a Commissioner, provided he is a qualified voter.' Although I admit that the provisions of section 22 are not referred to in rule 13, that rule stands by itself, and as far as the language of that rule goes, it clearly says that 'any person, whether he has been removed or not, shall be elected a Commissioner.' Hence difficulty was felt. I therefore submit for the consideration of the Council that if the Hon'ble Member in charge thinks that this is a harmless suggestion, I may ask whether it would be injudicious to frame the rule as suggested by me. I admit that there is a section in the Municipal Act which lays down that a person removed under the provisions of section 19 may be elected or re-elected; but so far as the rule is concerned it stands by itself. As the rule stands now voters removed under section 19 naturally rush in for election.

Then Sir, with regard to the third part of the resolution, as to the words whether the decision of the Magistrate is final or not, I submit that it is the subject-matter of controversy in the mufassal Courts and also in the High Court, and we understand that notwithstanding the expression that the decision of the Magistrate is final in the rule itself, the view taken was that that his decision was not final. The Hon'ble Member in charge says that the language of the rule says that it shall be final and draws a distinction between the expressions 'is final' and 'shall be final'. My contention is that it is a matter of controversy whether those words do not imply a finality of decision. Where is the necessity of sticking to those words? In that view of the matter, I approached the Council for the exclusion of the words which I have already mentioned. As the Hon'ble Member in charge assures me that these suggestions will be considered at the time when the Act is to be redrafted, I have no other alternative than to withdraw the resolution."

The Resolution was then, by leave of the President, withdrawn.

The President.

ADJOURNMENT.

The President said :—

"I have been asked by His Excellency the President to explain the circumstances under which it has been decided to adjourn the Council till the 14th March. Under rule 13 of the Rules for the discussion of the Financial Statement it is required that the Council should not meet later than the 13th, and it was His Excellency's intention to have had the next meeting on the 13th. It was, however, pointed out by the Hon'ble Mahendralal Chandra Ray Bahadur of Burdwan that the 13th was not a convenient day as it followed a festival which was observed by fasting by Hindus. His Excellency has, therefore, been pleased to suspend rule 13 and to order that the Council should stand adjourned till the 14th."

The Council was then adjourned to Wednesday, the 14th March, 1918, at 11 A.M. at Government House, Calcutta.

*Questions and Answers.LIST OF BUSINESS—ITEM No. 1A.*OATH OF ALLEGIANCE.

The HON'BLE MR. W. E. CRUM made an oath of his allegiance to the Crown.

LIST OF BUSINESS—ITEM No. 1.

The following questions which had been starred were put and answered :—

By the Hon'ble BABU BHABENDRA CHANDRA RAY :

*1. Will the Government be pleased to state—

Grants-in-aid for girls' schools.

- (i) the number of applications, for grants-in-aid for girls' schools in the Presidency and Burdwan Divisions, which have been rejected during the current official year, and
- (ii) the reasons why these applications were rejected?

Answer by the Hon'ble MR. O'MALLEY :—

“(i) Five.

(ii) The schools in question were lower primary schools of recent origin and the policy of the Education Department in regard to girls' primary schools is that no application for a departmental grant-in-aid for any school is entertained unless it has existed and worked satisfactorily for not less than a year. In addition to this, the grant-in-aid allotment at the disposal of the Inspectress of Schools had been hypothecated for existing schools and it was therefore not possible for her to make any new grants-in-aid, except by withdrawing grants from some of the older schools.”

By the Hon'ble BABU BHABENDRA CHANDRA RAY :—

*2. (a) Will the Government be pleased to state—

Assistant
Inspectress of Zenana and Muhammadan
girls' schools.

- (i) whether there is an assistant inspectress of schools for zenana work and for Muhammadan education, and
- (ii) whether her work is limited to zenanas and Muhammadan girls' schools?

(b) If the reply to (ii) be in the negative, are the Government considering the desirability of directing that the said assistant inspectress should give her whole time to zenana work and to Muhammadan education?

(c) If the reply to (ii) be in the affirmative, will the Government be pleased to state the exact amount of travelling allowance drawn by the said assistant inspectress, as shown in the travelling bills, for visiting other than Muhammadan girls' schools and zenana work?

(d) Will the Government be pleased to state whether it is a fact that the officiating inspectress of schools, Presidency and Burdwan Divisions, often takes the said assistant inspectress to Hindu girls' schools with her? If so, why?

Questions and Answers.

(e) Will the Government be pleased to state whether it is a fact that the officiating inspectress of schools, Presidency and Burdwan Divisions, is often accompanied to Hindu girls' schools by the assistant inspectress in whose jurisdiction the school is, the assistant inspectress for zenana work and Muhammadan education and the local deputy inspector? If so, what are the reasons which make it necessary for the inspectress of schools to be accompanied by all these people on such occasions?

(f) Will the Government be pleased to state whether it is a fact that, although the officiating inspectress is often accompanied by the assistant inspectress for zenana work and Muhammadan education, the latter's name is not mentioned in the visitors books?

Answer by the Hon'ble MR. O'MALLEY :—

" (a) (i) Yes.

(ii) Yes, but occasionally she visits other schools under special orders.

(b) The Hon'ble Member is referred to the reply already given.

(c) The amount in the year 1916-17 was Rs. 42.

(d) No. It has occasionally happened that when the officiating inspectress and the assistant inspectress visit zenana agencies and maktabas together, the officiating inspectress has taken the opportunity of visiting a Hindu school either in the same place or on the way, and that the assistant inspectress has been present while the officiating inspectress inspected the school.

(e) The officiating inspectress often asks the assistant inspectress to accompany her to schools within the latter's jurisdiction. It is a common practice for subordinate officers to be present at the inspections of superior officers. When the schools are situated in out-of-the-way places, which have to be reached by a long bullock cart journey or by boat, a deputy inspector frequently escorts these ladies. The presence of an officer of this class helps to protect them from risk of molestation and insult.

(f) In view of the reply to paragraph (d) of this question, no separate reply on this point seems necessary."

Divisions.

*4. Will the Government be pleased to state the names of the model girls' schools which have not been visited by the Officiating Inspectress of Schools, Presidency and Burdwan Divisions, since her appointment as such, and the reasons why they have not been visited?

Questions and Answers.

Answer by the Hon'ble MR. O'MALLEY :—

"The schools in question are (1) the Sheakhala Model Girls' School in the district of Hooghly. (2) the Kantaldah Model Girls' School in the district of Howrah. (3) the Paraj Model Girls' School in the district of Burdwan.

Schools of this class being primary schools the Assistant Inspectresses are directly responsible for their inspection, and it is not necessary for the Inspectress to visit all of them. It is not therefore possible to assign any particular reason for the Offg. Inspectress not visiting these three schools."

"5. (a) Will the Government be pleased to state since when one Jyotish Chandra Ghosh has been in confinement and where he is at present confined?

The case of Jyotish Chandra Ghosh, a détenu.

(b) Will the Government be pleased to make a statement as to the present state of his bodily and mental health, and to lay on the table a copy of the detailed medical report of his present health, as also a copy of his continuous medical history sheet since he has been placed under medical observation?

(c) For what period or periods has he been kept confined in a solitary cell since his arrest in January, 1917?

(d) What was his weight at or about the time of his arrest in January, 1917? What is his present weight?

(e) Have the Government any proposal before them to remove him to Calcutta or to some other place where the best medical aid is available?

Answer by the Hon'ble MR. KERR :—

"(a) The Hon'ble Member is referred to the answer given to unstarred question No. LXVIII at the meeting of Council held on the 22nd January, 1918.

(b) The Hon'ble Member is referred to the answer given to unstarred question No. LXIX at the meeting of Council held on the 22nd January, 1918. Government are not prepared to lay the medical report or continuous history sheet on the table and this course would in any case require the sanction of the Government of India.

(c) The Hon'ble Member is referred to the answer given to unstarred question No. LXXI at the meeting of Council held on the 22nd January, 1918.

(d) His present weight is 119 pounds; his weight on admission to the Rajshahi Jail on 4th February, 1917 was 154 pounds.

(e) The mother of Jyotish Ghosh has petitioned that he should be removed to a Calcutta Hospital, but Government is advised that specially trained nursing and attendance is essential to his recovery, and that this can best be provided in the Lunatic Asylum at Berhampore where he now is."

Muhammadan
employés in the Forest
Department.

II. (a) Are the Government aware that the number of Muhammadan employés in the Forest Department, in the Bengal Presidency, are considerably less than those in other Provinces?

(b) If so, are the Government considering the desirability of appointing Muhammadans in that Department in the same proportion as in the case of appointments made in other Departments of this Government?

Answer by the Hon'ble MR. KERR :—

"(a) It is understood that the Hon'ble Member refers to ministerial officers, foresters and forest guards. This Government has no information regarding the number of Muhammadans appointed to these posts in other provinces.

In Bengal the number of Muhammadans employed in these capacities is as follows :—

	Muhammadans.	Non-Muhammadans.
(1) Ministerial Officers	4	36
(2) Foresters	8	31
(3) Forest guards	29	307

(b) The general orders issued by the Government of Bengal as regards ministerial officers prescribe a standard of 1/3 Muhammadans in the districts in which there are Government forests other than Darjeeling. These orders apply to forest establishments. No special orders have been issued regarding the appointment of Muhammadans to the posts of forester and forest guard, but the Conservator has reported that measures have been taken to increase the number of Muhammadans, and Government do not consider it necessary to prescribe a specific proportion of Muhammadans for these posts."

III. (a) Is it a fact that the Chairman of the Faridpur District Board submitted an opinion on behalf of the Board to Government, without laying the same before the members of the Board at a meeting and that he placed it before them after it was submitted? Faridpur District Board and its Chairman.

(b) Is it a fact, that when Babu Kristo Das Roy, a member of the Board, protested against the procedure of submitting opinions by the Chairman without consulting the Board, he was ruled out of order?

Answer by the Hon'ble Mr. O'MALLEY :—

" (a) The letter of the Legislative Secretary asking for the opinion of the District Board on the Bill for the prevention of smoking by juveniles was received in the District Board office on or about 16th December, 1917, with instructions that the opinion of the Board should be submitted by 5th January, 1918. The District Board office was closed from 23rd December to 1st January, while the Board's meetings being held on the first Saturday of the month, there was no meeting due till 5th January. In these circumstances, the Chairman obtained an opinion from a prominent non-official member of the Board, which he submitted on behalf of the Board. This opinion was subsequently laid before the Board and was approved by it with one exception regarding a point of detail.

(b) When the opinion was laid before the Board, Babu Kristo Das Roy expressed disapproval of the action taken and proposed moving a resolution to that effect. He was informed that in that case he would be ruled out of order."

XXI. Will the Government be pleased to make a statement showing, district by district, details of rivers, waterways and khals which, in the interests of sanitation, internal communication and trade, need immediate attention and improvement? Improvement of waterways.

Answer by the Hon'ble MR. COWLEY :—

" It is not possible in view of the geographical nature of this province, for this Government to give a complete and accurate reply to this question without a special, long and costly inquiry.

Improvements are made in different places from time to time, as imperfections are brought to notice and as the funds available permit.

The primary object of Government in the maintenance of rivers, waterways and khals is to afford the most direct and safe means of internal communication for purposes of trade. It follows that, where such rivers, waterways and khals are efficiently maintained the interests of sanitation are at the same time safeguarded."

Answer by the Hon'ble Mr. KERR :—

"(a) and (b) A copy of the form of " permit for recreation ground on the Calcutta Maidan " has been placed on the library table. The use of the ground on Sundays is governed by Rule IV of the permit. Permits in this form have been issued to all clubs concerned with the exception of the Calcutta Cricket Club, which was using its ground with the consent of Government before the system of formal permits was introduced.

XXV. (a) Is there any proposal before the Government for the removal of the Dacca School of Engineering to a new site?

(b) If so, will the Government be pleased to explain any scheme that may have been drawn up in that connection?

Answer by the Hon'ble Mr. O'MALLEY :—

"(a) and (b) The Hon'ble Member is referred to paragraph 4 of Chapter XX of the Report of the Dacca University Commission, from which he will observe that the removal of the Dacca School of Engineering from its present site was recommended in connection with the Dacca University scheme. (b) Is it a fact that the inquiry which resulted in the aforesaid memorandum was practically confined to Western Bengal?

* Questions and Answers.

(c) Were " Specific suggestions " referred to in the reply to my aforesaid question, received in regard to Western Bengal prior to the said inquiry?

(d) If so, what were these suggestions and from whom did they emanate?

(e) Was the purport of the said memorandum that suitable brine was not obtainable in the whole of Bengal?

(f) If so, are the Government considering the desirability of removing this impression from the mind of the Government of India in regard to the brine obtainable on the Chittagong side?

(g) Has the attention of Government been drawn to the answer given by Sir George Barnes to question No. 26 of the Imperial Council meeting, dated the 6th February, 1918, stating that the Government of India are not aware whether the Government of Bengal now consider that the manufacture of salt on the Chittagong side of the Bay of Bengal is possible?

(h) If so, are the Government considering the desirability of sending a communication to the Government of India on the subject?

Answer by the Hon'ble Mr. DONALD :—

(a) " The letter of the Government of India merely asked for an expression of the views of the Government of Bengal on a proposal for reviving the manufacture of salt in Bengal, primarily by the vacuum process, a proposal which was suggested by a retired officer in a communication which formed an enclosure to that letter. Government are unable to lay the correspondence on the table.

(b) No special inquiry was made. The question was reported on by Mr. Platts, Deputy Commissioner of Excise and Salt, who, as Assistant Commissioner of Salt, was fully conversant with all the conditions in Bengal generally, and his report was with respect to the whole of Bengal.

(c) and (d) No. No specific suggestions were received in regard to any particular part of Bengal at that time.

(e) The memorandum was intended to show that the establishment of the salt industry in Bengal on a sound commercial basis did not appear probable owing to the difficulty in securing a combination of suitable brine, sufficient fuel, ready access to markets, easy transport, and suitable climatic conditions, in any area in Bengal.

(f) The Government of Bengal are not aware that the Government of India are under any misapprehension as to the position, but it will be brought to their notice in connection with the reference following the resolution passed by the Council on the 22nd January, 1918.

(d) Is it a fact that these officers have to wait for four or five years before confirmation and that invariably they are not confirmed till they reach the age of 33 or 34 years?

Answer by the Hon'ble MR. KERR :—

"(a) A Statement† containing the particulars wanted by the Hon'ble Member is laid on the table.

(b) No.

(c) Is it a fact that the total number of munsifs is 245 and that the average number of vacancies in consequence of retirement has been reduced to about 9 or 10 a year, since the creation of a separate cadre for Bihar?

(d) Are the Government aware of the grievance that is felt by the members of this branch of the service that they can only expect to become Sub-Judges at or about the age of 25 or 33 if the present state of things continues?

Answer by the Hon'ble Mr. KEAR :—

"(a) The average number of vacancies from all causes since the separation of the cadres in 1912 is about 12.

(b) In 1915, 10; in 1916, 15; in 1917, 11.

(c) The total number of munsifs is 245, to which should be added 8 additional munsifs who are practically permanent. The average number of annual vacancies due to retirement alone during the last six years is 9.

(d) A complaint of this nature has been made, but conditions have improved in recent years. The ages of officers appointed in the early part of 1916 to be Subordinate Judges substantive pro tempore ranged from 50 to 54 years. The ages of officers subsequently so appointed have been between 40 and 49 years. The munsifs who on the 1st January last were officiating as Subordinate Judges were aged between 44 and 48 years."

Transfers of Judicial officers.

(b) Are the Government considering the possibility of holding the time of the annual examinations at a later date, say in January or February, or of the sessions in schools being held during the Christmas holidays?

Questions and Answers.

Answer by the Hon'ble MR. KERR :—

" (a) It is the case that from a few of the officers transferred during the Puja vacation, applications for postponement of transfer on the grounds suggested have been received by the High Court. These were considered and disposed of on their merits. There is, however, no reason to believe that Judicial officers in general find it difficult to make suitable arrangements.

(b) Yes.

(c) In connection with the renewal of arms licenses for 1918, it was reported by the police that a serious riot had occurred in September in connection with the establishment of a hat by Babu Ashutosh Roy. The Superintendent of Police recommended that the question of renewing the arms license of Babu Ashutosh Roy should be held in abeyance pending the decision of the Court in the resulting prosecution, in which 27 persons who were alleged to have acted on behalf of Babu Ashutosh Roy were accused. The District Magistrate accepted this recommendation.

(d) Inquiries have been made by the Commissioner, who reports that Babu Ashutosh Roy asked him to set aside the order of the District Magistrate. The Commissioner considered the order a proper one, and declined to direct the District Magistrate to pass a final order before the decision of the criminal case. Government see no reason for intervening in the matter."

*Revised Financial Statement : Resolution.Mr. Provash Chunder Mitter.LIST OF BUSINESS—ITEM No. 3.*THE REVISED FINANCIAL STATEMENT.

The Hon'ble SIR HENRY WHEELER presented the Revised Financial Statement for Bengal for 1918-19.*

RESOLUTIONS.APPENDIX TO THE LIST OF BUSINESS—ITEM No. 1.

The Hon'ble MR. PROVASH CHUNDER MITTER moved the following resolution :—

• This Council recommends to the Governor in Council that—

- (a) a sum of one lakh be provided and a staff be temporarily deputed for a period of one year for organizing village union societies in villages with a population of over 2,000 ;
- (b) this sum be met from the provision of Rs. 6,64,000 allotted for construction of buildings in connection with the partition of the district of Midnapore.

He said :—

“ My Lord, about the importance of mapping out the province into a number of village union societies, I believe the Government and the public are of one mind. It is a question of the utmost importance and whether it be in the region of Local Self-Government or of Provincial Self-Government that the civic life of the province should be properly organized. Some time ago I put a question inquiring as to the rate of progress we have made in the past and the time it will take to map out the province into village union societies and the answer given was that it would take 104 years. If it takes 104 years, then, for all practical purposes, it is of no use to the province or to the Government or to the public. I am quite aware that Government is anxious to go on with the work of formation of village union societies as speedily as it can, and from certain items in the Budget—I mean the item for the provision of Sub-Deputy Collectors—I rather think that the Government desires to take up the question in right earnest, and although the public and the Government are agreed on the question, it is perhaps just as well if we examine the situation as shortly as possible ; I have handed over a certain table to some of the Hon'ble Members—I am sorry I had not a sufficient number to be distributed to all members—and they will find from that table that the total population of the province, as we all know, is about 45 millions. Out of that only 3 millions live within municipal areas. With regard to the remaining 42 millions the problem is how they are to be brought within the amenities of organized civic life. It is a very important question and it is hardly necessary for me to point out that 42 millions out of 45 form the bulk of our population. Now, this 42 millions of our population live in the rural area. The total rural area is about 67,000 square miles out of which 45,000 square miles is the total cropped area and 10,500 square miles is the total forest area. So that if we take the total of the cropped area and the total of the forest area we find that the total of the inhabited area is about 11,500 square miles. That area, of course, is scattered over the whole province. Now, the introduction of organized civic life into this area of 11,500 square miles being the problem, the question arises as to how to solve it. From a reading of the District

Resolutions.Hon'ble Mr. Provash Chunder Mitter.

Administration Committee's report and from certain conversation I had with some of the officers, I believe that the view which finds favour now is to map out each district into geographical areas and form village union committees in such areas. My point is that, if we proceed on this line we are sure to meet with various difficulties. Each of these geographical areas will be about 8 to 10 square miles according to the District Administration Committee's report. In various places such areas are densely populated and in others the population is thin. In some places the density is something like 2,000 in the square mile and it, therefore, stands to reason that such places are more important both as regards men and money than areas where other population is thin. For that reason I suggest that we should start with villages with a population of over 2,000. I have handed over another table to some of my hon'ble friends, the figures shown therein will perhaps be found useful. I have already mentioned the total of the inhabited area and in that area some of the villages and towns with a population of more than twenty thousand are within municipal administration. With regard to villages and towns with a population of ten to twenty thousand the total number is 48 and the total population is 674,185. Out of this 48, only 40 are within municipal administration or cantonment limits, and 8 are non-municipal towns. In the second group will be found towns and villages with a population of five to ten thousand. Their number is 162 with a total population of 1,084,422. Out of these 162 towns and villages, only 34 are within municipal administration, so that the total number of non-municipal towns and villages in the second group comes up to 128 with a population of 833,007. The Council will observe that the total population excluded from municipal areas are comparatively small. The next group which I propose to take up comprises villages and towns with a population of from two to five thousand. Their total number is 1,758 with a population of 4,858,299. Out of these 1,758 towns and villages, 17 only are within some sort of municipal or cantonment administration. So that the total number of non-municipal towns and villages in this group is 1,741 with a population of 4,807,163. Then, in the next group will be found towns and villages with a population of from one to two thousand. Their number is 6,134 with a total population of 8,278,424. And out of these 6,134 towns and villages not one is under municipal administration. After an examination of these figures we find that the number of non-municipal towns and villages with a population of more than two thousand is 1,877 with a total population of 5,51,870 and the number of non-municipal towns and villages with a population of more than one thousand is 8,011 with a total population of 13,430,294. So that roughly speaking about one-third of the population of the rural area is under no municipal administration. So my proposition is this: If we start with towns and villages with a population of over two thousand which have no municipal administration then it is not at all difficult to assume that perhaps, by local taxation, about which there will be powers under the proposed new Act, it will not be difficult to raise some five or six hundred rupees from two or three thousand people. The question of taxation is an important one. It will certainly be necessary to raise taxation higher later on. But as a beginning the presumption may be made that a particular place with a population of two or three thousand is likely to yield a better amount as its inhabitants are likely to pay better and to interest themselves in public affairs more than, say, a village with a population of 250. If we proceed at our past rate it will take 104 years to bring all villages under municipal administration, following the geographical scheme. But if we follow in the line set out in my resolution it will be quite possible, I expect, that most of our villages will be organized into unions within a comparatively short time and will give more satisfactory results than the geographical scheme. It may be said that there is no necessity to get a staff temporarily for this purpose. I will speak to the Council presently on this point. I am aware that there is the District Magistrate who is anxious to do his best. There is also the District Board. Now, let us first take the case of the District Magistrate. He is a person of multifarious duties. He is the head of several branches of district administration and however anxious he may be to develop the village unions, he cannot do so without an adequate staff, as his time is more than fully employed. At any rate the fact remains and our past experiences also shows and shows, conclusively, that from 1913 to 1918 we have progressed at such a bad rate that by leaving matters in the hands of the District Magistrate, it will take 104 years to develop village unions; but according to my proposal it will only take about 20 or 25 years at the most. What I suggest is that a staff of this kind, namely, a senior civilian with four or five Deputy Collectors in charge of each division, assisted by the necessary number of subordinate officers, like Sub-Deputy Collectors, may begin work to organize unions in villages with a population of over 2,000, whose number, as I have already said, is 1,877. If you depute a senior civilian who is conversant with local conditions, who knows the people and can talk to them, and if he is well assisted with a number of subordinate officers who have specialized themselves in this kind of work, I venture to think that the work will be more satisfactorily and far more speedily, done. There is one other point. It may be said why not leave the work to the District Board. My objection to this is that a District Board has only one well-paid official and he is the Engineer. And with all due respect for his calling, I must say that by training he is not quite the fittest man to do organizing work of this nature. If I am right then it must be some other type of man and I think officers of the type I have suggested will be the best agency to carry on this kind of work.

I have suggested that the amount necessary may be taken from the provision allotted for construction of buildings in connection with the partition of the district of Midnapore. That requires a word of explanation. There are two partition schemes—Midnapore and Mymensingh. I am aware that these schemes have been fully discussed, local opinions have been consulted and then they have been accepted. I do not want to go behind that. But what I do say is this: that since August last and also since the policy inaugurated by Your Excellency's Government about the appointment of non-official Chairmen to District Boards and regard being had to the principles of likely reforms in future, whatever these reforms may be, it may be necessary that our ideas of the partition of districts may have to be revised. The districts may perhaps have to be in smaller units or it may be possible that some departments may have to be worked separately. So my point is this—I do not oppose the question of acquisition of land in the case of construction of buildings for you get the equivalent of money in land—but, as in the Mymensingh prison, later on, say after 4 or 5 years, it may be necessary in the light of new experience to alter our ideas about the selection of the site of the district town and the buildings already constructed may prove to be of no use then. Our experiences at Dacca and other places show how easily large sums of money may be thrown away. The partition of Midnapore will not be completed within a year in any case, and a further delay of one year, without disturbing the scheme of partition, will show Your Excellency's Government what the future will be. That being so, I submit that if the money be spent on the village union scheme it will be spent for a far more necessary purpose, however important the partition of districts may be.

The Hon'ble BABU SURENDRA NATH RAY said:—

"I support with a whole-heart this resolution of my friend Babu Provash Chunder Mitter. Your Lordship is probably aware of the fact that the Local Self-Government Act was passed in the year 1885 during the administration of His Excellency Lord Ripon as Viceroy and Sir Rivers Thompson as Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal. In the year 1883 in anticipation of the passing of the Local Self-Government Act a special officer was deputed by Government to frame schemes for the formation of village committees which the Government thought would have to be introduced as soon as the Local Self-Government Act was passed, and Mr. Westmacott, the special officer appointed to frame this scheme, was ready with a scheme of 180 union committees in the year 1885 to be introduced in seven of the most enlightened subdivisions of the Presidency, Burdwan and Dacca divisions. But as a matter of fact no attempt was made to give effect to this scheme and we find that in the year 1913 only 61 union committees were formed in Bengal though the Government were ready with a scheme to introduce 180 union committees so far back as the year 1885, and though a special officer was appointed to give effect to the recommendation of Government, it appears that nothing was done by Government for 30 years. In answer to a question of my friend, the Hon'ble Babu Bhabendra Chandra Ray, at the last meeting of Council, Your Excellency's Government was pleased to give a reply to the effect that during the years 1916-17 Government sanctioned the formation of 150 union committees but that as a matter of fact 107 union committees have been created. That shows that there were about 35 union committees created each year. My hon'ble friend, Mr. Mitter, has told Your Excellency's Government to-day that it is necessary to create at least 1,800 union committees throughout Bengal. So at the rate of 35 union committees per year it would take, I think, more than 50 years to create the necessary number of union committees throughout Bengal. But the rate at which union committees have recently been created is a much better rate than that at which union committees were created for the first 30 years, namely, from the year 1885 to 1913, that is, at the rate of two union committees per annum, as only 61 union committees were created in the course of 30 years. It would have taken then, I think, about 900 years for the formation of all these union committees. That these union committees are absolutely necessary, was admitted by Sir Alexander Mackenzie when he was Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal. During his administration there was a water famine in Bengal and he found that there was no organization in Bengal for excavating tanks and giving relief to the poor people. I know Government is fully alive to the necessity of creating these union committees. Your Lordship's predecessor in office, Lord Carmichael, said as follows :—

Resolutions.Hon'ble Sir S. P. Sinha.

'You wish to ensure the money being spent to the best advantage of those who want to help. It seems to me that there is only one way of ensuring this to entrust the choice of the work to the villagers and leave them as far as possible to carry it out under your supervision. This is the essence of Local Self-Government and as the principle of circle system so strongly advocated in the District Administration Committee's report a system, which, though I may not see it during my term of office, will, I hope, one day spread itself all over Bengal.'

I think the best way to give effect to this scheme would be to appoint a number of officers to be in sole charge of all these union committees and see that they are created as early as possible."

The Hon'ble Sir S. P. SINHA said :—

"My Lord, I think both the Hon'ble Members who have already spoken on this resolution have cordially acknowledged the fact that the Government is convinced of the desirability of the formation of union societies and of village committees throughout the whole province and that steps have been taken, and are being taken, as quickly as possible under the circumstances, for that purpose. But I venture to think that both my hon'ble friends were unduly pessimistic as regards the rate of progress in the past. The figures of existing union societies and the areas in which they have come into existence are as follows :—

Resolutions.Hon'ble Sir S. P. Sinha.

At the end of 1913-14 there were	66.
" 1914-15 "	76.
" 1915-16 "	84.
" 1916-17 "	157.

So during that year there were 72 union societies formed in the province and at the present time there are 250 sanctioned. and we have every hope that they will be formed by the end of the year ; so that though the rate of progress up to 1913 was slow, as the Hon'ble Babu Surendra Nath Ray has pointed out, and though even after 1913 the rate of progress left much to be desired, I think, it cannot be said with justice that from 1915 there has not been, if I may say so, a spurt put on ; and even assuming that there is no further acceleration in the rate now in progress, we hope to have the whole province mapped out within a fairly reasonable time. But I do not for a moment suggest that we intend to adhere to the present rate ; we hope to make it much quicker. The difference between us is, firstly, as to the rate and, secondly, as to the method by which this progress is to be given effect to. As to the rate, I have already given the figures which, I trust, will convince the Council that recently the rate has been much accelerated. As regards the method, my friend, the Hon'ble Mr. Mitter, considers that it would be quicker to do it not according to the geographical limits of districts and divisions, but to take larger and more populous villages and form unions in them before other villages are taken in hand. Now, there is a considerable difference of opinion as to whether that would be the quicker method or not ; but I would ask my hon'ble friends to consider this fact, which, I think, they have ignored, namely, that within a little more than a fortnight from to-day, viz., on the 4th April, I hope to be able to introduce the Village Self-Government Bill which contemplates the formation of village committees throughout the province and defines the functions which will belong to them and the procedure by which they are to be formed. Therefore, I venture to think that it would be premature to consider the question of the staff or the method by which this is to be given effect to, until the Council has discussed the nature and functions of these union committees which we propose to form. On the 4th April, we propose to introduce the Bill, subject only to the proviso that the Secretary of State does not veto the proposed Bill in the meantime. I would, therefore, ask the Council to defer the consideration of this question until the Village Self-Government Bill is before it. In the meantime, let me tell the Council as to what we have been doing in the matter of increased staff. There are at present 40 Sub-Deputy Collectors employed as circle officers, one of whose principal duties is to assist in the formation of these union societies, and I may claim for them fairly that their work during the last two years has been satisfactory, having regard to the numbers I have already quoted. We have already applied for sanction to have a staff of 238, in place of the 40, whom we now employ—238 will include a leave reserve of 38. It is obvious that we have to wait for sanction before we can employ them and even when we do get sanction, we do not expect to be able to employ them all at once, but gradually as the work progresses and as funds permit. That is the ideal we have set before ourselves as to increased staff, for the purpose of carrying out, amongst others, the mapping out of the whole province into union societies, so far as regards the rate of progress.

As regards the method, as I have said, there is room for considerable difference of opinion, and my friend thinks that by proceeding district by district we should not get on quickly. We, on the other hand, think it is better to proceed systematically and district by district. Let me point out to the

Resolutions.Mr. Provash Chunder Mitter.

Council that it is not so difficult, as my friend imagines, to do it district by district. We have done it already with regard to one of the largest districts, namely, Dacca; we have done it almost entirely with regard to another fairly large district—Rangpur. There is no reason why, with the same method and with increased staff, we should not be able, within, neither 104 years as the Hon'ble Mr. Mitter thinks, nor 50 years as the Hon'ble Babu Surendra Nath Ray thinks, but, within a fairly reasonable time to proceed systematically and divide the whole of the province into village committees as proposed by our Bill. But the reason why, even if we get sanction for 238 officers, we cannot do it all at once is this: we cannot possibly spare 238 officers out of the general staff that we have and it is not easy to get officers on the spur of the moment to do this particular special work which requires a certain amount of discretion and a great deal of knowledge with regard to the areas involved. Therefore, I wish to point out three things to this Council: firstly, that we should await until we know exactly the nature and functions of the village committees that are going to be constituted under the Act; secondly, that it would be better to proceed systematically and scientifically in the way we have been doing, district by district, and not to take a number of villages scattered all over the province, the difficulties will only be increased if we have subsequently to revise the areas; and, thirdly, we have already applied for a large increase in the staff, and we hope, with increased staff, to accelerate the rate of progress very much further. There is no reason to apprehend that it will be an unreasonably long time before we can initiate the system in its entirety. For these reasons, I would ask the Council not to accept this resolution, but I can assure my friend that the matter is receiving the most earnest and serious consideration of Government and we are anxious to get on as quickly as we can."

The Hon'ble MR. PROVASH CHUNDER MITTER said:—

"My Lord, if my hon'ble friend's assurance about the formation of village union committees at an early date really carried conviction with me I would have hesitatingly withdrawn this resolution. But, from the figures which my hon'ble friend has himself quoted, namely, that in the year 1917-18 the total number of village committees formed was 156 and in the current year the total number of village union committees which he expects will be formed will be 250, I would ask the Council to examine what time it is likely to take. I admit at once that the position is far better than the previous estimate 104 years; but taking at the rate of 156 the position is this: the total area is 67,000 square miles and the average area is 10 square miles; therefore, we want about 7,000 village union committees according to the present idea of Government, that is, at the rate of 156 a year—that was the rate of last year—it would take about 42 or 43 years. Now, at the rate of 250 a year—the rate promised to us—it will take about 26 or 27 years. I fully appreciate the difficulties of the Government in this matter, yet if I press for this resolution, I do it in the hope that energetic action in this direction will ultimately minimize many of the difficulties that confront the Government at the present moment. Now, my Lord, whether the period be 26 to 27 years or 42 to 43 years is not at all a speedy solution.

The next point of my hon'ble friend is this: that the Village Self-Government Bill will be introduced in April next, subject of course to the sanction of the Secretary of State. We all know what delay takes place before the necessary sanction is obtained and what further delay often takes place before a Bill is passed into law and in bringing the Act into working order, but every moment is precious, and if in the meantime the Government will have formed a large number of village union committees the Act will come into force under improved conditions, whereas delay will add to the difficulties of the situation. Therefore, however, cogent the reason may be that any big scheme ought to wait till the Act is passed, it is no reason why an attempt should not be made to form societies in respect of about one-eighth or one-sixteenth of the population in rural areas.

The next point of my hon'ble friend is that an improved staff is expected and that 40 Sub-Deputy Collectors have been working. I thank my hon'ble friend for this information; but these 40 Sub-Deputy Collectors have succeeded only in creating 156 village union societies in the year 1916-17. In the previous year, only 84 village union societies were created; there must be some reason for this apparent inadequate result,—for 40 Sub-Deputy Collectors to succeed in creating either 156 in one year or about 240 in the course of two years is certainly not a very good result. It is for this reason that I ask the Government, with all the earnestness that I can command, to examine their methods of creation of village union committees with those suggested by me. My friend has said that the method of proceeding district by district is the most systematic method. I quite admit it—I have not suggested that we should not proceed district by district. What I have suggested is that in each district there are a large number of populous areas—comparatively more populous than other areas. Take up the comparatively more populous areas and try the experiment at any rate in some of such areas and compare the results with your own method. That is all I ask for because my resolution, even if accepted, will mean the formation of union committees in something like one-eighth or one-tenth of the total area. I do not claim that my suggestion is necessarily better than the method followed by the Government. I do believe there is no school as the school of experience and if the past results have not been very satisfactory do not follow that method, but give the other method a trial as well and then form your own judgment. I am glad to hear that in the districts of Dacca and Rangpur there have been gratifying results. Next to Howrah, which I believe has a density of about 1,850 to the square mile, Dacca is one of the most populous of districts. It is a district where a large number of bhadralogs still reside in the villages. It is also a district to which much attention has been paid by the District Administration Committee as also by the Government. Well, if the results have been gratifying in Dacca it is certainly a matter for congratulation, but that is no reason why the other experiment should not be tried, say in Howrah. Now, as regards Rangpur. I would venture to make a shrewd guess. I may be wrong, but I know that the Collector of the district is enthusiastic in the matter and it may be that his enthusiasm had something to do with this satisfactory result. The limited success in Dacca and Rangpur ought not to stand in the way of a trial of my suggestion in other districts or in different localities of the said two districts.

My Lord, my hon'ble friend has asked us to wait till the Bill is introduced. May I suggest that the consideration of this resolution be postponed for say six months for the reason that after the Bill is passed we may have an opportunity of discussing this matter. I do not wish to press the resolution if that assurance is given."

The Hon'ble SIR S. P. SINHA said:—

"I can give the assurance if that assurance will satisfy the Hon'ble Member that this matter will receive the continuous attention of Government both before the Bill is passed and after the Bill is passed and any suggestions from my hon'ble friend in the meantime will receive our earnest consideration."

Resolutions.

Mr. Provash Chunder Mitter; Rai Mahendra Chandra Mitra Bahadur.

The Hon'ble MR. PROVASH CHUNDER MITTER said :—

"In that view, I do not want to press this resolution."

The resolution was then, by leave of the President, withdrawn.

APPENDIX TO THE LIST OF BUSINESS—ITEM No. II.

The Hon'ble RAI MAHENDRA CHANDRA MITRA BAHADUR moved the following resolution :—

This Council recommends to the Governor in Council that—

- (a) provision be made in the Budget for the appointment of 17 District agricultural officers for each of the districts in the Presidency of Bengal, where there is none at present, and
- (b) the necessary amount be taken out of the grant provided in the Budget for the acquisition of land in connection with the partition of Mymensingh.

He said :—

"My Lord, in spite of a dislocation in business and financial arrangements caused by the war which has been embarrassing for some time past to the export trade of our country, it is a matter of great satisfaction to note that the Hon'ble Sir William Meyer has rightly observed in his financial statement for 1918-19 that 'our satisfactory revenue position is largely due to favourable agricultural conditions.' Again he remarks that 'the very favourable agricultural conditions which India has enjoyed have more than counterbalanced the prima facie unfavourable factors' referred to in the Budget. Other heads of revenue under Posts and Telegraphs and Excise which show material increase are owing to favourable agricultural conditions. Their results are reflected in the still further advance of railway earnings.

The agricultural industry is, undoubtedly, the most important in our country, employing by far the largest number of our countrymen, and providing food supplies and raw products, such as cotton, jute and indigo, that are of great importance in times of peace as well as in time of war. It is surprising that our benign Government are not doing much for the agriculture to increase the productivity of the land and also to increase the income of the cultivators who are now not in prosperous condition. It has been authoritatively stated recently in the columns of the Englishman that 'it is not too much to say that in the war that is now being waged Germany has derived incalculable assistance from the scientific development of her agricultural resources. The agricultural chemist has so improved land of poor quality like sand-dunes and moor-land, by treating it with potash or substances containing phosphoric acid, and by planting it with crops that gather nitrogen from the air, that in 20 years Germany has been able to increase the yield of potatoes in tons per acre by 58 per cent. and wheat by 60 per cent. But this is the common experience of countries that run agriculture on business lines, and the sooner the Government formulates an agricultural policy and carries it out the better will it be for the staple industry of India.'

Mr. Smith, Deputy Director of Agriculture, Bengal, rightly makes the following remarks in the Annual Reports of Expert officers of the Department of Agriculture, Bengal, for the year ending 30th June, 1917, page 5 :— 'From the work that has been done by each Association in the past, I am convinced that when an agricultural officer has been appointed to each district, each Association will become the centre for real work.' I understand from the Annual Report of the Agricultural Department that district agricultural officers have now been appointed to the following districts, viz., Dacca, Mymensingh, Faridpur, Bakarganj, Tippera, Noakhali, Pabna, Malda,

Resolutions.Rai Mahendra Chandra Mitra Bahadur

Rangpur, Bogra, 24-Parganas, Bankura, Birbhum and Midnapore. It is a matter of great surprise that the rest of the districts in our province is still without district agricultural officers. I find in the Civil Budget estimate that provision has been made for three such officers, but I fail to understand why provision has not been made for the rest of the districts for the development and proper supervision of this most important industry.

My Lord, I am not prepared to touch on the desirability or otherwise of partitioning the district of Mymensingh. But I am in a position to show by a comparative statement of the position of other districts.

My Lord, in 1899, the proposal for the partition of the district of Mymensingh was revived in connection with Mr. Savage's enquiry on the notoriety of the district for outrages on women. The proposal was, however, rejected by Government on grounds of expense.

At the present day there is no reason to suppose that outrages on women are more common here than in other districts.

'The great majority of petty criminal cases have their origin in land disputes, although they often appear under the guise of rescuing cattle from the pounds or petty assaults' (vide page 121, District Gazetteer of Mymensingh by Mr. F. A. Sachse, I.C.S., Edition of 1917).

I quote the following figures from the Report of the District Administration Committee, page 39, for consideration of Your Excellency's Council and the tabular statements will speak for themselves :—

Offences reported to Courts—

Mymensingh	20,239
24-Parganas	39,953

Cases tried by Magistrates—

				Original.	Appeals and revisions
Mymensingh	11,894	365
24-Parganas	34,281	268

	Municipalities.			During 1915-16. Rs.
Mymensingh	8	1,64,357
24-Parganas	23	11,57,561

My Lord, from the above statement, it appears that there is no immediate necessity for partitioning this district.

Resolutions.Mr. Beatson Bell ; Mr. Kerr.

My Lord, it may be necessary to have partition of districts for administrative convenience, but it is a matter for the consideration of the Council whether such kind of work may not be postponed and due attention given to the encouragement of agricultural pursuits. With these observations I commend this resolution to the acceptance of this Council."

The Hon'ble MR. BEATSON BELL said :—

"My Lord, I do not propose to follow the Hon'ble Member into a discussion regarding the desirability or otherwise of partitioning the district of Mymensingh and the desirability or otherwise of acquiring land for that purpose in the coming year. We have debated the question of the partition of Mymensingh very fully on previous occasions in this house and we are going to debate it again in Resolution No. XX, when it will be examined as a straight issue. I propose, therefore, in connection with the present resolution to confine myself to the subject mentioned therein, namely, the appointment of district agricultural officers. I can assure the hon'ble gentleman and the house that we are already endeavouring to provide a district agricultural officer for every district in the province. We sent up a scheme to this effect as long ago as 1911, during the time of the Eastern Bengal and Assam Government. The Government of India thoroughly appreciated the scheme and they asked us to introduce it, in the first instance, on an experimental basis. We did so; and we gradually appointed nine district agricultural officers. Quite recently, in October 1917, we wrote up to the Government of India and told them what we had done and assured them that the experiment was getting on in a most satisfactory manner. We, therefore, asked them to sanction the introduction of district agricultural officers in every district throughout the province. We assured them that, for two reasons, we did not intend to make all the appointments in one year. In the first place it was necessary to look about and to get officers of the right stamp before appointing them. In the next place, it was an important part of the scheme to establish district farms where the officers could test, agricultural improvements before recommending them to the raiyats. The Government of India have sanctioned our scheme and have sanctioned our proposals for introducing it. As regards the cadre and its expansion, I do not think that the Hon'ble Member has got the right figures. At present, there are 26 districts; we have already appointed 12 district officers and we intend to appoint five more in the coming year. That will bring the number up to 17, and there will then remain only nine districts. We hope that in the course of a few years (say 5 or 6 years at the most) these nine districts will be provided with the officers whom the Hon'ble Member desires and whom this Government desires as much as he does. I hope that, in these circumstances, he will not press his resolution, but will work along with Government to bring about our common object."

The Hon'ble MR. KERR said :—

"My Lord, I do not propose to go into the general question of the partition of the district of Mymensingh, because, as the Hon'ble Mr. Beatson Bell has remarked, this matter will come up at a later stage of this debate. But as the Hon'ble Rai Mahendra Chandra Mitra Bahadur has given the Council certain statistics, it is desirable that I should supplement them. Of course, it is well known that statistics in skilful hands can be made to prove anything; but the statistics which I shall give will, I think, show in a conclusive manner, how extremely urgent the necessity of partitioning

Resolutions.Rai Mahendra Chandra Mitra Bahadur.

Mymensingh really is. The area of the Mymensingh district is 6,249 square miles. It is far the largest district in this part of India. Its population in 1911 was 4½ millions; it is now probably over 5 millions. In 1873, the area of the district was the same, but the population was less than 2½ millions. In other words, the population has doubled during the last 45 years. The work of the district officer has far more than doubled. The most striking proof of this is perhaps that in 1873 the number of pleaders in the district was only 52. There are now more than 400 pleaders and barristers in the district, besides 384 mukhtars and 96 revenue agents. Most of these gentlemen, I hope, are earning a comfortable living, and it can be imagined what these figures mean in the way of increase of work in the courts and public offices of the district. This increase is reflected in the increase of staff. I will not weary the Council by giving the detailed figures, but in every department, civil, revenue and criminal, the staff has more than doubled since 1870. As the District Administration Committee remarked, either the work of the district officer at Mymensingh, in 1873, was ridiculously light, or it is now intolerably heavy. We know from experience that the work of a district containing a population of 2½ millions is by no means light. The work is quite as much as any district officer can cope with. The only possible conclusion, therefore, is that for many years past the district officer of Mymensingh has been intolerably overworked, or rather that the burden which has been placed upon him is more than he can discharge. As the Hon'ble Member has shown, there are other districts in this Presidency in which things are nearly as bad, but we are not concerned with them at present. The question before the Council is whether the partition of Mymensingh is necessary or not, and to this, I think, there can only be one answer."

The Hon'ble RAI MAHENDRA CHANDRA MITRA BAHADUR said :—

"My Lord, with reference to the observations made by the Hon'ble Mr. Beatson Bell who has said that there is every chance of appointing these agricultural officers within a very short time, I have very little to say. So far as I can gather from his reply, several officers are to be appointed. I thought it necessary to bring to the notice of the Council that these agricultural officers should be appointed at this stage. As has been already stated by the Hon'ble Member in charge that there is a likelihood of these officers being appointed within a short time, that is, within about three or four years, I do not press my resolution. I entertain the hope that these officers will do good work in the Agriculture Department who, to my mind, are not now doing satisfactory work owing to the shortness of staff.

With regard to the observations made by the Hon'ble M. Kerr, I submit that the figures which I have quoted were compiled by me from the published records. We have not access to the Government records in office, but we gather our figures from the printed papers or reports; I have referred to the report from which I have collected the various statements which I put before the Council. As I said I am neither in a position nor have I any desire to search for records for the fiat has gone forth that the partition of Mymensingh is to be effected. But what I do say is this that the acquisition of land in connection with the partition may be postponed till after the war is over. That is the view which I entertain and that is the view which I thought it necessary to bring before the Council. In view of the assurance given by the Hon'ble Mr. Beatson Bell, an assurance which I cannot overlook, I think, under the circumstances, I must withdraw my resolution."

The resolution was then, by leave of the President, withdrawn.

Resolutions.

Rai Mahendra Chandra Mitra Bahadur ; Sir Henry Wheeler.

APPENDIX TO THE LIST OF BUSINESS—ITEM No. III.

The Hon'ble RAI MAHENDRA CHANDRA MITRA BAHADUR moved the following resolution :—

This Council recommends to the Governor in Council that—

(a) suitable provisions be made in the Budget for—

- (i) the Tropical School ;
- (ii) construction of the new Eye Hospital ; and
- (iii) necessary contribution towards the construction of an extension of the Tropical School building to provide for an Institute of Hygiene ; and

(b) the necessary amount be taken out of the grant provided in the Budget for the acquisition of land in connection with the partition of Mymensingh.

He said :—

“ My Lord, I do not wish to put forward arguments in support of my resolution because so far as the last part of my resolution is concerned I have already brought it to the notice of the Council. With regard to the first part of my resolution I submit that it is hardly necessary to state that they are very useful institutions. And I think that no speech or argument is necessary to support my resolution which speaks for itself and I commend it for the consideration of the Council.”

The Hon'ble SIR HENRY WHEELER said :—

“ Sir, the Hon'ble Member's resolution raises the matter of three projects about the utility of which there is no difference of opinion between us. We are all agreed that they are most beneficial and the sooner they are carried out the better. The question of provision for them in the Budget turns rather on practical possibilities and their desirability in comparison with other schemes. I will take them seriatim and briefly describe the position, and in the light of my remarks I trust Hon'ble Members will be satisfied that any alteration of the Budget in this respect is unnecessary.

In the first place, the Tropical School is an accomplished fact ; the building is already standing in Calcutta (and a very fine building it is), merely awaiting equipment and professorial staff. Unfortunately, owing to the war, we can get neither ; we shall have to wait until after the war before the school can start on its successful career and these deficiencies can be made good. Even if we put money in the Budget for this purpose we could not spend it.

As regards the Institute of Hygiene, plans and estimates for that are at present being prepared, and we have been promised a contribution of one lakh from the Indian Research Fund Association, which—if we take the probable cost of the scheme to be 2 lakhs—will amount to half the cost. We naturally intend to avail ourselves of this offer, and that is one reason why we are not likely to be remiss in endeavouring to bring this institution into being ; another good reason is in order that we can make use of the services of Sir Leonard Rogers, to whose energies and successful efforts in securing contributions from various generous donors, the Tropical School is so much indebted. We cannot hope to keep Sir Leonard Rogers with us for ever, and we wish to start the Institute of Hygiene while he is still in Calcutta. There is, therefore, every ground for getting this scheme started as soon as we can, but there are practical difficulties about the site, which involve the removal of the existing morgue, and these we hope to tackle in the current year, thus clearing the ground for the erection of the building subsequently.

Resolutions.

Rai Mahendra Chandra Mitra Bahadur ; the President ; Dr. Nilratan Sarkar.

Finally, the Eye Hospital, it is true, is a very desirable work. It is unfortunately expensive ; the estimate of cost which was prepared in 1916 was just under Rs. 9 lakhs. We have, however, made a beginning ; we acquired land at a cost of about 3 lakhs in 1916, and when it was represented this year that that area would probably be insufficient, we have acquired additional land this year also. But I am afraid, that the actual building must stand over for the present ; we are already spending a great deal in various other directions on Calcutta hospitals, for example, the Medical College servants' quarters and the servants' quarters at the Campbell Hospital, and the Eye Hospital must wait until a more favourable opportunity, probably after the war. There is every intention of carrying it through, but I hope that in the light of these remarks, the Hon'ble Member will not press his resolution."

The Hon'ble RAI MAHENDRA CHANDRA MITRA BAHADUR said :—

"My Lord, with reference to the observations made by the Hon'ble Member in charge, I submit that this question ought to have preference and that money should be spent on it first rather than for the acquisition of land in connection with the partition of Mymensingh. Whether preference should be given to this or that is a question which the Council would decide. My Lord, I do not stand upon a higher plane ; I stand upon a lower plane, but even standing on the lower plane, I submit for the consideration of the Council the question as to which preference should be given—the demands of humanity or regard for administrative work. If preference is given to the acquisition of land, then I stand upon a higher plane. And in this view of the case, I press the resolution for the consideration of the Council."

The motion was then put and lost.

APPENDIX TO THE LIST OF BUSINESS—ITEM No. IV.

The PRESIDENT said :—

"Owing to pressure of business of a semi-official kind, which he cannot avoid, the Hon'ble Mr. P. C. Mitter cannot move his resolution now. Under these circumstances, I have consented to postpone the moving of the next resolution (Item No. IV in the Appendix to the List of Business) until later in the day. The Hon'ble Dr. Nilratan Sarkar will now move his resolution (item No. V)."

APPENDIX TO THE LIST OF BUSINESS—ITEM No. V.

The Hon'ble DR. NILRATAN SARKAR moved the following resolution :—

This Council recommends to the Governor in Council that—

- (a) sum of Rs. 1,50,000 be allotted for works required for the sanitary improvement of the Sibpur Engineering College premises ; and
- (b) the expenditure be met out of the sum of Rs. 6,50,000 provided for land acquisition, Mymensingh partition.

He said :—

"My Lord, the Sibpur Engineering College has been in existence on its present site for about the last 40 years. But the sanitary condition of the place has been a troublesome question during this long period. At one time it was very bad ; it is better now, and malaria, typhoid fever and dysentery are not so common now-a-days as they were ten years ago. Some improvement has undoubtedly been made, but much more remains to be done. My Lord, the Government mind has passed through different stages of indecision as regards the question as to whether the College should be retained in its present site or not—and I do not believe that Government is certain about it as yet—there was a proposal at one time for removing the College to Ranchi on, amongst others, sanitary grounds. Then there was another proposal, viz, that of selling the College premises to the Port Commissioners; and one of the alleged grounds for taking that step was the bad sanitary condition of the locality and removing the College to Dacca. I hope that the Government has now seen the necessity of having a higher grade Engineering College in or somewhere near Calcutta and that, in spite of the fact that a second school of engineering may be necessary at Dacca. I do not know what the recommendation of the Industrial Commission will be in this connection. I know the decision of the Government will be very much influenced by the opinion of that Commission. But at the same time we feel that there is a necessity of having a higher grade Engineering College in or near Calcutta; and if an Engineering College is to be maintained in or about Calcutta, we cannot think of a better site than the present one. There is no reason why this site could not be improved and made as good as any in the town or at any other place near it, provided that funds be forthcoming. I know there are some difficulties, but there are none that cannot be remedied or removed. The most prominent of the difficulties is the existence of the Howrah trenching-ground in the neighbourhood of the College. This trenching-ground must be removed from that site sooner or later; and I hope the Howrah Municipality will not only see the desirability, but also the urgent necessity of removing that source of nuisance from the neighbourhood of one of our largest colleges in Bengal. No doubt this will entail an additional amount of yearly expenditure upon that municipality, but I am afraid that this cannot be helped. As regards improvements in general sanitation there are many items on which improvements are required and the Sanitary Commissioner has inspected the site with a view to report on the matter. I believe a very large sum will be required, but I think that with a lakh and fifty thousand a beginning may be made as soon as the Sanitary Commissioner submits his report to Government. This matter is urgent and I think the partition of the district of Mymensingh may wait for another year. Certainly the improvement of sanitation of one of the most important Colleges in Bengal should, from one point of view, be considered as a more urgent matter than the partition of a district."

Resolutions.Mr. O'Malley.

The Hon'ble MR. O'MALLEY said :—

"My Lord, there are two difficulties in the way of Government accepting this resolution. The first is that Government has as yet received no scheme for the sanitary improvement of the Sibpur College. I see that the Hon'ble Mover has proposed to provide a sum of Rs. 1½ lakhs, with which he considers that a beginning might be made; but we have at present no scheme before us and we do not know what amount will be necessary for the purpose. The second difficulty, my Lord, is that if this resolution be accepted, it will prejudice the long debated question whether this College is to be retained on its present site or transferred elsewhere. The Hon'ble Dr. Nilratan Sarkar has briefly sketched the history of that, and it is not necessary for me to enter into it in detail. The question was raised about 13 years ago—in 1905—and two years later a definite scheme was submitted to the Government of India for the sale of the property to the Port Commissioners and for the removal of the College to Ranchi, on account of the unhealthiness of the site. It was then said that neither the students nor the staff could work satisfactorily in such enervating climate. About 4 years ago the Hon'ble Babu Surendra Nath Ray moved a resolution in this Council to the effect that the proposal to abolish the Civil Engineering College at Sibpur be dropped and that the College might be either retained at Sibpur or, if the present site was considered unsuitable, be removed to a suitable site in Calcutta or its immediate neighbourhood, or else be made a branch of the proposed Technological Institute in Calcutta. The debate ended in the resolution being withdrawn on the understanding that the question of the training to be afforded to Civil Engineers could not be completely dealt with and settled, so far as the Government of Bengal was concerned, until the report of the Public Services Commission was received. The report of the Public Services Commission has been published; and last year Government asked Dr. Bentley to make a thorough sanitary survey of the Sibpur site, so that the question whether the site was really healthy or unhealthy might be decided once and for all.

As the Hon'ble Dr. Nilratan Sarkar has said, of late years, so far as can be seen, the health of Sibpur has greatly improved. There being so many contradictory statements about its healthiness and unhealthiness, we thought it our duty to take expert sanitary advice and find out what the exact state of things was. Dr. Bentley was asked to report whether the site was unduly unhealthy; if so, whether that unhealthiness could be remedied and if it could be remedied, by what means, e.g., by improving the drainage or water-supply, and at what cost. Dr. Bentley has not yet been able to submit his report; but I understand that we shall receive it very shortly. I believe that he takes a favourable view of Sibpur, and that he considers that if certain improvements can be made, such as introducing an efficient sewerage system, making arrangements for an adequate water-supply, and also better arrangements for the trenching-ground, to which the Hon'ble Mover has referred, Sibpur can be made thoroughly healthy. When Government receives the report, they purpose to come to a final decision as to whether the College shall be retained at its present site and developed. From what I have mentioned of Dr. Bentley's enquiries, I think the Council may anticipate that there will be a favourable verdict as regards the healthiness of the site. Should it then be decided that the College need not be removed, Government is ready to take up any improvements that may be considered necessary. I would ask the Hon'ble Member to accept this assurance and consider whether in these circumstances he wishes to press this resolution."

The Hon'ble DR. NILRATAN SARKAR said:—"My Lord, in view of the assurance I have received from the Hon'ble Mr. O'Malley, I ask for permission to withdraw this resolution."

The resolution was then, by leave of the President, withdrawn.

APPENDIX TO THE LIST OF BUSINESS, ITEM No. VI.

The Hon'ble DR. NILRATAN SARKAR moved the following resolution:—

This Council recommends to the Governor in Council that—

- (a) a sum of Rs. 2,00,000 non-recurring and Rs. 18,000 recurring be allotted for the purpose of extending and improving the laboratories of the Mechanical and Electrical Engineering Departments of the Sibpur Engineering College and also for strengthening the teaching staff concerned for the purpose of raising the departments to the University standard; and
- (b) the non-recurring expenditure be met out of the sum of Rs. 6,64,000 provided for the construction of buildings, Midnapore partition; and the recurring expenditure be met out of the sum of Rs. 47,61,000 provided for Police force under District Police force.

Resolution.Dr. Nilratan Sarkar.

He said :—

“My Lord, the level of the engineering education has generally been accepted as the index to the industrial position of a country throughout the world. With regard to India which is a part of a great empire the position is somewhat different in this respect as we have been hitherto drawing, so far as our supply of higher class engineers was concerned, from Great Britain and other countries. But the circumstances have changed and are constantly changing for India. The mechanical engineering classes of the Sibpur Engineering College were started in the year 1880 and the electrical engineering classes have been in existence for the last 20 years. During these years these classes have trained a small number of mechanical and electrical overseers. Matriculated students are admitted into these classes who take training for 3 years when they pass an examination and after that they pass a year in the workshops for practical training and then they go out as mechanical and electrical overseers. They are a very useful class of men in their own way, but I think the time has changed when only that class of men were required. A demand for a higher class of engineers has been suddenly created somewhat by the new conditions that have been brought about by the war. On the one hand, some of our industries are multiplying rapidly. Only during the last two months three factories—two tanning and one iron and steel making—have been launched with a capital of over two crores of rupees. These and other similar industries that will come into existence during the next few years will require a large supply of well-trained mechanical and electrical engineers. On the other hand, we find that the sources from which we were hitherto drawing our supplies for the last 40 or 50 years are restricted for at least a few years after the war. All these conditions have created a necessity for training a higher class of engineers here. My Lord, the days of training by the rule of thumb have passed away forever. Now-a-days the idea of training mechanical and electrical engineers in this way appears to be quite obsolete to most minds. Theoretical instruction of a very high order must be coupled with practical work for training really qualified mechanical and electrical engineers. The problems of mechanical and electrical engineering can only be tackled by men who have got a really high level of preliminary scientific equipment before commencing the mechanical and electrical studies. The present preliminary standards of the electrical and mechanical departments of the Sibpur Engineering College are much lower than that. It is impossible, for an engineering school to supply the type of men that is wanted for these industries. Then there must be higher teaching for such men. Therefore, besides the needs of the industries there are the needs of education. I can only understand the maintenance of a school when along with it a College is maintained if, for no other reason, at least, for the purpose of supplying teachers to the school. An engineering school can stand only when it can get men of a higher type to perform the teaching duties. My Lord, if any progress is to be made in these subjects whether it be mechanical engineering or electrical engineering, some of the graduates of Colleges must engage themselves in extending the areas of knowledge by research work. There is thus the necessity of having a high class of men. No body can create this class of men ; but facilities for the development of such men should be created. I feel strongly, therefore, the necessity of having the mechanical and electrical departments of the Sibpur College developed into a higher grade College with a subordinate school department attached to it for training assistants and overseers. I trust there is an overwhelmingly strong case for raising the standard of mechanical and electrical departments to the College standard or the University standard. And there should not be a long delay. I know the Government mind is likely to be again in a state of indecision as regards this matter so long as it sits between at least two Commissions—the Industrial Commission and the University Commission. But we have paid the penalty for this sort of indecision and it should be removed as soon as possible. Certainly there should be a department in the only Engineering College in Bengal for the extensive as well as the intensive training of mechanical and electrical engineering.

Resolution.Mr. O'Malley ; Dr. Nilratan Sarkar.

My Lord, as regards the item in the Budget from which I want to draw the money I think the partition of Midnapore may stand for a while in view of the urgent need of developing this College : and the police expenditure which stands at the high figure of 47 lakhs will not suffer much if a paltry sum like what I have proposed is devoted for such an useful purpose."

The Hon'ble MR. O'MALLEY said :—

"My Lord, it is with considerable diffidence that I rise to reply to this resolution. When I first saw this resolution, I was somewhat surprised, because neither the Principal nor the Governing Body of the Sibpur College had approached the Government and asked that the classes for mechanical and electrical engineering should either be extended or improved. I believe that Dr. Nilratan Sarkar is a member of the Board of Visitors, and I therefore fully expected that he would put forward a definite scheme, on which we could obtain the advice of the Principal and the Governing Body ; but he has done no such thing. He has informed us that there will be a demand for a higher class of mechanical and electrical engineers, in view of the greater industrial activity which will ensue after the war. He thinks that the present standard is low and that therefore a sum of no less than 2 lakhs of rupees non-recurring and Rs. 18,000 recurring will be required for the extension and improvement of the classes. It is very difficult for Government to accept a somewhat indefinite proposal of this kind and to agree that a large sum of money should be budgetted for without more tangible reasons. The Budget is generally prepared on the basis of schemes which have been elaborated, and here we have no certain ground to go upon.

The resolution states also that it is desirable to strengthen the teaching staff concerned for the purpose of raising the departments to the University standards. I presume that the Hon'ble Member means that the University courses for the degree of Bachelor of Engineering in mechanical and electrical engineering should be adopted by the College. The Principal himself has never made such a proposal and he is not in favour of it. He considers that the time is not ripe for such an advance and that there is at present no sufficient demand for Bachelors of Engineering in mechanical and electrical engineering to justify the introduction of University courses. His policy is to develop steadily and not to proceed per saltum, or to adopt courses for which the equipment at present is not sufficient. An important scheme has recently been put forward, on which the Hon'ble Sir R. N. Mukharji will shortly address the Council, for the development of the mechanical engineering department by arrangements for the training of apprentices. The Principal seems to think that this should be the first line of progress ; for the rest it is desired to expand and improve the laboratories as need arises. When the new scheme of training apprentices is brought into effect, the College will be able to extend its activities. For these reasons, I am afraid I must oppose this resolution."

The Hon'ble DR. NILRATAN SARKAR said :—

"My Lord, it is one of the most difficult questions which we have to decide—the question of whether to raise these electrical and engineering classes to the University standard or not. I do not mean that the College or that department of the College should be at once affiliated to the Calcutta University or that there is a scheme even in the University for these studies. In fact, so far as I know, there is none as yet. What I mean is this : that there should be a College grade of study apart from the school grade of study

Resolutions.

Dr. Nilratan Sarkar.

that at present prevails in the Sibpur Engineering College in regard to these subjects. I do not really understand why the Principal is against raising the standard in these departments. Well if that be his view and if he thinks that their studies should not be raised to the University standard or the higher standard then we have reasons to differ from him. In fact this is our complaint. It is true, I did not approach the College Council and I had my doubts whether it would not have been ultra vires if I did. The College Council is concerned with the duty of administering rules and regulations that are in force there. It would be a new scheme with them altogether. If the Government desire or if the Government favourably looks at the suggestion, they will certainly send the scheme to the College Council for discussion and then it would come to them with some amount of force. The question is whether these studies are to be retained only in the present state in Bengal or whether they are to be raised to a higher level. That is the most important question. Of course I know that at the present moment there is a good deal of uncertainty. There would be a good deal of uncertainty always. But the circumstances that have been created since the war have favoured us with opportunities for deciding questions sooner than under circumstances existing before the war. My Lord, supposing we confine ourselves to teaching only the lower standard of engineering, how can we then expect our industries to develop and how are we to multiply our industries in the future? I for myself cannot find any solution to that difficulty and no alternative suggestion has been given by the Hon'ble Member in charge. It is quite open to the Government to have a College outside the University or have it affiliated to the University. It is not the question before me just now. What I say is that the standard of studies must be raised higher. We must have engineers with higher qualifications—mechanical engineers and electrical engineers. That is my contention and nothing more. Of course as regards the absence of a scheme, it is impossible for me to produce a scheme at present. Schemes have to be made, must be made by experts. I can only throw out suggestions. I hope, Government will see the necessity of raising the level of engineering education in Bengal and accept my resolution with that object in view."

APPENDIX TO THE LIST OF BUSINESS—ITEM No. IV.

The Hon'ble Mr. PROVASH CHUNDER MITTER moved the following resolution :—

This Council recommends to the Governor in Council that—

- (a) a sum of Rs. 50,000 be set apart for deputing a temporary staff for the formation of Co-operative Credit Societies relating to cottage industries and to agricultural produce ; and
- (b) the expenditure be met from the provision of Rs. 6,64,000 allotted for construction of buildings in connection with the partition of the district of Midnapore.

The Hon'ble Mr. PROVASH CHUNDER MITTER said :—

" My Lord, the Department of Co-operative Credit Societies has done a good deal of useful work in the past, but that department has hitherto confined its attention more or less to the organisation of ordinary agricultural credit societies ; even with regard to such societies, I believe there is much work to be done in the future. I believe the total capital is now a little over 150 lakhs, but it has not yet touched perhaps 95 per cent. of the rural population of Bengal, so that the Bengal Co-operative Department requires great development even with regard to agricultural credit. With regard to the development of cottage industries and of agricultural produce, I believe the department has been able to do very little, although the scope for useful work is almost unlimited. In a town like Calcutta all classes of people realise the difficulties of getting wholesome milk, good fish, good vegetables, poultry, eggs and so on. Many of us know the difficulties that stand in the way of the development of these humble, but none the less useful products. As regards milk we know that it passes through two or three middlemen and perhaps the lowest middleman working in the villages has only a capital of 2 to 1,500 rupees and it is natural that he has to make a profit of 100, 150, or even 200 per cent. The result of that is that the actual producer does not get the proper value for his produce, and the consumer has to pay very much more than the real value of the article. When we remember that Bengal is a land of poor producers, it seems very necessary that these poor producers should be properly organised. We all know what Plunkett has done in Ireland, and I venture to think that much can be done, if not to the same extent, but to some extent at any rate in a place like Bengal. It is necessary that we should begin the experiment at any rate. Now, with regard to cottage industries, there are industries like weaving, mat-making, shoe-making, hide-curing on a small scale and perhaps various others can be referred to. These humble producers, ignorant, as they are, can at the present moment turn out very useful articles. With some organisation and if the co-operative movement be cautiously introduced on sound lines amongst these classes great improvements can be expected. The benefit to society will be immense and, amongst other things, it will have one

Resolutions.

Mr. Beatson Bell.

indirect result and that is to bring intelligence, organisation and capital within the reach of these ignorant workmen. My Lord, it may be said that we have already a co-operative department and what is the good of having a different staff for this purpose. My answer to this is that the hands of the present co-operative department are more than full. Its work in the development of agricultural credit will necessarily take up all its energies and more than the energies that it can possibly command. In the domain of agricultural credit, perhaps one Registrar, even if he works as much as any human being is capable of working, cannot do all that the country requires of him. If any new organisation like the organisation of co-operative credit amongst cottage industries and agricultural producers is to be started, that will at the beginning demand a good deal of the time and attention of the organisers. The Registrar of Co-operative Credit Societies, busy as he is with his present department, can hardly be expected to give the necessary time to this new work; and that is the reason why I have suggested that a start might be made and a temporary staff be deputed—success will depend on how that staff works. It may be possible in future to bring all these different activities under one Registrar; that will depend upon the results of experience. At the present initial stage when a good deal of pioneering work has to be done, it is necessary to have a whole time officer. I have suggested that a sum of Rs. 50,000 be set apart for this purpose, but I do not for a moment suggest that it is a figure to which we must agree; that sum will be, to my mind, more than sufficient. The pay of the Registrar is, I believe, something like Rs. 1,500 or less. A few assistants and the necessary staff will not cost more than Rs. 50,000. This sum will pay the people, and the Government several times over if it be employed for the purpose I have mentioned.

I have also suggested that this sum should be taken from the amount allotted for the partition of Midnapore, and not from Mymensingh. If Government does not approve of my suggestion it may perhaps be able to find money from some other source. I have selected Midnapore for reasons already stated. If we spend that money in the development of the organisation of co-operative societies for cottage workers, many acute problems and troubles will be solved and the poor workers benefited."

The Hon'ble MR. BEATSON BELL said :—

"My Lord, I am afraid that the Hon'ble Mover of this resolution has been so busy with his other public duties and private avocations that he has not had time to study the publications of the Co-operative Department. He has more than once referred to the head of the department as the "Registrar of Co-operative Credit Societies;" that is not his title, and he is the Registrar of Co-operative Societies. Co-operative credit is merely one branch of the work, and agricultural co-operative credit is merely a branch of a branch. When my hon'ble friend has a little more time he might go through Appendix C of Mr. Donovan's last report. There he will see a full account of the operations of our non-credit and non-agricultural societies; he will see that far from his excellent scheme being some thing new to the department it is exactly what the department has been doing for a number of years, and in a very successful manner. He will find particulars of shoe-makers' societies, fishermen's societies, weavers' societies and milkmen's societies; moreover when he has time to study this report he will see that while in 1913-14 we had only 8 inspectors the numbers in successive years have risen to 10, 14, 18 and 22, while in the year which is about to open we propose to raise the number from 22 to 38, that is, an increase of 16 officers. Many of these 16 officers will be employed on the work which the Hon'ble Member has at heart, namely, societies connected with weavers, fishermen, etc., and societies for the distribution of milk and other agricultural produce. For example, Mr. Donovan has recently inaugurated a society at Baraset, which is supplying 5 maunds of pure milk every day to Calcutta. The new inspectors will establish many more societies of this nature, while the new officers of higher rank—who will be practically Joint Registrars, although not yet so in name,—will supervise and assist them. How far the new staff will be distributed upon a geographical basis, and how far upon a specialised basis, cannot be definitely laid down. It is contemplated, however, that several of the new inspectors will take non-credit and non-agricultural societies under their special care. Briefly, our position is this, that we are making a very large increase in our staff in order to secure the objects of this resolution and that no case has been made for creating a new department—even if it were within our power to do so. Perhaps in view of these facts the Hon'ble Member will not press his resolution."

Resolutions.Mr. Provash Chunder Mitter ; Mr. Beatson Bell.

The Hon'ble MR. PROVASH CHUNDER MITTER said :—

"My Lord, I do not propose to plead guilty to the soft impeachment of the Hon'ble Member that I have not read the reports of the Co-operative Department. I may tell my friend that I have read them very carefully. Even on the admission of my hon'ble friend what are the huge achievements of his department in the matter of co-operative supply of milk? In a town like Calcutta my hon'ble friend says that only 5 maunds of milk are daily brought."

The Hon'ble MR. BEATSON BELL said :—

"My Lord, it is only one example."

The Hon'ble MR. PROVASH CHUNDER MITTER said :—

"My Lord, I know that ; but very great advance may be made in that direction. The figure itself is its own condemnation. I may inform my hon'ble friend of a fact he has not mentioned, namely, that in the town of Dacca some attempt has been made towards such supply. I know also that Mr. Donovan is working as hard as it is possible for any officer to work. I may say this, without any fear of contradiction, that if you take the total number of societies we have at the present moment and if you deduct from them the total number of agricultural credit societies the percentage of non-agricultural societies will be very small indeed. No doubt for years past some attention has been paid by the department and by Government towards the development of non-agricultural produce, such as weavers' societies, Muchis' societies and other similar societies. I may tell my hon'ble friend opposite that I am personally much interested in some of these societies ; but my point is that these societies require a far greater development than the development in the past. I do not blame any individual officer for this, but on the other hand I praise them with all the praise that is at my command. The fact is that the staff is wholly inadequate. From my friend's own figures it appears that up to 1913-14 there were only 8 inspectors. My Lord, in a province like Bengal, with an area of 67,000 square miles and a population of 45 millions, can you possibly hope to do any real solid work with 8 inspectors? Subsequently they had 22 inspectors and they are going to have 38 in the next year. Is that sufficient? I may tell my friend that I know that some Deputy Collectors have been deputed to this department, but I say, without any fear of contradiction, that this most useful department is wholly undermanned. The total expenditure of this department is small compared with that of the revenue administered, although it is a department on which if you spend one rupee it will yield Rs. 10 in the near future. It is not a department you can afford to neglect. It is for these reasons that I suggest that more attention should be paid to agricultural produce and cottage industries. I am not satisfied upon a careful perusal of the reports that adequate attention has been paid to these industries. Looking at the census figures and the total number of members of these various societies we find that you have touched very much less than 5 per cent. of the Muchis, you have touched perhaps 10 per cent. of the weavers and not even 5 per cent. of the Domes who are also humble but useful members of societies. If that be so, Government may have done well in the past, but my point is that they ought to have done much more. For these reasons I am sorry I do not see my way to withdraw my resolution. I would like to have the opinion of the house on the resolution as it stands."

Resolutions.The President.

APPENDIX TO THE LIST OF BUSINESS—ITEM No. VII.

The Hon'ble Dr. NILRATAN SARKAR moved the following resolution :—

The Council recommends to the Governor in Council that—

- (a) a sum of Rs. 25,000 non-recurring be allotted for the purpose of constructing an independent system of water-works for the supply of pure drinking water in the Sibpur Engineering College ; and
- (b) the expenditure be met out of the sum of Rs. 6,75,000 provided as lump provision for additional force and Police reforms under District Police force.

He said :—

"My Lord, there has been much inconvenience felt in the Sibpur Engineering College on account of the inadequate supply of filtered water. The inconvenience has been allowed to continue for a fairly long time and that is my justification for bringing it to the notice of Your Excellency's Council in the shape of a resolution. To the medical mind the question of the supply of pure drinking water naturally appears to be much more urgent than the question of any other reform. The Howrah Municipality cannot be expected to render much help to the Engineering College. They have not got an over-flowing supply ; on the other hand their supply is very often short. The only remedy, therefore, lies in sanctioning an independent installation at a moderate cost. The College authorities are quite competent to look after the thing without any additional expense. The cost is trifling, the need is urgent, the scheme is definite and I am in a position to inform the Council that it has the approval of the Principal. A capital expenditure of Rs. 25,000 deducted from a lump provision of Rs. 6,75,000 would very slightly affect the Police reform scheme. I trust the Government will kindly accept this modest resolution."

The Hon'ble Mr. O'MALLEY said :—

"My Lord, I feel that no reply is necessary after the statement I have already made in reply to the resolution of the Hon'ble Dr. Sarkar about the sanitary improvement of the Sibpur College. There has long been trouble about the shortage of water in the College. It was brought to the notice of Government in 1915 and a small grant was made for its improvement. The difficulty, however, still persists, as the Hon'ble Dr. Sarkar has told the Council, and the position is not satisfactory. We hope to take steps to improve it. Government, however, wishes first to obtain the report of Dr. Bentley and consider his suggestions, which, I know, will meet this very point. I can assure the Council that as soon as Dr. Bentley's report is received, if it is found necessary to take immediate steps for the improvement of water-supply, Government will gladly do so. I do not think it is necessary to make any deduction from the source mentioned in the resolution, as Government will be able to provide the fund from other available sources. I hope, therefore, that the Hon'ble Member will withdraw this resolution."

The Hon'ble Dr. NILRATAN SARKAR said :—"In view of this assurance I beg to withdraw this resolution."

The resolution was then, by leave of the President, withdrawn.

*Resolutions.Babu Ambika Charan Mazumdar; Sir Rajendra Nath Mookerjee.APPENDIX TO THE LIST OF BUSINESS—ITEM No. VIII.

The following stood in the name of the Hon'ble BABU AMBIKA CHARAN MAZUMDAR :—

This Council recommends to the Governor in Council that—

- (a) a sum of Rs. 1,00,000, or such other sum as may be conveniently spared, be provided in the Budget under head "Civil Works in charge of the Public Works Department" towards the construction of a new record-room at Faridpur for the accommodation of the Settlement records of that district; and
- (b) this provision be met by reducing the estimates for the partition of Midnapore and Mymensingh.

The Hon'ble Member being absent the resolution was not moved and went by default.

APPENDIX TO THE LIST OF BUSINESS—ITEM No. IX.

The Hon'ble SIR RAJENDRA NATH MOOKERJEE moved the following resolution :—

This Council recommends to the Governor in Council that—

- (a) provision be made for a sum of Rs. 50,000 for building a hostel for students for Mechanical apprenticeship at Kanchrapara, adjoining the Eastern Bengal Railway Workshop;
- (b) the said sum be met from the provision made for Midnapore Partition—Construction of buildings Rs. 6,64,000 and Mymensingh Partition—Land Acquisition, etc., Rs. 6,50,000, reducing the amount in each case by Rs. 25,000.

He said :—

"My Lord, I am fully conscious how embarrassing it is to the Financial Member to be asked to alter his Budget which has been prepared with great deliberation and careful thought, but my excuse for asking him to do so to-day, is the great urgency of the case. This terrible war has brought prominently before the attention of the British Government, the Indian Government and the citizens of the whole British Empire, how necessary and important it is to the people to develop the Empire's industrial resources, and especially how vitally necessary it is for India to develop her resources in such a way as to make her an independent industrial unit. The urgent necessity of the development of Indian industries is emphasised by the appointment of the Indian Industrial Commission at a time when the Government of India can ill-afford to distract its attention and use its resources for anything which is not of national importance. It is accepted as an axiom that to develop industries in any country three things are essential: to create facilities in finance, make scientific investigation by research and to get technical knowledge and practical training. No one of these factors can by itself lead to the successful development of any industry. Sir Thomas Holland in his address to the Science Congress at Lahore the other day indicated the lines on which the Industrial Commission proposes to recommend the establishment of a Imperial Scientific Research Department. I am not at liberty at the present moment to make public what proposals the Industrial Commission will make to create facilities in finance. That matter is more or less an Imperial concern, but the training of Bengali students as Mechanical Engineers and Foremen, the object of my resolution, is the function of the Provincial

Resolutions.Sir Rajendra Nath Mookerjee,

Government and I hope I am not committing any breach of etiquette to my colleagues on the Industrial Commission if I inform Your Excellency's Council that all the expert evidence placed before the Industrial Commission on the question of the training of Indian students as Mechanical Engineers and Foremen, unanimously advocates giving these students a commercial practical training in some large workshop for a period of four to five years and condemns the present method adopted in several Engineering Schools which, in the opinion of the experts, is quite inadequate to train a lad to be a competent and practical foreman mechanic.

My Lord, it is to the credit of the Principal and the Governing Body of the Sibpur Engineering College that about two years ago, after having realised that the present system of training students at that College for mechanical foremen is not suitable for giving these students a real practical training, they formulated a scheme on much the same lines as now recommended to the Industrial Commission, and appointed a sub-committee consisting of Mr. Hornell, Mr. Adams, Mr. Heaton and Mr. Harnett, the Locomotive Superintendent of the Kanchrapara Workshop of the Eastern Bengal Railway, to investigate and report on its feasibility. After considering this report, the Governing Body of the Sibpur Engineering College submitted a scheme to Your Excellency's Government which, I understand, will be favourably considered. To give effect to that scheme the first thing necessary is to construct a Hostel at the Kanchrapara Workshop to enable Mr. Harnett to admit Bengali students as apprentices to his workshops. Mr. Harnett has already got a number of Anglo-Indian youths, sons of the employees of the railway, as apprentices. I will not take Your Excellency's time by giving details of the training which are fully given in the report of the Governing Body, but it is clear that Mr. Harnett cannot admit Bengali students unless and until a Hostel is provided for them. Even if funds are available now it will be a year before the building could be finished and ready for occupation. I am aware that the scheme now before Government recommends that the railway authorities should build and furnish the hostels, but it has to be remembered that the railways under present circumstances due to the war are unlikely to be able to spare the necessary funds for some years to come owing to the enormous expenditure which they will have to incur to repair and replace their rolling stock and permanent way. Apart from this if time is to be wasted over negotiations with the railway upon the question whether they or the Government should pay this comparatively small sum of money a great opportunity will be lost.

My Lord, as soon as the war is over, which we all hope will be at a not far distant date, I need hardly point out that the impetus given to the development of industries throughout the British Empire, and other countries also, will be unprecedented. Signs are not wanting that all the nations of the world are preparing themselves and getting ready for the keen competition that will inevitably follow. My Lord, in my humble opinion the Government and the people of Bengal will be failing in their duty if they do not bestir themselves and make ready to face this situation. In addition to the facility that will be given for the development of industries I may add that the training of Bengali youths as mechanics will create new openings and improve the economic situation and thus divert their minds from unhealthy political activities. Only the other day the Government of India announced their decision to guarantee the purchase in India of three thousand railway wagons annually for the next ten years. Orders on such a scale as this will undoubtedly tend to create a great demand for the services of mechanical engineers and foremen. It has always been difficult, even for European firms, to import mechanical foremen who often show an unwillingness, owing to unfavourable climatic and other reasons, to remain long in India. The difficulty experienced in the past is bound to be enhanced after the war. It is far more difficult for an Indian manufacturer or industrialist to procure a suitable European mechanic on reasonable and moderate pay for his small industry and this fact has been fully borne out by the evidence placed before the Industrial Commission and I am sure the European manufacturers in this country will also unhesitatingly avail themselves of the services of competent practical Indian Mechanical Engineers for their workshops.

My Lord, Bengali youths have given evidence in (1) Dr. Sarbadhikari's Ambulance Corps, (2) in Dr. Mullick's Bengali Battalion, (3) in Col. Pugh's Bengali Light Horse, (4) in the University Corps and last but not least in the Bengali Boy Scouts, of their ability and willingness to undertake any hard work, and have, I trust, dispelled the belief which has hitherto been entertained that Bengali youths are loath to do any hard physical work and if the Government now takes up this question of training and provides the necessary facilities I feel the utmost confidence in saying that there will be large numbers of Bengali boys who will avail themselves of the opportunity thus provided.

My Lord, backward as we Bengalis are in industrial matters, we cannot afford to lose a day to prepare ourselves for the struggle that is before us. I may be permitted to mention that it is not my intention either to hamper or to impede the progress of the Midnapore and Mymensingh partition works. I had to show from which items of the Budget savings could be made to provide funds for the Hostel. If my resolution is accepted by the Government and if the funds are provided as I propose, I venture to say the work of the partition of Midnapore and Mymensingh will not suffer in any way, as payments of such small sums as Rs. 25,000 in each case may easily be made in April 1919. I hope that the Government will take into consideration the urgency and importance of my appeal and will be pleased to accept my resolution."

The Hon'ble DR. DEBA PRASAD SARBADHIKARI said :—

"My Lord, I desire to give my whole-hearted support to the very modest resolution which Sir R. N. Mookerjee has brought before the Council, and incidentally I am very glad to have his support of some of the ideas that are being discussed elsewhere with regard to the industrial and commercial future of the country. What the details of the University and other schemes are, it is unnecessary here to mention. They are being examined by two Commissions. We have had indications in the past, which are now growing, that with regard to some of these matters the University is hardly the proper authority to deal with them. That is a question we shall not enter into now. But everybody is agreed that wherever the theoretical portion of the work may be done the practical portion of the work must be done in the workshop. There can be no two opinions with regard to this. What the Mover has said are the deliberate views of the Industrial Commission. Practical training will best be given in large workshops that is what the University also has said. I am glad that the Sibpur College has been able to induce the Kanchrapara Workshop to take up the scheme and lend the College a helping hand. I shall confine myself to the purely practical working of the scheme. The Hon'ble Dr. Nilratan Sarkar has been speaking of the unhealthiness of Sibpur, but compared to Kanchrapara it is a veritable hygeine. Kanchrapara is a very malarious place and unless the apprentices coming to Kanchrapara are well-housed and properly looked after, they will not be able to stand the strain. This must be done if the scheme is to have a fair chance. It is useless to hope that Kanchrapara will be able to afford facilities like this unless a hostel is built there. To give the scheme a chance—and not only this scheme, but other bigger schemes which are sure to follow,—I think it would be a mistake not to accept a resolution like this and to delay providing for the very useful facilities asked for here would be a mistake. Even a keen businessman like Sir R. N. Mookerjee has been obliged to fall back upon Midnapore partition costs and the few other fancy toys in the Budget for everybody to draw upon. That shows the helplessness of the situation. We do not know from which head we should suggest drawing the necessary sum. But if the scheme finds sympathetic support from the Government, I am sure there will not be any difficulty in getting the money."

The Hon'ble BABU SURENDRA NATH RAY said :—

"My Lord, I support the resolution whole-heartedly. The efficiency of technical education given in Government schools has always been discounted by the fact that the students had not had in most cases that practical training in workshop which would enable them to use their theoretical knowledge to the best advantage and the result has been that in most cases the boys have not been able to find any employment. In Kanchrapara you have got the necessary machinery for practical training which is so much required at the present time in Bengal, and I would ask Your Excellency's Government most strongly to accept the resolution and to take steps at once to build a hostel and to arrange for taking a large number of students for mechanical training at Kanchrapara. Whatever view may be taken as to the urgency or the necessity or even as to the policy of partitioning the districts of Midnapore and Mymensingh during this war time, it can never be said that the schemes will suffer to any extent if less than 4 per cent. of the proposed expenditure for the partition of the districts of Midnapore and Mymensingh is diverted. On the merits of the resolution it is an undoubted fact that technical education far outweighs any question of mere administrative convenience and not of immediate necessity. There is, so far as I am aware, no accommodation for Indian students at Kanchrapara."

The Hon'ble MR. PROVASH CHUNDER MITTER said :—

"My Lord, I beg to support this resolution most heartily. We know that every year about sixteen to eighteen thousand students appear in the Matriculation examination and many of them fail. But whether they fail or they pass, they are, I say and I say with all deliberateness—they are, for want of future prospects a great menace to Bengal. It is of the utmost importance that as many as possible of these young men should be turned to practical works of life. It is of the utmost importance that new avenues of employment should be opened out to these young men and at a time like this, in a country like India so full of resources—and yet so little of practical results come out of these resources—it is of the greatest importance that our technical students should be given a practical training. I admit that this scheme of Rs. 50,000 is nothing ; but it is only a beginning and if this hostel be the means of training 50 boys, they will attract others in future. My Lord, when English education was started in this country it started with a very small beginning and if a few youths of Bengal ever takes to practical training, however small the beginning may be, with that training will come the solution of many problems. A place like Kanchrapara is an ideal place for the success of that experiment. The money after all is not much. It is to be found, if it is found, either by the Government or by the railway. The railway, for obvious reasons, is at the present moment not in a position to find the money. The Government may not find it easy to provide the money, but after all Rs. 50,000 is not much for the Government and if the money be found, it will serve a most useful purpose. If the money be found and if the experiment succeeds then I think in future a great number of our youths will be trained there and the community as a whole will be benefited. With these words I commend the resolution to the House."

Resolutions.

Dr. Howells ; Sir S. P. Sinha.

The Hon'ble Dr. HOWELLS said :—

"My Lord, I beg very heartily to support this resolution in the interest of general education and as something typical of what is very vitally necessary in our present educational machinery. As an example of what I mean I may say that I belong to a missionary society that supports several secondary schools in Bengal for the education of Bengalee boys. There is as we all know a great thirst for education in Bengal and boys flock from their villages to secondary schools wherever they possibly can. After they have been some years in the secondary schools it becomes perfectly clear that a number of them will never be able to go on to higher education. Intellectually they are not equal to it and yet it would not be right to say that these boys are not bright. We have established in connection with some of these schools manual training workshops. We found that while a boy had little or no chance of developing into a scholar or even, to the distinction of a "matriculation failed" yet he was really bright in the workshop, bright in sports and bright in general intelligence. The problem of what to do with boys of that character has been pressing us for some years and it affects a very large number in the secondary schools of Bengal. Prejudices regarding industrial training are gradually being removed. But these boys are quite unwilling, after they have been for a certain time in secondary schools, to go back and engage in agricultural works in view of the condition of agriculture at the present time. With agricultural improvements they may be willing to go back, but at present that is not the case, and what to do with boys of this character who have attained a certain standard of education is a very pressing problem. Only a few weeks ago the question came up before a Missionary Conference to which I belong and this very case of Kanchrapara was discussed as a very useful place where boys of this character could be sent. But missionary societies in these days have not abundant fund to spare and we were considering whether it would be wise to invest some money in a hostel of this character. But we felt that this was difficult owing to war conditions. I am therefore very glad to support this resolution of the Hon'ble Sir Rajendra Nath Mookerjee. If we want our educational plan to be wise and strong and efficient we shall have to face this problem of what to do with boys who have received a certain amount of education, but who are unfit, for various reasons, to take advanced work. We should do nothing to swell the great crowd of boys entering our colleges and who after some years in college are, perhaps, unfit for anything except a clerkship on Rs. 20 a month. Here is one way which may prove to be a solution of a very real difficulty and I trust that Government will give every consideration to this as typical of what may be done to solve the problem."

The Hon'ble SIR S. P. SINHA said :—

"My Lord, I think the previous speakers have made it abundantly clear that the Government and the public at large—all classes are at one with regard firstly, to the development of industries in India, and secondly, to the fact that that must be done as quickly as possible. The need for the development of Indian industries is universally admitted and it is a matter of pure common sense that in order to develop manufactures by machinery you must have mechanical engineers. The only way of getting a sufficient number of mechanical engineers is to train them here because it is impossible to get them in any large number from England now, both because of the distance and because of the salaries we shall have to pay in respect of people brought out from England and it will be increasingly difficult in the future. So fully alive is Government to this necessity that they have appointed for that purpose a Commission of which the Hon'ble Mover is such a distinguished member.

Resolutions.Sir S. P. Sinha.

The only question, therefore, is as to how to get these mechanical engineers who are so essential for the development of manufacturing industries in India.

Now the scheme to which the Hon'ble Sir R. N. Mookerjee refers, was prepared by the Governing Body of the Sibpur College and has been before Government only since the end of December last. I am mentioning this only to show why such an apparently useful object is not provided for in this year's Budget. It was not until just before Christmas that this scheme came up before Government, although I know that the report had been made some time ago; the matter has not yet been decided by the Government although I hope it will not be long before a decision is arrived at, and I have every hope that a favourable decision will be arrived at with regard to the recommendations of the Governing Body. Although, therefore, I may begin by saying that I am not able to accept the resolution in the form in which it is moved, I am able to assure my Hon'ble friend that steps will be taken the moment this scheme has been considered and a decision arrived at to give effect to it without the loss of a single possible moment. I am glad that the Hon'ble Sir R. N. Mookerjee has given me an opportunity to state the position of Government with regard to this matter, because from the resolution moved by my friend it seems to me that the public have no idea at all as to what the scheme is or what steps are in contemplation for the training of mechanical engineers in India.

Our present position is this, and I ask the Council's forbearance for a few minutes, because I think it necessary that the public should know what the position now is and how quickly we are going to improve it. When I have made that clear I think the Council will agree with me that we are moving with the times and as soon as a decision is arrived at, the scheme will be given effect to, not merely with regard to the very small part which Sir Rajendra Mookerjee has incorporated in his resolution, but with regard to the whole. Now, the present position is this—as regards the training of mechanical engineers.

At present we can train mechanical engineers in two ways. One is through the Sibpur College and the other is by training them in certain workshops, mostly railway workshops. So far as the Sibpur College is concerned there is a course of 4 years and boys enter at the age of 16 or 17 and study in the College for 4 years. They then go through a practical course of one year in the College workshops. During the whole of this period, so far as the Sibpur College is concerned, they obtain a certain amount of theoretical, but very little of practical instruction. That is one system. The other system is that of apprenticeship at workshops, principally railway workshops. That is a course of 5 or 6 years during which period they obtain a large amount of practical instruction, but very little theoretical instruction. I understand that they have got a sort of evening classes attached to these railway workshops. These are the only two ways in which we can train mechanical engineers at present here. In the former, they get a good deal of theoretical instruction and a certain amount of practical instruction and in the latter they get a good deal of practical, but very little of theoretical instruction. The result is that the first turns out a College product with little practical experience, while the second turns out practical men with insufficient theoretical education. That is the present position. The Governing Body of the Civil Engineering College appointed a sub-committee consisting of the Principal himself, the Director of Public Instruction, Mr. Harnett and Mr. Adams; and they made their report some time about the middle of last year in which they recommended that these two systems should be combined, that there should be more theoretical instruction given in the railway workshops where little theoretical instruction could now be given. They further recommend that when these boys have received theoretical instruction which will be afforded at the railway workshops plus a large amount of practical training they will get there, some of them will be good enough to profit by a further course of theoretical training and provision should be made in the Sibpur College for such of them as would be ready and willing to receive the higher theoretical training. These are the recommendations which they have made. You see therefore, that the scheme, as a whole, involves training in the railway workshops where there is no theoretical instruction given now and where practically only Anglo-Indian boys receive training now; it is proposed to train not only these boys, but also Indian boys and they should provide more higher theoretical instruction than they do at present and in order to educate a larger number of Indian boys, there should be hostels provided because, as has been pointed out by the learned Vice-Chancellor, it cannot be done without providing healthy residential quarters for these boys. I had better state what the scheme as a whole is so far as these workshops are concerned. They recommend that the Railway Companies should build and furnish the hostels and the technical institute; that the Railway Companies should staff the hostels; that Government should provide for the cost of the teaching staff and apparatus at the technical institute through a grant-in-aid to the Railway Companies; and that provision should be made for scholarships tenable by passed apprentices at Sibpur. It is not enough that the railway should provide the hostels. If you provide the hostels you go a certain way, but not far enough, because although the hostels at the railway workshops at Kanchrapara will enable them to receive Indian boys where they receive none now, the instruction will not be such as to render them capable of doing the higher class of work for which there is a demand. Now, it will do something, but not quite enough; you want more than that. You want not only the hostels built, furnished and staffed, but you want an increase in the teaching staff of the technical classes attached to these workshops; you want apparatus for these technical institutes and the committee recommend that the Government should pay for the increased staff and the apparatus that is necessary and that the railway should provide the hostels. They further recommend that it is not enough to provide for the instruction of foreman mechanics or mistris; you must provide for higher theoretical instruction; you won't provide that merely by giving a grant of Rs. 50,000 for a hostel which will probably house 100 or 150 students at a time, but you will have to provide hostels at various other places, such as Lilloah, Kharagpur and Jamalpur where there are workshops now. The Port Commissioners and other firms like Messrs. King & Co., Burn & Co., should be induced also to provide similar facilities so far as their workshops are concerned, but these companies do not now provide for technical instruction. The Council will, therefore, see that the scheme which is recommended is a large one and that it is only a small part of the scheme which requires that hostels should be provided amongst other places at Kanchrapara. Provision will have to be made at other places for hostels such as Lilloah and Kharagpur within this province and provision will further have to be made for an increase of the staff in the technical school and of apparatus necessary to raise the status of the classes so that they can train not merely mistris or even foreman mechanics, but real mechanical engineers.

The only reason why this scheme could not be budgetted this year was, as I have already told the Council, that the scheme did not come before the Government until about Christmas last year, that is, about two and half months ago. I have every reason to think that the scheme, as a whole, will be sanctioned. Even if we find that the railways are either unable or unwilling to provide any hostel we shall press it upon them, as judging from Sir William Meyer's statement on the Budget the railways seem to be rolling in money and I do not see why they should not pay for it because they will be immediately benefited by the scheme. Whether they do it or they do not, the beginning which my friend asks us to make is a very modest one and even if we cannot give effect to the scheme as a whole, we hope to be able to give effect to that portion of it which he recommends. What I ask on behalf of the Government is this : let us have an opportunity first of all of examining the scheme—it has been before us for only two months—and of seeing if we can carry out the scheme as a whole. If we can we shall do a great deal more than a mere provision of a hostel at Kanchrapara. If we find that we cannot do it either because the railways do not come into the scheme or because we are unable to provide the larger staff and apparatus and so forth that is necessary I can promise this Council that even if we cannot carry out the scheme as a whole, we shall carry out as much of it as we can. Government is thoroughly convinced that it is necessary, if we are to develop industries at all, that no time should be lost and that a beginning must be made as early as possible. I hope I have made it clear to the Council that there is no disposition whatsoever on the part of the Government to shirk its undoubted obligation in the matter and that the sympathy which I show to the scheme is not merely lip sympathy, but one which we desire to be translated into action at the earliest possible opportunity. I can assure my Hon'ble friend that we mean to do it either in the way he proposes or in some other way, but that the scheme is now before us and is receiving consideration ; and I have every reason to hope that within this year we shall be able to do what the Hon'ble Member desires and probably a good deal more."

Resolutions.Sir S. P. Sinha ; Sir Rajendra Mookerjee.

The Hon'ble SIR RAJENDRA MOOKERJEE said :—

"My Lord, I have to explain two points. The first and most important is that from what the Hon'ble Member has said no action can be taken unless and until the whole scheme is matured and sanctioned by Government. I am unable to accept his view, because it is known that in such matters Government moves slowly and that the result would be that years would be lost. The Governing Body of the Sibpur College have submitted a complete scheme which I admit may take a little time to be considered in all its bearings before Government sanctions the whole scheme. My resolution to build a hostel at Kanchrapara is a part of the complete scheme, and as I have already pointed out, if the money asked for is sanctioned to-day it will be at least twelve months before the hostel is completed and be ready for occupation. Surely the complete scheme now before the Government will (with any modifications that the Government may think fit to make) be passed and sanctioned before this, and we will thus save one year. Whatever form of modification the scheme may take the building of the hostel at Kanchrapara is a sine qua non, and once the hostel is provided the Superintendent of the workshops will be able to admit boys as apprentices. The question of the arrangement for higher theoretical training does not arise till the twelve months' apprenticeship which the students will have to undergo has expired. During this period they must prove their aptitude and physical fitness for workshop training and hard work, and consequently some of them may probably have to be weeded out at the end of the first year.

My Lord, I would explain that the European youths now engaged as apprentices get their theoretical training only in the night school and after being in the workshop for four years, are considered eligible and suitable for posts of mechanics with salaries ranging from Rs. 200 to Rs. 500 per month. Even if Indian boys get only the same facilities as Europeans in regard to their theoretical training, surely they will, after leaving the workshop with the usual diploma, be able to earn at least half as much as European youths, and I have hopes that some of them will earn the same pay as their European fellow-mates. If this be the case, our Indian boys will be more than contented, as their present prospects, even after passing B.Sc. or M.Sc., is not more than Rs. 50 to Rs. 100 a month. There can be no question that the complete scheme giving facilities for higher theoretical training is necessary, but pending its sanction, I fail to see why such a sum as that asked for in my resolution cannot be placed in the hands of the Railway authorities to enable them to commence the building of the hostel.

The second point raised by the Hon'ble Member was whether the Railway authorities will not provide the necessary expenditure for the hostel building. I beg to point out that for two reasons it is not possible for them to do so. First it is well known to every one of us that owing to war conditions the railways have been working under a severe strain, and have not been able to repair or replenish their rolling stock since the war began. Although Sir William Meyer announced in his budget speech that he had reserved 20 millions sterling for the purposes, I have stated every penny will be more than necessity for its legitimate object, namely the up-keeping of the different lines which is their life and soul, and consequently nothing will be available for building hostels. Besides the delay in carrying on negotiations will be enormous.

The second reason is that I am doubtful whether the Railway Board, or the Imperial Government will sanction an expenditure for the training of Bengalee boys. Facilities are already given for the education and training of European youths (sons of railway employees) to attract the fathers into the service of the Railway and also to get these European lads employed on railway work. I therefore again urge that immediate sanction be accorded to the expenditure referred to in my resolution. My Lord, I have not the facility to express in English such phrases as my Hon'ble friend, Sir Satyendra Prasanna Sinha, finds it so easy to command, nor am I competent to understand his diplomatic language such as "I have reason to believe," "I have every hope" and "we will give every consideration"—being a businessman I would prefer a plain answer. I am therefore compelled to ask Your Excellency to place my resolution before the Council, and although I am aware that the carrying of a resolution by this Council means nothing more than a recommendation, still I have great hopes that considering the support I have received from various Hon'ble Members, that my resolution will be carried and will at least have a moral effect.

The resolution was then put and agreed to.

APPENDIX TO THE LIST OF BUSINESS—ITEM No. X.

The Hon'ble BABU BHABENDRA CHANDRA RAY moved the following resolution :—

This Council recommends to the Governor in Council that—

- (a) Rs. 5,19,586 be allotted for payment to the District Boards as representing the total amount of deductions made by the Local Government from the augmentation grants for the years 1914-15, 1915-16 and 1916-17 ; and
- (b) this sum be provided for by a corresponding reduction either in the estimated expenditure under Police, or in that under New Major Works (Civil Works in charge of the Public Works Department).

He said :—

"My Lord, in moving a resolution in connection with the Financial Statement last year, I stated that nothing had puzzled me more than the short allotment under the head augmentation grant in the Budget. And, believe me, nothing has given me greater pleasure—of the unalloyed kind—this year than the just and ample provisions under this head in the revised estimates for the closing year as also in the Budget for 1918-19. I must express my thankfulness to Government for having given effect to my resolution by thus increasing the amount of the grant as allotted last year. The principle for which I contended was accepted by Sir Shams-ul-Huda ; and the present resolution is, as I look at it, upon a mere matter of detail and represents a minor complaint, in which, I hope, I shall have the sympathy of the Hon'ble Member in charge.

Having dealt with the subject of augmentation grant at some length last year, I shall not trespass upon the time and patience of the Council for more than a few minutes to-day. I desire, however, to briefly recapitulate the facts of the case now for enabling Hon'ble Members to understand the position clearly.

• The augmentation grant was instituted by the Government of India in 1905 for the benefit of District Boards and was fixed at $\frac{1}{4}$ of the Road cess so far as Bengal was concerned. The Provincial Government were charged with the duty of distributing this grant to the individual Boards, and they have been doing it ever since. Being thus fixed at 25 per cent. of the road cess, which is an expanding source of revenue in Bengal, this grant is also expensive in character and has gone on increasing. In 1905, the assignment made by the Imperial Government toward this grant was 12½ lakhs in Bengal as it was then constituted. With the formation of the new Presidency of Bengal in 1912, however, a new financial settlement was concluded between the Imperial and the Local Government; and among other assignments of the Government of India to the Government of Bengal, the augmentation grant was incorporated in the settlement figures. So that it is not possible to-day to point to a specific annual provision made by the Imperial Government for this purpose. And since 1912 the obligation of finding this fluctuating—I may say, steadily increasing—grant for the District Boards has been thus laid upon the Local Government among all the various terms and conditions of the financial settlement. So far with regard to the augmentation grant.

Now, My Lord, in 1913, there was a welcome accession of funds to the District Boards by the surrender to them of the entire public works cess receipts. In compensation for the surrender of this growing source of revenue, the Government of Bengal were given a fixed Imperial assignment of Rs. 24,93,000 a year, and were allowed to resume a provincial grant which the District Boards used to get under the name of equilibrium grant and which amounted to Rs. 4 lakhs 49 thousand annually. The Local Government have thus been getting practically Rs. 29,42,000 every year in exchange for the public works cess revenue.

But, My Lord, as the public works cess revenue was found to exceed this fixed assignment, the Local Government began quietly to curtail the amount of such annual excess from the augmentation grant. The practical effect of this arrangement was that it were as if the District Boards which got the fixed annual assignment of Rs. 29 lakhs 42 thousand and the public works cess still continued to be credited to the Provincial exchequer.

As this meant a steady and increasing loss of legitimate revenue to the District Boards, I moved a resolution in connection with the last Financial Statement for the purpose of ensuring a full allotment of this Imperial grant. Sir Shams-ul-Huda was pleased to accept that resolution, although he put it more on the ground of generosity than on that of justice. And Government have, I am grateful to observe, given effect to my resolution by budgetting for full payments in 1917-18 and 1918-19.

But, My Lord, what about the deductions made from the grant during the three immediately preceding years? On the last occasion, I ventured to express the hope that Government would make good these past appropriations as well, the amounts of which were stated to be Rs. 48,367 in 1914-15, Rs. 1,37,788 in 1915-16 and Rs. 3,33,431 in 1916-17, the total being Rs. 5,19,586.

Sir Shams-ul-Huda in his last budget speech referred to this matter and said that he could not make any promise of making good the short payments of these years. He further thought that as the payment of the grant was a matter of generosity on the part of Government, no question of claim could arise so far as these past deductions were concerned. I had pointed out that the initiation of the grant was no doubt an act of Imperial beneficence, but the Provincial Government had no authority to curtail it. To this Sir Shams-ul-Huda's reply was that 'the Government of Bengal had a share in that generosity, because they had to find the difference between the fixed assignment and the increased grant from year to year by reason of the increase in the receipts on the Road cess.' But here Sir Shams-ul-Huda had failed in his appreciation of the financial arrangement since the last provincial settlement. For since 1912, we have no more of fixed assignments from the Government of India on account of the augmentation grant. And this was stated very clearly in reply to my starred question No. 22 at the meeting of this Council dated 3rd July, 1917. And when the matter was made the subject of an interpellation by the Hon'ble Maharaja of Cossimbazar in the Imperial Legislative Council, Sir William Meyer also stated that the assignments on account of the augmentation grant 'are now merged in the adjusting entries made under the provincial settlement.'

My Lord, whatever may have been the case before, since the last provincial settlement, the payment of the augmentation grant—with all its possibilities of expansion—was made a charge upon the revenue of the province; and the imposition of this expansive liability is as much a feature of the last financial settlement as the assignment of the different expansive heads of revenue to the local Government. And if the Local Government were to make short payments of the augmentation grant, they would be quite as guilty of a breach of covenant as they would be if, for instance, they were making larger appropriations from the land revenue than allowed under the financial settlement.

My Lord, I maintain that there can be no question of generosity in this matter between the Local Government and the District Boards. Unless and until you cry off the bargain that you made in 1912, the liability of the Provincial Government to find the full amount of the augmentation grant from year to year is a very real one. If it is a generosity at all, it is a generosity of a compulsory character so far as the Local Government are concerned. I hope, therefore, that Government will not take up the absurd position of making full payment from 1917-18, while refusing to make good the short payments of past years.

My Lord, with regard to the reductions suggested in this resolution under other heads of expenditure, it is a mere matter of form. In restoring the amount of Rs. 5,19,586, Government will only be discharging a just liability. And as this amount justly belonged to others, but was spent by Government for purposes of their own, it will be for Government to decide where exactly to apply the pruning knife, so as to enable them to find the money now. But if I may explain why I suggest a curtailment of the Police Budget in particular, I shall say that I do not quite approve of the marvellous elasticity of police expenditure, which—to my mind—is not accompanied by a corresponding degree of efficiency. As, however, I know what strong advocates of the police we have in this House, with whom it would be foolish for me to cross swords, I thought it prudent to have a second string to my bow in the shape of the Public Works Department. My Lord, I hope you will agree with me when I say that a man—or a Government for the matter of that—should pay his debts, or, in other words, meet the claims of compulsory generosity, before he thinks of putting up fine buildings for his own use."

The Hon'ble SIR HENRY WHEELER said :—

"Sir, as the Hon'ble Mover has said, this matter was argued in Council in connection with last year's Budget, and therefore I propose to deal with it somewhat shortly. The main point at issue between the Hon'ble Member and ourselves is that what he says is an act of mere justice we allege to be an act of generosity. The position is this. In 1905-06 the Government of India in their desire to encourage the development of local self-government increased the resources of District Boards by a grant equivalent to 25 per cent. of the net road cess collections, and this was known as the augmentation grant. The District Boards had no claim to receive this sum; the giving of it was an act of generosity on the part of Government. In 1913-14, the Government of India, from similar motives, went further, and made over to District Boards the whole of the public works cess which up to that time had been absorbed by Government, leaving merely the road cess to the District Boards. This, again, was an act of generosity. On both occasions the usual procedure was followed by the Government of India of making an assignment to the Local Government calculated on the basis of the amount by which the latter would be a loser. When these orders were received in 1913-14, our predecessors—Lord Carmichael's Government—Sir William Duke then being the Finance Member—took the perfectly permissible view that, in so far as the province was losing a source of growing revenue in the public works cess, with a corresponding advantage to the District Boards as the cess receipts rose year by year, the augmentation grant might be reduced to the extent of any excess of the income from public works cess over the assignment figure. That is to say, the augmentation grant was reduced by the sum which the Local Government would have received had they retained the public works cess, and this course was adopted for three years 1914 to 1917. On the occasion of the last Budget, the Hon'ble Member raised this same point, asserting that the District Boards had been thus deprived of monies which they were entitled to get, and the Government of that time said that they were willing in future to discontinue these deductions. But they distinctly declined to give retrospective effect to that concession. The Hon'ble Sir Shams-ul-Huda definitely said.—

Resolutions.Babu Bhabendra Chandra Ray; Sir Henry Wheeler.

'I am sorry that, although we intend to pay the full amount of the augmentation grant, we can make no promise to make good the short payments that were made during the last few years.'

Our predecessors, who were responsible for this arrangement, therefore, declined to make a further payment, and I do not think the present Government would be well advised to depart from that decision and now to allocate to District Boards a large sum to which they have no actual or definite right."

The Hon'ble BABU BHABENDRA CHANDRA RAY said :—

"My Lord, it may be an act of generosity so far as the Imperial Government is concerned, but I do not think it is in any way clear to us that it is not an act of compulsory generosity on the part of the Provincial Government. If the Hon'ble Member in charge intends to have the matter referred to the Imperial Council for the purpose of eliciting their opinion, I can withdraw this resolution. Otherwise, I would press this resolution for the acceptance of the Council."

The Hon'ble SIR HENRY WHEELER said :—

"Sir, I presume the Hon'ble Member refers to the Imperial Government and not to the Imperial Council. I may say that prior to the Budget discussions of last year our predecessors informally brought the matter to the notice of the Government of India, and the latter, in replying, presumed that it was not intended to give retrospective effect to the new arrangement."

The Hon'ble BABU BHABENDRA CHANDRA RAY said :—

"My Lord, in that event I beg to withdraw this resolution."

The resolution was then, by leave of the President, withdrawn.

Resolutions.

Maulvi Fazl-ul Haq.

APPENDIX TO THE LIST OF BUSINESS—ITEM No. XI.

The Hon'ble MAULVI FAZL-UL HAQ moved the following resolution :—

This Council recommends to the Governor in Council that—

- (a) with a view to the establishment of a Muhammadan Arts College in Calcutta a lump provision of Rs. 2,00,000 (Rs. 1,00,000 recurring and Rs. 1,00,000 non-recurring) be made in the Budget ; and
- (b) the expenditure be met by curtailing the expenditure on the following items by 20 per cent. either by revision of estimates or partial stoppage of the works contemplated—
 - (i) works in progress of the Police Department in connection with the reorganization of the Eastern Bengal Police (Budget provision Rs. 6,75,000) ;
 - (ii) construction of buildings in connection with the partition of Midnapore (Budget provision Rs. 6,64,000) ;
 - (iii) acquisition of land in connection with the partition of Mymensingh (Budget provision Rs. 6,50,000) ;
 - (iv) additional temporary force, Intelligence Branch (Budget provision Rs. 1,04,308) ; and
 - (v) increase of temporary force for District Intelligence staff (Budget provision Rs. 2,13,446).

He said :—

" My Lord, this question of the establishment of a Muhammadan Arts College is really a very old one and in one respect it is even older than the Legislative Council. It was so long ago as the year 1784 that a committee was appointed by the first Governor-General, Mr. Warren Hastings, to consider the advisability of the establishment of two colleges in Calcutta, one for Hindus and the other for Muhammadans. At that time it was very rightly decided that the establishment of denominational colleges in the then existing circumstances of the country would be somewhat premature, but still, as a result of the deliberations of that committee, we had the Sanskrit College and the Calcutta Madrassa. I will not take up the time of this Council with all that happened since then up to the present time as to the advisability of having such a college in Calcutta, but I would only wish to draw the notice of your Excellency's Government to the fact that this question has been discussed several times not merely in this Council, but also on public platforms and in the public press ; and I think I can say this, without any fear of contradiction from any quarter, that the necessity and importance of such a college is now admitted, and the only reason given by Government so far for not undertaking the establishment of a Muhammadan Arts College in Calcutta, is the excuse of want of funds. I do not mean any reflection on the Government when I use the word 'excuse' ; I know the financial stress through which we are passing, and I am only using the word in its ordinary sense as a reason for not taking up the scheme of such an urgent character.

My Lord, I find that in the year 1871, a committee was again appointed which recommended the establishment of an Arts College for Muhammadans ; but nothing came of the deliberations of that committee either. The question was again taken up at a public meeting held in 1908 at the Town Hall, a meeting at which the Hon'ble Sir Syed Shams-ul Huda took a very leading part and who pointed out that the establishment of a Muhammadan College in Calcutta was a matter of the utmost necessity. Then the question was repeatedly pressed upon the Government, when at last Government felt convinced that the time had come when the college ought to be established, and there was a time when we felt that the college was only a question of a few months. We have been expecting in vain. Our community feel so strongly on the question that at the last session of the Muhammadan Educational Conference held in Calcutta, a resolution was passed urging upon the Government the necessity of establishing the College as early as possible, and I may inform this Council that at a public meeting held a few days ago, a strong and influential committee has been appointed for taking steps for the purpose of raising funds to establish the college. The reason why we wish to have this college established soon may be briefly stated to be this: it is well known that at the present moment restrictions have been put on the number of students to be admitted at every college, and although in most of these colleges seats have been reserved for Muhammadans, the total number of such seats falls far short of the required number; the result is that every year on an average no less than four to five hundred students have got to give up study simply for want of accommodation in the colleges. At the present moment, it is, I think, a matter on which there can be no difference of opinion, that the Muhammadan community cannot afford to have so many boys go without education, simply because there is no college in Calcutta to admit them. My estimate of four to five hundred students not getting admission, may not be quite accurate, but I think that even if the Government do not see their way to accepting this resolution, they will admit that a large number of Muhammadan students are turned out, year after year, because there is not sufficient accommodation in the colleges to admit them. The question, however, is want of funds; for only recently when I put an interpellation in this Council, the reply that was given to me was this:—

'A scheme for the establishment of a Muhammadan College at Calcutta has been prepared but is in abeyance, both because the funds required for its establishment are not at present available and also because it is considered desirable not to proceed with the scheme until the Calcutta University Commission has submitted its report, and orders have been passed on its recommendations.'

My Lord, that gives at once the reason why Government have not been able to establish this college, and with a view to strengthen the hands of Government, I have put forward my suggestions in this resolution. It was only recently that I drafted a Bill for levying an education cess on the Muhammadans, and I fully expected that that Bill would be accepted; at any rate I would get permission to have it introduced into this Council and circulated amongst my community in order to elicit criticisms on the provisions of the Bill. Unfortunately, however, Government did not see its way to grant me that permission. I, therefore, beg to point out to your Excellency's Government that although funds may not be available so far as the present budget provisions are concerned, there is a way in which we can, if Government so desire, set apart such a modest sum as two lakhs of rupees in order to carry out this much desired object. I have, therefore, indicated five heads of expenditure, and I have not asked that any of these items be deleted from the budget altogether, but that a slice should be taken from out of each up to 20 per cent., which gives me a total of a little over 4 lakhs, and I have suggested that out of this 2 lakhs be set apart for the establishment of a Muhammadan Arts College in Calcutta. The first item from which I suggest that money may be taken is one about works in progress of the Police Department in connection with the reorganisation of the Eastern Bengal Police (Budget provision of Rs. 6,75,000). Your Excellency will see that this provision of 6½ lakhs is not likely to be spent in its entirety during the next year; at any rate the work may be taken up and fairly a large portion may be completed and a small slice may be left over for this purpose. Then comes the construction of buildings in connection with the partition of Midnapore (Budget provision Rs. 6,64,000); and here again the entire work need not be suspended, but a slice can be taken out of the lump provision, and so on with regard to the other items which I have mentioned in my resolution. With these observations, I commend my resolution to the acceptance of Your Excellency's Council."

The Hon'ble Mr. AMINUR RAHMAN said :—

"My Lord, the Hon'ble Mr. Fazl-ul Haq has referred to the organisation that has been started for the collection of funds with a view to the establishment of a Muhammadan Arts College in Calcutta. I do not wish to repeat all that has fallen from the lips of my Hon'ble friend, but I must emphasise the fact that the Muhammadans were encouraged to believe at one time that the Government would undertake the task of establishing such a college. Some years ago before the war the then member in charge of Muhammadan Education held out hopes to the Muhammadan public to this effect. He did so because he realised the necessity for the establishment of such a college and also because he felt that there was a genuine demand for it from the Muhammadan public. Unfortunately, the war intervened, and the Government had to reconsider their views not only in this matter, but in all matters which contemplated expenditure on fresh accounts. But the Muhammadans have thought it proper to insist on the carrying out of the scheme in view of the difficulties which Muhammadan boys have to experience in getting admission into colleges and also on account of the fact that nearly 500 or 600 boys every year have to give up the idea of prosecuting their studies in Calcutta simply because there is not sufficient accommodation for them in colleges and hostels. That being the case, the Muhammadan public have to organise their efforts in order to bring relief to the boys in this matter. From time to time the subject has been pressed upon the attention of the Government in the Council. But the Government have always rejected the proposal on the ground of the necessity of retrenchment at the present moment and sometimes the Muhammadans have been told that Government like the Almighty helped those who helped themselves. The Muhammadans of Bengal have now started an organisation for giving effect to this principle of self-help. At one time I thought that any attempt to raise money at the present time is doomed to failure. But the need is so urgent and the condition has become so serious that we believe we shall be able to persuade the public to contribute what little they can spare to make a start, and for the future we shall be quite content to leave the matter to the good sense of the public and the Government to carry through. It has been often said that the Church is never so active as when it is in debt. That is also true of an institution of this kind. We have every hope that the people of the land will awaken to a sense of duty and exert themselves to maintain the institution once it is founded. But we realise the fact that it is responsible to collect sufficient funds to establish and maintain a first-grade college at present. We have approached the Government for funds for two reasons :— (1) without Government assistance we cannot start or go on and (2) if the Government could make a handsome contribution it will help up considerably in raising funds. The men whom we would approach would at once realise that it has every hope of becoming a going concern. I should like to mention at this stage that if provision were made for the admission of Muhammadan boys to the extent of 50 per cent. of the total number in Government colleges and 30 per cent. in aided colleges, we would not feel the necessity of establishing a Muhammadan college at once. We cannot imagine what the recommendations of the Calcutta University Commission will be in this respect. On Saturday last I had the honour of introducing a deputation of influential Muhammadans to the Commission, and in our representation we have mentioned about the promise of the Government to give the Muhammadans a separate college. Whatever may be the recommendations of the Commission, and I have every hope that some of our suggestions will be accepted, we cannot get away from the fact that the problem of providing collegiate education for 500 or 600 Muhammadan students must be tackled at once."

Resolutions.

Mr. M. Asraf Ali; Babu Akhil Chandra Datta; Sir S. P. Sinha.

The Hon'ble MR. M. ASRAF ALI KHAN CHAUDHURI said :—

"My Lord, I feel it is my duty to support this resolution. Only last year I moved a resolution exactly of this nature. In fact, I asked for the establishment of a Muhammadan Arts College and to grant the money from the sum allotted for the partition of Midnapore.

My Lord, the history of this affair has been given by the Hon'ble Mover, the reason why it is required has also been given and I do not want to waste the time of this Council in repeating this case over again. It is an open secret that the Government know very well that the college is required and is absolutely necessary for the Muhammadan boys. They know very well that the Muhammadan boys after passing the matriculation examination go away from Calcutta not being able to get any accommodation in some of the colleges. The Government knew of this fact and the Government thought it was necessary and went so far as to acquire land near the Wellesley Square, where the Calcutta Madrassa is, with the intention of building a college there and the college is still being built. My Lord, I do not want to take up much time, but want to say this much that many promises have been made to us, but it appears that they have not been made from the heart."

The Hon'ble BABU AKHIL CHANDRA DATTA said :—

"My Lord, as a Hindu Member of this Council I certainly feel it my duty to associate myself with this resolution to which I give my hearty support. It is an old complaint of the Muhammadans, who are still very backward in education, and it is high time that a strenuous effort should be made to bring them in the same line with the Hindus in the matter of education. I have great pleasure, my Lord, in supporting this resolution."

The Hon'ble SIR S. P. SINHA said :—

"My Lord, this is one of our hardy annuals. As the Hon'ble Mr. Asraf Ali Khan has told us just now, last year we had precisely the same resolution moved by the Hon'ble Mr. Asraf Ali Khan and one of a similar purport by the Hon'ble Maulvi Fazl-ul Huq. I do not propose to go into the question of the importance, or the urgency of the provision of a Muhammadan Arts College in Calcutta. With regard to that, my predecessor, Sir Syed Shams-ul-Huda, who, I have no doubt, had the interest of Muhammadan education as much at heart as any Hon'ble Member of this Council, said this: 'This question has been discussed threadbare before this Council and the Council has already accepted the importance and urgency of the matter.' Therefore I do not propose to go into that at all. Admittedly the matter is important and I think it is urgent. I think admittedly also the Government has been trying its best to give the Muhammadans the college they want. In 1915, we sent up a proposal to the Government of India for that very purpose, and it was proposed that the existing Madrassa buildings should be demolished and the site utilised for the Arts College, the Arabic Department and the Moslem Institute, and that a new Anglo-Persian school should be erected on an adjoining plot of land, the hostel being removed to the Elliot Hostel for the extension of which land has recently been acquired. We went so far as to acquire a site for the purpose in Wellesley Square at a cost of Rs. 1,23,000. Now the scheme which we sent up was to cost, so far as capital expenditure was concerned, about Rs. 18 lakhs, including the provision of land, and Rs. 70,000 a year for the recurring expenses, after deducting the money to be received from fees. The Government of India sent that scheme back and told us that it was too ambitious and that we must cut it down. We did that and we sent up a scheme which provided that instead of demolishing the old Madrassa, it be allowed to stand where it is and the building be utilised at present for the college and afterwards when we can build a better and more spacious building for the college it might be utilised for the school. The reduced scheme which we sent up was to cost about Rs. 4 lakhs for the building and Rs. 52,000 a year for the recurring cost after deducting the income we expect to make from fees. Short of that we cannot have a college worthy of the name. The resolution proposes to give two lakhs of rupees for the capital cost; this is too little, as we shall not be able to build half of the college with that sum, and a lakh of rupees a year, which is more than what is required for the recurring cost; for that very reason it is impossible to accept the resolution. You provide less than you require to build a college and you provide more than what you require to run it. If that was all, the thing could be remedied very easily. Why not give four lakhs for the building of the college and cut down the recurring cost to Rs. 82,000 a year. But I would ask in all earnestness—would it be reasonable on the part of a prudent person, much more of the Government, to take up a scheme of building a college in Calcutta, apart from any question of financial stringency, when there is a Commission whose report on the question of colleges generally is expected to be ready in another two or three months. One of the matters referred to this Commission is whether the colleges in Calcutta should remain where they are or whether they should be removed somewhere else, say, the suburbs, how they should be equipped, what should be the course of instruction, and so forth. Would it be the part of a prudent Government to undertake a scheme without knowing what the provision for what college should be? But, again, it may be said 'begin with something, and you can alter and change when the report is received.' I have already said that it would not be prudent on our part to do so. How are we going to get the staff when we find it rather difficult to recruit them for our existing colleges now? It is impossible to get enough people for the Indian Educational Service at present, and with regard to getting them from the Provincial Educational Services this is what Sir Syed Shams-ul-Huda said on the last occasion. After stating that a second grade college, which was attempted to be carried on, of which he himself was a member of the teaching staff, proved a failure, he said :—

Resolutions.Sir S. P. Sinha.

'To have a first grade college with a number of men all in the Provincial Educational Service will not, I think, satisfy the demands of the Muhammadan community, and even then the cost would be considerable. We were in hopes that we would be able to establish a Muhammadan college worthy of the community before the war, but when the war came we all realised that having regard to the large sums involved, it was not possible to carry the scheme into effect soon.'

So even if we had the money and we made up our mind to have a college, we could not get a first class college such as the Muhammadans would care to have.

In the next place, the resolution only asks for Rs. 2 lakhs, but as I have already said that you could not do without four lakhs non-recurring and 52,000 recurring. Moreover we could not accept the resolution because we had not the power to do so, as we would have to get the sanction of the Government of India and indeed of the Secretary of State. We cannot get the money and we cannot get the staff, and even if we did, it would be necessary, I submit, even then to wait till we knew what the recommendations of the University Commission would be with regard to a matter of this kind. Both the Hon'ble Mr. Aminur Rahaman and the Hon'ble Mr. Asraf Ali Khan Chaudhury, though greatly disappointed at the reply given by the Hon'ble Nawab Shams-ul-Huda, understood, as far as I could judge, that it was impossible to carry out even the modest scheme which had been proposed until after the war was over. I suppose that by moving this resolution my friends want to reiterate their grievances in this matter and to see that the attention of the Government did not flag; we are anxious to do it the moment conditions enable us. Another point has been mentioned that there is a great difficulty for Muhammadan boys in obtaining admission to colleges. I think that this is somewhat exaggerated. Shortly before that resolution was moved last year there was an order passed by which 25 per cent. of the seats in all colleges is reserved for Muhammadans, and I know this, so far at any rate as one college is concerned, and that is the premier college in Calcutta, that they have not been able to get anything like 25 per cent. of applications from Muhammadan students. I do not know what it may be with regard to other colleges; but from all that I have been able to ascertain, it does not appear that the difficulty is anything like so great as my friends apprehend. In any case, I do not think I could do more than this and say that we have already promised to have an Arts College for Muhammadans in Calcutta the moment conditions render it possible for us to do so, unless the recommendations of the University Commission oblige us to have a different kind of college."

Resolutions.Sir Henry Wheeler.

The Hon'ble SIR HENRY WHEELER said :—

"Sir, the proposals as to the heads from which money is, in this instance, to be found involve three rather important items in the Police Budget, which also appear in two subsequent resolutions. It might be convenient, therefore, if I intervened at this stage to explain briefly what these items are, in order that the Council may not decide this question without precisely knowing what they are recommending. The items I refer to, are Nos. (i), (iv) and (v).

The argument of the Hon'ble Mover is generally to the effect that from the fairly large sum covered by item (i) we could easily spare something, but as a matter of fact, we cannot do so. The history of the case is that this provision was made in continuation of a scheme which was initiated by the late Government of Eastern Bengal and Assam as far back as 1910. Subsequent to the formation of that province the whole question of the adequacy of the police arrangements was examined by the Local Government, and a very large scheme was prepared and submitted to the Government of India, involving an initial expenditure of some Rs. 17 lakhs and Rs. 6 lakhs recurring. The figures were reduced, on scrutiny, to something over Rs. 15 and 5 lakhs, respectively, and to that extent an assignment was made to the late Government of Eastern Bengal and Assam in order to carry out these reforms. Part of the changes contemplated involved the creation of 65 new investigating centres, 35 of which are under construction at a total cost of Rs. 10,59,000, of which rather over Rs. 4 lakhs was provided during the current year. In addition to the balance of Rs. 6,49,000, the Inspector-General desires to take up seven more of these centres at a cost of Rs. 2,19,000. Therefore, against his total demand of Rs. 8,68,000, we have only given him Rs. 6,75,000, and the Council will see that we are thus barely meeting the cost of works which are already in progress and which must therefore go on.

The next Item No. (iv) relates to additional temporary force for the Intelligence Branch, which falls under various heads, all, I submit, being required. It has been found necessary, owing to developments in Bengal, to strengthen the superior staff which deals with Intelligence work in Calcutta, and that accounts for a charge of Rs. 27,000. Additions have also had to be made to the subordinate force, together with a revision of the clerical establishment in the Intelligence Branch, with a view to enabling it to cope with the very large increase of detailed work which now devolves upon it. Similarly, expenditure had to be incurred on printing arrangements. All these items are connected with Intelligence work. Other items relate to the temporary staff for the supervision of criminal tribes, being the sequence of the more energetic steps which have been taken in recent years to exercise control over these people. Similarly, an increase in the number of dacoity cases has required an addition in the staff at a cost of some Rs. 17,000. A detective school at Howrah has been started as an experiment, at a cost of about Rs. 23,000, in the hope of improving the detective ability of the members of the police force.

The items under head (v), which amount to Rs. 2,23,446, are really in continuance of the development of the existing staff. In the old days when the necessity was first experienced of entertaining special Intelligence staffs in the districts it was met by the unsatisfactory expedient of deputing men from the Central Bureau. In 1912, however, it was recognised that a more appropriate arrangement would be to reinforce the local staffs, and a force was sanctioned for the purpose, to which additions were made in the following year and again in 1916. These men are an integral part of the district force, although employed on work connected with political Intelligence. Recent developments have shown that our establishments require to be further strengthened, and the provision in the Budget is made with the idea of providing three Additional Superintendents of Police who will give their time to this special work, together with a subordinate staff of inspectors, sub-inspectors, head-constables, constables and clerks.

In view of what I have said, Sir, we should regard all these items as scarcely capable of reduction."

The Hon'ble MAULVI A. K. FAZL-UL HAQ said :—

"My Lord, I never apprehended that my resolution would encounter a double-barrelled opposition although I must confess that I never expected that it will have a smooth walk over in this Council. This is not the first time that I have brought forward this resolution for discussion and to-day perhaps it would not be the first or the last time when my hopes of success would be disappointed. The reply on behalf of the Government has been given by one of the ablest advocates in India, but I am very sorry to have to confess that his advocacy has not convinced me. The Hon'ble Sir S. P. Sinha has said that Government will try their very best to give us the college we want and I say in reply that we will try our very best to accept that assurance, but at the same time I wish to remind the Members of Government that we are after all human beings and that our patience has got human limitations. It is true my suggestion is for two lakhs only. Of course so far as the initial expenditure is concerned, it is far too little and so far as the recurring expenditure is concerned it is a little in excess of what may be necessary. The reason is that I felt apprehensive that a demand for more than two lakhs would be met with stern refusal, and I had hopes that a modest demand like this may perhaps induce the Government to accept the resolution. So far as the four lakhs is concerned I wish to point out that 20 per cent. taken out of the five items of expenditure I have indicated in the resolution give us a little over four lakhs and I may tell this Council that if Government can see their way to accept this resolution even in a modified form, I will not proceed with the other resolutions. I find that some of the resolutions on the agenda in my name are already down in the name of other members, so that so far as the money for the expenditure is concerned, I do not wish to draw upon these five items of expenditure for the other subjects to which my other resolutions relate.

As regards the statement that there was one college in Calcutta which could not get even 25 per cent. of the seats reserved for Muhammadans filled by Muhammadan applicants, I do not know which college is meant, but I am sure it must be a very bad college which could not attract 25 per cent. of Muhammadan students. But even if there is such a college I do not think it can be put forward as an argument that we will not have a sufficient number of students to start the college. That, I submit, is a position which cannot be taken up by Government after they have admitted that to establish a Muhammadan College is not merely necessary but is also urgent.

Lastly as regards the recommendations of the Universities Commission I do not think that that really stands in our way. I may mention in this Council that the committee which has been appointed to raise funds towards this object and of which my friend the Hon'ble Mr. Aminur Rahman is the Secretary is already busy raising funds and the only reason why I have brought forward this resolution was to get from Government some money in order to give their project a start.

Before I sit down I wish to say that the suggestion of two lakhs is not a suggestion to which I wish to adhere strictly. If even a lakh of rupees is given to us in order to help us carry this project through, it will be a great help to the community. More than that we do not want, and I am quite prepared to modify the proposals contained in my resolution if only I get an assurance from the Government that my modified resolution will meet with the acceptance of the Government. With these few observations I commend this resolution to the Council."

*Resolutions.Maulvi Fazl-ul Haq ; Maulvi Abul Kasem ; Mr. Beatson Bell.APPENDIX TO THE LIST OF BUSINESS—ITEM No. XII.

The HON'BLE MAULVI FAZL-UL HAQ moved the following resolution :—

This Council recommends to the Governor in Council that—

- (a) a lump provision of Rs. 25,000 be made in the Budget for the improvement in pay and prospects of clerks and mohurrirs in the Registration Department ; and
- (b) the expenditure be met by curtailing the expenditure on the following items by 20 per cent. either by revision of estimates or partial stoppage of the works contemplated
 - (i) works in progress of the Police Department in connection with the reorganisation of the Eastern Bengal Police (Budget provision Rs. 6,75,000) ;
 - (ii) construction of buildings in connection with the partition of Midnapore (Budget provision Rs. 6,64,000) ;
 - (iii) acquisition of land in connection with the partition of Mymensingh (Budget provision Rs. 6,50,000) ;
 - (iv) additional temporary force, Intelligence Branch (Budget provision Rs. 1,04,308) ; and
 - (v) increase of temporary force for District Intelligence staff (Budget provision Rs. 2,13,446).

He said :—

" My Lord, I moved a similar resolution on a previous occasion, when I was informed that a scheme for the improvement in the pay and prospects of clerks and mohurrirs had already been prepared and had not been given effect to for want of funds. I do not know what the position is at the present moment. But if that is the only reason, I will submit that the suggestion I have given in the resolution for acquiring the money ought to be able to meet the necessities for giving effect to this urgent reform. The sum of Rs. 25,000 may not be quite sufficient. But the reason why I have put down this sum is that calculating at the rate of increase of Rs. 5 per month in the pay of clerks and mohurrirs this sum may be sufficient. But if more money is needed it can be provided for by getting the amount of four lakhs by the process of taking 20 per cent. out of the five items I have suggested. This is a resolution which I hope does not require very many words from me, and I hope it will be accepted by the Government."

The Hon'ble MAULVI ABUL KASEM said :—

" My Lord, I just want to raise my voice on behalf of a class of neglected public servants. They are a very hard-working class of men and are very miserably paid. As my hon'ble friend has told this Council, a scheme—the reorganisation scheme of the Registration Department—has already been framed, but has not been given effect to because our resources are limited. I submit, my Lord, that it all depends upon the strength of pressure brought upon the Financial Department by the various heads of departments by which funds can be provided for the needs of other departments. And although I find that for the requirements of the police, in many cases even for their luxury, funds are available and yet a small amount is not available for a small increment in the pay of these poorly paid public servants. I hope, however, that this resolution will be accepted by the Government."

The Hon'ble MR. BEATSON BELL said :—

" My Lord, I need only say that this Government has much sympathy with the clerical establishment of the Registration Department. In the year

Resolutions.Maulvi Fazl-ul Haq ; The President.

1916, we drew up a comprehensive scheme and submitted it to the Government of India and the Secretary of State. This scheme contemplated an annual expenditure not of Rs. 25,000 but Rs. 1,37,780 per annum. The Secretary of State sanctioned the whole scheme on the distinct understanding that it would not be brought into force until the financial situation was better. That was the exact position when this subject was brought before us last year, and it was explained to the Hon'ble Members by the Hon'ble Nawab Sir Syed Shams-ul-Huda, who said : 'The Secretary of State has given conditional sanction to this expenditure, that is to say, to give effect to it on the improvement of the financial position. We cannot go against this.'

Thereupon the Hon'ble Maulvi Fazl-ul Haq withdrew his resolution. I am sorry to say the position has not changed in any way. It is true that instead of a lakh the Hon'ble mover has this year reduced his demand to Rs. 25,000, but I am afraid that according to financial rules it is not open to this Government, when it has sent up a comprehensive scheme and has got it sanctioned under distinct conditions, to introduce it piecemeal and without regard to these conditions."

The Hon'ble MAULVI FAZL-UL HAQ said:—

"My Lord, the Hon'ble Member in charge is well known for his sympathy for all classes of public servants, especially for poorly paid public servants, and if he says that it is not possible to carry this into effect at present, I do not wish to press this resolution."

The resolution was then, by leave of the President, withdrawn.

APPENDIX TO THE LIST OF BUSINESS—ITEMS Nos. XIII, XIV AND XV.

The PRESIDENT said :—

"I would point out to Hon'ble Members that the next three resolutions deal substantially with the same question. It will be convenient if a general discussion takes place on one only. If the movers desire to move them they can do so after the general discussion takes place. A mere repetition of the discussion will be out of order. I would suggest that a general discussion take place on the first of the three, and if the Hon'ble Members, in whose name the two subsequent motions stand, desire to move them after a decision has been given on the first, they should do so formally."

APPENDIX TO THE LIST OF BUSINESS—ITEM No. XIII.

The Hon'ble MAULVI FAZL-UL HAQ moved the following resolution :—

This Council recommends to the Governor in Council that—

- (a) with a view to give immediate effect to the recommendations of the Public Services Commission regarding the improvement in pay and prospects of Munsiffs and Subordinate Judges, a lump provision of Rs. 1,25,000 be made in the Budget; and
- (b) the expenditure be met by curtailing the expenditure on the following items by 20 per cent. either by revision of estimates or partial stoppage of the works contemplated—
 - (i) works in progress of the Police Department in connection with the reorganization of the Eastern Bengal Police (Budget provision Rs. 6,75,000);

Resolutions.

Babu Surendra Nath Ray.

- (ii) construction of buildings in connection with the partition of Midnapore (Budget provision Rs. 6,64,000);
- (iii) acquisition of land in connection with the partition of Mymensingh (Budget provision Rs. 8,50,000);
- (iv) additional temporary force, Intelligence Branch (Budget provision Rs. 1,04,308); and
- (v) increase of temporary force for District Intelligence staff (Budget provision Rs. 2,13,446).

He said :—

“My Lord, only the other day in answer to an interpellation of mine. Government said that it was not possible for them to state when final orders would be passed on the report of the Royal Commission. This resolution deals with a subject which, to use the words of Sir S. P. Sinha, is one of the hardy annuals which this Council has to meet year after year. The subject has come up for discussion continuously for the last three years, and although there has been no mistake as to the trend of public opinion on the subject, it is extremely unfortunate that we have not been able to induce Government to do something to improve the pay and prospects of the officers of the Judicial Branch of the Provincial Civil Service. In the year 1915, the Hon'ble Mr. Cumming, on behalf of the Government, gave an assurance that the recommendations of the Public Services would soon be taken into consideration, and he asked the members of the Judicial Service to possess their souls in patience, and he gave them hopes that before long their grievances in the matter of at least the initial pay would be redressed. After that, I brought forward a resolution which was, however, not accepted by this Government, and only last year a resolution to this effect was moved and debated. The necessity for raising the initial salary has been admitted even by Government, and here again the only reason for not giving effect to this much-needed reform is that sufficient funds are not available. It now remains for Your Excellency's Government to consider whether such a much-needed reform should be postponed in view of the fact that money is being spent on projects, a portion of which, at any rate, could be held over for a certain time. It is true, as the Hon'ble Sir Henry Wheeler has pointed out, that the items of expenditure relating to the partition of Mymensingh and Midnapore and certain items of Police reform are very important and very urgent. I do not for a moment dispute either the importance or the urgency; I do not suggest that these schemes should be abandoned altogether; as I have submitted in connection with the previous resolution, all that I propose is that a slice may be taken out from each of these five projects, and the money thus yielded will be more than sufficient to carry out this much-needed reform. I do not wish to take up the time of this Council, and with these few words, I commend this resolution to the acceptance of Your Excellency's Government.”

The Hon'ble BABU SURENDRA NATH RAY said :—

“Probably Government will consider that it has become the fashion with most of the non-official Indian members of this Council to move this resolution year after year. We have been trying for the last few years to redress a wrong done to a deserving class of public officers by increasing their initial pay from Rs. 200 to Rs. 250. but without success. Since I have been a member of this Council I have pointed out almost every year during the Budget discussion the just claims of these officers of Government, I mean the Munsiffs, to higher emolument than that they have been getting at present. It is about six years ago that the Government was pleased to raise the initial pay of the members of the Provincial Executive Service from Rs. 200 to Rs. 250, and this brought satisfaction to them. But what is it that prevented the Government from raising the initial pay of the members of the Provincial Judicial Service, I mean the Munsiffs, from Rs. 200 to Rs. 250? These deserving class of public officers are not at all costly to Government compared with the amount of work done by them. As I have more than once said in this Council these officers of Government have actually been minting money for Government in the remotest parts of the country and bringing home to the poorest agriculturist the idea of British justice. People of all shades of opinion have testified to their work and to their usefulness, and Government appreciate them. But in spite of all this, their claim have remained neglected. Whereas a member of the Provincial Executive Service has to begin his official career at the age of 24 or utmost 25 and has to administer criminal justice without having any training in law and without, in many instances, passing the B. L. examination of the Calcutta University, these Munsiffs who administer civil law in the Presidency have to pass the B. L. examination of the University and have to practise as a lawyer for at least three years before his name is registered for an appointment. It is seldom that he can get himself thus registered before the age of 27, which is again the maximum age at which he ought to do so. Under the rules he must get an acting appointment before 29. It is generally at the age of 30 or 31 that a Munsiff gets a permanent appointment and begins with an initial pay of Rs. 200, i.e., whereas a member of the Provincial Executive Service begins with an initial pay of Rs. 250 at the age of 23, 24 or utmost 25 without passing the B. L. examination and without, in many instances, knowing the rudiments of law, a member of the Provincial Judicial Service has to begin service with an initial pay at Rs. 200 at the age of 30 with proper legal training and with an education if not superior at least equal to that of a member of the Provincial Executive Service. It is this anomaly of difference in the initial pay of the two classes that I ask Your Lordship's Government to remedy.

Resolutions.Babu Surendra Nath Ray.

I think I ought to mention one or two facts in this connection. Your Lordship will find in the Budget estimates of 1914-15 a lump provision of Rs. 21,000 for increase of pay of the last grade of Munsiffs. The non-official Members of Council congratulated the Government at the time for making this provision. Sir William Duke, the then Member in charge of the Financial portfolio, said in the course of the Budget debate on the 4th April, 1914: "Satisfaction has been expressed that provision has been made for raising the pay of the lowest grade of Munsiffs. I would ask members to adopt an attitude of expectation on this subject. I myself have always contemplated raising the pay of the lowest grade of Munsiffs since the time when the Government decided to do it in the case of the Executive Service and that carried through about three years ago. We think that probably what was fair for one service would be fair to the other, in fact, so far as the Munsiffs are recruited older they have an additional claim."

In answer to a question in this Council on the 5th August, 1914, the Government replied: "The proposal is under the consideration of Government to increase the pay of last grade of Munsiffs." In January 1915, in answer to another question, the Government replied: "Awaiting the report of the Public Services Commission." On the 13th March, 1916, in reply to the resolution of my hon'ble friend, Mr. Fazl-ul Haq, for increasing the pay of the lowest grade of Munsiffs from Rs. 200 to Rs. 250, the then Member in charge of the Judicial portfolio, Nawab Syed Shams-ul-Huda said: "I need not discuss the merit of the resolution, for there is not much difference of opinion between the Government and the object of it. As a matter of fact two years ago, we budgetted a sum of Rs. 21,000 for introducing this very reform, but after careful consideration, we had to postpone giving effect to it, because we had made certain recommendation in this connection to the Public Service Commission, and decided to wait and see what the recommendations of the Commission are. I may assure my hon'ble friend that when we know what the Commission have to say on the subject and we have the money, we will be glad to give effect to the reforms which this resolution seeks to introduce. I am sorry, therefore, to have to oppose this resolution.' The report of the Public Services Commission was, however, published in the same year, that is, in 1916, and the Commission made the recommendation that the initial pay of a Munsiff, as soon as he is confirmed, should be Rs. 300. We find the following in the report of the Commission : ' On the judicial side the position is somewhat different. Here recruits will have to possess the LL.B. qualification, and will thus have had a longer educational course. They will also be older than their executive colleagues. This is the reason for starting them on a higher initial rate of salary and for bringing them to the top of the incremental scale in a short period. We, therefore, recommend that probationers be given a salary of Rs. 200 a month, and that on confirmation officers be remunerated on a scale of Rs. 300—40-3—500 a month.' When, however, my hon'ble friend, Mr. Fazl-ul Haq, again moved the identical resolution this day last year, Nawab Sir Syed Shams-ul-Huda, after stating that there was no difference of opinion as to the value of the services of the Munsiffs to the Government and to the public, said : 'The report (the report of the Public Services Commission) has now been published and now we know what the recommendations are, and if Hon'ble Member had cared to examine them he would probably have found that he was rendering a very doubtful service to the Munsiffs by recommending an initial pay of Rs. 250 for them, for, as a matter of fact, the recommendations of the Commission show that they desire that the initial pay of the Munsiffs should be Rs. 300. The Government of India have promised that they would consider the matter more expeditiously. It seems strange that we should be asked to take the matter out of the hands of the Government of India at the present time by giving the Munsiffs an initial pay of Rs. 250.'

My Lord, I have traced the history of this question from the year 1914 when provision was actually made in the Budget estimates for giving effect to what I am moving for. Then comes the Public Services Commission, then the report and, to the surprise of many, the initial pay being not Rs. 250, but Rs. 300, and then we are told by the Government, that we are rendering doubtful service by moving for increasing the initial pay from Rs. 200 to Rs. 250, whereas the Commission had recommended it to be Rs. 300. All this looks very well on paper, but when we come to the actual state of things we find that for the last four years the Government have been for some reason or other, at least for reasons not very clear to us, putting off giving effect to the resolution. Is it because the non-official Indian members have been incessantly pressing the claims of the Munsiffs? We cannot bring ourselves to believe that financial difficulties have stood in the way. It is our firm conviction that when Government have determined to carry out a project, budget or no budget and whatever the expenditure may be, Government have carried it out and always found the money. Why, it is only the other day that about two lakhs of rupees were spent in acquiring land for the Bengal Secretariat Press though there was no provision in the Budget estimates for the current year, viz., 1917-18, for such acquisition.

We have a right to ask as to the reasons why provision of Rs. 21,000 for increasing the initial salary of the Munsiffs was made in 1914-15, but not given effect to. Unfortunately we cannot bring ourselves to believe that appointment of the Public Services Commission stood in the way, for the Commission was appointed in September 1912, and provision was made subsequent thereto. The report of the Commission was published in 1916 and we are in the year of grace of 1918.

Now as regards the amount which may be necessary to carry out this reform. It appears from the Civil List, 1917, that there were 39 Munsiffs on the fifth grade, that is, those who were drawing Rs. 200 a month. In the Civil List of 1918 I find there are 35 such officers, whereas there are 49 officers who are officiating as Munsiffs. If the increase is given only to the permanent incumbents it will require annually about Rs. 20,000, whereas if the officiating incumbents be also paid at Rs. 250, the annual expenditure would come to about Rs. 50,000.

Now as regards the ways and means. My resolution is that the expenditure may be met from the lump provision of Rs. 60,308 provided for regrading of sub-inspectors and head-constables. It is a new item altogether introduced in the Budget this year. We are told that the regrading of these officers, as fixed by the Commission only a few years ago and according to which the sub-inspectors and head-constables have been regraded, has not given satisfaction, and it is, therefore, necessary to regrade them and add a sum of nearly Rs. 61,000 to the recurring expenditure of the Province. So far as we are aware no second commission has been constituted for considering the question of regrading these officers, at least, we are not aware of the appointment of any such commission or committee. This question may, therefore, be postponed for the present. We find, however, that the scale of pay fixed by Royal Commission as regards the initial pay of the Munsiffs has not been given effect to and has been postponed indefinitely and their recommendation shelved at least for the present on the ground of financial difficulty, and what other difficulty heaven alone knows. On the principle that half a loaf is better than no loaf at all, I move that the initial pay of the Munsiffs be Rs. 250 and not Rs. 300 as recommended by the Commission and provision be made in the Budget estimates of 1918-19 for this increase of pay. There is a general impression that the Government looks upon the Judicial Service, which is the earning member of the administrative family, in a step-motherly way. It is for Your Lordship to remove that impression."

The Hon'ble DR. DEBA PRASAD SARBADHIKARI said :—

"My Lord, I shall not be ungenerous enough to assume that effect has not been given to our suggestion in this matter because the Indian non-official members of Your Excellency's Council have been so persistent in bringing it forward year after year. This resolution has been described as a hardy annual of three years' standing. As far as I can look back this question has been persistently brought up before the Council for the last ten or eleven years. I claim and admit that many matters connected with Judicial or Executive Service that have been pressed on the attention of the Council from time to time have received favourable treatment at the hands of Government. As I had occasion at a previous debate to observe that it so happens that a resolution brought forward this year may not find acceptance immediately or the next year, but if there is reason behind it Government generally takes it up and gives effect to it. But why this particular matter has been treated in this way, the Council will be glad to know. Of course the question of financial difficulty is always there. It has been with us and always will be with us, but we have had other provisions, but less important matters and have given effect to them. If there is any immediate chance of the recommendations of the Public Services Commission being adopted and given effect to, I am not prepared to accept the half loaf. Under those recommendations, these very deserving officers are entitled to an initial salary of Rs. 300, and that is why I have named a figure larger than the Hon'ble Babu Surendra Nath Ray's. I do not know how this resolution stands with regard to the educational service Your Excellency has appointed a very representative and comprehensive committee to go into the question. There may be difference of opinion with regard to the Educational Services and it may require further consideration, but with regard to the improvement of pay and prospects of the Judicial Service I have not heard that there is any difference of opinion with regard to what the Commission has suggested and what ought to be done. Under these circumstances it appears to me that no time should be lost, unless there are reasons that are convincing in giving effect to these recommendations. I do not wish to compare the Judicial Service with the Executive Service. They are both excellent services, doing good work. It is the good fortune of the Judicial Service that they earn revenue for Government. That is not the work of the Executive Service and therefore nothing turns upon that aspect of the question. That makes no difference in the situation. Those who have to join the Judicial Service have to be men of a different stamp from those of the Executive Service. People who have any chance of success in the profession do not readily take to service unless they are obliged to do so. With better prospects, it may be possible to draw a better class of practitioners, and that in itself would be a great reason for improving the prospects of the service. For these reasons I support the Hon'ble Maulvi A. K. Fazl-ul-Haq's resolution, and I do not think it would be necessary for me to formally move the resolution which stands in my name. If the Hon'ble Mr. Haq's resolution is accepted my purpose will be served."

Resolutions.Maulvi Abul Kasem ; Mr. Kerr.

The Hon'ble MAULVI ABUL KASEM said :—

"My Lord, after all that has been said I think it is absolutely unnecessary for me to say anything except that I support this resolution. I support this resolution in the Council whether it is given effect to or not. The justice of the case advocated in this resolution has been admitted by the Government, and the only question is whether its relative importance to other expenditure provided for in the Budget is sufficiently great, and I think, my Lord, that this question has been allowed to rest so long that it is time that it be taken up and that something be done to do justice to these officers of Government, and I hope Government will see its way to accept it."

The Hon'ble MR. KERR said :—

"My Lord, as Hon'ble Members, who have spoken before me, have stated this is an old question, the details of which ought to be familiar to this Council. It would seem, however, that there is still some misapprehension about the matter, and it will be just as well for me to give a history of the case shortly. The whole origin of this trouble is that in 1912 the pay of the lowest grade of Deputy Collectors was raised from Rs. 200 to Rs. 250. The Munsiffs naturally enough felt that they were entitled to a similar increase in the pay of their lowest grade, and I must say that I have considerable sympathy with them. I do suggest, however, that it is going too far to talk about a wrong done to the Munsiff; it is only a question whether the junior Munsiffs on recruitment should draw Rs. 200 or Rs. 250. It may be said that if the matter is so simple as that we should put it right at once. As regards that, I must tell the Council what exactly happened. In 1913, this question was referred to the High Court; and pending the receipt of their report, provision was made in the Budget for 1914-15 for the introduction of this reform. The High Court's proposals were received in August, 1914. They dealt not only with the pay of the lowest grade of Munsiffs, but they also made some rather extensive proposals for the re-organisation of the Provincial Judicial Service as a whole. The High Court's proposals were received on the 7th August, 1914, that is to say, three days after the war broke out; and the Council will remember that one of the first things the Government of India did on the outbreak of the war was to put a stop to all expenditure which was not required for measures of immediate and imperative necessity. It was known, too, that the matter was under the consideration of the Royal Commission on the Public Services. It is no wonder, therefore, that the Government of India decided, in September, 1914, that this question of the reorganisation of the Judicial Service in Bengal must await the report of the Public Services Commission. In consequence of this decision, the amount provided in the Budget for 1914-15 for this reform lapsed, and the Munsiffs and their friends in this Council and outside it have always felt that the Munsiffs have been in some way defrauded of their just dues. I admit frankly that the junior Munsiffs have had real bad luck, and if I were speaking outside this Council I might use a stronger expression; but I would remind them that they are not the only officers who have been hit by the war and by the necessity of waiting for a decision on the report of the Public Services Commission. The war has gone on longer than most people anticipated in 1914, and the report of the Public Services Commission has taken longer to deal with than most of us expected. The procedure, which the Government of India have adopted in dealing with the report, has been explained more than once in this Council. Briefly, they propose to settle the general principles first and take up the case of individual services thereafter. They have not yet reached the stage at which they will ask us for our detailed recommendations with regard to individual services, but the Government of Bengal fully recognise that the delay which is occurring is causing excusable disappointment to the Munsiffs. We have, therefore, carefully considered, both last year and this year, whether it would be practicable to do anything to expedite the consideration of their case in advance of general action on the Royal Commission's report. There are considerable difficulties about this, and they are due to the fact that the changes proposed by the Royal Commission in regard to the Judicial Service are somewhat extensive and important. As Hon'ble Members know, under the present system candidates for Munsiffships begin by officiating in temporary vacancies. There are often considerable intervals between these officiating vacancies, and the whole system has for some time been regarded as not altogether satisfactory either to the Munsiffs or to the Government. The Royal Commission have proposed that the provincial Judicial Service, like most other services, should have an adequate leave reserve for filling temporary and casual vacancies, and that the recruits to the Judicial Service should begin as probationers on Rs. 200. When they are confirmed, their pay will be raised to Rs. 300; after that they will go up on a time scale by triennial increments of Rs. 40 until they reach Rs. 500; similarly, Subordinate Judges will begin on Rs. 600 and rise to Rs. 800 by annual increments of Rs. 40. Now, these proposals involve a very important change in the existing system of a graded service recruited from the Bar who begin by officiating temporarily in the first instance. There are also rather complicated questions of pensions, etc., to be settled, due to the fact, as several Hon'ble Members have noticed, that Munsiffs enter the service at a comparatively late age. The Royal Commission's scheme is also very different, indeed, from the scheme which was sent up by the High Court in 1914. The question of the method of recruitment of Munsiffs and the substitution of a time scale for a graded service, all raise large matters of principles which affect not merely the Judicial Service but other services, and not merely services in Bengal but services all over India. In these circumstances, we feel that we could not rightly ask the Government of India to sanction a mere temporary palliative like the raising of the pay of the lowest grade to Rs. 250 specially as this remedy is not on the lines on which the Royal Commission proposed to reorganise the service. I notice that both the Vice-Chancellor and the Hon'ble Maulvi Fazl-ul Haq seem to think that this half loaf would not afford a satisfactory meal for the Munsiffs. What we have decided to do, therefore, is this. We should have preferred to wait until we get the views of the Government of India on questions of principle—recruitment, time-scale and so on—before we ask for the views of the High Court on the Royal Commission's scheme; but we recognise that considerable delay has already occurred and that more delay is likely to occur before these big questions are settled. We propose, therefore, at once to consult the High Court on the Royal Commission's scheme and to obtain their views. We shall then be in a position to place our conclusions before the Government of India, immediately they are ready to take up the case of individual services, and we hope that we shall be able to put the case of the Munsiffs in the forefront or even to send it up in advance of other services. It must, of course, be understood that I am not able to give any promise. The final decision will not rest with the Government of Bengal, but with the Government of India and the Secretary of State. It is, therefore, impossible for us to do what the Hon'ble Maulvi Fazl-ul Haq asks us to do. It is impossible for us to give immediate effect to the recommendations of the Public Services Commission regarding the improvement in the pay and prospects of the Judicial Service. The Hon'ble Member asks us to do something which we cannot possibly do. Nor is it solely a question of funds. If these important matters of principle had been settled and if we had received the orders of the Government of India and the Secretary of State, we should, I have little doubt, be able to find the funds which are required to give effect to this reform. It is at the present stage simply a question of the best tactics to adopt in sending up this case to the higher authorities, and before we can do that, we must get the views of the High Court. I can, however, assure the Council that the Government of Bengal do realise that in view of the delay that has occurred the Munsiffs have a reasonable claim that their case should be expedited as far as possible, and that orders should not be delayed longer than is necessary. I can undertake, on behalf of the Government of Bengal, that nothing we can do in this direction will be left undone. I am sorry that is all the assurance I can give the Council, but it is an assurance not without its value ; and perhaps in these circumstances the Hon'ble Members who have put forward these resolutions will be prepared to leave the matter in the hands of Government."

Resolutions.Mr. Kerr.

The Hon'ble RAI DEBENDRA CHANDRA GHOSH BAHADUR said :—

"My Lord, I will only say a very few words. After what has fallen from the Hon'ble Mr. Kerr I do not think it is necessary for me to say anything in justification of the Munsiff's case. All I want is to dispel the impression which might have been created in the minds of some of the Hon'ble Members as regards the initial pay of the junior Munsiffs. Formerly the initial pay of the Munsiff was Rs. 250 a month. That was the pay fixed in the year 1868. That went on for about 30 years, and then it was felt by the Government that it would be proper to class the pay of the junior Munsiffs with that of the junior Deputy Magistrates and that is how the pay of the junior Munsiffs came to be reduced to Rs. 200 a month. I hope that when the question of the increase in the pay of these Munsiffs comes up for consideration, the history of their initial pay will not be forgotten."

The Hon'ble MAULVI A. K. FAZL-UL HAQ said :—

"My Lord, I admit that in allotting expenditure on different items Government have to take into consideration the relative importance of the items of expenditure to be considered. It is true that the Government of India have ruled that in view of the financial stringency through which we are now passing all expenditure, other than those of urgent and immediate necessity should be stopped. The only question which arises, therefore, is whether the proposal contained in this resolution can be called to be a matter of urgent and imperative necessity. That it is a matter of some necessity has already been admitted. That it is a matter of importance has also been conceded. And I think, having regard to all that has taken place in the discussion of this question, that it is also a matter of immediate and urgent necessity. Glancing through the Budget it strikes me as somewhat strange that Government should allot no less than a sum of rupees twenty-one lakhs on items of more or less minor importance compared with the needs and requirements of the judicial branch of the Provincial Civil Service. Let us take into consideration the case of the head-constables. Is it going to be seriously urged that the question of the regrading of head-constables is of greater importance than the question of raising the pay of the Munsiffs? Take the case of the ordinary police. Is it going to be seriously urged that this is of far greater importance or of more immediate necessity than that of the regrading of Munsiffs and Sub-Judges? Is it seriously urged that the construction of steam-launches for which a lakh of rupees have been budgetted is of more immediate and urgent necessity—launches for River Police for which Rs. 80,000 have been budgetted? Then, my Lord, there are other items, Bhownipore Lunatic Asylum, two lakhs; River patrol, Rs. 79,996; additional temporary force for Intelligence Branch, 1,04,308; increase for temporary force, two lakhs; and so forth. I want to question, my Lord, whether all these are of greater importance and of more immediate necessity than the question of the raising of the Munsiff's pay? Is the raising of the pay of the sub-inspectors and head-constables by more than a lakh of more importance? I submit that in view of the fact that money has been found for raising the pay of sub-inspectors and head-constables that the question of regrading the pay of the members of the Provincial Judicial Service should be considered also. It is true we are passing through a financial crisis, but I submit that the money which is needed will be certainly well spent if it is spent in giving effect to the recommendations of the Public Services Commission with regard to the revision of this branch of public service. I quite appreciate the value of the assurance that the Government will try their best to do all that can possibly be done to improve the pay and prospects of the Judicial Service. I have no doubt that all that can possibly be done will be done. But having regard to all that has been done, I do not think that we can simply rest with the assurance of this character. It is true that a reference has got to be made to the High Court, but more than two years have now elapsed since we had the report of the Public Services Commission before us, and I think Government ought to have by this time thought of getting the advice of the High Court in the matter of giving effect to the recommendations of the Public Services Commission. I think, my Lord, we have made out a good case for the Government to accept this resolution, and I hope Government will yet reconsider their decision in this matter."

Resolutions.Maulvi A. K. Fazl-ul Haq.

APPENDIX TO THE LIST OF BUSINESS—ITEMS Nos. XIV AND XV.

The following resolutions, which stood in the names of the Hon'ble Babu Surendra Nath Ray and Dr. Deba Prasad Sarbadhikari, respectively, were, by leave of the President, withdrawn :—

This Council recommends to the Governor in Council that—

(a) provision be made for Rs. 50,000, or such other sum as may be necessary, to raise the initial pay of the Munsiffs from Rs. 200 to Rs. 250 ; and

(b) the expenditure be met from the lump provision of Rs. 60,308, provided for regrading of sub-inspectors and head-constables.

This Council recommends to the Governor in Council that—

(a) a sum of Rs. 1,00,000 be provided in the Budget for giving effect to the recommendation of the Public Services Commission for increasing the initial salaries of Munsiffs ; and

(b) the said sum be taken out of the provision of Rs. 96,58,000 under head Police, District Executive Force.

APPENDIX TO THE LIST OF BUSINESS—ITEM No. XVI.

The Hon'ble Dr. DEBA PRASAD SARBADHIKARI moved the following resolution :—

This Council recommends to the Governor in Council that—

(a) a sum of Rs. 30,000 be added to the Budget Estimate (20,000) for preliminary works in connection with the Damodar Reservoir Scheme ; and

Resolutions.Mr. Cowley.

- (b) the said sum of Rs. 30,000 be taken out of the provision of Rs. 6,54,000 for the construction of buildings in connection with the partition of Midnapore.

He said :—

“My Lord, this also is one of our hardy annuals—hardier than the one which has just been disposed of. Every year this question is brought before the Council in the hope of getting some sort of relief. This year we are fortified better than we used to be before, because Your Excellency was good enough to visit the locality in person and was able to form conclusions which, I hope, are favourable. A very sympathetic reply was given in answer to the deputation that waited on Your Excellency the other day and some of the items provided in the Budget on pages 27 and 28 of the Revised Financial Statement are earnest of what Your Excellency's Government propose to do under the present circumstances. I gratefully acknowledge that the sum provided for the improvement of Buxi khal will go a long way in relieving a certain tract of the country. But my resolution relates mainly to the Damodar reservoir scheme and my submission here is that a little more money ought to be provided for the preliminary work. I must not have the hardihood to tell the department that it ought to spend on preliminary work more than what it thinks ought to be spent. The reason, however, why, I think, that the survey should be thorough and effective is that since the reply to the deputation was given, there has been criticism in the newspapers of the scheme that has been put forward and adverse suggestions have also appeared from men who had known of the scheme while in the service of the department. Any mistake, my Lord, in connection with the scheme would be worse than fatal and we cannot be too careful as to how we proceed. Your Excellency's Government have deputed an expert officer to go on with the work in addition to what Sir Adams-Williams has already done. Whether with regard to a big scheme like this the allotted sum will achieve any good results is doubted by some people who had the handling of the question before, and it is as a result of these criticisms that I ask Your Excellency's Government whether some more money ought not to be provided. It is a big problem no doubt, but the stake is also big. In other countries problems like this have been successfully dealt with. Those who know countries like Holland know what terrible disasters the people had to face before, but which science and zeal have conquered. The conditions are similar here to a certain extent, though I do not forget the difficulties about silting and level and expanse. And if this extra big tract of country is to be given relief a very reliable scheme is necessary. Better far that the scheme should not be undertaken than it should be badly undertaken. I do not for a moment suggest that that will be the case, but what I do suggest is that much more money would be necessary for achieving good results than the sum allotted for the first year. Under these circumstances I venture to suggest that if a preliminary survey is to be effective at least Rs. 50,000 should be provided in the Budget.”

The Hon'ble Mr. COWLEY said :—

“My Lord, I can assure the Hon'ble Member who has moved this resolution that Government has full sympathy with his desire to push on with the investigations in connection with the construction in the Barakar valley of a reservoir for holding up a portion of the Damodar flood water. The Hon'ble Member has said that he thinks that a sum of Rs. 20,000 which has been provided in the Budget for this purpose is insufficient, and in order to achieve good results we should spend more money on them. I trust that I shall be able to convince the Hon'ble Member that this is not the case. The work on which we are at present engaged is to find a suitable site for a reservoir,

. . . Resolutions.

Dr. Deba Prasad Sarbadhikari; Rai Mahendra Chandra Mitra Bahadur.

and having found it to examine it from two standpoints, namely, geological and engineering. At first we want to see what sort of a foundation we may obtain for the reservoir dam and, secondly, whether the nature of the sub-soil is such as will render the reservoir water-tight and resist scour in the neighbourhood of the sluices. We have to ascertain by survey the volume of water which can be impounded by the construction of a dam at the site, and our object being to hold up a volume of 20,000 million feet of water we can arrive at the height of the dam which is requisite, and the area which will be submerged by the lake when the reservoir is full. We have also to examine other questions, such as the nature of the catchment area of the river, the nature of the sediment carried by the river when in flood and the volume of the discharge. These are the questions which we have at present to enquire upon and solve. When we have found a site which is satisfactory both from the geological and engineering points of view we will then have to design the reservoir dam and prepare the estimates. The estimates when ready will first be shown to and examined by the Inspector-General of Irrigation and finally submitted to the Government of India for the sanction of that Government or of the Secretary of State in England. It will be seen, therefore, that our preliminary works, that is to say, works which we are about to carry out are not of a costly nature. In addition we shall have the expert assistance of the Inspector-General of Irrigation and we shall no doubt apply to the Government of India for the services of an expert officer from the Geological Department to report on the site from a geological standpoint. Our preliminary work must be absolutely thorough and sound. The responsibility for the preparation of a project of this nature is very great and requires months of anxious and careful deliberation, but the actual expenditure in cash during the current year will be limited to survey work, the purchase of camp equipments and mathematical instruments, the making of borings and petty works costing small sums. We have provided Rs. 20,000 for expenditure next year and we do not require more for the preparation of this project, therefore I do not agree with the Hon'ble Member that a larger provision for expenditure in the next year's Budget is required. The point is that the time has not yet arrived when we can do more. We have first to prepare our project and then find out what it would cost and submit it to the expert officers of the Government of India for sanction. I hope that this explanation will satisfy the Hon'ble Member that the Budget provision is not inadequate for our present purposes. In any case we shall not stop our investigations if we find ourselves running short of funds; but as I have said I do not anticipate that this will be the case. I trust, therefore, that the Hon'ble Member will not press this resolution."

The Hon'ble DR. DEBA PRASAD SARBADHIKARI said :—

"My Lord, I was not anticipating the work to which the Hon'ble Member has referred. It is the preliminary work pure and simple to which my observations related. I do not propose a reversion to the Satya Juga and try to force more money upon an unwilling department, and if the result can be achieved with Rs. 20,000. I should think that the Public Works Department ought to receive a better certificate than the public has been willing to give them so long."

The resolution was then, by leave of the President, withdrawn.

APPENDIX TO THE LIST OF BUSINESS—ITEM No. XVII.

The Hon'ble RAI MAHENDRA CHANDRA MITRA BAHADUR moved the following resolution :—

This Council recommends to the Governor in Council that the scheme for the construction of building in connection with the partition of Midnapore be postponed for the present and that as much money as possible out of the sum of Rs. 6,64,000 for that purpose be allotted to increase the grant in connection with the projects for mitigating the effect of the terrible floods of the Damodar in the Burdwan Division.

Resolutions.Rai Mahendra Chandra Mitra Bahadur.

He said :—

“My Lord, in consequence of the great struggle in which the Empire is now engaged I think that the present moment is hardly the time for carrying out any expensive scheme of doubtful utility such as the partitioning of the district of Midnapore. We are to provide for the heavy liabilities which in one way or another will come upon us shortly after the war is over. The war imposes on us the necessity for conservation of our resources.’ My Lord, in connection with the partition of the district of Midnapore, how can we meet a heavy recurring expenditure on account of the maintenance of the officers to be appointed ?

At the Council meeting last year, the Hon’ble Mr. P. C. Lyon, C.S.I., pointed out that the district of Midnapore ‘has very special difficulties of its own. In fact, a considerable portion of its area is inhabited by aboriginal tribes differing entirely from the population of the other parts of the district. It has also very large Government estates and Canal Irrigation areas and other special difficulties.’

My friend, the Hon’ble Mr. O’Malley while discussing the general administration of this district at some length in his valuable treatise, the Gazetteer of Midnapore, has not raised the question of partitioning this district. Besides, the proofs of this book were read and revised by two eminent civilians, viz., W. A. Marr, Esq., I.C.S., Collector of Midnapore, and D. Weston, Esq., I.C.S., formerly Collector of Midnapore.

My Lord, I quote the following figures from the Report of the District Administration Committee, submitted to Government of Bengal in May 1914 (vide page 39) for the purpose of comparison and careful consideration of Your Excellency’s Council :—

						Area. Sq. miles.
Midnapore	5,145

Resolutions.Rai Mahendra Chandra Mitra Bahadur.

				CASES TRIED BY MAGISTRATES.
				Original.	Appeals and Revisions.
Midnapore	4,765	206
24-Parganas	34,281	268
				Cases committed to Sessions.
Midnapore	46

24-Parganas	47,444
				Number of Civil Suits tried in Civil Courts.
Midnapore	35,024
24-Parganas	43,090

My Lord, from the above statement, it will undoubtedly appear to Your Excellency's Council that there is no urgency at all for partitioning the district of Midnapore for efficient administration of the district.

The proposals for the partition of the district of Midnapore were abandoned on 'financial considerations' in 1885 by Government.

My Lord, on account of the war the financial position of Government has not improved now.

The Government of India declined "mainly on political grounds" to proceed any further with the question of partition of Midnapore, and an Additional District Magistrate for Midnapore was appointed in 1908.

Last year, the Hon'ble Mr. Lyon observed at the Council meeting that 'so long as these districts (i.e., Mymensingh and Midnapore) remain undivided, we can expect but little improvement in sanitation because the whole unit is too big, whether it be the Collectorate or the District Board.' My Lord, non-official gentlemen are now being appointed as Chairmen of District Boards, and therefore District Magistrates are relieved of their multifarious duties connected with the administration of District Boards.

My Lord, it is not the question of area alone which can effect marked improvement in the efficient administration of a district, but it is the question of funds available at the disposal of the district officer for expenditure in his own district. It is not the question of total income of a district from various sources, such as excise, income-tax, etc., not to speak of its land revenue, but it is the question of allotment from the provincial as well as grant from the Imperial Government. Money should be provided to solve the problems in connection with the legitimate and chronic complaints about sanitation or drainage and irrigation which seriously affect the people who contribute their share to increase the income of the district they live in.

Resolutions.Maulvi Abul Kasem.

My Lord, let me take the case of Howrah district for purpose of comparison; because the area of Howrah district is 510 square miles and it is the smallest district in the Presidency of Bengal, with a population of about 8½ lakhs being less numerous than any other district in the Province except Darjeeling. The district of Howrah is still under the Collector of Hooghly and therefore the District Magistrate of Howrah has got a greater amount of time at his disposal to look after the smallest area of his district in the Presidency of Bengal. But what of that? The paddy-fields of several mauzas in the Uluberia subdivision of Howrah district are still under water, and immense damage is done to crops every year for want of proper drainage; the helpless raiyat and encumbered landlords are on the verge of ruin. But 'Government are not taking steps to carry out any work for the speedy drainage of this area.' I have been informed at the Council meeting by the Hon'ble Member in charge that 'the area will be efficiently drained when effect is given to the Amta drainage project. The solution of the problem has already been found and that the only obstacle being money.' In 1873 Colonel Haig, Chief Engineer of Bengal, recommended the Amta scheme for the drainage of 84 square miles. Of the rural thanas in the district of Howrah 'Amta is the most unhealthy' (vide page 52, District Gazetteer of Howrah by Hon'ble Mr. O'Malley).

The Amta drainage scheme 'has already been approved by Government and is only awaiting funds.'

My Lord, in connection with the Damodar floods, we are extremely thankful to your Excellency's sympathetic reply to the members of the deputation that waited upon your Excellency in February last, but unfortunately, sufficient provision has not been made in the Budget for all the proposed new measures and improved drainage as mentioned in the reply.

My Lord, I humbly appeal to your Excellency's Council that the scheme for the construction of building in connection with the partition of Midnapore be postponed for the present and that as much money as possible out of the sum of Rs. 6,64,000 for that purpose be allotted to increase the grant in connection with the projects for mitigating the effect of floods of the Damodar that most seriously affect every year the lives and properties of thousands of poor inhabitants of about 800 villages in the Burdwan Division."

The Hon'ble MAULVI ABUL KASEM said :—

"My Lord, I rise to support my friend, and in doing so I must say that the people of the Burdwan Division gratefully appreciate the very sympathetic attitude taken up by Government with reference to the question of the flood area. My Lord, high hopes have been raised on the minds of the people by Your Excellency's visit to some of the affected areas and they believe that something substantial will be done in the near future. Your Excellency was pleased to give us a detailed account of what it was proposed to do and I rise now simply to impress upon your Excellency's Government that the Damodar and Ajai floods have brought the cultivators in a large area in the district of Burdwan and Hooghly to a distressful condition and the situation at the present moment is very critical. And if relief is delayed and the country is allowed to be flooded next year again the result will be that the districts of Burdwan, Hooghly and Howrah will be practically devastated. I hope, My Lord, something will be done before the coming rains to give timely relief, at any rate, to the people by the protection of the crops for at least one or two years, so that the people may have something to fall back upon. With these words I commend the resolution to the Council with the hope that something will be done for our cultivators."

Resolutions.Mr. Cowley ; Râi Mahendra Chandra Mitra Bahadur.

The Hon'ble Mr. COWLEY said :—

"My Lord, the subject matter of this resolution is receiving the sympathetic consideration of Government. Our scheme for mitigating the effects of these floods of the river Damodar have also been explained in this Council several times. They are being pushed forward as quickly as we can. We cannot in the course of one year or six months finish or complete any one of these schemes. The work consists to a very great extent in the acquisition of land and the excavation of earth. Both of these proceedings take much time and do not involve expenditure at a rapid rate. To spend a large sum of money on earthwork means that a very large amount of earth has to be excavated and the time at our disposal is limited by physical conditions.

In regard to the expenditure if we had a dredger available for dredging the Hoorhoola Khal we could no doubt proceed with our work more rapidly and consequently spend a large sum over and above that provided for in the budget. As has been explained more than once in this Council we cannot at the present time purchase a dredger. We have only two dredgers available for use, but both these are fully employed for the maintenance of our waterways. We cannot take up the excavation of the Chetooa escape channel at present for the reason that we have not completed yet the collection of all the hydraulic data which is necessary for the proper alignment of that escape channel. Consequently the work cannot be undertaken, but we shall push on with the schemes we have in hand. I can, however, assure the Hon'ble Member who has moved this resolution that Government is just as anxious as he can be to see these works completed, but I cannot promise that they will be completed in one year or three years, but that the work will be pushed on as rapidly as possible. We have provided in our budget for the next year for as much work as we think we can possibly do, and we do not anticipate that even had we further large sums of money we could spend it. I trust, therefore, that the Hon'ble Mover will see that in the circumstances an addition to the grant is not necessary and I hope he will not press his resolution."

The Hon'ble RAI MAHENDRA CHANDRA MITRA BAHADUR said

"My Lord, I have submitted my views in support of the resolution, and I thought that it would be accepted by the Council without any hesitation. There are two questions before the Council now : The first is the difficulty to which the raiyats have been put owing to the floods of the Damodar river and the second is the question whether for the convenience of administrative work some buildings are to be constructed. Now it is for the Council to decide these questions ; it requires no argument of mine to support the resolution. On one side we have the question of humanity and on the other side the question of efficiency. We have to consider whether there is any necessity of keeping in hand Rs. 6,64,000 for the purpose of building in connection with the partition of Midnapore or to spend the money for the mitigation of the effect of the floods. It is only for the consideration of Government whether the raiyats of 800 villages situated as they are at present without any help from anybody cannot expect help from Government in such urgent matters.

I find, My Lord, in the budget that a sum of Rs. 20,000 has been allotted as a preliminary measure to mitigate the effects of the flood. Now if it is said that the amount will be increased next year it will not put the raiyats in a comfortable position. Your Lordship had been to the affected area and Your Lordship must have been convinced that it is necessary for Government to pay at once as much money as is possible under the circumstances. I can only endorse to the sufferings of these poor villagers ; they have been moving from field to field without getting a morsel of rice or bread. That being the position of the raiyats I claim for them your Excellency's consideration that if money is to be spent for their benefit it must be done at once. Therefore, I strongly appeal to Your Excellency's Government to postpone the construction of the buildings for the partition of Midnapore and spend the amount as much as possible for the comfort of these villagers. I cannot describe the pitiable condition of the raiyats. If it is said that because it has been settled that buildings are to be constructed and therefore the money is to be spent on that account, my humble submission is that Government has full authority to reconsider the matter and allow the construction of the buildings to be postponed and spend the money for the benefit of the raiyats. I appeal, therefore, on the grounds of humanity for the acceptance of this resolution."

• The resolution was then put and lost.

The PRESIDENT said :—

"For the convenience of Hon'ble Members I propose to take one more resolution this evening and after discussing the next resolution (No. XVIII) on the order paper, I shall adjourn the Council until to-morrow."

RESOLUTION No. XVIII.APPENDIX TO THE LIST OF BUSINESS—ITEM No. XVIII.

The Hon'ble Rai MAHENDRA CHANDRA MITRA Bahadur moved the following resolution :—

This Council recommends to the Governor in Council that the projects for the acquisition of land in connection with the partition of Mymensingh be postponed for the present and the sum of Rs. 6,50,000 for that purpose be allotted to provide funds for building a hostel for the Medical College, Calcutta.

He said :—

"In moving the resolution I have already submitted my views in connection with the partition of Mymensingh.

As the result of my last year's resolution on the subject of a hostel for the Indian students of the Medical College, Calcutta, they have been accommodated in a building hired for the purpose at a great distance from the college which they are to attend several times during night and day. This temporary arrangement is not satisfactory, specially during the rainy season. The collegiate students of the Presidency College, Calcutta, viz., the students of the Hindu and Hare Schools who have no hostels, will be accommodated in the Hindu Hostel, if it ever be vacated at all by the students of the Presidency College. The following note by the Hon'ble Surgeon-General of the Government of Bengal quoted from the Annual Report of the Medical College, Calcutta, for the year 1916-17, which was forwarded to the Secretary to the Government of Bengal, Financial (Medical)

Resolutions.Sir Henry Wheeler.

Department, dated the 27th August 1917, will surely convince Your Excellency's Council of the most urgent need for hostels for the Indian students of the Medical College :—

'The question of hostel accommodation for the students has become more pressing than ever. If we are to be responsible for the protection of our students from all undesirable external influences, we must provide them with proper accommodation and also place them under proper supervision. This can only be done if we have a collegiate hostel. I am aware that the expenditure involved in providing hostel accommodation for five or six hundred students is a heavy one. At the same time the Medical College of Calcutta will be a century old in a few years. It is a great pity that it should have such fundamental wants still unprovided for, while similar institutions in other Provinces of recent growth are so well furnished with all their needs.'

May I ask Your Excellency what has been done in this connection ?

With these remarks I beg to move the resolution for the consideration of Your Excellency's Council."

The Hon'ble SIR HENRY WHEELER said :—

"Sir, last year the Hon'ble Member moved this same resolution, which then had reference only to the provision of funds for the acquisition of land for this scheme. On the explanation of the case by my Hon'ble friend, Mr. Beatson Bell, the Hon'ble Mover withdrew the resolution; yet although the position is much what it was last year, except in one respect, as I will explain in a moment, he now desires not only the acquisition of land but also the building of the hostel. The reasons, which were given him last year and which stood in the way of his request, were that, although Government fully recognised the desirability of providing a hostel for medical students, we had, in that year, in relation to the Medical College, given preference to the construction of servants' quarters, and we were hoping to make temporary arrangements for the housing of students. It was also explained that, whereas there was a possibility of certain colleges eventually being removed from Calcutta and thereby rendering vacant the buildings which they now occupied, there were adequate reasons for holding our hands before embarking upon a fresh ambitious project. This will be an expensive scheme, and the first estimate of its cost amounted to no less than Rs. 20½ lakhs. It was cut down in 1909 to Rs. 14½ lakhs to make provision for some 300 students, but even at that it is obviously a big affair.

That being the situation last year it is somewhat similar now; we are still constructing the servants' quarters, and we have still this unsolved problem of the possible removal of some of the colleges from Calcutta to the suburbs. But in the matter of providing temporary accommodation we have redeemed the pledge of last year. The Principal's report of 1918 says that up to the end of last session students, other than those living, or supposed to be living, with parents or suitable guardians (numbering about 700), were living in unattached messes, with the exception of a very small number who resided in two attached messes. Practically, all those, therefore, who were not living with parents or guardians, were living in unattached messes. We now, however, have 16 attached messes to accommodate 338 students. There has, therefore, been a very marked improvement in the condition of affairs since last year. It is true that we want to have a hostel which will accommodate about 300 students, but for 300 or 400 students we are already adopting a cheap expedient which at any rate meets the need of the moment, even though we might prefer eventually to have an expensive hostel. Therefore, Sir, for the time being, looking at the general financial position, I do not think we can afford to spend a large sum for a hostel, more especially if this would entail the postponement of the acquisition of the land for the partition of Mymensingh."

The Hon'ble Rai MAHENDRA CHANDRA MITRA Bahadur said :—

"My Lord, I have put before the Council all the inconvenience felt by the Medical College students. I have also listened to the reply given by the Hon'ble Sir Henry Wheeler. I am persuaded to place my resolution before the Council and I trust that it will be accepted."

The resolution was then put and lost.

The Council was then adjourned till Friday, the 15th March, at 11 A.M., at Government House, Calcutta.

APPENDIX B.

(Referred to in Answer to Question No. XIV).

No. 343 Edn., dated Calcutta, the 18th February, 1918.

Memo.—By the Under-Secretary to the Govt. of Bengal, General Department.

Copy of the following forwarded to the Director of Public Instruction, Bengal, for information.

No. 342 Edn., dated Calcutta, the 18th February, 1918.

From—The Secretary to the Government of Bengal, General Department,

To—The Commissioner of the Chittagong Division.

I am directed to refer to the correspondence resting with your letter No. 646C., dated the 15th October, 1917, with which you forward a petition from the Secretary to the Hindu Endowment Committee, Chittagong. The Committee prays (1) that orders should issue prohibiting any Muhammadan gathering for any purpose on what is known as the brickfield land at Sitakund and that the land should not be used as a play-ground for the boys of the High School and the Madrassa, and (2) that the school and the Madrassa should be removed from Sitakund.

2. In reply, I am to say that Government decline to entertain these proposals. They consider that the question whether the brickfield land should be used by the Muhammadans for religious gatherings and by the school boys for a play-ground is a matter for the local officers to decide. Government also see no reason to differ from the conclusion arrived at by you and the Director of Public Instruction in regard to the selection of a site for the Sitakund High English School, and will therefore await your proposals for the construction of the school on the dāk bungalow site.

APPENDIX G.

(Referred to in Answer to Question No. XXXI).

No. 4765, dated Dacca, the 30th November, 1917.

From—S. G. HART, Esq., I.C.S., Collector of Dacca,

To—The Commissioner of the Dacca Division, Dacca.

WITH reference to your memorandum No. 3771, dated the 29th August, 1917, regarding the sanitary condition of the Manikganj Subdivision, I have the honour to report as follows :—

3. Water supply.—In addition to those sunk by the Local Board the six newly created Union Committees have provided 13 wells during the year 1916, viz :—

Manikganj	6
Baira	3
Saturia	1
Ballia	1
Bankhuri	1
Garpara	1
					13

4. Quinine distribution.—A permanent advance of 304 packets of quinine treatment was given to 142 Panchayets in 1915 and from the date of receipt of orders making the Sub-Treasury a centre for the distribution of quinine 773 boxes of treatments were issued to vendors in 1915 and 581 boxes in 1916. In the current year up to date 421 boxes have been issued. The decline in issue is attributable to the comparative immunity from malaria which the subdivision enjoyed during the past two years.

There are at present 206 vendors of quinine, viz., 134 Panchayets, 67 Post Masters and 5 outsiders, besides the three Sanitary Inspectors, one of whose duties is the sale of quinine.

Requisitions from vendors for quinine treatments not accompanied by cash are supplied by V.-P. P. A clerk of the Subdivisional office has been entrusted with the work. He keeps a permanent stock of 40 boxes of treatments which is recouped every Treasury day. Requisitions received before noon are supplied on the same day. The clerk gets an allowance of Rs. 10 and the dufftri Rs. 2 a month from the District Board.

5. Dispensaries.—The Harirampur dispensary, built on the new ed type-plan, has been opened with effect from 1st August 1917, and is fair to be one of the most popular dispensaries in the subdivision.

Sivalaya.—The site has been raised and contract given out for the construction of the dispensary during the current financial year.

Kalia.—The Tilli dispensary is in a bad way and it is doubtful whether it will not be advisable to close the dispensary and to retain only a doctor drawing a fixed pay from the Board with full liberty regarding private practice. No real interest is taken in the dispensary by the people at Tilli and at Kalia, which is not far away—no better results can be expected. Failing to find any place where intelligent local interest will be taken in a dispensary it will perhaps be thought better to have no dispensary at all.

Baldhara.—A plan for extension and improvement of the dispensary has been submitted and completion and improvement of the dispensary has been submitted and completion of the land acquisition proceedings is awaited.

The Bisnupur thana has not been sanctioned yet and there is no immediate prospect of any dispensary being built there or at Singair.

6. Malaria doctors.—No information is available here about their deputation. Information may be obtained from the Sanitary Commissioner, Bengal.

7. A cholera doctor was deputed in the month of December 1916, but the small local outbreak of the disease subsided quickly and the doctor returned after a stay of only about a week in the subdivision.

8. Sanitation parties.—Two parties, each consisting of an Inspector on Rs. 30, with pony allowance of Rs. 10 and 2 coolies on Rs. 15 per month, were employed in Harirampur and Ghiar thanas from 1st November 1915 to 31st May 1916. They cleared jungle from public places and induced the villagers to clear their lands of jungle and noxious vegetation, disinfected all public wells and tanks, distributed quinine and quinine almanacs, and when a small outbreak of cholera took place in December 1915, distributed cholera pills. The results appearing satisfactory the system was extended and three similar parties were employed on the same duties from November 1916 to May 1917. They will be again employed from the 1st December 1917 till the end of May next.

9. The health of the subdivision has been better during the past two years as the subjoined figures will indicate and as the floods were high in both years it is difficult to speculate as to the extent to which this healthiness was due to the precautionary measures above described.

The floods have, however, been low this year and the healthiness or otherwise of the next autumn and winter months will afford a fair test of the efficacy of the measures undertaken.
